Active Program Planned For Alumni Weekend

A "Back to Class" period and the re-dedication of the Alumni Memorial Library will highlight the program for Centennial Alumni Day, Saturday, June 2. The Alumni Luncheon at noon and reunions for classes ending in 1 and 6 are also included on the program.

Dr. F. Wilbur Gingrich, professor of Greek, Dr. Clarence A. Horn, professor of biology, and Dr. Lewis E. Smith, professor of political science, will participate in the "Back to Class" period at 11 a.m. Planned as a result of requests of alumni to hear again some of their professors, the class hour will be divided among the three men for individual presentations.

Registration will begin at 1 p.m. in Krause Hall and will continue throughout the day. A Coffee Hour will be held during the first hour of registration. The Lebanon-Myerstown Alumni Club is in charge.

Honored Guests

Members of the fifty, fifty-five, and sixty year classes will be honored guests at the Alumni Luncheon scheduled for 12:15 p.m. in the College Dining Hall. Dr. Harry V. Masters, president of the college, will present each member with a gift. Special music will be supplied by quartets composed of alumni of former years.

The annual business meeting will follow the luncheon. Warren A. Loesch, president of the Alumni Association, will be in charge. Elections for the coming year will be held and the annual report of the Alumni Association will be presented.

The re-dedication of the Alumni Memorial Library will be held at 2:30 p.m. Clarence E. Boyer, '19, superintendent of the Boonton, N. J., schools will be the speaker for the ceremony. Boyer will also receive the Ped.D. at commencement exercises, June 3. Boyer will be presented by Dr. Josephine Raepel, associate professor and librarian, who will also make a few remarks about the library program.

Welcome Grads

As one of the final major events on Albright's Centennial Year program, Alumni Weekend takes on added significance this year. As always, the alumni are welcome to our campus in 1956, but this year both as alumni and as living representatives of this college's first 100 years of development. For a college exists for only one main purpose—to educate its students. How well Albright or any other educational institution has succeeded can be seen by evaluating the success of the students who have left its halls armed with their diplomas.

Albright's alumni have been successful. Surveying the varied fields of endeavor which this college's graduates have entered, we find successful Albright alumni in all of them. From medicine to engineering, teaching to law, to a hundred other fields, it is not difficult to find an Albright alumnus who has risen to the top in his profession.

Another criterion by which to judge a college in relation to its alumni is the post-graduate relationship between the alumni and the college. This year especially, Albright's graduates have been highly co-operative in helping to make our Centennial Year a success. From the students to the alumni goes a hearty thank you.

This past year has seen increasing activity on the part of this college's alumni. New and better associations of Albright graduates have arisen during 1955-56. Along this line, the Varsity A Club has been reactivated. By continuing to expand, both in quality and quantity, Albright's alumni will also continue to be an important asset to our college.

This increased spirit on the part of the alumni has spread to the present students of the college. This increased spirit, in turn, has aided in raising the level of all campus activities during the past year.

The Albrightian hopes that the alumni will have a pleasant and enjoyable weekend on our campus again this year. Once a year at this time, we have a chance to strengthen Alumni-college ties. It is both a pleasure and a privilege to welcome you, the alumni.

Looking For A Project?

A few weeks ago Women's Student Senate held a fashion show. Since this is Albright's Centennial Year, it featured clothing from the past hundred years. Needless to say, to put on a fashion show with old-fashioned clothing requires a great deal of effort. Historical societies were visited and attics were searched. Finally enough clothing was gathered.

This was not the only work involved, however. Over thirty girls were required to model the clothing. Many more assisted with programs, publicity, and refreshments. Pomeroy's Store and Mademoiselle Magazine contributed much time and effort. Finally the big night arrived and Krause Hall was filled. It was easy to see that the show was a success!

W. S. S. was proud of their accomplishment, but they were more proud that they had made enough profit to buy six pieces of furniture for the browsing room of the library. They bought two round, light-oak tables, two fireside chairs, and two plastic upholstered chairs for use at the tables. Phi Delta Sigma, honorary alumnae sorority, and the library fund each bought a brass floor lamp. The room still needs other pieces of furniture, but W. S. S. is hoping that other organizations will follow the examples already set. What better way is there for an organization to be remembered?

Last night I had the privilege of witnessing the dissection of a student's head. The face looked rather familiar, but I was never one for remembering names. A label hanging from one of the ear lobes identified the structure as once belonging to a fourth-year college student who never used it more than seven hours a day.

The operator viewed the scene with a certain air of nicety, then pointed out that the glue holding the cervical vertebra to the base of the brain dried out and that the poor boy probably lost his head through no fault of his own. The first cut was delivered with such a great deal of elegance that a round of applause was heard from the spectators and the surgeon—some what as an encore—finished circumnavigating the head sideways.

No Brains

What first appeared to me as brains was not such at all, but a mass of strange material in that shape and texture stuffed into the several cavities of the skull. Scattered throughout the numerous ridges of this substance were many wonderful arts such as table tennis, horseback riding, dancing, story telling, and card playing.

Situated on the anterior portion of the medulla oblongata was a spherical gland completely covered with thousands of little faces and mirrors which were imperceptible to the human eye either with or without my glasses. Apparently, the soul, if there was one there, must have taken all of its time here in observing its own beauties.

Sins

There were two large lobes on either side of the head, which I must not omit. In the right one, from which I sensed a sweet aroma, were stored vast quantities of falsehoods, imperfections, sins, and dreams which couldn't be unraveled regardless of how the surgeon pulled at them. I scarcely could recognize more than three or four hurts and pains in the left one, for this penish modified organ was burping with pride.

There wasn't anything remarkable in the eye, saving perhaps the musculi status which means ogling muscles in English. They were almost totally worn away from their sockets. I imagine only a strong sense of duty kept them at their post. And—oh yes—one more thing, the elevator muscle, the one which looks toward heaven, hadn't been used at all.

Oddly enough, in the careful exploration throughout the head not once did a solitary blood vessel reveal itself to me. I must further confess that I don't understand how this student progressed through four years of college entirely deprived of the faculty of blushing.

Saturation

The muscularis flexor nasaltorus, which is rarely uncovered during dissection even by the most perfect of operators, was thoroughly saturated with water. This is the muscle attached to the tip of the nose that functions in raising the nose upward when something is said that doesn't want to be heard, or something is said that can't be understood. In this particular case, unfortunately the main machinery

Albright Personalities

Jane Dewald

By Phil Goldfeder

NOBODY ASKED US, BUT . . . if they did, we would have said, "Jane Dewald, why of course we know her. Isn't she feature editor of The Albrightian?" And then if you never heard of The Albrightian, we would add, "Oh—well she's assistant editor of The Cue." Next, we could further implicate her by going into her personal activities like the French Club, Mickey Mouse Organization, and the Future Teachers of America. As an extra, we could mention her practice teaching at Muhlenberg High School, which is quite reasonable to understand, since she plans to make a career of teaching. In fact, you could approach her when the Pi Delta Epsilon, honorary journalism fraternity, meets or when she calls the Sigma Tau Delta, honorary English fraternity, to order and question her yourself. For prompt and immediate action, however, drive out to the white bench in Reiffton and scream with all the feeling you've got, "Are you really Jane Dewald?" She probably won't hear you because she'll be too deeply absorbed with progressive music and books on that subject, and because she keeps all her windows and doors shut!

Feignmanship

Jane is best known for her comprehensive studies in Feignmanship and its application to the classroom. Her art of circumventing the obviously-posed, direct question of an instructor was probably begun four years ago at Dickinson and continued and improved when she entered Albright as a Junior. All students are fairly familiar with these techniques; the Direct Bluff which is composed of all the "A" students and half the "F" students, or the Rhetorical Smile.

She will be remembered the most for her intimate and notorious friendship with Saul Goldberg who, incidentally, never did get a chance to burn down Krause Hall.

Jane Dewald may not become the teacher awarding the world's record of detentions, but she will certainly come close to the English teacher contributing the world's record for talent.

Stan Order

By Phil Goldfeder

And in the beginning there were carp in the bathtub, shaving cream duels at twenty paces, and Mrs. McKinley's chocolate cakes. Light was created for evening brainwork and darkness was unknown. The months were readily distinguishable from the year by the days: seven for comparative anatomy, organic chemistry, physics, and the rest for odds and ends like sleeping and eating. Add three years to this, a fabulous expense account, and you have the glorious life of a typical college student.

A Seed Grows

But in the midst of all this organized confusion there developed a seed which began to grow. It lived at first on facts, but once the foundation was built, it could not thrive anymore on empty knowledge and meaningless facts. Expansion and correlation of its primary nourishment was the only answer for full maturation. Some of the material consumed by the maturing plant was Einstein and the Universe; and Out of My Life and Thought, by Albert Schweitzer; a host of unique experiences; and a pastime of fishing. The finished product—the Art of Philosophy. A rare gift which differs only slightly from the Art of Talking in that the former is a sharing of wisdom and the latter a sharing of ignorance.

Goins

Yet, more important is its application to a field upon which it once thrived for its very life—college. After spending four years in an institution of higher learning one asks, if he has spent the time well and what he has gained from college.

PERSISTENCE . . . for if he has this he will be successful for some extent.

FAITH . . . the how and why of life.

REASON . . . the ability to take faith and persistence and come up with the real quality of reason.

UNDERSTANDING . . . of his fellow men.

If a person does these four things he has fulfilled himself to Albright and his fellow students and Americans.

IN THE LION'S DEN

By Phil Eyrich, Sports Editor

The curtain is falling on Albright's Centennial Year sports schedule. Although a few contests remain to be played this spring, the major events on the sports program have passed. The football games with Lehigh and Gettysburg, the basketball contests with Seton Hall, Temple, and St. Joseph's, and last week's MASC track and field championships will be remembered as the sports highlights of the 1955-56 year. Although for a time Albright's athletic teams had difficulty in fighting to establish winning records, the spring sports teams have come on to end this year's sports program on a positive note. Bouquets are in order for all those Albright athletes who have helped to make the Centennial Year a successful one for the college.

This spring will see the graduation of one of the greatest athletes in Albright's history. George Conrad's prowess with both the basketball and the baseball will go down as one of the bright spots in the pages of this college's sports records. He has not only made a name for himself throughout the East, but also for Albright as well. Even those colleges which Albright does not meet in athletic competition have heard of his accomplishments. As captain of both the basketball and baseball teams this year, Conrad has climaxed his four-year college athletic career by leading the diamondmen to a successful season. Possessed by an indomitable spirit to win, he has earned the gratitude of all Albright students for helping to make this college a better school.

Last week's MASC track and field meet was a credit to Albright. The meet was excellently organized and all of the activities planned ran smoothly. Many of the visiting coaches and officials made complimentary remarks concerning the meet. Thanks for this fall to Gene Shirk, faculty manager of athletics and president of the MASC&TFA for the terrific job he did in making the MASC games the success they were. Also in line for praise are the numerous people who contributed greatly to the smooth operation of the event.

Although Albright's performance in the meet was only average, several of the Lion athletes turned in creditable performances. Jack Huntzinger and Bill Shirk, as expected, placed in the MASC competition, while Sophomore Ray Feick surprised by taking fifth place in the javelin. Feick, who competed in several of the field events, had one of his best days of the season last Saturday. George Mack's startling performance in the trials of the 880-yard run on Friday enabled him to establish himself as one of Coach Shirk's most promising throwers. Running his customary race of a slow start and a strong finish, Mack broke the school record in that event.

Thanks are in order to Lee Swartz, Mildred Folk, and Louis Andre for their work on The Albrightian's sports staff during the past year. It was their contributions which helped to make this year's sports page a representative presentation of athletics here at Albright.

Linksmen Drop Three Straight Encounters

Coach Paul Matten's linksmen dropped three matches in recent golf competition. The Lions lost to Moravian 8-1, West Chester 7-2, and Gettysburg 5-3. Albright now has a two-win, seven-loss, one-tie log for the season.

At Moravian, only Bill Brennehan could win for the Red and White as the Lions fell to the Greyhounds by an 8-1 margin.

Rams Win

In a match played at West Chester, Bernie Krick was the lone Albright victor. The Rams topped the Mattenmen 7-2.

Tennis Team Defeats Scranton Royals 9-0

Paced by Captain John Schiavo, the net team rolled to its sixth straight win of the season, and its seventh of the 1956 campaign, by trouncing the Scranton Royals 9-0 in a home match on the Albright courts last week.

Schiavo, Carl Witonsky, Jack Rickenbach, Jack Rosen, Charlie Sample, and Lee Haggenbotham picked up singles wins for the Renkemen, while the doubles teams of Rosen and Rickenbach, Haggenbotham and Sample, and Ted Gabriel and Dick Steffy also won matches.

The netmen now have a seven-win, four-loss record, having defeated Juniata, Moravian, Adelphi, Franklin and Marshall, St. Joseph's, and Muhlenberg, in addition to Scranton. Lycoming, Bucknell, Dickinson, and West Chester have bested the Lions.

LaSalle Wins MASC; Three Shirkmen Score

Albright's track and field team placed eighth among the 16 teams entered in the 44th annual Middle Atlantic States Conference Track and Field Championships which were held in the Albright Stadium last weekend. Ray Feick, Bill Shirk, and Jack Huntzinger were the only Lions who could score in the MASC competition. The Shirkmen accumulated five points, against the 13 they scored in the MASC games last year.

LaSalle copped the team championship with 69½ points to runner-up St. Joseph's 51. The Hawks were defending champions. Delaware and Lehigh tied for third place honors as they each accounted for 18 markers, and Lafayette followed with 12 points.

The other competing teams and their scores were: Franklin and Marshall, 11; Pennsylvania Military, 7; Albright, 5; Swarthmore, 5; Gettysburg, 4; Ursinus, 3; Haverford, 2; Bucknell, 1; Muhlenberg, 1; Juniata, 1; and Lebanon Valley, 0.

Feick Scores

Feick scored the first of Albright's five points by placing fifth in the javelin event. The event was won by John Brand, a sophomore from St. Joseph's with a heave of 197'.

Shirk finished fourth in the two-mile run, failing to repeat as MASC champion in that event. Joe Sloan, another St. Joseph's sophomore, was the winner with a time of 9:50.7.

Huntzinger ended the Lions' scoring by placing fourth in the discus event, duplicating his standing of a year ago. Ed Walsh of PMC won the discus throw by tossing the missile 136' 2".

The Red and White freshmen relay team of Frank Vocci, Jon Bradshaw, Dick Kelly, and Tom Faust finished fifth in the freshmen medley relay, but frosh events do not count in team scoring. St. Joseph's also won the relay event.

was in operation when a rain storm filled it without warning.

The tongue occupied practically the entire buccal cavity. There was a peculiar sharpness to it along the lateral borders, while the posterior end of it was lined with ducts which led right out to the tip. The ducts themselves were filled with a viscous substance the French call jarro-matti, and we call nonsense.

All in all, this would have been a most worthwhile experience had I not discovered that this senior actually had his head knocked off when he was caught selling shoe laces at two-thirty a.m. in the girls' dormitory.
