DOCTOR BOWMAN SIGNALLY HONORED

Name Appears In New Edition Of "Who's Who In America"

Albright College can feel honored by having the name of its President, Dr. C. A. Bowman appear in the "Who's Who In America" of 1928-29, Volume 15. The write-up followed a request for the same. This distinction comes to our President, after having spent many years in the educational line. His chief work since 1895 has been centered in the development of Albright College, Myerstown, and its consolidation with Central Pennsylvania College, 1902; has served as President, dean and acting President, and since 1923 again as President.

RAIN MARS GAME

The Lafayette football team rode The Lafayette football team rode roughshod over Albright, last Saturday, to a decisive score of 78 to 0. Lafayette kicked off and Clemens returned the ball to the thirty-five yard line. On the first play Peckham lost 6 on an end run. Waitkus gained four-thru the line. Gibbens dropped back and punted to Lafayette's forty yard line, Guest returned the ball twenty yards before being downed by an Albright man. From here large gains were recled off by the omosaine backs. yards before being downed by an Al-bright man. From here large gains were recled off by the opposing backs, and behind perfect interference Guest the "Big Little" man for Lafayette crossed the goal line for the first score of the game. This started things going for the Maroon team and they continued to romp across the scoring line for six pointers time and again.

Soon after the second period started a fifty seven yard advance toward our goal line netted Lafayette their third score and from then on, until the half they piled up thirty three points. Albright's plays were smothered before they could get started by the heavier Maroon team. Time and again the Albright backs were nabbed before they could reach the line of scrimmage. On the defense the Albright line was overwhelmed by the much larger and heavier Lafayette line, who made the way clear for their backs to get over the scoring line.

Although with their backs to the wall, and out-played, the Albright boys were in there fighting with that old Albright spirit that never says defeat, but fighting to the finish. Our boys are to be commended for the way they kept up the fighting spirit to the final whistle. Beaten in points way they kept up the fighting spirit to the final whistle. Beaten in points only, not in spirit, they battled gamely to the end. SHALL THE LITERARY SOCIETIES BE CONTINUED

Unless there be good there can be no bad, and unless we pick the bad there can be no good. Always we criticize so that some good come of it.

In the past, various methods have been used to correct the evil which we today speak about. None of them have, at least in this case, proved their reliability. Heretofore it has been a matter of showing what the results of discontinuance will be or else what good might result from the continuance of the affair. For it has become an affair in some people's eyes. Henceforward we adopt a new pian of campaign in order to again be convinced that resumption of meetings of LITERARY SOCIETIES is the proper thing to do. Not only resumption do we advocate, but strict attendance made possible by a little thinking on the part of the leaders.

Let us treat this matter from three standpoints. Although we have every phase of literature treated in our academic courses, yet it has been to a great degree already though tout for us. In the LITERARY SOCIETY we discuss instead of having expounded to us. The greatest advantage that can be gained from literature of all sort is gained in discussion rather than by a cut and dried explanation. Then, too, many more phases of literature can and are brought to the front in the society than in the class room.

are can and are brought to the front in the society than in the class room. As an "extra curricular" there is none to take its place. We have a great many of these extra curricular activities yet none touches to the same extent the variety of subjects that are dealt with in the society. For instance: all of us have not the time to read the daily paper in the way that it should be read. In the past societies, there always was a review of current news of interest, by someone who made it his duty to follow the leading subjects to the full extent. There can be no doubt as to the value of this.

From another standpoint we advance this argument. The LITERARY SOCIETIES are a part of the school even as football. The Alumni would not want to return to the school and find no athletic teams, neither would they want to see no literary societies. Those out of the fading past point out to us with shaking finger the line of duty to the college and to them as former students. Can we ignore them, they who worked and struggled that we might enjoy the fruits of their labors? For no other reason the LITERARY SOCIETIES must be perpetuated and that means that all of us must see our duty clearly before us.

You who are the leaders no matter from whose choice, must take

You who are the leaders, no matter from whose choice, must take the initiative, even though you conduct the society alone. It is your duty and your obligation. Rome was not built in a day, neither will the so cieties be rebuilt.

ENTHUSIASM

Enthusiasm is what happens to a man when his Heart and Head and Determination become welded together in the same spot at the same time for the same purpose. It is a process—not merely a condition. Everyone has a Heart and Head and Determination, but not every one has sufficient sense to get them together to start things and help move on the progress of the times.

Enthusiasm is the spark that starts the action that moves the may to "get going" and then helps him to "get there." With Enthusiasm you can steam on and nobody can stop you. Enthusiasm is what goes throug stone walls, bores miles under great rivers, wins battles and lays out citle and towns and nations. It changes maps and makes History possible.

and towns and nations. It changes maps and makes History possible.
You here at school take heart and hope—and Enthusiasm. Regardless of that first football score, or that sinking feeling in that new class, or that timidness at meeting folks—get your Heart and Head and Determination to working together and your Enthusiasm will make all this other a thing of the past.

We have pledged ourselves to our team—let us stick by them. We have had rosy dreams of college—let us realize them. We want to meet the rest of the folks—let us begin immediately. Let not the scope of our Enthusiasm be limited to one field. We must get it behind our so-cities, our debates, our breakfast devotionals, our classes and our school. Enthusiasm starts things, shapes things—does things. Start today to mix Enthusiasm in your blood. Then keep it there!

THE OLD TIME PEP

What's the matter Who's alright? She's alright! Who's alright?
Albright. Yes, she is Alright, but where is the old time pep? Last Friday, the day before we sent our team out to fight the first and hardest game of the season, there were no signs whatever of a pep meeting. Oh yes, there were some enthusiasts, but why not have a real, honest-to-goodness pep meeting and arouse everyone to action? Saturday morning when our team left and the weather was very much against them, where were all the boys who are not members of the variety team? Let's not have a duplication of last week, but let's send the boys off today with cheers and yells and show them that we're back of them 100% strong.

who had fled persecution, to evange-lize his unevangelized German breth-ren, and to plant the foundation roots of what has since proved to be a growing and flourishing denomination.

Jacob Albright was a great initiatory force. He was not the mere resultant of a situation or simply the dominating figure of a movement; but rather he was the movement. It is true that "institutions make men," but it is also true that "in the beginning men made institutions."

The denomination Albright founded has had an interesting history, a history that extends over 132 years, or from 1796, when its founder first started to preach, to the present day, or from 1796, when its founder first started to preach, to the present day, when 2,000 licensed ministers take up his message. In this period it has changed from an association which was formed primarily for work among the Pennsylvania Germans to one that reaches into 10 nations and touches all colors. It has developed from a group that was considered a religious outeast, called a band of fanatics, and said to be led by a heretic, to one of the most respected frengious outcasts, canded a band of fananties, and said to be led by a heretic, to one of the most respected of Churches. And it has lived to give birth through episcopal and ministerial misunderstandings to an offspring, now known as the Evangelical Congregational Church, that numbers approximately 20,000 communicants.

Of Albright's early life we know little. He was the son of John Albright, who came to this country from the Palatinate province, Germany, in 1732, flecing with hundreds of others from the oppression and persecution that followed the Thirty Years' war in his native state. The son, Jacob, was born at the family homested near Pottstown, on May 1, 1759, and we have reason to be-son, Jacob, was born at the family homestead near Pottstown, on May 1, 1759, and we have reason to believe lived an ordinary uneventful carly life. He spoke the German tonuge almost entirely, associated with fellow German farmer lads, played the usual games of the day and attended the Lutheran Church of which his parents were members.

When the Revolutionary war broke out he was 17 years of age, and in the Course of time enlisted in the Pennsylvania militia. Later we find him a private in the army, guardon, prisoners of war at Reading, P. Associated with the course of time enlisted in the Pennsylvania militia. It is interesting to note that Evangelical history had a beginning almost parallel with that of the United States, and that when it came time for Albright to draw up the articles of faith of his scattered denomination he included one pledging allegiance to that government. The Evangelical Church is an American bear denomination! allegiance to that government. The Evangelical Church is an American born denomination! In 1785 Albright married Cathaborn denomination!

In 1785 Albright married Catharine Cope, who came from an old and highly respected famfly, in Chester County, Pennsylvania, near Albright's home. Nine children were born of this union, three of them dying in infancy. Albright, meanwhile, had learned the tile making trade, then a good business, and a few years after his marriage removed to Earl township. Lancaster County, where he had purchased a small farm on which was a good deposit of lime and clay. Here he built up a prosperous business, producing lime, bricks and tiles, and in a few years became known as the honest tiler. His estate at the time of his death amounted to approximately $4,000 a quiet respectable sum in those days

Although enjoying success in his business enterprise and gaining the confidence of a constantly widening circle of friends, Albright was not happy. His German brethren were enmappy. his German bretaren were en-grossed in their efforts to make money. Vice and intemperance were rampant. The Church, largely Luth-eran, had degenerated. The clergy was going down hill and there were few spiritual leaders. A religious few spiritual leaders. A religious crisis was impending!

About this time, 1790, Albright lost several children in an epidemic of dysentery. The blow was a heavy one. In a funeral sermon by the Rev. Anthony Houtz, a Reformed itinerant, however, he saw the first glimpse of light, and following spiritual wrestlings of the ensuing months finally decided for Christ. He had been a Church member for years, but never a spiritual one; for the Church was dead, and membership only a matter of form. From this time on affiliation with the existing Church was therefore out of the quee-

In October, 1796, he began his itin-crant work, holding meetings at the homes of neighbors, extending his journeys into other communities, recruiting assistants, "aving souls, marching on and on, crusading for Christ.

Of his great evangelistic work, of his titneraries, of the way he recruited his co-laborers we cannot treat in detail here. It would require a book to do these subjects justice. Neither can we deal with his reasons for not uniting with the Methodist or United Brethren Churches, both quite akin in work and message. We must hasten to an estimate of the man himself.

Following this the trio again entertained, the seniors then giving their skit. This was a Spanish Scene, in which Don Manuel a suitor to the fair Maggie, whom he has captured, is a-salted by Patrick who rescues his beloved from captivity. Don Manuel was played by Russel Asper, Maggie—"Ditty" Stauffer, and Patrick—Elwood McGuigan.
The last number on the program consisted of the Senior Chorus singing the Italian Street Song, which proved to be one of the features of the evening's' entertainment, which came to a close with the refreshments and singing of the Alma Mater.

Albright, it would seem, died prematurely, for he passed away less than three weeks after his 49th birthday and just 12 years after his spiritual awakening and revival. However, when one considers the fruits of his labors, the extent of his influence, the spread of his work, he is consoled in the fact that God knew best. The seed had been sown; the Evangelical Church was to live. Albright had given his life that others might have meals, his lack of proper shelter in inclement weather, that took toll of his strength and brought on the consumption that took him to his reward. He died on May 18, 1808, at

Pennsylvania, 11 miles from his home where he took his bed while returning from his last itinerary journey.

As a preacher, Albright was methodical, convincing, conclusive. From his co-laborer, Geo. Miller, we learn that he was calm and deliberate in his introductions, practical in his applications and somewhat argumentative and remonstrant in his strong convictions. At times he grew eloquent and powerful, though he was not of the emotional type. That he was successful is a fact attested to by the conversions that we know followed many of his sermons.

The Junior Class has started the The Junior Class has started the year out right—putting on the big Junior class play in the early part of the school term. Under the auspices of the Speculum Staff, the Juniors will present what promises to be "Albright's Best Yet," in the way of stage productions, "What Anne Beauch! Howe!" in free account!

"Albright's Best Yet," in the way of stage productions, "What Anne Brought Home," a farce-comedy in three acts.

"What Anne Brought Home" is a royalty play, recently released for amateur productions, and one which has had a long and very successful run on Broadway. The play is one of unusual interest of superior quality, and one which everyone will enjoy. Throughout the play, one's interest is held perfectly, and as the last minute, when everyone thoroly enjoys the complete surprise in what Anne really brought home.

The class has chosen Miss Garlach,

Wheresoever a drop of Evangelical blood flows in the veins of man, Albright, his life and work, will be felt and appreciated. The farmer beyond the Mississippi, the business man in eastern Pennsylvania, the mountaineer in Kertucky, will be reminded of his itineraries. The coolie in China, the factory worker in Japan, the tribesman in Africa, will reap the benefits of his missionary zeal. The grain merchant in Canada, the toy maker in Germany, the miner in France will rejoice in the simpleness of his faith. Men in all walks of life and all conditions, from the humble cottage to the luxurious furnished mansions and from the scattered countryside to the world's largest city, will thank God for his faith, his prayers, his life.

"THE ENEMY" IS NEW GISH VEHICLE

"The Enemy", Lillian Gish's new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer vehicle, based on Channing Pollock's internationally known stage play, and one of the most elaborate features of the sea-son, comes to the Myerstown Theatre this week on Thurs. Fri. and Sat.

The picture, a vivid drama of war and war hysteria and its after ef-fects, laid in Austria before, during, and after the world streggle, has a lavish background and was directed by Fred Niblo. Miss Gish plays the tragic "Pauli", center of a family struggle brought about by artificial hatreds arising from war hysteria.

Elaborate settings representing Austria, an Austrian university, and great palace sets are among the more elaborate details of the big

BENJAMIN GARRISON WILKES ps were Freshmen, this tall, husky fellow from Baltimore was known as Garry, but now, with the advent of time, he has arrived at the more dignified name of Benny.

Benny is quite an active chap around here. This year he has been chosen to wield the gavel of the Senior Class, and he is doing it quite Senior Class, and he is doing it quite effectively. He is the only surviving boys' debater, but that is no more than one could expect—for his tongue is as good at pros and cons as it is at quips and jibes. As head tongue is as good as it is at quips and jibes. As head of the school's popular nourishment department, he has a train of followers, all hot at his heels—for food. Benny held down the big bass end of the College Quartette, now a matter of history, and of the Glee Club. The Y. He has several ong and "sich." He has several cousins at Albright, but we think he spends most of his time with a certain class cousin.

Good luck to you, Benny. We don't know what you expect to do some day, but we are sure that you, with your qualifications, will get there, and once there—don't forget that the sky is the limit.

"Parrakeet's Prattle"

Well, folks! Parrakeet was so busy all last week he's most tired to death. There was so much for Parra-keet to see and hear, he just couldn't get around. He missed quite a bit but he's so anxious to tell you all the news he's nearly busticated.

Parrakeet wonders if all the boys Parrakeet wonders if all the boys and girls enjoyed the Sunday School reception as much as he did. You see, the faculty reception was too formal for Parrakeet, and so he wasn' present. He did hear tho that everybody was happy and enjoyed the eats. But the party on Thursday nite was different. How everybody laughed when Blandina and "Puttle-boy" were eating green apples! Wasn't Dr. Gobble funny? But some of the boys were too bash-But some of the boys were too bashples! Wasn't Dr. Gobble funny? But some of the boys were too bash-ful (?) to take his advice. Parra-keet saw that Benny made a bee-line for "Evy" and Prof. Otto had a real nice girl. Everybody had a dandy time and if Parrakeet had a chance he'd shout for "nuther one."

Parrakeet flew a long way on Sat-urday and got nearly frozed to death. You bet, he likes football. It rained and the teams got muddy. The Red and White fought hard but what— the score was 78-0. Too bad! Parra-keet's heart and soul are all sympathy for the team. But he knows they're a crowd of good snorts and fighting crowd of good sports and fighting men, and he feels in his bones they're gonna win next time. Don't you? Well then, gang, pep things up.

What's this about pictures? Parra what's this about pictures? Parra-keet feels awfully slighted because no one asked him to have his taken. The Freshmen girls looked so fun-ny in front of Mohn Hall, on Friday, that Parrakeet nearly fell off his that Parrakeet nearly fell off his perch laughing at them. But every-body's running around whispering about sittings, Juniors and a brand new Speculum. Why don't someone let Parrakeet in on it too? But he sorta senses it isn't for birds and so he'll say "Au Revoir" (he learned that from Miss Gerlach) and fly away.

GENERAL ELECT

Electricity opens a new era of ocean travel

Miraculously quiet and vibrationless, luxurious and swift, the new electrically operated S. S. California, largest American-built passenger ship, has opened a new era in ocean travel.

Electricity drives the California so officiently that the fuel bill for the initial coast-to-coast trip was even less than the Canal tolls. Electricity mans the winches, bakes the bread, makes the ice, polishes the silver. And electricity cools the cabins and provides passengers with the comforts found in the finest hotels.

Complete electrification makes the California an engineering marvel and a commercial success; it is booked far in advance, a sister chip has just been launched, and enother is under construction.

On sea or land, in every walk of life, electricity is in the van of progress. Undreamed of yesterday, the electric ship is a symbol of the electrical industry's part in modern civilization and a prophecy of even greater ac-
