Four Steal Election Results

Get News From Typesetter

In what has been termed one of the most clever tricks to be played upon any organization at Albright College in recent years, four Albright men stole the all-campus election results Tuesday afternoon from The Albrightian typesetter's establishment and posted them in the administration building.

Two of the culprits are known to be Richard (Ace) Adams, unsuccessful candidate for the presidency of the class of 1954, and Rae Hoopes, also a sophomore and erstwhile member of The Albrightian sports staff. The identity of the other two men could not be ascertained immediately.

Following the precedent of former years, the student activities committee of student council, which conducted the elections on April 7, 8 and 9, had intended to announce the results for the first time in this issue of The Albrightian.

First indication of the theft came Tuesday afternoon, when numerous students began talking about the results, hitherto known only to a few. Tuesday evening The Albrightian received an anonymous telephone call, informing it that the returns had been "swiped." A crudely pencilled list of alleged election results was posted in the administration building Wednesday.

Both of the known culprits readily admitted their "crime," although Adams declared that he was merely a "willing accomplice." Hoopes submitted to The Albrightian a written report on "How We Stole the Elections Results," alleged to be based on the theft of the Stone of Scone, as re-

Parents' Weekend Set For May 9-11

This year's Mardi Gras festivities on Friday night, May 9, will open the 12th annual Parents' Weekend to be held May 9, 10 and 11.

On Saturday morning there will be an open house for the inspection of the women's and men's living quarters. The coronation of the May Queen and the May Day dances will highlight Saturday afternoon's activities, which will also feature a varsity track meet.

The annual parents' banquet will be held that evening in Union Hall, followed by the concert to be given by the combined music groups. Completing the observances will be a parents' worship service on Sunday morning.

Vincent Gentile, '52, student council social committee chairman, is in charge of the arrangements for the weekend. Assisting him are Betty Martin, '53, banquet chairman; Jack Greenspan, '52, concert chairman; Elliott Sauertieg, '52, and James Buch, '53, Mardi Gras; Ivan Moyer, '54, worship service and H. Eugene Pierce, adviser.

Gets Three Offices

ELIZABETH ANN MARTIN

Martin, Amole, Girvin Selected

Elizabeth Ann Martin, of West Leesport, defeated Mary Jane Titlow, 81-33, for the presidency of the Women's Student Senate in last week's balloting. Presidency of the daymen's organization went to George Amole and of the daywomen's group to Catharine Girvin.

In the W.S.S. voting, Miss Martin had an advantage among all groups except the junior day women, who gave Miss Titlow a 13-10 advantage. The total number of women voting was 114.

Amole had a better than two to one advantage over Bert Pergola in the daymen's balloting, polling 122 tallies to the latter's 48. He gained his biggest plurality among the freshmen, 28 votes, and his smallest, two votes, among the juniors.

The closest contest was in the voting for the leadership of the day women. Miss Girvin polled 37 votes to 27 for Miss Titlow. She led in the junior and sophomore classes but trailed Miss Titlow in the senior and freshman balloting.

All of the victors are juniors. Miss Martin was elected secretary of both the Y.W.C.A. and the class of 1953 last week and is a member of the Pi Alpha Tau sorority, Skull and Bones and Women's Senate.

Amole, a resident of Birdsboro, is a member of the Zeta Omega Epsilon fraternity and the basketball team. Miss Girvin is a member of the tennis squad and Sigma Tau Delta, national honorary English fraternity. She lives in Mt. Penn.

Glee Club To Sing In Southern Cities

The Albright Glee Club will make a southern tour, Sunday, April 27, to Monday, April 28, Dr. John Duddy, director, announced. Sunday morning the group will sing at the Evangelical United Brethren Church in Cheverly, Md. and Sunday evening at the Albright Memorial Church in Washington, D. C. Monday the glee club plans to give concerts at various high schools in that district.

Dr. Arthur McKay To Address Group At Spring Retreat

Dr. Arthur McKay, chairman of the department of philosophy and religion at Russell Sage College in Troy, N. Y., will be the guest speaker at the spring Y retreat on Saturday, May 3 and Sunday, May 4. The theme for Doctor McKay's messages will be "Living Beyond Frustration."

Doctor McKay will give three addresses during the retreat. Saturday afternoon's talk will be entitled "There Are Within Me Two Men"; Saturday evening's "To Be Not Only Wise"; and Sunday mornings "On Facing the Future." Included in the week-end activities will be a communion service early Sunday morning and a recreation program Saturday night after the evening address, according to Pat Miller, '53, and James Barrett, '54, co-chairmen of the retreat.

Pat Kennedy to Head Cheerleading Squad

Patricia Kennedy, '53, has been elected by the varsity and junior varsity cheerleaders of this year to serve as captain of the 1952-53 squad. Miss Kennedy is filling the position left vacant when Phoebe Hunter, '53, resigned in order to fulfill her new duties as editor of The Albrightian.

Miss Kennedy has served on the Albright squad for one year and cheered previously for four years at Camp Hill (Pa.) High School. A home economics major, Miss Kennedy is a member of the Phi Beta Mu sorority.

Kressler Names Y.W.C.A. President; Myers Defeats Glant by 50 Votes

Evelyn Kressler, '53, president of the Young Women's Christian Association since January, decisively defeated Nancy Reed, '53, for re-election in last week's voting. The presidency of the Y.M.C.A. went to Robert Myers, '53.

Other officers elected by the women are: Vice-president, Virginia Marick, '54; secretary, Betty Martin, '53; and treasurer, Michelina Cacciola, '54.

Elected by the Y.M.C.A. were: Vice-president, James Barrett, '54; secretary, Max Nusercher, '54; and treasurer, Ivan Moyer, '54.

The only real contest was in the voting for the secretaryship of the Y.W.C.A., in which Miss Martin nosed out Virginia Seems, '53, by only seven votes. Biggest plurality was earned by Barrett, who had a 126-vote lead over Thomas Shultz, '54, in the voting for Y.M. vice-president.

Miss Kressler, of Bloomsburg, is a member of Phi Beta Mu sorority, Women's Student Senate and the dormitory council.

JAMES R. BUCH

SUB To Be Named Sarah Krause Hall

The brick-veneer building at the extreme northern end of the Albright College campus, known since its erection in 1948 as Union Hall and the Student Union Building, will be officially dedicated Sarah E. Krause Hall on Saturday, April 26, at 11:30 a. m.

The building is to be named in memory of the late Mrs. Krause, wife of the donor, Lewis D. Krause. Mr. Krause, Allentown banker and shoe manufacturer, was formerly a trustee of the college.

Dr. J. Warren Klein, president emeritus of Albright College, will deliver the principal address at the dedication ceremony. Robert S. Smethers Sr., Albright trustee, will also speak. The litany of dedication will be led by Bishop George E. Epp, of the eastern area of the E.U.B. Church. George C. Bollman, president of the board of trustees, will preside.

Other program participants will be Pres. Harry V. Masters, who will speak the response on behalf of the college; and the Rev. Oscar A. Oyden and Dr. Charles E. Kuebel, East Pennsylvania Conference (Ev) superintendent.

A pre-theological student from South Fork, Pa., Myers is a member of the band and glee club.

Daymen Give Big Margin

James R. Buch, junior pre-law student from Mt. Penn., will serve as president of student council during the 1952-53 academic year. He defeated Donald Grigsby, of Lansdowne, 233-167, in last week's all-college election.

Approximately 415 of Albright's 517 students voted in the election to make this year's turnout one of the most representative in years. Twelve ballots were ruled ineligible because they were unsigned or the work of pranksters.

Buch's plurality over Grigsby was 66. He piled up his biggest margin from the day men, who gave him 132 votes to Grigsby's 36. Buch also led Grigsby in the day women's voting, 40-23.

It was a different story as far as the boarding students are concerned. Only two boarding women, both in the freshman class, voted for Buch, whereas 47 of them voted for Grigsby. The boarding men gave Grigsby a two-vote advantage, 61-59.

Grigsby led in the senior boarding men's voting, 12-9, and the freshman boarding men's balloting, 20-19. He tied Buch, 11-11, among the junior boarding men, but trailed by two votes in the same classification of sophomores.

Buch had a plurality in all four classes. The sophomores gave him his biggest advantage, 69-43, and the seniors the smallest, 45-39.

In addition to his membership in student council this year, Buch was manager of the varsity basketball team and a member of the Pi Tau Beta fraternity and the daymen's organization. He was chairman of council's blood donor drive last fall.

Following is the complete tabulation of votes for the 1952-53 student council president.

Schmidt, Bieler Elected by Classes

Robert Bieler defeated Richard (Ace) Adams for the presidency of the class of 1954 with a two to one margin in last week's balloting. The leadership of the class of 1953 went to William Schmidt, who defeated William Masters, 53-31.

Other officers elected by the prospective senior class are: Vice-president, William Himmelman; secretary, Betty Martin; treasurer, Richard Hilton.

The forthcoming juniors chose Mahlon Frankhouser vice-president, Phyllis Gruber secretary and Thomas Stults treasurer.

In only one case was the balloting close. That was for the vice-presidency of the class of 1953, in

Election Record Set

Albright students may be proud of the record which they established last week when approximately 80 per cent voted in the all-college election. This figure topped by 15 per cent the turnout last year and is one of the best ever made.

We are confident that the new leaders will accept the responsibilities which go with their new positions of honor. We congratulate them for their triumphs. It is our hope that they will always seek to carry forward those programs which will be for the best interests of the students and the college as a whole. We especially call upon them to strive to make effective all of the provisions of the National Student Association Bill of Rights, which was adopted by the student body last fall.

Only one sour note was evident in the voting, the dropping of 12 ballots which had to be disqualified. Seven of these could not be accepted because they were unsigned. Although the question is raised repeatedly as to why ballots must be signed, student council has felt that the only practical safeguard against the stuffing of the ballot box.

Five other ballots were disqualified for more interesting reasons. One was signed "Mary Smith, '52," one "The Mailman" and one by a "student" in the class of 1957. The "best" one was a ballot allegedly signed by one of the candidates who was not on the campus during the election week, but which was actually checked by a student, who, unfortunately, did not know how to spell the name of the person whom he purported to be.

A number of the voters cast ballots for all offices, regardless of membership in them, thus creating such unusual situations as boarding women voting for the presidency of the daymen's organization.

On the whole, however, it was a good election—one of the best Albright has had in recent years.

Open Letter to Ace and Rae

Dear Mr. Adams and Mr. Hoopes:

We want to congratulate you and your two friends who got the "scoop" on the all-college election returns Tuesday afternoon. It was ingenious of you to think of going to our typesetter's establishment, posing as Albrightian staff members and gaining access to the galley proofs of this week's issue. Your achievement deserves recognition.

We admit our inability to figure out what motivated you to this clever act. Perhaps it was simply that your curiosity got the better of you. Perhaps you had nothing better to do for "excitement" (?). Or perhaps you felt that this was the master stroke whereby you would be able, in some sense or other, to "put one over" on The Albrightian.

In any case, you scored a smashing triumph—make no mistake about that. And telling The Albrightian by phone in a disguised voice Tuesday night that the election returns had been "swiped" was your crowning achievement. But was it really worth it?

Please do not think that we are angry with you. On the contrary, we find the whole incident highly amusing. Time Magazine should be told of this for its next survey of the younger generation. We would like to remind you of only one thing, provided that you have read this far. (We assume, perhaps erroneously, that you do read The Albrightian.) The Albrightian is your paper. Were it not for the students, it would not be published. You pay for it. You hurt only yourselves and your fellow students by scooping us.

Again our congratulations.

Apathium Again

Apathium, March 14—Dr. Frick McCurray, head of the International Archeological Institute, in a press conference at the foot of Mount 29 this morning said he has found the remains of a man, whose age, as reckoned by radioisotopes, places him in the era immediately preceding 2000 A. D. Despite the curious method of burial, the body was in a fair state of preservation.

Dr. McCurray said the feet were encased in a type of artificial stone which the ancients called "Kankret." Around the neck was an iron chain, attached to a strange machine of wood and iron, weighing perhaps two hundred pounds. The body was found in a dry river bed near the site of the old city-community of Predzell, some times called Radding.

The machine, which was attached to the body, is of most unusual design. A wood and metal case about 18 inches square and two feet high encloses a ruggedly-built mechanism of such intricacy as to shame even our 43rd century engineers. A handle, extending through a hole in the case, can be pulled forward, causing three flat-rimmed wheels to spin. These are stopped in turn by a timing device at intervals of about one second, and occasionally, after the wheels have stopped, the bowels of the contraption rumble and spew forth small circular metal discs.

Members of the I.A.I., examining the discs, commented that no doubt they were a primitive form of money. An earlier civilization is indicated by the fact that an Indian is pictured on one side, a strange hump-backed bovine creature on the other. Jagum Kumshar, a colleague of Dr. McCurray, also found evidences of an early civilization, presumably Oriental, atop Mount 29.

A small tower with curved, terraced roofs, similar to those erected by the Orientals of Cathay eons ago, was found at one end of the mountain, said Kumshar. According to a plaque found near the structure, it was named Pagoda. In the tower, near the top, was found a gong, presumably to call the people to worship, since no apparent use for the building exists unless it was used as a temple. Near the base of the tower is a slender pinnacle of iron, surmounted by a bronze ball, apparently representing the sun. Although this indicates that the early people were sun worshippers, an eagle was found on a similar, although smaller, plaque inside. Either the two religions, sun-worship and bird worship, were at different periods of history, or the religion of these people was polytheistic, similar to that of Rome, a much earlier and more highly developed civilization. Future excavations are expected to clear up the controversy.—L.E.

Jack

Jack Greenspan, a dark-haired senior pre-med who plans to enter the field of psychiatry, hails from Elkins Park, Pa., but is now residing in the A.P.O. house at 1616 Olive Street.

Perhaps most noted as the student manager and conductor of the band and orchestra, he is also vice-president of the Skull and Bones and a member of Student Council, the A.P.O. fraternity, Domino Club, the Cue staff and the Alchemists Society.

Although he believes that man is capable of producing great and wonderful things, Jack is rather skeptical that he ever will. He is most hopeful of people who think and who realize their insignificance but down self-righteous individuals and professors who feel that they're God's gift to education.

Included with his favorite memories are the Saturday afternoon shakes after anatomy lab and the years he spent at the fraternity house.

There Will Be No Authorities

Theories come and theories go. Usually we are found wanting them; but the time may come when theories come too fast.

At the time when homo sapiens was still afraid of the fire he used to keep warm, a boy grew up learning the few things his father knew. Very seldom was anything new discovered or a new theory proposed. Consequently, the oldest man was the wisest simply because he had been here longer. However along came a man by the name of Francis Bacon who started a chain of events that may not too far in the future prove somewhat troublesome and conceivably embarrassing to us older generations.

With Bacon started the landslide of scientific investigation, slow at first, but rapidly gaining momentum. Harvey proved that blood circulates, but it was many years before doctors were willing to accept his hypothesis. Since it did take such a long time to become acceptable, the cleavage between the old and the young was not so perceptible.

By the beginning of the 20th century, however, it didn't require quite as much time for scientists to prefer Einstein's Relativity over Newton's Gravitation. Yet it was still more than a generation before it was taught in the undergraduate level of colleges. And, in fact, when I took physics in high school, Relativity was not even mentioned in the course. Yet just the other day an article reported that some high schools were now teaching it. So what happens? Instead of there being a cleavage between one generation and the next, many college students would now be embarrassed talking to a contemporary high school senior.

What makes this problem difficult is the fact that it is harder for someone who has previously been taught to think in terms of one theory to be able to accept a new one than it is for a younger person who has had no previous experience to learn it. A college freshman can now learn calculus more easily than another scientist could in the time of Leibnitz. Or take another example previously

Current Tides—We Think It's Imperialism

By Russell F. Weigley

That the Russians are generally fine fellows and that we would be able to cooperate with them splendidly to maintain the peace was the conviction with which President Roosevelt and his advisers apparently returned from the Yalta conference in February, 1945. By April of that year Ambassador Harriman was warning us from Moscow of Russian expansionist ambitions, the Soviets were threatening that unless their Polish puppet government were invited to San Francisco they themselves would boycott the conference there, and President Truman was reportedly saying in private that if the Russians did not want to come to San Francisco they might instead visit the devil for all he cared.

There is something tragically absurd in the way our policy toward Russia so rapidly jumped from an extremely trusting approach to one of extreme truculence in the closing days of World War II and the months that followed. What is worse, the "tough" policy toward the Soviets which we then adopted and have since followed may be almost as ill-conceived as the earlier one.

A principal difficulty which confronts us when we try to formulate a policy in regard to Russia is that Moscow's intransigence may spring from either of two possible motivations; on the one hand the Russians may be out to conquer the world, or on the other hand their quest for territory and resources may be chiefly a quest for security against an enemy they see bent on destroying their system of government. We have chosen to believe the former, but it is not altogether unlikely that the latter is the real motivation for the apparent aggressiveness of the Kremlin.

Remember that it is part of Communist dogma that violent clashes with the capitalist powers are unavoidable; capitalism is sure to die,

Dr. Arthur McKay 8 Named To Editorial Board; Albrightian Rated 'Excellent'

Dr. Shirk To Serve As Adviser To Publication

Eight undergraduates have been chosen to serve as members of the editorial board of The Albrightian next year, Phoebe Hunter, '53, new editor-in-chief, announced this week. Michael Lafferty, '53, co-feature editor this year, has been promoted to the post of assistant editor.

At the same time, Miss Hunter said that Dr. Samuel B. Shirk, who joined the English department last fall, will serve as faculty adviser next year. Former adviser of the Lafayette College paper, he will take the place of Dr. Edith B. Douds. He will also teach a course in journalism.

Ray Weitzel, '54, the other co-feature editor, will remain in his post as feature editor.

A member of the editorial board this year, Dorothy Delaney, '54, will take over the job of news editor previously held by Miss Hunter. Maria Kaputo's position as copy reader will be filled by Dorothy Kuettel, '53, a reporter this year. Barbara Farris, '54, Nancy Neatock, '53, Virginia Seams, '53, and Patricia Schearer, '53, all reporters, were also appointed to the editorial board.

New staff members will assume their duties at the end of the present academic year.

600 To Attend E.U.B. Convention

Six hundred college students, including many from colleges of the Evangelical United Brethren Church, will attend the Second General Convention of Christian Education and Evangelism at Camp St. Marys, Ohio, July 16-20. Adult delegates will increase the total attendance to 1300.

The quadrennial Youth Fellowship Convention will be held simultaneously.

The first general meeting of the convention will be addressed by Dr. Reuben H. Mueller, general secretary of Christian education. Four days of conferences, addresses and fellowship activities will follow. Among those scheduled to speak are Rev. Charles Templeton of the National Council of Church of Christ and Dr. L. L. Baughman and Dr. H. W. Kaebnick of the E.U.B. Council of Administration. The Sunday morning sermon will be delivered by Dr. Carl Heinmiller of the Department of World Missions.

Bible studies each morning will be in charge of professors from the three E.U.B. seminaries. Pres. Harry V. Masters will serve as a resource leader in the group discussion on "Adult Leaders of Youth Work" led by Dr. Raymond M. Veh.

Schmidt, Bieler

Charles Hollenbach, instructor in biology, presented a paper on geographic distribution of various species of plants to the 28th annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Academy of Science held April 10, 11 and 12 at Dickinson College, Carlisle.

Attending the meeting were four Albright students, Jane Brozene and Ingelore Gramm, '52, Carl Stohler, '53, and Francis Anderson, '54. Fred Perfect, a graduate of Albright, read a paper at the industrial section of the meeting.

Cultural Series Ends

The acting duo of Hal Holbrook and Lee Firestone were scheduled to appear at Union Hall in yesterday's cultural program, presenting their "Theatre of Great Personalities." On the program were sketches of Queen Victoria and Prince Albert, the Country Wife and Mark Twain.

Yesterday's program was the last in the 1951-52 cultural series.

There Will Be

alluded to, that of Relativity. Those scientists now living who had been taught to think of the universe in terms of Euclidian geometry have a devil of a time trying to conceive of a straight three dimensional line returning to meet itself, or how hard it is for us who were taught the Bohr theory of the atom to try to conceive of waves and particles being the same thing.

This problem is upon us now. Yet with new theories being presented at a geometrically increasing rate a person's thoughts become obsolete so much quicker. Until now a person had to struggle through possibly only one major reconception period, but in the not too distant future the point may be reached at which one man cannot hope to change his conceptions as fast as they become obsolete. The only person that has a chance then will be the one who has not been bogged down with previous concepts. Then the so-called authority, the person with a few more years behind him, will no longer be king. The unencumbered young will rule.

Can theories come too fast? You may continue the problem from here.—L.R.W.

Current Tides—We Think

but before going down it will attempt to destroy by violence the Communism which menaces it. Remember, too, that in the period between world wars the West gave the Soviets good reason for believing that point of dogma. The World War I Allies invaded Russia at several places soon after the revolution and actively encouraged the enemies of the Bolsheviks. The West established a cordon of minor nations to seal off Russia from the rest of Europe. When Hitler rose to power, the Western bloc displayed an inclination to turn German energies to the destruction of Communism; in sacrificing Czechoslovakia to Hitler, they seemed to give him a dagger pointing straight toward Russia, for the Soviets remembered Bismarck's dictum that "The master of Bohemia is the master of Europe."

With such memories rankling, it would have been a singular circumstance had not the Soviets viewed the West with suspicion at the close of World War II and sought to create about their borders a chain of satellites as cushioning against the day when the West might strike. The result of their seizing such places as Poland and Czechoslovakia, however, was inevitably to arouse anger in the West and to inspire our own mood of truculence, which in turn further aroused Russian suspicions of us and set off new aggressive rumblings in the Kremlin.

It's Imperialism

The point of all this is not that we should have continued our late-World War II policy of seeking to win the favor of the Russians by means of over-eager acquiescence and charm of personality. There remains the possibility that the Kremlin's real aim is to exercise power over as much of the globe as it can secure. The other possibility should not be forgotten, however; and while always watchful of our own security, we should not handle the Soviets in such a way as to arouse unnecessarily their suspicions and fears of us. Too often the conduct of the U. S. delegation at world conferences suggests that we have pre-judged every proposition the Soviets offer and have utterly closed our minds to all chance of compromising with them.

Pi Gamma Mu To Hold Annual Banquet April 22

The Eastern Pennsylvania Regional chapters of Pi Gamma Mu, social science society, will hold their annual conference and banquet in the dining hall at Albright next Wednesday evening at 6:45 p. m.

The speaker for the occasion will be W. Leon Godshall, professor of history at Lehigh University. Invitations have been sent to Pi Gamma Mu chapters at Franklin and Marshall College, Lebanon Valley College, Lehigh University, Pennsylvania State College Susquehanna University and Ursinus College.

The Albright chapter will induct eight neophytes as part of the program, including Stanley Janikowski, Jean Maust, Lloyd Moll and Eleanor Williams, '52, and James Hilton, William Himmelman, Evelyn Kressler and Virginia Seams, '53. Local Pi Gamma Mu alumni have been invited to the affair, which will also be the 25th annual spring banquet of the Albright chapter.

In charge of the regional arrangements is R. J. Tresolini, assistant professor of political science at Lehigh University. The local committee includes Dorothy Dean, Bruce Kurzweg and Jessie Nucci, '52, with Dr. Charles E. Kistler as adviser.

Four Steal

Hoopes' complete outline follows: "1. Idea. 2. Searched Albrightian office. (a) Got in by a friend who has a key. 3. Found nothing; locked office. 4. Called C. F. Heller. 5. Heller referred us to printer. 6. Called up printer. 7. Went to printer. 8. Copied results. 9. Came back to school. 10. Posted results. Elapsed time from 1 to 10, ¼ hr."

The word "printer" was used erroneously in the report in reference to the linotype operator. The "C. F. Heller" referred to is the establishment which does the actual printing of The Albrightian.

Student sentiment concerning the theft was varied. The majority opinion seemed to be that what happened was "funny," although not exactly "right." A number of people expressed the opinion that disciplinary action should be taken, perhaps through the newly-formed judiciary committee of student council.

The Albrightian seemed to feel that the whole incident was rather humorous, at least partly the result of its own carelessness in not guarding the returns more closely.

Hollenbach Reads Paper

Charles Hollenbach, instructor in biology, presented a paper on geographic distribution of various species of plants to the 28th annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Academy of Science held April 10, 11 and 12 at Dickinson College, Carlisle.

Attending the meeting were four Albright students, Jane Brozene and Ingelore Gramm, '52, Carl Stohler, '53, and Francis Anderson, '54. Fred Perfect, a graduate of Albright, read a paper at the industrial section of the meeting.

Cultural Series Ends

The acting duo of Hal Holbrook and Lee Firestone were scheduled to appear at Union Hall in yesterday's cultural program, presenting their "Theatre of Great Personalities." On the program were sketches of Queen Victoria and Prince Albert, the Country Wife and Mark Twain.

Yesterday's program was the last in the 1951-52 cultural series.

I.R.C.'s Bill Defeated At Model U.N.; 51 Colleges Represented At Assembly

A bill presented by the Albright I.R.C. delegation, representing Byelorussia, was defeated at the 25th annual session of the Model United Nations General Assembly held at Barnard College, New York City, April 7, 8 and 9.

Voting on the bill followed the alignment of nations in the East-West controversies faced by the actual UN. The Soviet bloc favored the Albright bill, with the other nations represented by colleges from throughout the Middle Atlantic area either opposing or abstaining. The bill would have called for submission of charters of all regional defense arrangements to the UN Security Council for approval.

Fifty-one colleges were represented at the Model General Assembly. The delegates attended three plenary sessions in addition to several committee meetings. Functioning at the conference were a political and security committee, an economic and social committee, a trusteeships committee and an ad hoc committee dealing with problems of disarmament.

The keynote speech to the Assembly was delivered by Ambassador Ahmed Shah Bokhari, chief of the Pakistan delegation to the UN. He discussed the economic problems faced by his country and the other nations of southern Asia and emphasized the friendship his country feels toward the United States.

On its second day the Assembly was addressed by Ambassador Ernest Gross, delegate of the United States to the UN. Gross contrasted the action of the UN in meeting aggression in Korea with the failure of the League of Nations.

The final session of the Model Assembly was held in the new UN permanent headquarters.

Representing the Albright International Relations Club at the Assembly were Russell F. Weigley, Martin Stover, Norman Dettra, Mariastella G. Kaputo, '52, and Edward F. Cox, instructor in history and adviser of the club.

Albright to Give G. R. E.

Albright College will be a center for the administration of the Graduate Record Examinations on May 2 and 3 and again on August 1 and 2, Dr. Milton G. Geil announced. The examinations are required of prospective students by many graduate schools.
