Them Was The Good Ole Days

This is the initial edition of the Kappas of Albright College. Dressed in their Sunday's best, the beau brummels of 1900 posed for this photograph the first year of the fraternity's existence in Myerstown. The fraternity will celebrate its forty years of progress tomorrow. For names of the charter members in the picture, see the story below.

Kappas End Fourth Decade With Celebration Tomorrow

Fraternity Plans Special Program For Anniversary

Kappa Upsilon Phi Fraternity is celebrating its fortieth birthday anniversary this year!

It was born just after the century had turned over a new leaf—1900. The membership was only 14 and Albright College was still in Myerstown.

There have been a lot of changes since then—the college moved, the fraternity was incorporated, and the boys leased a house of their own.

All of that, and more, will be celebrated tomorrow. Twenty-seven active members and 210 alumni have been invited to help.

The program will get under way with a Lebanon Valley-Albright football game at 2 o'clock. A special section will be reserved in the stands. The game will be followed by an informal get-together in the Kappa house.

The evening's entertainment will be highlighted by a banquet in the Temple Inn. Ray Kelchner, Fleetwood, of the 1906 class, will be the principal speaker. Fred A. Howard will be toastmaster. The Rev. Raymond Musselman, class of 1914, will ask the invocation. The birthday celebration will be climaxed by a dance in the Iris Club on December 14. Jack Heath and his orchestra will synopate for the affair.

The Kappa Fraternity came into being on September 9, 1900. Its

A. P. O.'s Are Tops At Stunt Night

Zeta Funmakers Second, In Riproaring Program

Tuesday night, stunt night, the A. P. O.'s took the cake—pardon—the candy, with their lampooning the peace conference in Campaign (?) forest and caricatures of Stalin, Mussolini, Roosevelt, and Hitler.

Runners-up and recipients of another box of candy were the Zetas who presented a Bill Bottomari-Dennis Ertel version of the March of Time. Jan Van Driel brought up the rear.

PAT's Start Show.

Opening the program, the PAT Sorority gave a pantomime, "The Mellerdrama." Second was the winning A. P. O. caricature. Non-sorority form girls presented the Marlin(?) sisters and enacted "The Old Rocking Chair."

Drive Starts Next Week For War Relief Funds

Next week the Y's will begin their drive for funds for students in the Far East and Europe who have been driven out of their universities by war. A Chinese student from Crozer seminary will speak in chapel on Wednesday and Thursday. The campaign will close with a party in the dining hall next Saturday night.

Pep Rally Tonight In Park Theatre

Albright College will take over the Park Theatre for a one-night stand tonight. It's going to be a rip-roaring "Pep Night" with the band, the cheerleaders, and the players in the spotlight.

On the screen will be the anti-Nazi motion picture, "Pastor Hall." After the show, the band will play, the cheerleaders will lead cheers, and Albright students are expected to yell.

The whole business is a spirit primer for the Lebanon Valley grid game tomorrow afternoon. An added incentive is a reduction in admission—28 cents for students. The band, cheerleaders, and football players will get in free.

Daring Custom Maid Suggests Voluntary Chapel "Test Run"

By CUSTOM MAID

A talented musician, one Seymour Mendelsohn, presented a program in chapel on Monday and Tuesday that would have broken an applause meter. Almost everyone who heard Mendelsohn agrees he was "tops" among chapel performers so far this year.

But it seems even Mendelsohn was not good enough for the untrining tongue-waggers whose continual hissing during the expert marimba playing almost outdid the steam pipes in distracting from the concert.

There's been a lot of talk floating around campus which would label all chapel program as "dead." That may be true in some cases, but not in yesterday's. And we'll defend our position with spitballs at a 100 yards.

It seems to us there is only one reason why those indoor carnival barkers can't control their means of articulation. They just aren't interested in the program, regardless of the attraction. We doubt if a combination of any 20 of the world's "greats" appearing simultaneously on the chapel stage would even be enough to interest them.

For that reason we're suggesting a voluntary chapel "test run"—a period of perhaps two months in which there would be absolutely no compulsion. All college rules and regulations concerning chapel would be set aside during that period.

Dominos To Stage 'Punny' Comedy

Present "The Rivals" In Chapel Next Week

The Domino Club will open its season next Thursday with a matinee performance of THE RIVALS, by Richard Brinsley Sheridan. There will be another matinee on Friday and evening performances Friday and Saturday.

Play is Laugh-Provoking

THE RIVALS is an eighteenth century comedy of manners. Chief of the characters is Mrs. Malaprop, whose misuse of words has become proverbial. She believes that her niece is entirely "illegible" for marriage. She wants Julia to learn "geometry" so she will know something about the "contagious countries."

In her own words, Mrs. Malaprop is just a misplaced "allegory on the banks of the Nile." Her foil is Sir Anthony Absolute, a crotchety old gentleman who rages around the stage ordering his placid son to calm down. Young Jack Absolute's attempts to marry Julia in spite of parental consent, carry the plot along to a hilarious conclusion.

Minor plots which run counter to the story are the love affair of Julia, Lydia's cousin, and Faulkland, her impulsive lover; the correspondence carried on anonymously by Mrs. Malaprop with Sir Lucius O'Trigger, an impoverished gentleman; the attempt of Acres, counterpart of the modern "hick" to gain a place in Lydia's affections; and the graft policy engineered by Lucy, Mrs. Malaprop's maid, on all the members of the cast. Three servants: Fag, David, and Thomas act as entrepreneurs.

The completed cast of characters is as follows: George Henry, Sir Anthony Absolute; Warren Engle, Captain Absolute; Jerome Denner, Faulkland; Jacob Wagner, Acres; Henry Helstrom, Sir Lucius O'Trigger; William Bottomari, Fag; Robert Dombro, David; Charles Miesse, Thomas; Rolf Hastings, Boy; Marjorie Frundt, Mrs. Malaprop; Geraldine Ross, Lydia Languish; Emma Hafer, Julia; and Marie Kauffman, Lucy.

It's too bad educated college students haven't been educated quite enough to show some courtesy to speakers in chapel. The very least they could do as disinterested spectators would be to keep quiet. But I suppose we can dismiss them on the grounds of immaturity.

If chapel were voluntary, the attraction would have to be big enough to draw students four days a week. The students attending would do so because they were interested in the program. That would eliminate the everlasting talkers.

The test run of two months would at least give everyone a chance to see what Albright College students actually do think of chapel programs, which in itself would be worthwhile knowing. It would tend to eliminate the rabble, so to speak, and would give interested students a chance to really hear what's going on.

Predigestion

By ROBERT L. WORK

One late Saturday afternoon during the past summer, thousands of music-lovers began to assemble outside the gates of the Lewishohn Stadium on Saint Nicholas Heights in Manhattan. Many of them had brought their lunches and cushions, prepared to sit and save seats for the scheduled hour of a performance. Several hours later, when the almost-late-comers had been crowded into the few remaining seats and standing room, the hubbub of 27,000 persons had more than a slight suggestion of bedlam. At the appointed hour, however, the chimes echoed back and forth across the throng, voices became hushed and then silent, and a few moments later Marian Anderson began to thrill the audience with her unbelievably versatile and exquisite voice.

Last Monday night at the Rajah Theatre, this same artist appeared with her power to charm still more in evidence. Running the gamut in range and in subtle nuance of expression, Miss Anderson carried her listeners where she would and then eased them back into their seats again with a graciousness and humility that seemed almost surprised at the applause that shook the theatre after her flight of song. It is not difficult to understand why Arturo Toscanini has said, "A voice like hers is heard once in a lifetime."

George Evans is taking quite a "Hand" in romantic affairs lately.

What's the attraction down at Boyer's, Osenbach?

Reed discovering an old flame never dies.

Dick Riffle displaying his new car on campus last Friday afternoon.

Despite the competition on the football team, our handsome line coach seems to be coming a-(white)-head.

One of the Dickinson boys was quite concerned about Betty Laverty.

"You-sai-tis" true that one of our cheerleaders is deserting the Kappas. For Pete's sake!!

Don't look for Pinky this weekend. We guarantee that she'll be busy.

How did you enjoy your visit to Drexel, King?

We know one person who had a good time last Saturday night—didn't you, Betty?

This week's award for bravery should go to Anita.

Did you know that one of the Kappa boys is deserting Albright for Dickinson?

How do you like shopping with Dotty, Walton?

Popeye has a cheering section all his own at the games.

Who was the girl from Wernersville who took Roy Shorman to the game last Friday night???

Did you see James Brice kiss Pat Smith in front of the library??? (P.S. He bet on Willie).

Reading is certainly indebted to Mr. George D. Haage for his annual series of subscription concerts. Without the occasional visits by the world's greatest musicians, the impetus that that art-form needs in this otherwise busied community would be rather small. The subsequent appearance of such artists as Erica Morini and Jose Iturbi and especially the Philadelphia Orchestra makes the winter less dreary in prospect.

Of the local musical events in the season's calendar, the next on the horizon is the opening concert of the Reading Chamber Music Trio in the Albright College Chapel this coming Monday, November 18, at 8:30 P.M. The three fine musicians who comprise this trio—Hans Nix, violin; Chester Wittell, piano, and Walter Schmidt, cello—observe the first of this sixth season's programs with three works by Beethoven.

Mid-Semester Night's Dream
Shoot the Quiz to me Miss!

Here we are again. Spick and span from the cleaners. Don't we smell nice? Don't we smell? Don't we? Don't . . .

Now today we shall investigate the best way to take one of the HEXAMS that are floating around these days:

1—Buy four quarts of midnight oil; drink two and lubricate your books with the other two.

2—Read everything the night before, except what was assigned.

3—Go to a movie—to relax the mind (remembering that whole hour you'll spend in the library the next day).

4—Wake up the next morning with that I-dun-wanna-take-an-exam feeling, knowing less than you did before.

5—Look up all the people who have taken the course and find out exactly what was asked before. (It's more fun trying to out-guess the profs, just try to Horn in, for example) . . .

6—Go to that library for that hour and do everything — but vacant. You will walk to the first vacant table, sit comfortably and open your book for the last review and begin reading the first paragraph. At the end of that precious hour, you will still be reading that first paragraph. For in the meantime:

A—You've been visited by

1. Your friends,
2. A visiting delegation of the library staff,
3. Some more friends,
4. Some more delegations.

B—You've been handed a magazine article or a book which your "friends" insist is so funny.

C—Your best friends have dragged you out for a milkshake.

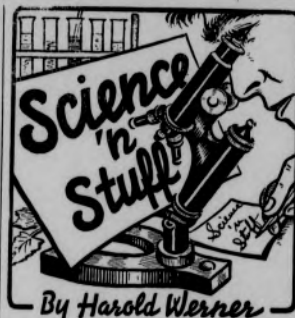

D—You've started that paragraph again. But immediately a discussion of next year's diapers, or the shade of darkness floating at you from the library desk starts with the guy next to you.

7—Realizing that it's time for the final blow . . . take a deep breath, sharpen your pencil, reason that if you ever are forced to be a prof you won't give mid-semester, and walk bravely towards the "Ad" building telling everyone that you don't know anything and that you haven't studied a bit (after spending hours memorizing pages of DATA—sounds like baby talk).

8—Enter the classroom to find that the questions are not the same as last year and that those four thousand pages you studied are not covered at all.

9—Don't give up, some day you may be a prof. . . then . . . heh, heh, heh . . . the shadow knows . . . but nobody else does . . .

They weren't so bad this year except I believe that if a semester extended for thirty centuries and you had two ten minute tests, they'd probably come within twenty minutes of each other. LAST WORD DEPT. . . Exam . . . Wam . . .

Having found nothing to report upon this week except one meeting and a few odds and ends, your columnist sought the "quiet solitude" of the "chem" library to further elucidate. There to his great surprise and consternation, he was confronted with many new thoughts. For further details concentrate on the subject matter below.

The Skull and Bones Society was entertained at its monthly meeting by Dr. Leroy Gehris. Dr. Gehris, who is a graduate of Albright, a former member of Skull and Bones, and a graduate of Jefferson Medical School, gave an excellent talk on appendicitis. He told of the protection afforded by the body and presented slides to emphasize the increased death rate due to laxatives. The meeting was followed by a business session at which the new members were inducted into the society.

Who is the belle of the anatomy class and how does she get such good marks? Won't somebody please inform us as to the facts?

Our active hiking organization under the leadership of the George-Green coalition took another jaunt through the mountains on Saturday afternoon. Those present were: Professors George, Green, and Memming, Carl Fredericks, John Nugent, and "Al" Thergeson. Thergeson again collected birds' nests.

What tall, thin, studious fellow in anatomy class hopes that Professor Green gets caught in the draft?

Professor Newton S. Danford has changed his residence from Stony Creek Mills to 1529 N. 14th Street. Professor George, you're next!

Elmer Bottligler, a "chem" major of the class of '34, who at present is a member of the Pennsylvania State Police, connected with the crime detection laboratory at Harrisburg, spent the past week visiting at Albright.

If Professor Speicher had only known about the results of the election beforehand, "Pop" Moser would be a dollar poorer today.

We wish to inform Dr. Cook of the formation of a new organization on the campus. It's the "30-club" of the organic class—Professor Danford is the advisor.

The "chem lab" assistants had a paper marking party on Wednesday evening at 8 P.M.

French Club Studies DeBussy At Meeting

The French Club had an all-DeBussy meeting on Tuesday afternoon. Helen Hazard read a short biography of the composer and Jane Redcay played his "Reverie". Sonja Damsey won the crossword puzzle prize.

Lions Tackle Valley Tomorrow

Lebanon Valley, one of Albright's oldest football rivals, invades the stadium tomorrow in quest of its first win over Albright College since 1934. Despite five successive defeats, the Flying Dutchmen are coming back for more because this time they feel the teams will be about on the same par. Both clubs now have .500 percentages.

Jerry Frock's squad is fresh from a 27-14 win over Upsala College and a 6-0 triumph over Blue Ridge. This means the Valley's offensive attack is gathering momentum while Albright's offensive is still quite bogged down. Moreover, the Annnville boys always play their best against the Red and White despite past records. So look for a close, tight game between two traditional rivals, comes tomorrow afternoon.

Two upsets and a tie just about ruined this column's predictions last week. Adding up, we picked five out of nine winners, going wrong on F. & M.-N. Y. U., Moravian-Susquehanna (by the way, that knocks both out of the undefeated class), Texas A. & M.-Southern Methodist, and Bucknell-George Washington, which ended in a scoreless tie. We say not so bad, so here goes again: Albright over Lebanon Valley, Lafayette over Western Maryland, Carnegie Tech. over F. & M., Muhlenberg over Dickinson, Bucknell over Gettysburg, Ursinus over Drexel, Ithaca over Moravian, and Georgetown over Boston College.

Nobody has mentioned it to us but we want to apologize to Big Bill McKinney for omitting his name in our basketball write-up last week. It's like naming the New York Yankees and forgetting about Joe DiMaggio. The big blonde senior was Albright's leading scorer last year as well as one of the highest scorers in the league.

DO YOU KNOW: Jake Hydock, Albright's basketball captain last season, has signed to play professional basketball with the Reading team in the Tri-County League... Albright-Lebanon Valley rivalry dates back to 1902... That 27-6 lacing at the hands of the Franklin & Marshall team was the worst defeat suffered by an Albright team in more than 6 years... Well, fancy that, the girls played their first inter-class hockey game last Friday.

A reborn Albright offensive will greet Lebanon Valley's Flying Dutchmen when Jerry Frock's moleskinners invade Albright Stadium tomorrow afternoon. The Lions found themselves last week with a 7-0 victory over Dickinson Red Devils.

Whence this note of optimism after a close decision over a foe we trounced decisively last year? Well, dear fans, to find the inspiration for our bright outlook on Albright's football future, you may wipe three-fourths of the Dickinson melée from your mind, and concentrate on that encouraging final canto. Defensively, we have had a powerful club all season. But the Lion's offensive roar has been hoarse ever since the Upsala contest. In fact, this acute impotency lasted right up until the whistle was blown for the beginning of the last period in last week's battle. Then we grandstand quarterbacks heaved a sigh of relief and settled back in our stadium seats.

The Red and White had begun to click. No touchdowns were scored, but first-down after first-down was reeled off, and Dickinson's powerful defense was forced to yield to a supercharged Lion attack. Yessir, the Dutchmen will face a brand new Albright offensive tomorrow.

Spangler Scores

Bill Spangler grabbed scoring honors in the Red Devil fray. His catch of Stan Kuklis' nifty left-handed heave in the third quarter was nothing short of miraculous. Jim Breen looked like his old self again in spots, but the Jersey sports merchant was forced to favor a weak ankle late in the game. But the laurel wreath is hereby tendered to little Vic Gigli who played a whale of a ballgame at quarterback. The Tamaqua Torpedo masted the Dietzmen to their lone tally, after taking over the signal calling post in the third period, and it was his spirit that drove the Lions on in their last period attack.

Figures concede neither side very little in tomorrow's clash. Both clubs boast a .500 average,

Girls To Open Season With Lebanon Valley

Hockey Team Will Play Here Tomorrow Morning

The girls' hockey team will cross sticks with Lebanon Valley in their initial inter-collegiate tilt tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. The game will be played on the field between the Science Hall and the theology building.

The intra-mural schedule opened last week when the juniors edged the frosh, 2-1. Kitty Geib and Esther Whitehead put the juniors into the win column with their drives between the uprights. Charlotte Biles kept the frosh from being shutout. The next game will find the sophs meeting the frosh on Wednesday afternoon.

The lineups last week were:

Juniors	Frosh
Shade ... c. f. ...	Garfunkle
Rothermel ... l. l. ...	Leiby
Snyder ... l. w. ...	Morris
Levan ... r. i. ...	Biles
Geib ... r. w. ...	Peoples
Whitehead ... c. h. ...	Laverty
Bongardner ... r. h. ...	Reubsamen
Siegel ... l. h. ...	Moyer
Zieber ... r. f. ...	Wentz
Zafiro ... l. f. ...	Wright
Bertolet ... g. ...	Muhs

the Red and White winning four and dropping a like number, while the Dutchmen stand at three and three.

Lions Hold Edge

Looking at comparative scores, we find the two schools had only three common foes. We hold a slight edge in these results. Moravian and Upsala both scored heavily on Lebanon Valley last season on Albright, while Franklin and Marshall topped both clubs by 21 points.

Two changes are contemplated by Coach Dietz. Sam Cocco-drill and Chuck Klein out of Saturday's contest. Paul Michaels will get the starting center assignment, and Gigli is favored to open at the signal calling spot. The remainder of the lineup will be the same.

24 Frosh Feted By Mu's Monday

The Phi Beta Mu Sorority held its annual fall dinner party in the Barbara Ann Tea Room on Monday evening. The Sorority had as its guests 24 freshmen girls.

After the dinner the group was entertained by the son and daughters of Colonel Shepherd who have recently returned from Hawaii. Clad in grass skirts and leis, Betty, Joan, and Patsy did several of the native dances, accompanied by Paul on the electric guitar.

The Theologs tightened their grip on third place in the inter-fraternity football league by conquering their ancient rivals, the Pi Taus, 12-0 in their annual grudge battle, last Tuesday. Rain forced postponement of the Kappa-A. P. O. tiff scheduled for Monday, and the Day Student-Frosh Dorm game carded for Wednesday.

Charles Weslager, chief slinger for the second floor boys, passed for both touchdowns. One was registered by Ray Swett who sneaked into the end zone on a sleeper play, and the other slipped into the waiting arms of Dave McCleary.

As the season nears its end, it appears the Kappa-Zeta game scheduled for Monday, November 25, will decide the championship. Both teams are undefeated. The Zetas, however, were tied once. The Kappas have given up only two points so far.

Chamber Music Trio To Present First Concert

The Chamber Music Trio of Reading will open its eighteenth season Monday evening with an all-Beethoven concert in the college chapel. Members of the trio are Hans Nix, violin, Chester Wittell, piano, and Walter Schmidt, cello.

This year marks the eighth for all members of the trio. It originally started in 1922. Nix was an original member. Twelve years ago Schmidt joined, and in 1932 Dr. Wittell became a member.

On the program Monday evening are three opuses which represent Beethoven in the great periods of his artistic life. The first trio to be played is Opus 11 in B flat major. The second trio is Opus 70, number 1 in D major. For the last number on the concert the trio, Opus 97, in B flat major, will be played.

Unlike previous occasions, the trio will appear in the college chapel only on Monday. Season tickets are one dollar for three concerts. Single tickets are 50 cents, student rate, and are for sale in the public relations office.

Left, Right
Drum Majors
Think It's Fun

By SEYMOUR MENDELSON
A call on the trumpets, a long roll on the drums, a shrill whistle, and the Albright Band marches down the field led by those two flashy, high-stepping drum majors, Mildred Ruebsamen and Reed Teitworth.

Albright is proud of its band leaders and this reporter did a little inquiring on the side to discover how they came to lead the Red and White musicians.

Teitworth Fourth in State
Placing fourth in the 1939 state high school twirling contest at Lewistown was one of the most impressive events in Reed Teitworth's life. The judges rated him first in the contest of two batons. Reed, a sophomore, has been twirling the baton ever since tenth grade at Lewistown, where he played the trombone in the school band.

What led him to baton-twisting? Reed says, "I just did it for the devilment"—but the devil got the best of him. In 1938, Reed transferred to Reading High School. In his senior year, he was appointed head drum major, the first one to employ two batons at the castle.

Entering Albright, Reed found himself at the head of the college band because of his outstanding showmanship. In his spare time, he gives lessons in the art of twirling and acts as an instructor in one of the local music studios.

Co-ed Also Twirls Baton
When the band is on the march, students invariably inquire about the attractive co-ed who assists Teitworth. Well, fellows, she is Mildred Ruebsamen, a freshman, hailing from Philadelphia. Her phone number is — well, you had better find out for yourself. Here's a word of advice, however: Stay away from her when she has a baton cause she's got a "wicked arm." To illustrate, the other night she broke a mirror in the girls' wash room while practicing. She's afraid that means seven years at Albright.

Mildred, like Reed, took up the twirling for a pastime. Being athletically inclined, she plays high school hockey. One of her teammates taught Mildred the technique by using a hockey stick for a baton. She went home and practiced with metal towel racks. "I broke some bulbs, but I did improve!" Mildred admits.

The Midnight Ramblers—fresh dorm boys—sang. After that the Pi Tau's went to town with "Clementine." Then came the Zeta show followed by Mu Sorority presentation of awards to outstanding students. The Kappas closed the program with caricatures of Coach Dietz, Jim Horn, a drunkard, and a hitch-hiker.

Miss Anne Benninger, Miss Ernestine Elder, Lew Briner, and Dr. Milton Geil judged the performances. Vincent Rusbosin was master of ceremonies.

history since then would be something like this: 1922, Incorporation at Albright College, Myers-town, on April 7, 1929. Moved to Schuylkill College, Reading, where it merged with Delta Kappa Sigma Fraternity; 1929, set up headquarters in chapel dormitory; 1935, Leased its own home; 1940, celebrated anniversary.

Nine members of the 14 charter members are living. They are: Charles W. Bonner, Reading; William H. Glick, Bartonsville; John L. Wilson, Brooklyn, N. Y.; R. D. Smoyer, Myerstown; Raymond A. Dengler, Allentown; Jack L. Wentz, Passaic, N. J.; Clyde S. Black, Bedford, Ind.; Wayne F. Killian, Philadelphia, and Doc Clock, Orwigsburg.

The five deceased members are: Thomas F. Erdman, Reading; Eugene B. Eitnier, Atlantic City, N. J.; William Welker, Walter Shaeffer, Fleetwood, and C. S. Gross.

Present Officers

Present officers of the fraternity are: Archon, Stanley Rosansk; vice archon, James Sharp; secretary, Samuel Sehl; treasurer, Jack Boardman; steward, Leo Sokulski, and chaplain, Charles Kamin.

Didn't Lead School Band

Mildred never got the chance to lead her high school band. Custom forbade girl drum majors. Nevertheless she did continue to practice.

One day on campus, Mildred asked the band director if he would ask a girl drum major. He said, "Yes," and that's how she got to lead the band.

"Twirling fascinates me," the co-ed said, "I love it." Majoring in home economics, she finds that she can apply her art to, of all things, "twirling eggs around!"
