Idi Amin Appointed As New Security Chief

by John Erwin & Rick Shambaugh

Former Ugandan Supreme Commander and President for life, his excellency Dr. Idi Amin Dada has been appointed Chief of Security for life at Albright College following a perilous escape from his Tanzanian-beset country.

The Albright College Trustees appointed Amin following the unexpected death of former Security Chief Strat Marmarou who died Monday in a mysterious automobile accident involving Marmarou's automobile and a Ugandan army tank. Amin, who is in charge of the accident investigation officially stated, "No one can be blamed for this tragic accident, what's so strange about a Ugandan army tank driving on the wrong side of the road?"

Dr. Amin is widely known for his unprecedented human rights experimentation during his reign as President of Uganda. The experimentation which was suddenly ended by Tanzania last week, utilized many controversial techniques. Amin attempted to prove that certain rights, such as the right of the Army to strangle anyone they wish, and the right of the secret police to torture anyone they wish are just as valid as the basic rights of freedom and happiness.

Amin, commenting on his future plans for Albright College stated, "I have many new programs planned, for example, such things as roadblocks, unannounced I.D. checks and late-night dorm searches will become an accepted part of college life." I would also like to see more police shootings on campus like those that happened at Kent State several years ago."

Don't be alarmed if you happen to hear screams coming from the basement of Selwyn, it's just Albright's own Chief of Security for life experimenting to develop innovations in the field of human rights.

Applications will be accepted for auxiliary personnel from April 1 through April 4 in the basement of Selwyn Hall.

STRAT Saves Women

by Karma Bruce

Strat Marmarou, Director of Security at Albright College met with Dr. Ruffer, Dean Vander-sall, and LeRoy Withers last week in an effort "to air out" some of Albright's security problems.

Though there has been a commendable increase in security measures on the campus, a number of problems still exist. The majority of these center around the women's dormitories.

At the meeting, Marmarou discussed each of the dormitories separately reporting instances of door-propping, insufficient desk security and infractions of visitation hours as well as major occurrences of attempted rape, exposure, and theft.

In an attempt to reduce the incidence of such crimes as rape and theft, security personnel presumably lock the end doors of the women's dorms at 8:00 p.m. The main breezeway entrances are locked at midnight.

There have been complaints from female residents, however, that the end doors are often locked much earlier or that they remain locked during the day.

Though there has been marked improvement in the security system, students remain dissatisfied and the college has been pressured to increase security measures.

A plan was devised at the meeting to implement an electronic security system to be installed over the summer for use beginning next fall. Included in the new electronic surveillance system are such security measures as

Board Bored With Alcohol Policies

by Glen Rowe

The Spring Board meeting was called to order by W. Richard Eschelman, board president, to review the housing and alcoholic drinking policies of the college.

The board opened its discussion by reviewing the current renovations of Teel Hall. It was concluded that since the building would house the psychology and nursing programs, the President of the College should apply for federal funding to conduct a program of drug testing upon students. By this means, the building would pay for itself.

A discussion on the proposed addition to the Bollman Athletic Center was introduced, but cut short by Dr. Eschelman.

Eschelman, authoritatively refused to consider the suggestion that the college follow the trend of co-educational showers as a means to cut costs. He exclaimed, "This is a Methodist College not a massage parlor! I will not blemish the class of this institution for the sake of cutting costs."

At this instance, Tony Socko, student government association president, met little opposition when he raised an argument about the college alcoholic policy. Socko stated, "The alcoholic policy here at Albright is antiquated and not keeping up with the times."

Socko presented the Board with a petition of 950 names. The petition called for action by the Board to update its alcoholic policies by permitting room deliveries.

George A. Sighman, president of the Albright Alumni association supported the revisions made by Socko. He explained, "For many years the Alumni association has tried to persuade the Board of Trustees to adopt a 'down-the-pipe' policy. As alumni of Albright we realize how hypocritical the drinking policy is. When we were freshmen each of us was told to keep the booze behind closed doors and to be discrete. I ask you, what shame is there in sampling the nectar of the gods?" Sighman concluded, "Perhaps the campus apathy would be eliminated if the students were motivated by a little alcoholic stimulation."

After hearing the presentation made by Socko and Sighman, the board opened its discussion of the issue. They began by reading the alcoholic policy as stated in the college constitution. Upon its completion, Charles Catchhell, the board secretary, commented, "The present policy was adopted by the board during the prohibition. Social attitudes have changed considerably since that time and it would seem that some sort of revision should be made. As vice-president of the Schaeffer brewing company, I have a real sensitivity to the students' cries. I feel that a liberal arts college should be a stew pot of education, taking ingredients from all aspects of life. Gentlemen, I move that we add some brew to the stew."

The speech by Catchhell was not without opposition. The issue was debated by Gary A. Nation, a retired pastor of the United Methodist Church. Reverend Nation explained, "It would not be in the best interest of the church to condone a practice which is not accepted within the context of church discipline. I feel that the board should just bury the hatchet in the matter."

After hearing several opinions, and discussing all aspects of the policy, Dr. Eschelman called for a vote. Upon casting ballots, the board voted 9-3 in favor of adopting a more liberal drinking policy. Dr. Eschelman commented, "As a god-minded, religion based institution, our decision will hopefully bring the student closer to the spirit."

It was decided that alcoholic beverages will be allowed in all nonscholastic buildings of the campus. Furthermore, alcoholic beverages can be served at all campus functions, but cannot be provided through college funds.

The Board of Trustees also gave its approval to renovate the sub-snack bar area into a pub. This move would reduce daily trips to Vaccaro's.

When asked how he felt about the new policy, President Rufer remarked, "I'm pleased as punch, no grain intended." In a more serious mood, Dr. Rufer cautioned students not to abuse their new freedom. He warned that the policy would not be effective until April 1. When questioned about the choice of April 1, Rufer snickered, "April Fools!"

Students participate in an all-campus beer bash held recently on Keichner Field. Tony Socko, S.G.A. chairperson was quoted as saying, "There will be many more parties like this in the future."

Crazed U.F.O. Pilots Are Stealing Our Women and the Government Will Not Do Anything About It

The Earth is being invaded by sex-crazed extra-terrestrials. People and the government have realized for years that this planet is constantly being visited by beings from outer space. The nature of these visits however, has been kept from the public long enough. The pilots of these space-crafts are stealing our women.

I can only guess at the lewd plans these space-men are plotting. Perhaps they are planning to clone these women and send back the replicas. These replicas could be "programmed" to infiltrate key positions in the government. Ultimately their function could be to take over this country. This is the real reason that the government has not made these facts public.

In order to preserve "public calm," the government has decided to wage a "private war" against these invaders. Just as they did against the Cubans. The bureaucrats in power do not care about the common man who is affected by a shortage of women.

Organize for Strength

Did you ever consider we could be wiped out in a nuclear war? In order to stop this possibility, we must band together. I presently belong to an organization which is trying to accomplish this end. Against Nuclear Unsupervised Systems, (ANUS), is trying to get some sort of accountability for our nuclear capability. ANUS is presently petitioning the government to publicly disclose the locations of all underground silos. The basic reasons for this move is so ANUS members can go down to the missile control centers and supervise these missiles personally.

Whips and Chains

Each supervisor will be armed with several whips and chains to control the people who monitor the missile launching equipment. Dental floss was eliminated from this list due to the fact that it was thought to be too painful. Remember the last time you were whipped with dental floss? Painful, right? I see no need to inflict needless pain.

It's just like when you go to the dentist. You settle back into a nice comfortable lounge chair, "beautiful" music playing in the background, and then the fun starts. They will put eighteen instruments in your mouth and then start asking you how the family is, how your golf game has been, and "Am I hurting you?" Any fool would know that you cannot answer these questions while your mouth is a stainless steel junkyard.

Drills and Thrills

Then the real fun starts. The famous statement is then made, "Now tell me if I'm hurting you." As soon as the drill hits your tooth you're in pain. Even though you moan and scream, he continues to drill. It is as if they get a sadistic thrill from seeing people in pain.

It is similar to when they take X-rays. They say, "This is perfectly safe, it only takes a second." Meanwhile, they leave the room and go three blocks down the street into a bunker with four foot thick lead walls. Don't get me wrong. I love dentists, it's only their actions I distrust.

This leads us right back to where I started. The government cannot be trusted either. They are covering up the space-craft situation. Stand up and be heard. We must protect our women now. As a great statesman once said, "Loof Lirpal!"

Missing Bathroom Stall Door Puts Campus In Uproar

John Erwin & Rich Shambaugh

The apparent theft of a bathroom stall door from the men's room in the Campus Center late Friday night has left new security chief Dr. Idi Amin dumbfounded.

The theft was discovered early Saturday morning by an Albright student who had gone into the bathroom for obvious reasons.

Chief of Security Amin was called in and immediately commenced a massive investigation. Said the Chief - "We will leave no stone unturned in this investigation - this theft is a disturbing violation of human rights - I shall do everything in my power to have the culprits apprehended and executed."

Amin went on to say that he believed the theft was part of a ring that operates in the Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware tri-state region.

According to his Excellency, "they (the thieves) steal the doors, paint them a different color change the serial numbers and then sell them in other parts of the country on the black-market."

Dr. Amin went on to say, "I believe this is obviously the work of professionals. They used screwdrivers to remove the door and didn't leave a trace. We don't even know exactly when the theft occurred and there are no witnesses. They were well organized and efficient."

Thus far, the investigation has drawn a blank. The Reading police as well as the F.B.I. have been called in because the possibility exists that the missing door was transported across state lines.

"A reward is being offered for information leading to the arrest and execution of the thief or thieves." Said the Chief, "My secret police can be reached anytime at 375-0909.

North Hall Sex Scandal Revealed

by Greeny

In response to your questions concerning changes in the lifestyles of North Hall residents (the first coordinate housing type arrangement). The Albrightian has been able to infiltrate an undercover investigative reporter behind the scenes of Albright College's first swinging singles dormitory. Before being cast-rated at the base of the nose (our reporter's greatest asset), this report was filed without wire services. The Albrightian feels that this material should be included with Dean Miller's report to the Board of Trustees.

To walk into the lobby of this four story modern dormitory, one would not find anything unusual, at least not on the surface. Typical college students can be seen entering its doors after a rough day of classes or a hard night at Bird's Place. Looks are deceiving however, for this is no normal dormitory. You have just entered the lobby of North Hall: Coordinate Housing.

On the surface, the average North Hall resident appears to be normal. However, this normalcy is only skin deep. Through the use of Dr. Bell's laboratory and an E.E.G. this reporter was able to study the brain waves of North Hall residents. By now you are probably asking yourself what type of person lives in this dormitory (and, if not, ask yourself anyway, fool and go along with this stupid game?) Residents consist of sex crazed perverted virgins, Peeping Toms (sorry Smith Hall, you are not the only ones!), frustrated males and females and others who spend time observing the parades down on Franklin St. and biting and clutching portions of the female anatomy. In my short stay at North Hall (nearly four years), I almost lost my virginity three times. Don't worry M.D.K., I'm still pure.

According to prescription records down at Buyers Pharmacy, courtesy of APO's Disco Frank, 35 females were seen standing in line waiting for birth control pills after the first week of school. The common bond discovered by this reporter is that they all gave their address as 3rd floor North. Is this what you meant when you said that coordinate housing would enhance the brother-sister relationship, Dean Miller? In confronting the 35 girls this reporter was told that the prescriptions were purchased to relieve the epidemic of cramps on the floor. Gee, I wasn't aware that cramps are contagious.

North Hall appears to be an extremely potent dormitory, at least according to our resident directors. What other dorm on campus can boast of their resident directors having three kids in the short space of three years? How about it Mrs. Barfield? Perhaps, its the water. Don (Hutch) and Carolyn Hutchinson were forced into an early retirement as R.D.'s by the expected arrival of their second child in three years. You couldn't have been spending that much time at Bird's, Hutch. And if that isn't bad enough, our new resident directors Phil and Sally Miller just moved in at the beginning of February and are expecting their first child or children in one month. Now that is working quickly. Try and explain that one Doc Hall. Perhaps the apartment is contagious. Miss Gehres has recommended that the place be fumigated and that all the sea-men who are on leave should return to their home base.

The new female additions to the dormitory council have had a tremendous input into dorm social activities. It was their ideas to buy stag films for the dormitories use, supposedly to help them study for Miss Gehres' Anatomy and Physiology test. Dorm council has also been instrumental in implementing nude "Twister" competition in the lounge on third floor, all to the tune of Allison Andrews' perverted songs.

The girls have also found something constructive to do with the old urinals that used to be in the third floor bathrooms. Rather than learning how to use them properly, the girls requested that they be removed. So, today they are serving as flower pots in a few of the rooms on the floor. And to think, just last year I spent a few really good times by those porcelain objects.

Perhaps this should have been entitled: "An Ode to a Urinal." Well, Dean Miller, I hope that you will find time to add this to your report to the Board of Trustees. Enhance the brother-sister relationship, BAH HUMBUG.

Fall Course Offerings Excite Student Body

by 'D'

At a recent forum held in the South Lounge, the students of Albright College voiced a desire for more courses to be offered which would be beneficial in everyday life. "We want to see more classes on subjects we use every day," one student said. "Sure, we need some of the General Studies courses, and courses within our major. But we need some on general topics that affect us directly."

In response to these requests, the Scholastic Curriculum Committee met last week to revise its selection of courses for the upcoming Fall semester. A limited number of new courses will be added to the present curriculum in an attempt to accommodate the students' requests. These courses will be open only to returning sophomores, juniors, and seniors, and scheduling requests are now being accepted. Among those new courses being offered are:

MEDICINAL MANIPULATION
Drugs 101
Intro. to Uppers
O.D. Procedures
Advanced Marijuana
Joint Rolling 201
Intro. to Injections
Pupil Dilation
Comparative Techniques

BASIC BEVERAGE CONCEPTS

In an attempt to present a follow up on these courses, three new January Interim courses are being designed to serve as a field experience to provide an application of the Fall course material. Any student enrolled in a MEDICINAL MANIPULATION course is eligible for a January field experience lasting three weeks, in Mexico. Students involved within the BASIC BEVERAGE CONCEPTS group may opt to travel to the local breweries and state stores for a comparative analysis, while students taking a course within the HUMAN INTERACTION group may participate in a 3-week seminar at the Masters & Johnson clinic.

This Albright student, who requested that his name be withheld, was suddenly and mysteriously levitated in the Campus Center after attending the Warren's lecture on supernatural phenomena Friday night. Said the bewildered student, 'Hell, they sure made a believer out of me.'
