Stefansson, Explorer Speaks On Life In Arctic Circle

Believes North Would Make Good Plane Bases

Dr. Vilhjalmur Stefansson, world-renowned Arctic explorer and lecturer, visited Reading and the Albright campus yesterday. Arriving in Reading at 3:15 p. m., Dr. Stefansson went, at his request, unaccompanied to the Abraham Lincoln Hotel. There at 5:30 p. m., a dinner was given in his honor, sponsored by Mr. and Mrs. Sigmund C. Lurio. Attending the dinner were prominent Readingites, interested in Russian War Relief. Dr. Stefansson, who is a member of the board of directors of the Russian War Relief, Inc., with the headquarters in New York City, discussed his plans for the organization of a permanent committee for Russian War Relief in Reading similar to the committee organized in cities all over the U. S.

Dr. Stefansson with other nationally known personalities initiated Russian War Relief, Incorporated.

Dr. Stefansson is also a proponent for the recognition of the strategic importance of the Arctic regions. He believes there is a strong possibility that some of the decisive aerial battles of World War II may be fought by long-range bombers over the Arctic. He pointed out the fact that the Arctic region possesses great military potentialities as a short cut to the battlefields of Europe and Asia and as our first line of defense against long-range bombers or attempted inland marches along the Mackenzie and Yukon rivers.

An authority on the Arctic regions, Dr. Stefansson told of the unusually favorable flying conditions of the Far North, second only to that of the tropical regions. The best months for flying are February, March, and April. At least ten days of every month, he reported, have moonlight bright enough for landings and take-offs, since the moonlight is made twice as effective by the reflection from (Continued on page 4, column 2)

Samuel Coccodrilli Gets Promotion

Has Been Appointed Assistant Radiographer

Samuel Coccodrilli, who is slated to leave Albright in May, was recently appointed Assistant Radiographer to James T. Smith at the American Chain and Cable Co.

The work consists of taking photographs of steel castings with the gamma rays given off from radium. Pictures of the castings are developed and inspected for defects or flaws.

For the past three months Sam was training to take over this job upon graduation, however, S. J. Scherilli, U. S. Navy inspector at this plant, approved of Sam's work. As a result of this "Coco" begins working this week as a radiographer.

Dr. Poling, Baccalaureate Speaker, Called "Citizen Of The World"

Youth Leader To Herald Seniors On May 15th

DR. DANIEL A. POLING

The speaker chosen for the baccalaureate program this year is Dr. Daniel A. Poling. The service will be held on May 15. Because of the curtailment of the social activities, this religious event, usually held the Sunday before graduation, will take place this year Friday evening before commencement.

The baccalaureate speaker, a master of achievement and a leader of youth, has during his dynamic life been associated with the following activities: Youth Movements such as the Christian Endeavor; Penny Foundation for Vocational Guidance, magazines such as "Christian Endeavor World" and "Christian Herald," and various other religious movements.

Dr. Poling, who has been the pastor of the Grace Baptist Temple in Philadelphia, for the past six years, has been a counsellor of philanthropists, editor, novelist, radio speaker, and a leader in various civic movements.

The speaker seems to have had a well-rounded life. His college career was marked by athletic and oratorical prowess as well as scholarship. He was a football player, a track man, played championship basketball, and worked in lumber industries.

Dr. Poling, who was religious emphasis week speaker at Albright in 1938, has been referred to as "a citizen of the world," "one of the great leaders of his day," and "a minister who is also a statesman."

Human Priorities

By SEYMOUR MENEGOSHOHN

As the number of college students entering the armed forces of the nation increases, it becomes evident that the delicate structure of higher education is being shaken and the very foundations are slowly cracking under the strain. The colleges, universities, graduate and professional schools shall soon suffer from a serious lack of human material.

This is the problem: Shall the educational centers have a priority on human resources and if so, how shall the priority schedule be determined? The first is policy, while the second is method. We shall only deal with a policy designed to conserve the best human material that the educational system has produced.

We want to win the war. We are ready to sacrifice all that we possess to win the war. We know that the fighting forces must have plenty of men. We also know that a democracy cannot permit one class to fight while another class sits at home and watches the battle. This is our war and we must all share in our nation's struggle. There is no place for the shirker or the slacker when the country is in danger.

The fundamental assumptions of a policy of human priority are: 1. That a man should serve his country in the capacity for which he is best fitted and where he can do the most good for his country. 2. That the potential leader in the higher institution of learning is as vital to the future peace effort as the munition worker is to the present war effort.

America needs material to win the war. The munition worker is vital because he is a skilled technician as a result of many years of careful training and experience. The potential leader must likewise undergo special training and study for many years. The munition worker will enable us to win the war but his contribution to the winning of the peace will be negligible. The intelligent, enlightened, and educated men in the intellectual factories of the nation will be the ones to win the peace. Their task will be difficult and arduous. The future of the nation will depend upon them.

Who are these potential leaders? Not every college man will be a leader. Most students will become military officers. The percentage of men in the universities who would make leaders if they were permitted to live through the war is quite small. But since the number is so small, their conservation is all the more important. The mess the world is in now shows that during the last twenty (Continued on page 4, column 2)

"Quibbling vs. Quisling"

This week's review of the news will undoubtedly make us realize that all is not going well with the United Nations war effort. The cause for such a condition is that we are not prepared mentally or materially to fight this war. The inherent structure of our democratic form of government is not for efficient promotion of modern warfare but for efficient promotion of modern welfare. The dictatorships have it all over us when it comes to war promotion and they certainly are taking advantage of that condition. They somewhat resemble the organization of a large successful corporation with its hierarchy of efficiency experts, constantly fighting time, money, and material wastes. Russia, Germany, and Japan, have gone through a series of purges that eliminated hindrances to their respective programs. As a result, these countries have experienced a great deal of success on the field of battle.

Today, we are faced with the problems of modern warfare. Our leaders have reiterated time and again that the side winning the battle of production will win the war. Breaking this down it is another way of saying that regardless of our potential wealth and strength we will lose the war if that wealth and that strength is not used to produce. It means that we cannot win the war unless we have our very best men in government, regardless of party affiliation, directing that production. It is another way of saying that we cannot win the war unless our high ranking congressmen change their line of thinking from methods of World War number-one to Hitler's methods.

A year or so ago our government was supposed to have in its vaults a program known as "Mobilization Day", plans to set up this country with war promotion machinery. With the attack of Pearl Harbor we went to war. Let's see how our far sighted mobilization program is working.

1. We have not as yet agreed even until today about who is to run many of the most important activities of war.
2. The war program is so confusingly divided among the O.F.F., O.C.D., W.P.D., Dept. of War, Navy, Army, Treasury, State, and Agriculture, not to mention the Dept. of Labor.
3. Our parasitic pension-seeking Congress is placing politics before patriotism, passing legislation hindering the war-effort. They are afraid to pass legislation that would put teeth in the war-effort for fear they will step on some "special-interests" groups' toes. As a result the different war departments are given a MESS of contradictory powers. They are at cross-purposes on many occasions.
4. The public is being entertained with quibbles such as whether La Guardia is being overworked, Mrs. Roosevelt is wasting money on Fan Dancers, or whether Congress was in session when it passed the Pension Bill.

Meantime, in the wake of a laughing public comes the news of the fall of Hong Kong, Singapore, the defeat in the Philippines, Malaysia, China, Burma, and the news of enemy submarines sinking our ships in increasing numbers. All of this confusion caused by the lack of coordination, efficiency in government and production. The laughter ceases. The public becomes confused and wonders. Are we going to win this war?

We will win this war when we awaken to the fact that munitions and not money stops the enemy, that Congress should attempt to confuse the enemy, not its constituents, and that this is not the time for petty quibbles and personal ambition, for politics before patriotism. Our victory program must be promoted with great celerity and efficiency, even if it means the temporary abandonment of our constitution. If our victory program is not realized we will lose our democratic constitution through defeat. By avoiding the truth, quibbling, through trifling objection, we automatically become Hitler's Quislings.

BLUEBIRD release No. B-114-24—A Shep Field's & Orch. SOMEONE'S ROCKING MY DREAMBOAT F. T. V. R. Vocalist Ken Curtis initiates the new carefree sensation backed by Shep's new brassless Ork, now in its ninth month. Thirteen men demonstrate their versatility with three times as many instruments. The reverse waxing spotlights Ken's baritone voice with the Ork creating a simulated pipe organ delivery. I recommend this bit of sweetness for an attentive clientele.

The disc partner, HAPPY IN LOVE, hails from the musical production "Son's o' Fun." Marlan Hutton pours on the vocal doubling with a solid third sax chair.

Carl swings his band of Lucky Strike fame onto a tune, WE DID IT BEFORE, F. T. V. R. that shines with American determination and joins the victory list of 1941. ## Rambling Reporter Discusses Families; Tells Characteristics Of Her Own

By JANE

Families are funny things! There are all kinds, too. I don't mean big families and little families, but close families and not so close families, loyal families, and not so loyal families, and a lot of other abstract terms that families are, and are not. Our family is one of those families that are, rather than are not. Such a funny family we have!

My father, well, he's a quiet man; but he thinks we're swell. "We" are my 3 sisters and Mother and I, and "we" are the reason for his quietness.

Mother is an unusual person. As young as any one of us and a little like all of us.

Everyone of my sisters is different, making life at home always in a turmoil. Gail is the youngest with a bit of a temperament. She's the spark of the family. Betty Lee must always be on the go; she's the social "bug" of the family. "Diddy" is the oldest, dignified and the initiative of the family. And boy, are they good-looking, but don't rush, fellows!

With 4 girls at home, the house is never quiet. If one person has no company at least 2 others do. Week-ends are especially bad because usually we all have a date for nearly the same time, and then what a rush! I don't know how I could stand living in a calm household. But, then, I wouldn't want to!

Cagers End Court Season

Within the past week this column has received five letters complaining about Coach Neal O. Harris' verbal newspaper attack on the refereeing in the Eastern Penn Collegiate League. His statements appeared in the Reading Eagle of Tuesday, March 3. All of the letter writers feel that Harris has "stuck his neck out."

"It's true that the officiating in several of the Lion's games was not up to par," said one of the letter writers, "but that was no reason for the criticism. Albright teams the past four years have been noted for their sportsmanship and clean play but they are slowly losing that reputation because of the squawking that has appeared in the last few games," he concluded.

Well, all we can say in answer to those letters is that maybe the Eastern Penn Collegiate Conference ought to do something about the situation. It's just unfortunate that the Lions have been the victims.

Here's a story that appeared in the Ursinus College weekly that is interesting.

According to the Gettysburgian, F and M's first victory over Albright in the Lancaster Armory was clothed in doubts. As you probably know, the Lions depend on their fast break for their points and if that is controlled they are as good as defeated. The Diplomats knowing this devised the very clever scheme of tightening the cords on the nets so that the ball would not drop through but had to be batted out. Thus by the time the Albright players had batted the ball out of the net, the Diplomats defense was set and Albright's chief scoring threat was stopped.

We are indebted to Will Grimsley, Nashville, Tenn., sports writer, for the following suggestions on next year's bowl games.

January 1—Japan—There.
February 1—Italy—There (Breather).
March 1—Germany—Homecoming Day.

"Here's hoping," he continues, "we finish this schedule unbeaten and untied and get a bid to the Peace Bowl."

From the typewriter of Mrs. Smith comes the following:

Albright students have been keenly interested in the Eastern Penn Collegiate League basketball games for the past two months. This exciting race has overshadowed another athletic activity on our campus which deserves recognition—Women's Varsity basketball. Many of our students and faculty have never seen the Coeds play. You would not see the speed, science, and finesse exhibited every Saturday night at Northwest but you would see the result of four years' tireless effort and undying faithfulness to a Cause.

The present season's record of five wins and one loss should be

Albright Girls Win Two More As Moravian and St. John's Bow

Eleanor Platt Again Leads In Scoring

The Albright girls' basketball team in the past week defeated two more teams, Moravian and St. John's. Both games were played on the Red and White home floor, on Friday and Tuesday, respectively.

The Albright team had the edge over Moravian throughout the entire game, winning with the score of 18-12. They registered ten points to Moravian's two in the first half. A third quarter spurt by Moravian brought their score up to 10, just one point behind the Red and White team. This was the only time the visitors threatened the home team. High scorer for Moravian was Keating with seven points. Platt showed the way for Albright with 12 markers.

In one of the best played games of the season, Albright overcame St. John's, 25-18. It was a closely fought contest, with the score at the end of the first half being 10 all. Although the opposing guards did their best to lay their hands on the ball, the short, snappy passing of the Albright forwards was the outstanding feature of the game. Eleanor Platt, Albright's most consistent forward, was the outstanding player of the game, again leading her team to victory by scoring 12 points. Miller, with eight points, was the star for the church team.

From our good friend Nan Murphy of Moravian comes this comment in Moravian's newspaper. "The Albright girls team has improved over last year, offensively and defensively." Albright defeated Moravian 22-19 and 18-12 this season.

Lions Must Beat Mules To Insure Third Place Rating

Albright's Roaring Lions who have been silenced to a whisper the past few weeks end their cage season tomorrow night with Muhlenberg at Northwest.

Coach Neal Harris' charges who were pre-season favorites to cop the Eastern Penn Collegiate League crown can now finish no higher than a tie for third place. The Red and White cagers have a loop record of seven wins and four losses while Gettysburg's sophomore outfit have eight and three. The Bullets tangle with Franklin and Marshall tonight and if the Gmen win and Albright downs Muhlenberg Saturday the circuit will be thrown into a three-way tie.

The Lions snapped their worst slump in two seasons Wednesday night by smashing Lebanon Valley's last place outfit, 57-36. Paced by dead-eye Dick Shollenberger, who had one of his best nights this year with 25 points, the Red and White had little trouble with the Dutchmen.

Scrappy Bob Rhoads sent the Albrightians ahead, 7-6 early in the first chapter by sinking two successive buckets after the Annville passers had grabbed an early 6-3 lead. Dewey Boltz and George Manderbach then put on a scoring spree to send the Lions away.

Shollenberger ran wild during the third period by anchoring 15 of his 21 markers. Manderbach and Sammy Sehl showed well in reserve roles.

The Lion Frosh avenged an earlier setback at the hands of Lebanon Valley's yearlings by scoring a 56-34 verdict. Russ Guenich and John Brusch split 29 markers. The box score:

Pi Tau Beta Five Upsets Zetas, 44-42

Kappas Win Two To Keep Ahead

A rejuvenated Pi Tau Beta five sprung the biggest upset of the current intra-mural basketball league by tumbling the Zetas, 44-42. This surprise win eliminates the first half victors from the race for the second half crown.

The game played at the 13th and Union St. gym was a nip and tuck affair from beginning to end. At the end of the first quarter both aggregations were deadlocked at 11 all. The second canto saw the Zetas move ahead on the fine shooting of Warren Engle and Dick Weber to lead at half time 25-22. The third period the Zetas continued to lead, 36-32. In the final heat the Pi Taus went to town, placed by Ray Hain and Harry Arnold who sunk in quick succession four markers to tie their opponents and then went on to win on baskets by Arnold, Hain, Pearce, and Deutsch. Ray Hain, erstwhile athlete from Shillington, was the high scorer for the victors with 17 points. Clem Boland was the pacesetter for the Zetas with 14 markers.

The Kappas continued to set a torrid pace by rolling up 150 points to down the Frosh, 75-39; and the Pi Taus, 75-30. The league leaders have scored to date 854 markers to their opponents' 516, enabling them to lead the second half marathon which is entering its last week of action.

By virtue of the Pi Tau upset of the Zetas the A.P.O. took sole possession of second place. The chapel lads headed by Steve Plaskonas and Bob Richter defeated the Daymen, 48-37 and the Frosh 45-28.

Charles Hollenbach—Curator

There was graduated from Albright in the class of 1940 a senior biology major by the name of Charles Hollenbach. After graduating from Albright, Mr. Hollenbach took a year of graduate work at the Buffalo Museum of Natural History where he learned the technique of managing a museum. Mr. Hollenbach has recently accepted an offer to the position of curator of the State Museum at Harrisburg. This is indeed a promising advance for Mr. Hollenbach and it speaks well for the training he received here at Albright College.

Faculty

At the left is a portrait of Dr. Raphael Fenli, head of the Latin and Spanish departments and purveyor of scintillating wit in his own right. This gentle humorist and erstwhile minister was formerly a priest and teacher in Italy.

The professor of romance languages received his Ph.B. at St. Anthony, Rome; his M.A. at Columbia, and Ph.D. at Royal Rome.

Dr. Harry V. Masters attended the funeral of trustee Rev. I. F. Bergstresser, at Allentown.

Dr. John B. Douds was recently appointed a member of Red Cross Speaker's Bureau.

Human Priorities

years there was a scarcity of intelligent leadership.

The world after the war will need, more than ever before, bright young men, trained experts in the field of business, finance, politics, government, and education, who will reorganize our economic structure, plan the post-war policy of reconstruction and rehabilitation, reform our corrupt political life, revitalize our educational process, and set the standard for the better world of tomorrow.

Question: How can the potential leaders best serve their country? Answer: Keep 'em learning to win the peace!

Stefansson, Explorer

In the snow, Arctic winter is the season in which heavy troop transports and heavy tanks can be transported easily and the incredible number of lakes, frozen over, provide perfect landing fields for planes, more level than fields at airdromes. In the summer, these same lakes can be employed as landing places for sea planes.
