Ivy Ball To Kick-Off Homecoming

Induction Sets New Tradition

A step toward a new tradition was taken last Thursday when the class of '12 presented the class flag to Albright's freshmen. Unity was stressed as the freshmen were officially inducted into the Albright community.

The flag presenting ceremonies, conceived several years ago but formally introduced into the Induction ceremonies this year for the first time, are gauged to further alumni-student cooperation.

Roth Presents

Irvin E. Roth, vice-president of the class of '12, said, in presenting the class flag to Gregory Harbaugh, president of the class of '62, "This is a great day in your lives . . . We congratulate you on your endeavors. Our best wishes are with you . . . Go on to a glorious conclusion."

Stewart Stresses Unity

Orientation Committee Chairman, Alexander Stewart, '60, told the class of '62 that they have "enthusiasm, energy, spirit and, most of all, unity." Stewart stressed that unity is, of all their attributes, the "hardest to come by and the easiest to lose. Stick together," he advised.

Harbaugh, in accepting the flag, also emphasized the need for unity.

Featured Speakers

Featured speakers on the program were Carl S. Mogel, Esq., '41, president of the Alumni Association; Roth; Dr. Samuel B. Shirk, special assistant to the President; Stewart; and Herbert Zakrisson, '59, Student Council president.

U.S. Civil Service Announces Student Trainee Examination

The United States Civil Service Commission has announced a new Student Trainee examination for use in selecting college students and high school graduates for work-study programs in various Federal agencies. The training programs are in the scientific, technical, agricultural, accounting, and statistical fields. Some positions are located in Washington, D. C., and the nearby area, only. Others will be filled throughout the country. Trainees will be paid at the rate of $3,255 to $3,755 a year during the periods in which they are employed.

Requirements

Students must be enrolled in, or accepted for enrollment in, a curriculum in college leading to a bachelor's degree in one of the fields included in this training program. A written test will be given.

Further information and application forms are available at many post offices throughout the country, and at the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington 25, D. C. Applications will be accepted until April 2, 1959.

Charter Day To Be Observed Thursday

The first Thursday in November is set aside each year to commemorate Albright College Charter Day. It was 30 years ago, November 5, 1928, that the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania authorized this institution to issue degrees denoting higher education.

This year, for the first time, the College Alumni Association will sponsor the chapel program scheduled for the day of the anniversary, November 6.

Dr. Dale H. Gramley, '26, president of Salem College, Winston-Salem, North Carolina, will speak on "Albright in These Days of Our Life" and Carl F. Mogel, Esq., '41, president of the Alumni Association will be the presiding officer.

Smith Offers Invocation

Dr. John A. Smith, '14, Bishop of the Evangelical Congregational Church, will offer the invocation; President Harry V. Masters will present the speaker. George C. Bollman, graduate of 1921 and president of the Albright Board of Trustees will be in attendance.

"My Life Flows On" is the title of a special selection to be sung by the College Octet in memory of the late Dr. A. E. Gobbie, one of Albright College's first instructors.

Alumni Plan Program

All arrangements for the program have been made by an Alumni Association committee headed by Dr. Paul Price, class of 1926. Dr. Price is aided by the Rev. Rollin T. Reiner, '41, Dr. Russell F. Weigley, '52, and Mrs. Ruth Hess Royer, '08. Also on the committee are Dr. Samuel B. Shirk, Mrs. Mary Fry Good, '49, and Estella R. Pennepacker.

Coronation Of Queen Scheduled For Tonight

Domino Club Slates 'Admirable Crichton'

"Admirable Crichton", the Domino Club's fall production is now in the third week of rehearsal. The main characters are Crichton, portrayed by Steven Roth, '61; Ernest, portrayed by Ron Eisenberg, '61; Treherne, portrayed by James Garofalo, '61; Brocklehurst, portrayed by Robert Bollinger, '62; Lord Loan, portrayed by Howard Deck, '61; Lady Mary, portrayed by Diane Andriella, '61; and Tween, portrayed by Sally Smith, '62. Miss Hostetter, instructor in English, is directing the play.

Play Theme

One of J. M. Barrie's modern plays, "Admirable Crichton" is concerned with an Aristocratic English family who revert to the state of Nature when shipwrecked on a desert island. While there, they are willing slaves of their former butler, Crichton, but on return to civilization, the positions are shifted back to normal.

Glee Club Concert In Cornwall Sunday

The Albright College Glee Club will open its 1958-59 concert season at the Methodist Church Home in Cornwall, Sunday at 4 p.m. The group will appear at the West Lawn Evangelical United Brethren Church later the same evening. For their first public appearance, the glee club has chosen a program of religious selections. "The Heavens Are Telling" for Haydn's "Creations" will highlight the concert.

Lions Set To Tangle With Greyhounds In Stadium Tomorrow

Homecoming Day 1958 gets off to an informal start tonight at 8:30. The Ivy Ball, actually not a part of the scheduled Homecoming Day festivities, is slated as the first activity of an event-filled weekend.

Coronation To Highlight

Highlight of the Ball will be the coronation of this year's Homecoming Queen. An innovation in the coronation procedures will be the presentation of a tiara to the Queen, the tiara being jointly donated by the Student Council and the Alumni Association.

Homecoming Day itself opens at 9:00 tomorrow morning in the Alumni Memorial Library. Returning alumni will be requested to register at the Library where they will be greeted by representatives of the College and the Alumni Association. Also on hand to greet and register those alumni with fraternity or sorority affiliations will be representatives of the active chapters of the campus social organizations.

Coffee Hour

Returning Albrightians will be treated to coffee and other refreshments at the registration center. Those who choose to do so may take guided tours of the campus; the tours serving the dual purpose of reorienting the alumni to the campus and of bringing them up to date on recent additions and improvements.

Next in the line of events are the long-awaited ground-breaking ceremonies for the new Merner-Peiffer.

Pledges Named

Seven Albright women have recently accepted fall sorority pledge bids. Marianne Angstadt, '61; Judie Miller, '61; Diane Andriella, '61; and Barbara Schaefer, '61, are pledging the Phi Beta Mu Sorority. The Pi Alpha Tau pledges included Carolyn Thomforde, '60; Janice Hochhaus, '60; and Pavia McClure, '61.

Important dates on the pledging calendar for both sororities include: October 27—pledge induction, October 28—first day of pledging, November 24—the combined PAT and MU pledge party, and December 1—membership induction.

Ys, Sophs Sponsor Student-Faculty Night

The student-faculty sports night, sponsored by the combined Y's and the sophomore class, will take place Tuesday evening at 7:30 in the Physical Education Building. Competition will be held in volleyball, basketball, badminton and ping pong.

The Reverend Ronald Cocroft, chairman of the faculty social committee, will head the faculty teams; Ernest Geise, '61, chairman of the sports night program, will head the student teams.

Refreshments will be served following the meeting. Those participating in the events are asked to wear sneakers or socks.

Homecoming Starts With Ivy Ball — Paralysis

Klein Chapel-Auditorium. Set for 10:30 a.m., the ground-breaking will mark one more step taken in the long-range development plans of Albright College.

Krause Hall will be the scene of the Alumni Luncheon, scheduled to get under way at 11:30 a.m. The Luncheon, during which the alumni will be officially welcomed back to campus, marks the first time of the day during which the alumni can gather as a group.

Float Parade

Next on the crowded schedule is the traditional Float Parade, set to step off at 1:15 p.m. Eight organizations have entered floats in this year's competition. The Queen, and her Court will be introduced to the spectators at this time.

Kick-off of the Albright-Moravian football game is programmed for 2:00 p.m. The Lions and Greyhounds will both be seeking their second wins of the season, Moravian previously outscoring Wilkes College, 30-8, while Albright won its opener against Drexel, 21-0.

After-The-Game Party

The game will be followed immediately by the "Big" all-alumni event of the day, the After-The-Game Party in the Physical Education Building. In addition to the awarding of the "Haps Benfer" and Float Parade trophies, six organizations are scheduled to compete in a Songfest during the party.

An accommodation buffet supper will be served the Alumni in the College Dining Hall after the Party. Some of the campus alumni organizations have also scheduled evening affairs.

Barker Band

Music for the Ivy Ball, which will be held in the Physical Education Building, will be provided by Johnny Barker and His Redcoats. The theme of tonight's dance, which will be carried out in the decorations, favors, publicity and programs, is "You and the Night and the Music."

The tiara will be presented to the Homecoming Queen by Patricia Cush, '60, last year's Queen. Mr.

Carl Mogel, Esq., '41, president of the Alumni Association, will award the Alumni Trophy to the Homecoming Queen. Members of the Queen's Court will also be announced at the Ivy Ball.

Campus tours, which the alumni can take immediately after registering in the Library, will be under the direction of Robert Sheeley, '61. Sheeley announced that the tours will pay special attention to the new additions and improvements to the campus, but that the entire campus will be covered for the purpose of "reacquaintance."

Dr. J. Arthur Heck, '16, vice-president of United Theological Seminary, Dayton will present the main address at the ground-breaking for the new chapel. Dr. Heck was formerly president of the Evangelical School of Theology when it was located in what is now Teel Hall.

Representatives

Representing the various areas of the Albright College community at the ground-breaking will be Dr. Charles E. Kachel, '24, for the Evangelical United Brethren Church; John C. Lanz, '37, for the Alumni Association; Luke A. Lutz, for the Board of Trustees; Dr. George W. Walton, dean of the college, for the faculty and administration; and Herbert Zakrison, '59, Student Council president, for the student body.

Dr. Masters To Preside

Dr. Harry V. Masters, president of the college, will preside over the ground-breaking ceremonies. Music will be furnished by the Albright College Band. The chapel, in addition to being large enough to accommodate the entire student body at one time, will contain several classrooms.

Dr. Masters, Mogel and Zakrison will greet the alumni for the college, the Alumni Association and the student body respectively at the Alumni Luncheon. A tribute to the late Charles S. (Pop) Kelchner, '95, emergency time the federal government must help immediately. The cost of higher education has doubled since 1940. A recent Ford Foundation study determined that 40% of qualified students do not go on to college because of the cost involved. We cannot afford to lose the potential brain power," Akers asserted.

Akers, who is a former Deputy Under Secretary for Air stated that the federal assistance program for college student long-term, low interest loan funds passed by the last Congress was a step in the right direction on the college level, but was not enough.

will add a note of solemnity to the program.

All of the campus social fraternities and sororities; the local chapter of Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity; and the Kappa Tau Chi pre-theological fraternity are scheduled to compete in the Float Parade.

Judges

Judges for the Float Parade are Willard Colvin, president of the senior Chamber of Commerce and president of United Gas Institute; Miss Martha Dick, president of the local chapter of the American Association of University Women; and William Ruoff, Democratic councilman of Reading.

The floats will be judged on the basis of the theme "Beat Moravian."

A hard-luck, injury-ridden Lion squad will attempt to even the score for a defeat suffered at the hands of Moravian last year. Also scheduled for the afternoon is a cross-country meet between the two schools.

Dettra Announces

Norman E. Dettra, Jr., '52, alumni chairman of the After-The-Game Party, has announced a Songfest as a new addition to this year's party. All of the campus social organizations will compete for a trophy, offering as their selections songs appropriate to their own fraternities and sororities.

Other highlights of the Party will be the awarding of the "Haps Benfer" trophy to the outstanding player of the game and the awarding of the trophy to the winner of the Float Parade competition. Michael Teitelman, '60, sports editor of the Albrightian and Willard Stitzel, '60, student chairman of the Homecoming Day committee will award the respective trophies.

German Band

Also on the program are selections by The German Band and by the faculty quartet composed of Charles L. Gordon, Jr., treasurer of the college; Charles R. Rath, professor of political science; Dr. Samuel B. Shirk, director of public relations; and Lester R. Yeager, professor of music.

The day will end for most of the alumni with the Accommodation Buffet Supper to be served in the College Dining Hall. Others are slated to attend affairs scheduled by their own alumni associations.

By REV. EUGENE H. BARTH
Professor of Religion

Someone on campus asked me recently "Isn't it possible to be moral without being religious?" As a Christian ethicist, I found it necessary to give that question thought. It appears to me that the problem is not quite that simple.

American culture seems to be suffering from a peculiar type of ethical paralysis; a deterioration of moral fibre. Many generations past, the Puritan conscience predominated in the American scene. There was a strong feeling for the simple rightness of the right, a respect for honor and the binding trust of a man's word. Such moral integrity was rooted in the "fear of the Lord", a vivid sense that one always acted in the sight of a living God.

Riesmen's Book

Now that inheritance from Puritanism is almost dissipated, David Riesmen's book, The Lonely Crowd portrays the new outlook. Whatever makes men happy or what the crowd approves has become the new deity. Whereas, the Puritan made his decisions by a kind of inner gyroscope, an allegiance to "principles", the citizen of the twentieth century operates by a kind of "radar", steering his course by signals as they bounce off the crowd he encounters.

Modern Man

Modern man is not a scoundrel. He's pleasant, easy-going, tolerant, indulging in degrading pastimes not out of malice but just to be "one of the boys". But he will also lie, steal, cheat, destroy property, cut all possible corners whenever no one is looking from the crowd, simply because he has no God beyond the crowd to whom he feels accountable. Expediency, therefore, is his only rule of action.

According to the great historian, Arnold Toynbee, no civilization has long endured when its moral foundations have begun to crumble. Nor does he believe ours will be an exception. Man has more power in his hands than ever in history. If he does not learn to use it under the control of moral principles what hope is there for posterity?

But the roots of moral action are always in the hearts of men. Law is helpless to make men good, for goodness must begin within the soul. The individual, however, requires some point of reference beyond himself to serve as a "fix" for the moral conscience. High religion discovered this long ago. If there is nothing within the universe that responds to and nurtures the deepest moral feelings of the human soul, all moral foundations will ultimately crumble. Thus, while religion is not the same as ethics, it has provided the surest foundation for high ethical progress.

Religion Recognizers

More than this, religion has recognized that men's will is not sufficient by itself to overcome his basic selfishness. Man is not only weak willed, he is a sinner. There are times when he acknowledges a good he refuses to obey. Religion teaches that God is not only just, but also merciful. His grace not only forgives our acknowledged wrongs, but provides the power to begin again. His resources alone are sufficient to overcome the weakness of the human will, and His absolute righteousness is the only compass to provide direction for humanity.

The Answer

The question, then, is not "how to be ethical without being religious." We need first to recognize that there is a difference between the two disciplines, but that they are not in opposition to each other. More than that, no practical ethic has ever met the needs of a society which did not have a sanction outside itself. This point of reference has been provided by every high religion.

Akers Wants Tax Relief For Students

"Included in the first order of business for the 86th Congress when it convenes in January should be the following proposals," Anthony B. Akers, Democratic and Liberal candidate for Congress in Manhattan's 17th District, said on Thursday evening, October 9, in a speech before the Grand Street Boy's Association at 106 West 55th Street, New York City:

1. Tax relief or tax credit up to $450 per college student for tuition or fees paid to tax exempt public and private educational institutions.
2. 40,000 federal scholarships for qualified students above the 12th grade.

"One of the great gaps in education immediately before us must be filled by the highly trained, specially skilled individual who has spent several years in a college or university.

"The burden of sending a son or daughter through college, for most parents, constitutes an extraordinary sacrifice. If our country is to have an adequate number of college and university trained individuals to meet our critical needs in this

A Slighted Queen . . .

Most of you have noticed that there is no picture of the Homecoming Queen in this issue. We all understand, of course, that this is because the Queen's name will not be formally announced until tonight at the Ivy Ball.

The question is: Why the suspense? What is accomplished by adding this touch of the dramatic to the Ivy Ball proceedings? The Queen's name has been announced at certain organization meetings. Anyone who really wants to know the Queen's name can find it out.

Does the announcement of the Queen's name add something necessary to the Ivy Ball? We think not. Will it have a positive affect on the attendance figures? Ridiculous!

Because those in charge of this portion of the Homecoming program refuse to officially announce the name of the Queen until tonight, we are forced to slight her. Not knowing who she is, we cannot give her the publicity she deserves. To the Queen, who ever she may be, we apologize.

Ambergris

By JOHN SAVITSKY

His name was Ambergris, spew from a moby was he;

His life was spent amiss, even spurned by the ravenous sea.

He was na so 'lookin', tho some golden hair had he;

His eyes were a verdigris, 'twas the weed of the ravenous sea.

Ambergris, Ambergris, why do you float away?

Ambergris, Ambergris, you'll find your worth someday.

Then once when our mother calmed, and her face was taut with fear

A whaler came easin' by, saw the waxy blob come near.

He yelled to his cap'n—"Ho, there's a lively pay!"

And a skiff was lowered down, to scob up the yellow-grey.

Ambergris, Ambergris, why do you float away?

Ambergris, Ambergris, you'll find your worth someday.

And soon the craft was upon him, poor Ambergris was limp.

But when the gaff was holda him, then our mother's heart turned imp.

She rolled the dismal dory, with a breaker on its side.

And the hapless crew went awry, while the prey kept up its ride

Ambergris, Ambergris, why do you float away?

Ambergris, Ambergris, you'll find your worth someday.

A Scene: On The Corner Of Elm Street

By JEAN WOOD

The rays from the street light on the corner of Elm Street filtered their way hesitantly through the dense fog that hung around like the common riffraff often found there. The air was heavy; it possessed the type of dampness that penetrated the souls of all who were drawn into its clammy grasp. Elm Street corner resembled a movie set ready for the filming of a twelve o'clock murder mystery.

Faint Sound

Far down the block a hollow tapping could be faintly heard. It grew somewhat louder, and as it did, the tapping seemed to be accompanied by a slow, faltering shuffle. An old man, leaning heavily on a gnarled cane, hobbled forth from the curtain of fog into the brightness of the street lamp. He blinked profusely as the light struck his tired eyes, and he stopped for a moment, bewildered by his surroundings. I had an odd desire to offer him directions, but something held me back, and instead I scrutinized his features as he turned his face toward the light.

There was an interesting quality about this elderly man. He had an air of aristocracy about him, in spite of his stooped countenance. I found it rather easy to picture him as he must have been in his younger days; good looking, well dressed, debonaire, proud. Yes, above all, proud. It was obvious this trait had remained unchanged. His ancient chin was still firm enough to portray his spirit and determination. His mouth, also, was firm, and his bottom lip jutted slightly more than the upper one. A sign of his stubbornness, I thought.

A wisp of fog brushed past his face, and he laboriously raised his wrinkled hand as though to push it away. That very effort seemed to tire him, and he slumped noticeably, depending on his cane for support.

Deep Sigh

Once more he raised his head and looked around. I was reminded of an animal sensing the air, hoping for a familiar scent. Abruptly he turned, almost falling off balance from the sudden motion. He emitted a sigh so deep that his whole body literally shuddered. As I watched, he began to walk again. A faint but determined smile toyed with his mouth and I knew he had finally determined his location.

The fog silently closed the spot in which he had stood. Elm Street corner was as it had been, empty, damp, and somewhat eerie. All that remained was the faint tapping that grew less audible as the fog swirled and drifted around the lamp post.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS by FRIEL

OVER HERE, HENRY, I'D KNOW OUR BOY'S ROOM-ANYPLACE!"

By SANDRA STRICKLER

LET IT SNOW—As that much talked about rose of summer loosens its hold on the world and falls wearily to the ground, Albright students don their winter woollens and anticipate the first snowfall. Speculation is running high as to whether the debauchery that last year's big snows brought to our campus will be equalled this winter. It seems hard to believe that the snow ball fights, raids and parties that were the result of the electrical failure, which benignly provided us a welcome respite from the daily doldrums of studying and attending classes, can never be beat.

BLAST—The Zetas went all out last week and brewed an outstanding open house. I can't blame them for being proud of such a beautiful abode. Comments on the house were almost overshadowed by the raves about the fog. Gust, of College Inn fame, cutted himself with the spread that kept everyone munching happily all evening. One thing marred the scene—not enough people took advantage of the Zetas' hospitality. It seems a shame that when something finally happens around this place some students can't postpone other activities in favor of another group's soiree.

MISSING—The big plans everyone had for making the trip to Lancaster last Saturday for the F&M game fell through when a little rain made the ground a bit too damp for the tender tootsies of college students. It's too bad someone with some authority didn't take the time to make a 35 cent phone call to the neighboring city to find out what sort of weather they were having. As it was, those of us who went to the game were met with a terrific day for football, but there wasn't much of a cheering section to take advantage of it. We lost a good opportunity to show off our band and new drill team to the crowds that invaded the F&M campus for Homecoming. Here's hoping a faux pas like that doesn't happen again.

UNDER COVER STUFF—What is the reason for not publicly announcing the name of the Homecoming Queen before the Ivy Ball? Everyone on campus knows who's been elected, but still the pretense of secrecy is kept. But a complaint like that can't spoil Homecoming, and the way things look, it should be one of the best. Many events have been planned and the only thing that's needed to make the weekend a success is active participation of the students. Why not arrange to join the weekend whirl? See you there!

Recognition And Non-Recognition

"The ways of diplomacy are often strange to the untutored citizen, and after a lifetime of exposure to John Foster Dulles (anyway, it seems a lifetime), we may find ourselves more puzzled than ever. The United States does not recognize Communist China and, we are assured, never will recognize that iniquitous nation. Even so, for weeks on end our Ambassador has been carrying on lengthy conversations with their Ambassador, and the two, far from meeting by stealth, have been driving up to the conferral palace with the flags of their respective countries flying from their limousines. Probably they don't shake hands; thus recognition is avoided. Again, the Chinese Reds offer to stop firing on Quemoy if we will stop conveying the ships of our staunch though somewhat stiffnecked ally, Chiang Kai-shek, and we promptly comply. Was this recognition? Certainly not; it was they who recognized our expressed desire for a cease-fire; we were just talking aloud to ourselves. Finally, when the President at his press conference expressed his approval of the cease-fire thus adventitiously arrived at, he was recognizing only the reporter who asked the question, and this reporter was neither Chinese nor a Red. Any American to whom this is not perfectly clear should be turned in to the Committee on Un-American Activities, for by the very fact of his incomprehension (unless he can prove that he is well-meaning but stupid) he shows that he is not worthy of his citizenship."

Homecoming Features Moravian Clash

Dips Rally In Third Quarter Gains Victory Over Injury Weakened Potskklanmen 30-14

Lions Seek Revenge For Setback Last Year

IN THE LION'S DEN

By MICHAEL TEITELMAN, Sports Editor

The Important Factor . . .

Since defeating Drexel in their opener, John Potskklan's Lions have steadily lost ground in their quest for victory number two. Certainly Lebanon Valley, F & M and Lycoming were not much better than the Albrightians, but possessed one of the most important factors in college football—depth. The Lions were a tired second half team against Lycoming, Gettysburg and F & M. With no adequate replacements for the first team, most of the 11 starters played almost 60 minutes of football. Even with injuries to such players as Frank Sudock, Bill Ballentine and Claude Lynch the Lions made a good game of it.

The Lions are a young team with only one senior, Sudock, on the squad. With added experience and that all important depth factor, John Potskklan's Lions are going to be a formidable squad.

A few words of praise to an overlooked coach, Dick Koch. Koch, line mentor of the Lions, has done an outstanding job and has made the Lions a tough defensive unit. Referee Jim McGuckin called Albright's line superb against Gettysburg. The Lions were the only team to hold Lycoming scoreless last year and Dave Bussey's men enjoyed a superb year.

Lebanon Valley Rebounding . . .

Lebanon Valley has certainly rebounded from a poor year in sports in 1957. The Dutchmen earned their third victory last week over Moravian, 14-0. The excellent play of Quarterback Bill Deliberty has led the Valley men throughout the year. Juniata's great stretch of 20 straight was temporarily halted by a tie with Westminster, 21-21. The Indians are a tough small college outfit who don't play a hard schedule. Tough squads included in their schedule are Lycoming, Westminster, and Scranton.

Renkenmen Start Practicing . . .

The Renkenmen opened practice last week for the coming court campaign. Coach Will Renken, beginning his fourth season, has a good nucleus returning in lettermen Fred Dietzel, Merrill Eckhart, Wayne Hudson, Dick Kelly, Stan Kaminski, Sam Preston, and Paul Marrella. Additions to the schedule include Pennsylvania Military College and the Union International Christmas Tournament. The Lions will not face Lafayette or Juniata this year.

Gene Shirk's harriers have dropped five in a row since beating Haverford, 17-42, in their first meet. A parade of tough opponents such as Lafayette and West Chester have hurt the record, but again lack of depth and consistency is the prime factor. Lack of student support for cross-country is appalling to this observer. The Shirkmen meet Moravian during the football game with the same school tomorrow. Let's really hear some support for a team with a tough job in a sport where there is little glory for the victor and less for the vanquished.

Franklin and Marshall, outplayed in the first half, threw the game wide open in the third quarter to down injury-weakened Albright, 30-14, in their annual Homecoming Day attraction last Saturday afternoon at Williamson Field, Lancaster.

The Dips, rejuvenated by the half-time rest period, drove for sixteen points in the game-deciding third quarter which found Albright unable to halt a 68-yard scoring drive.

F&M Marches 68 Yds.

In the fateful third quarter, F&M, receiving the opening kick-off, drove down the gridiron 68 yards for a touchdown. The sustained march consumed eleven plays, and was ended by George Darrah's fifteen yard touchdown ramble. The Dips passed for the two-point conversion.

A twenty-one yard pass accounted for the final score of the game. John Irwin recovered a Lion fumble on his own 47, and F&M worked the ball to the Albright 21. Norm Bell gathered in a fourth-down Tom Kirkup pass and sauntered unopposed across the goal stripe. A two-point conversion gave the Diplomats an ultimate 30-14 victory.

Although the first half ended with the score at 14-11, the Lions dominated play, moving almost at will on the ground, as they amassed eleven first downs. F&M earned three, and had to rely on two long aeriels to keep things even.

Lions Lead 6-0

Albright jumped to an early 6-0 lead the first time they took possession when they covered 77 yards in thirteen plays. A fourth-down pass on the two yard stripe from Gary Chapman to Mike Varano capped the long drive. The attempted conversion pass failed, but Albright had drawn first blood.

After an F&M punt, Albright moved to the enemy 22 before a Chapman-Varano fourth-down pass went incomplete, and the Diplomats took over. John Betrone gambled on fourth down and got a first on his own 32. Then quarterback Fred Hesse faded back and tossed a shallow pass to fullback Darrah, who demonstrated brilliant open-field running to complete the 68 yard scoring play. The conversion failed, and the first period closed with the game knotted at six apiece.

Morgan Recovers Fumble

Dip guard Lloyd Morgan recovered a Matto bobble on the Albright 37 after the Lions had received the kick-off. F&M had lost ground to the 39 when Hesse passed, again to Darrah, who eluded two tacklers in advancing to the four. Betrone bulled off right tackle on the next play for the score, which was backed up by a two-pointer on a Hesse to Darrah pass. The hometowners took the lead, 14-6.

With fifteen seconds remaining in the first half, Gerry Bricker slashed over from the one for Albright's second and final tally. George Seighman's recovery of a Hesse fumble on the F&M 26 set up the score. Varano is credited with gaining thirteen of the 26 yards to pay-dirt. Frank Sudock ran for the conversion and the half ended with the score deadlocked at 14-14.

The Greyhounds of Moravian College will take the field in Albright Stadium tomorrow afternoon to face the Lions in Albright's Homecoming game. Last year the Greyhounds beat Albright, 20-6.

Coach Rocco Calvo brings his charges to Albright with one victory and three losses prior to tomorrow's game. Moravian ran wild in their season's opener against Wilkes in thumping them soundly, 30-8. However, the Greyhounds were slowed down by Juniata, 28-6, leashed by Penn Military College, 14-8, and muffled by Lebanon Valley, 14-0. Now the Lions intend to keep them in the doghouse.

Lions Beat Drexel

In review, Albright has battered Drexel, 21-0, tied Lebanon Valley, 14-14, and lost three successive "moral victories" to Lycoming, Gettysburg, and Franklin and Marshall. Now the undermanned, but stalwart Lions meet Moravian, whose only common foe so far this year has been Lebanon Valley.

Over the years Albright has found Moravian to be a relatively easy opponent in winning 15 encounters, while dropping only six. There have been no ties in the series.

Matz Quarterback

Albright fans can look for Tony Matz at quarterback for Moravian. He will be joined in the backfield by Joe Esposito and Ron Myers in the halfback slots, and by George Hollendersky at fullback. Paul Noonan and John Olson will be the ends and the tackles will likely be Bob Haney and Kim Kritis. Barring recent injuries Captain Gus Rampone and Mike Payonk will be the guards and center will be filled by Fred Lipari.

Lynch Might Play

Coach Potskklan's crew will probably be the same as that which started last week except possibly that Claude Lynch might return to his end position.

CRYSTAL BALL

ALBRIGHT OPPONENTS:

- Scranton over Drexel
- F&M over Western Maryland
- Lafayette over Gettysburg (close)
- Juniata over Wilkes (Ugh!)
- Lebanon Valley over Thiel
- PMC over Lycoming (Both tough)
- Hofstra over Muhlenberg (Yep!)

OTHERS:

- Harvard over Penn
- Buffalo over Temple
- Penn State over Furman
- Army over Colgate (If only they were as simple as this)
- Notre Dame over Navy (Reifsnider is the difference)
- Ohio State over Northwestern (The glory is over)

Benfer Award Will Be Given By Albrightian

"The Haps Benfer Most Valuable Player Award" will be presented to the most valuable player on the Albright team in the homecoming contest with Moravian tomorrow. This award is being sponsored by The Albrightian and will be presented in the fieldhouse during the Victory Celebration.

The award was started two years ago as an added feature to the honoring of Harry A. (Haps) Benfer as the outstanding Albright athlete of the century. Halfback Tom Pollock, who scored two touchdowns for the Lions in their 20-6 win over Lebanon Valley in the homecoming affair, was the winner of the first Benfer trophy. John Kopp was the winner last year.

Selected On Performance

The selection of the player who is to receive the award will be made by a panel of three, comprised of a representative of the college, the local press, and the alumni. The only criteria for the selection of the winner is his performance in the homecoming game.

Members of The Albrightian staff originated the idea for the award and will have organizational control over it, although they have designated the three-member panel to make the annual selection.

The Alpha Pi Omega fraternity carried off the intramural football championship last Monday, October 27, on the science hall field against the Zeta Omega Epsilon fraternity in a 20-0 playoff brawl. The Zetas had taken the first half title, and the APOs gained the second half toga during regular play.

Bob Shoup paced the APOs in passing for two touchdowns and running one across; Dave Townley and Sam Rumford made a great pass-catching, lateral combination for the APOs, which offset the fine offensive game of Bruce Young to Marty Musket via the airplanes and the defensive play of Chuck Kachel for the Zetas.

Throughout the second half of the regular season the APOs trounced the Kappas, 18-7, the Pi Taus, 39-0, the Daymen, 38-0, the Zetas, 33-27, and the Dormmen, 26-0. Dave Townley was the APOs most proficient scorer as he gained 15 and 18 points, respectively, against the Pi Taus and Daymen in his best games. Sam Rumford made his best showing against the Daymen when he cashed in on 13 markers and Jim Smallwood notched two touchdowns against the Kappas for APO.

The Zetas rolled over the Pi Taus, 27-2, the Daymen, 19-0, the Dormmen, 20-0, and the Kappas, 13-0, before bowing to the APOs. Marty Musket and Chuck Kachel were the Zetas' leading pointmakers in the second half. Musket notched 12 tallies against the Pi Taus and the APOs and also tallied a touchdown against the Daymen. Kachel, leading scorer in the first half, earned two touchdowns against both the Dormmen and the Kappas.

Second Half Results

During the second half the APOs accumulated 154 markers compared to 106 points for the Zetas. Both squads were exceptionally good, defensively, yielding only 34 and 35 tallies, respectively.

Second Half Final
Team	Won	Lost	Tie
APO	5	0	0
Zeta	4	1	0
Kappa	2	2	1
Dormmen	2	3	0
Pi Tau	1	3	1
Daymen	0	5	0
