

Language Clubs Sponsor Folk Song Festival

Students from the French, German, and Spanish clubs will pool their talents next Monday for an evening of folk songs and dances. The festival, to be presented at 7:30 p. m. in the Lower Social Room, is the first combined function of the language clubs. All those who are interested in languages or folk customs are invited to attend this special affair.

French Program

For their part of the program, "Le Cercle Français" will present various scenes from "Jeanne d'Arc," the cast of which is Betty Thompson as Jeanne d'Arc; Stanford Green as Charles; Ralph Cocking as Baudricourt; and William Clawges as the Herald. Jeanne Schlegel will sing "Mon Coeur S'ouvre à ta Voix" (My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice). In addition there will be songs for group singing, with the program closing with "La Marseillaise," the national anthem of France.

A group of Spanish students under the direction of June Laird will do typical folk dances of Spain, and other members of La Sociedad Cultural Espanola will present musical numbers.

German songs and folk dances will be featured in Der Deutsche Verein's contribution to the festival. President Henrietta Morrison and Dr. Gerrit Memming, sponsor, are arranging the German program.

Norman Telsey was elected president of Domino Club at the May 1 meeting for the 1947-1948 season. Assisting Mr. Telsey will be Violette Siebert, vice president; Esther Savidge, secretary; and Ralph Stoult, treasurer.

Miss Siebert will also act as program committee chairman. The other standing committee chairmen will be appointed by the executive committee.

New Members Added

Twenty-four new members were inducted into the club. They were David Bailey, Larry Bott, Betty Bratton, Beverly Bressler, Doris Channin, Thomas Clark, Joyce Costenbader, John Pausnaught, Margaret Fisher, Elmer Good, Donald Haller, Betty Jane Jones, Anna Lauver, Arthur Lockner, Dorothy McFarland, Hazel Moerder, James Nace, John Reside, Helen Seiber, Violette Siebert, Jack Snook, Ralph Stoult, Patricia Strickler, and William Walker.

Sigma Tau Dramatizes Spider Story by Aiken

"Spider, Spider," a one-act play built on a short story by Conrad Aiken, will be presented in Chapel on May 5, 6, 7, announced Jeanne Schlegel at the business session of Sigma Tau Delta, national English fraternity, which met in the Lower Social Room on Wednesday, April 23. The fraternity members will enact this subtle drama.

Featured on the program was Daniel Herrick who explained the importance of a good vocabulary for college students.

Freshmen Choose Barth As Advisor

Rev. Eugene H. Barth was chosen class advisor by the freshmen at their class meeting last Thursday. Other business discussed by Frank Bird, president, were plans for next year's fresh initiation and a campaign to help keep the campus clean.

Albrightian Interviews Anthony Carr And Discovers Why Girls Leave Home

By Dorothy Seisler

"Sorry, Miss, but the theater isn't open yet," said the burly usher at the Rajah Monday night as he blocked my entrance.

"Well, you see," I said, showing him my press card, "I'm a reporter from Albright College here to interview Tony Carr. He's an Albright alumnus, you know." I added as the big "A" on my forehead lit up.

"Hey, Joe!" said Shoulders turning to a confederate, "this game sez she'd better ask the manager's secretary." said Joe.

While Shoulders and Joe went to look for the manager's secretary, who went to look for the manager, who had stepped next door for a short one, this dame slipped backstage to interview Tony Carr.

Finally I cornered Tony in his dressing room. He was definitely dream stuff—dark hair and eyes and that smooth, leading-man look—the type that makes girls leave home.

"Before you ask me anything," said Tony, inviting me to sit down, "I'm going to say that the Kappas are the best frat at Albright." (He made me promise to print that, too.)

"Well, let's begin at the beginning," I said, ruthlessly business-like. "You were born Anthony Cagiano, lived in West Reading, and attended Albright College, graduating in 1944."

Tony nodded.

Friday Is Traditional Skunk Day

This week Dandy gives a great big roar for an Auburn-topped little lady, who is one of the most active lassies Dandy has ever seen—Eileen O'Neil.

"Einel" is best known, perhaps, for her The Albrightian activities. In her sophomore year she presided as news editor, moving up to the managing editorship in her junior year. Her senior year, Einel acted as editor-in-chief, turning out some of the finest issues ever to bear The Albrightian masthead.

Eileen is vice-president of both the Women's Senate and the Daywomen and is a Pat in good standing. She has been a member of both the Philosophy Club and Pi Gamma Mu for two years, IRC for three years, and active in Student Council her junior year.

Her senior year found her especially honored with a write-up in "Who's Who in American Colleges" and election to membership in Phi Delta Sigma, the alumnae sorority.

Being a redhead, Eileen has definite likes and dislikes. On her thumbs-up list are the Pittsburgh Pirates (her hometown, you know) and working on the paper Thursday nights. Onions go from Eileen to people with an over-emphasized opinion of themselves and a big barrel of them to eight o'clock chapels.

In her spare time, Eileen clips and saves newspaper headlines or works at the Reading Public Library. She likes to cook, too, and can whip up a pot of fudge in short order.

Although Einel is busy as can be, she still takes time to give motherly advice and aid to the embryo The Albrightian staff, to whom she has bequeathed her duties. Where would we be without her? Eileen's ready humor and competence in the face of catastrophes and dawning deadlines are proverbial, and it is with a deep bow of gratitude that Dandy salutes her dauntless spirit and unswerving loyalty.

When Soph Meets Greek

Prof. Clyde A. Harding

When I was an undergraduate in the last years of the twenties—a period once denominated by a happy phrasemaker, "The Era of Wonderful Nonsense"—it was traditional at my college for the freshmen and sophomores to prevent each other from attending their class banquets by any means short of homicide. In my freshman year four or five of us were captured in a sophomore raid on the dormitory, transported to the country, tied with taped knots to the uprights of a deserted henhouse, and abandoned to silence and the night. How we were rescued in time for the banquet by a pair of frightened state policemen makes a good story, but not so good as what happened when four of us were sheltered and aided the next year by a Greek wrestler.

Three other sophomores and I, not caring to undergo experiences similar to those of the previous year, decided on what seemed to be a fool-proof plan. Since the date and place of the banquet, which was to be held at a hotel in a nearby city, were a well-guarded sophomore secret, we decided to leave school after the last class on the day before the banquet, get a room in the hotel, and thus be there the next night for the banquet. So it was done—up to a point. After dinner we agreed to risk an excursion from the hotel to see a movie. After all, the banquet was the next night.

Returning from the movie, we had got within a half-block of the hotel before we noticed anything unusual. Then we saw them milling around in front of the hotel—freshmen! Then we stopped, turned and started back up the street—freshmen! Also across the street—freshmen! We hesitated, then darted up an alley in the middle of the block—uh huh, freshmen! We came back to the street, moved hesitantly a few yards toward the hotel, and, with a blind and frantic instinct, dashed into an ice cream-luncheonette store and took a booth.

We were not alone long. Quartets of freshmen moved in, gloating, to the booth behind us, to the booth in front of us, to booths across the aisle. The trap was set. They could

Mort Says

Senior Sendoffs Or the Customers Always Write

A good racket for seniors, particularly the ones who are still depressed from four years of good chapel programs, is writing best-selling stories for confession magazines. The first step in writing a confession story is to select a subject that is odd, uncouth, and totally revolting, or in other words preferred by feminine readers who slave over hot magazines instead of stoves. The subject necessarily must be something that embarrasses readers into finishing the story before complaining to the board of censors. Typical good themes are "The Sordid Life of Uncle Walter," "I've Got the Blues Without Any Booze" or possibly "I Gave My Thirteenth Wife Opium Because She Was a Dope." At any rate, the chosen subject cannot be anything that the average idiot would think of, so don't be average.

After selecting the theme, stalling paragraphs, and rearranging sentences in the well-practiced term paper method, it is time to distort the facts. If you can't think of anything witty offhand, make some vague allusion that no one can understand. Readers never want to admit that they do not get a joke, so they laugh anyway, thus saving you the trouble of thinking up a joke. Another important fact to remember is never to insult more than three persons per paragraph unless they are hopeless cases, but of course every paragraph won't be about faculty members.

The next and last step in writing a story is getting it published and collecting enough money for a cup of coffee and a roll. Some potential writers, move to Greenwich Village to sell their stories, while others prefer to lead normal lives. However, one of the following three things is a necessity in selling a story: (1) have a nephew who is a publisher; (2) have an uncle who is a publisher; (3) have a cousin who is a publisher. If you fall on all three of these counts, don't get discouraged; there's always the "Lost Weekend."

wait; the place must close sometime. We ordered something and french fries. I remember the french fries because we believed they would take longer than anything else on the menu. We needed time—time to make a successful plan in the face of overwhelming odds. A frontal attack would be gallant, of course, but also quixotic. All through the snail-pace eating of the french fries we consulted. What we evolved was pathetic, but it was all we could concoct; we would explain our plight to the waitress and appeal for aid. What kind, we couldn't imagine.

While ordering sundaes, we whispered our dilemma to her. She winked back, "I'll see what I can do," and disappeared to the kitchen. When she returned with the sundaes, she dropped a note in my lap. It read, "When you have eaten the sundaes, get up and pretend to leave. When you get opposite the kitchen door, go through quickly. George, the cook, will take care of you."

With blind faith in her and in George, we followed directions. We popped through the door so quickly that the freshmen who had fallen in before and behind us were caught flat-footed. On the other side of the door was George, all right, with the biggest butcher knife in his armory in his hand. After a pause, the freshmen started for the door after us; but when it swung open, George filled the breach. With a few ill-chosen expletives and commands supported by threats, gestures with the gleaming blade, he stopped the advance and repelled the foe. The door closed, and we were safe—in the kitchen.

But it was more than just a kitchen. In the wall opposite the door, as George explained, was the exit to a fire-escape that came down across the street from the side-entrance to our hotel. He outlined his plan:

Hearts And Flowers

Do you think it's the blinding spring sunshine? No. Maybe you think it's the light in his or her eyes? No. Or perhaps the beaming countenance of Prof. Green? Not of course, it could be the reflection of the sparkling depths of Selwyn Lake. But no—you're wrong again.

Want to know "what's up, doc"? Well, it's the overabundance of "cars" on campus, but not of the edible variety. That is everybody wants to get into the proverbial act and Albright College has become a veritable "Rock"-y Mountains, a rest home for southpaws. Acres of diamonds everywhere.

But enough of all this. What better time for recognition of the long-practiced custom of becoming engaged than spring? Betty Cusano started the ball rolling at Christmas-time and left a score of broken hearts behind her. The lucky boy is Eddie Kalbach, and the ring is the kind that every girl dreams of having. Anyone coming within speaking distance of Betty does so at his own risk or else sports dark glasses. About Christmas-time, too, a petite, dark-haired lass captured the heart of Johnny Vocum. She's Anne Sfinzas, and "Yoc" is a little on the lucky side himself.

Dottie Bennett will be married in June to a boy from North Carolina. His name? Joe Emmet. This semester Ferne Allen came back from vacation with a new sparkle in her eyes and a third-finger, left-hand to match. He's from Carlisle, too, and his name, strangely enough, is Mark Albright.

Peggy Walton has planned the traditional June wedding, and her husband-to-be is blond Art Brown. Elmer Davis' fiancée, Rose Schmidt, is the vivacious girl with the dark hair whom we've seen with Elmo so often. There will be a June wedding, too. Not to be outdone by its predecessors, Eugene Stoudt has popped the question, and the girl is Violet Erb.

Apparently Jersey-born Jerry Felter finds that Reading is a pretty wonderful place. His fiancée is a local girl, Ruth Stettler, whom we hope we'll see more often.

Our only regret is that The Albrightian comes out only once a week; otherwise we'd have scooped the Reading Times right out of circulation. Of course we're referring to the newest engagements on campus—that of Gloria Cardis and Ralph Miller. Gloria announced her betrothal at a tea at her home last Saturday afternoon.

The Albrightian wants to say to all of you, "Best of luck and may your future together make you as happy as you are now."

When he went off duty, about a half-hour later, he would brief the cop on the corner, a wrestling partner of his in the local athletic club; the cop would watch the freshmen; and, when the street near the fire-escape was clear, he would give us the sign. All we had to do was watch from the window and, when the cop's hand beckoned, make a dash for it. It was a plan as simple and beautiful as the architecture of George's Greek forbears. It was the work of an artist—as was his candy, which he insisted we sample to pass the time until he left.

The cop's hand fell. We burst through the door; banged down the fire-escape, which clanged, rattled, and groaned as it fell and the weights rose; dashed across the street; and whirled exultantly through the revolving door. Startled into awareness by the clamor of the fire-escape, the freshmen tried to cut us off, but they were too far away. They hit the curb as we hit the door. We were safe, for the rules forbade the pursuit entering the banquet hall.

Inside were a few other sophomores, cannier than we, from whom we learned that sophomore counter-intelligence had led the wrong date leak out to confuse the freshmen. It was comforting to know that, had

Home Ec Omelet

"Can that be the alarm I hear already?" That was the question of the day in the minds of the juniors at 5:15 last Tuesday morning. After acquiring pep and energy at a welcomed breakfast, which Miss Innis had prepared for us dorm girls, we headed for the Franklin Street Station where we met the remainder of our number. "All Aboard!" It was 6:53 and we were off to Philadelphia for another adventure in our field of learning. Some of us were wide awake and ready for that adventure; others just curled up and waited for the time to come.

We began our day at Murrell Dobbins Vocational Technical School at 8:45. Mr. J. Norwood Baker, Principal, greeted us and explained the entrance requirements, work, and purposes of a vocational school. We had a splendid guide, a girl who was a child-care major, who took us to the many departments and either explained or asked the respective teachers to explain their fields to us. These students spend half the day in classes and laboratory work of their chosen fields and the other half in academic classes. Their school day is one hour longer than that of the regular high school.

The nursery school was in full swing with many little boys and girls from two to four years old having their morning play period on the screened-roof playground. They were being watched by some of the child-care majors while others were preparing their lunch. In one of the foods laboratories a group was conducting a time motion study. Across the hall in the apartment preparations were being made for entertaining guests at lunch. Here a photographer of the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin was taking pictures.

Upon entering another hall we were greeted by the appetizing odors of the bakery. We then lost little time in finding our way to the faculty restaurant, where we were to have dinner. These meals are planned, prepared, and served by students desiring to enter this field. The future commercial artists fascinated us by their talents and striking posters that they had created. Our tour was not limited, however, to the home economics and art classes, for we found time to peep in the printing, machine, and wood working shops.

Our explorations of the school ended at 1:30 and we headed for a brief trip to South Street.

The juniors wish to thank the home economics department and the administration for making this and our informative New York trip possible.

At Your Service

Thelma Degler, and Philip "Pete" Evans, both sophomores, are now working part time in the bookstore. Thelma, a graduate of R.H.S., class of '45, is a chem. major. For efficient service, and correct change take your business to Thelma.

"Pete" Evans, the son of Prof. John Evans of Bern St., is a pre-med student. Before entering the service, he attended University of Pennsylvania, where he was a student of Japanese. While in the service, he was stationed in Korea. For your more technical Biology needs, see "Pete."

We been caught, our capture would have been due to the brilliant success of the counter-intelligence of our beloved class.

SKUNKERS READY TO BATTLE THIS FRIDAY Intramural Softball Loop Gets Rolling

APO's Upset Pi Taus, Take Lead; Kappas Flooded In Four Games

Albright's intramural softball loop snapped out of its first week's doldrums, brought on by rain and space difficulties, and rolled off five big ball games. The Pi Tau Beta club pried off the loop lid in the league opener a week earlier by crushing the Dorm, 33-6. Bill Miller's two circuit clouts helped Speedy Ray Chelius off to his initial win of the campaign.

The badly shaken Dorm outfit rallied the following Monday and were handed their initial win on a platter, 9-0, by the Daymen. The Daymen, unable to field a squad, were forced to forfeit this affair.

Pi Taus Lose

The A.P.O.'s stepped into the picture by upsetting the Pi Taus, 7-2. The Pi Taus, playing without a full contingent, were able to field only eight men. The A.P.O.'s took advantage of the gap in the Red and Black defense to put across their runs. Ray Chelius flipped a five-hitter for the Red and Black as he dropped his initial tilt. Irving Mull went the route for the A.P.O.'s.

The Zetas rolled into town last Tuesday as they bumped the Daymen, 7-1. Anxious to get in the win column, and fearful of an approaching thunderstorm, the Zeta boys rolled six men across the dish in the second frame. Bob Boland flipped this game as Coach Robert Moser's proteges absorbed their second shelling.

A.P.O.'s Bump Zetas

The A.P.O.'s made it two wins, for a clean slate, as they edged the Zetas, 9-8, on Thursday. The score was 8-8 going into the last frame when an eager Zeta picket dropped a can of corn out in center. Jumping George Morfogen scored on this miscue. Irv Mull again pitched the route for the winners while Bob Boland, Zeta twirler, took it on the chin.

Bouncing back after being upset by the Zetas the Pi Taus bumped the Daymen, 15-1, in a twilight game. It was Lefty Bruce Reber on the mound all the way for the Red and Black as he turned in a nifty six-hitter. Bill Hutchinson handled the mound chores for Coach Moser's Daymen.

Rain Hits Kappas

One of the crazy features of this new loop has been the inactivity of the favored Kappas. The Kappas have the dubious distinction of being rained out four times in a row. Needless to say Russ Guensch, Kappa pilot, is eager to roll but all the other clubs breathed a bit easier as the second week's battles came to a screeching halt.

Golfers Jolt West Chester for Win No. 1

Coach Paul Matten's golfers grabbed their initial success as they drubbed West Chester Teachers at West Chester by a score of 5 1/2 to 3 1/2. Representing our cats in the victory column were Funk, who defeated Acre of West Chester. Donits of Albright drubbed Sheppard of West Chester and jarring Johnny Yocum knocked off his future opponent 2-1. The other Lion victory was turned in by Les Pushman who out-pitched Herby of Chester. Paul Matten's divot diggers were meeting Ursinus at the Reading Country Club as this paper went to press. The summaries:

(AT WEST CHESTER)

Ellis, West Chester, defeated Dunlop, 4 and 3; Funk, Albright, defeated Acre, 4 and 3. Best ball, 14-14.

Donits, A, defeated Sheppard, 4 and 2; Yocum, A, defeated Cummitt, 2 and 1. Best ball, Albright, 3-0.

Pushman, A, defeated Herby, 1 up; Stump, WC, defeated Stevenson, 5 and 4; Best ball, West Chester, 2-1.

Tenniseers Chalk Up Fifth Catgut Win; Sweep Juniata Clean

What does America's Davis Cup Team have that Albright's "Bloom Cup Team" doesn't have? Before we begin to argue this point, let it be known that the Red and White netmen exterminated Juniata last Tuesday, 9 to 0, on the local courts. Holding the best record of all spring sports scheduled by Albright, the tennis team has now registered five victories in six matches. This shelling given the helpless Indians of Juniata is the outstanding win so far.

F. & M. Outruns Lions

Ossie Kriebel on the discus and Al Harnly's pole vaulting were the two other first places for our Lions. Bill Ianicelli, one man track team, paced the Dips.

Umbenhauer Breaks Ankle As Clouters Scalp Juniata, 14-3

The Lions blasted 13 runs in a mad eighth inning that was mixed with errors, hit batters, hits and a costly injury. Tuesday's game was the fourth win in seven starts for Le Van Smith's wranglers.

Albright took their first marker in the opening frame when Ervin bingled, Jim Delp played martyr, and Mook Guss' infield roller sent Jess in. Albright's remaining 13 tallies came in the "Roaring Eighth." Umbenhauer started the ball rolling with a single, Guss was safe on Jim Kaufmann's hoot of his roller, Eisenhart also juggled the pellet in the outfield and Shorty Umbenhauer trekked in from first on the play. Stew Beyerle's hoist to first was butterfingered by Bob Holsinger sending Mook over the pentagon. Jim Fromuth's poke moved Beyerle to third and Emmet Glass' drag but permitted Beyerle to dent the dish with Fromuth holding up at third. Jerry Pedota was nicked by a hurled horsehide, filling the bases and Clapperton's second bobble on George Baumgaertel's grasscutter sent Glass and Jim Fromuth across.

If there was any further doubt about the issue it was cleared up by Jesse Ervin's second "case of Wheaties" of the season. Three more runs checked in on his drive. However our eager Lions started a new rally. Umbenhauer strolled and stole second on his fateful slide which resulted in a broken ankle. Gerry Schaeffer, in for Ervin, moved to

P. U. Players Usher In Skunk Day; Both Sides Express Confidence

By Dave Voigt

Well, fans, in the immortal words of Caesar, "the dice are cast." By 7 p. m. this Friday evening someone's going to have possession of Horatio the Skunk. Both softball teams are jubilant and confident of success. Jean Schwartz, femme righthander, is sticking to her war plans laid down last week—"It's in the bag," was the only statement your reporter could get out of the gals' starting pitcher.

Over in the slugging fellows' camp the same confidence prevails. The lads are confident that they can resist the charms of the women and at the same time wield their maces with a gusto. Co-captains Ernie Kachline and George Morfogen have the following men on roster. The Pi Tau delegation includes, besides Co-captain Kachline, booming Bill Miller and Ken Faylor. The powerful Kappa contingent sent strongarmers George Frosovich and Bill Frantz ably backed up by Ron Riddolf.

Daymen Dispatch Four Hands

Representing the APO aggregation are Co-captain George Morfogen, Frank Vidinsky and Dick Gable. And pacing the Zeta entry are Elmo Davis, Lynn Brown and Johnny Patrician.

The Daymen announced cancellation of all pinchle games for that day. Like Paul Revere of yore, the minute men of "de club" tossed aside their pastebards and grabbed their warbells. To date only two of their men have been announced. Prexy Bill Walb named Bill Hutchinson and Robert Moser to don uniforms with the other two entries being announced after the next poker game.

Coach Robert Moser, in a press conference, shouted defiance at his feminine opponents. "Moser's 'mam-mies' have had their day," said the Daymen coach. "We'll win this one!"

World Series Atmosphere Prevails
Back in the female camp we find supreme, blissful confidence reigning. "The law of averages is in our favor," said third sacker Faye Sheets. "We lost our last two games by a slight margin and are due to win!"

The referees, Coach Harris and Prof. Khouri, are fully conscious of the strain resting on their decisions. "Shrewdidity is our watchword," announced Prof. Khouri. "Male contestants must field and bat with one hand only. We'll scurry for cover when the gals come up!"

So here's the setup, sports fans. A world series atmosphere will prevail over Theolog field this Friday. So be on hand for the fireworks—remember 4:30 p. m. Gas masks will be issued for hay fever addicts!

Greek Aid Stressed At I.R.C. Discussion

A panel discussion of the controversial question of aid to Greece was held as part of the regular monthly meeting of the IRC, Thurs., May 1. Dr. Milton Hamilton, Dr. F. Wilbur Gingrich, and Dr. John E. Jacobi were the members of the panel.

It was concluded that, in view of the proposal by Sen. Vandenberg that United States aid to Greece would be withdrawn in case the majority sentiment of the United Nations opposed it, our aid to Greece did not constitute a "by-pass" of the UNO. It was pointed out that the Greeks had suffered greatly from the war, that there was a decided political split, and that "in a sense, the Greeks were politically epileptic." Therefore, they are not ready for democracy as the Western nations know it. The chief objectives of American policy are the establishment of law and order and an attempt to aid the Greeks in improving their own economic conditions. Thus far, American policy has not been imperialistic.

The new officers of the club, Fred Wolf, president; David Voigt, vice-president; Lucy Smith, secretary; and Doris Downes, treasurer, were installed at the business meeting which preceded the panel discussion. The pledges to the club were inducted to full membership.

Bechtel Chosen Secretary In Sophomore Re-election

Mary Bechtel was elected secretary of the Class of 1949 at a meeting of the sophomores held last Thursday. A tie between Miss Bechtel and Kazuye Kiyono in the all-college election last month necessitated the election. Hops Guldin, newly elected sophomore prexy, presided at the meeting in the Merner-Pfeiffer Science Hall.

Muhlenberg Challenges College Youth

Last Friday evening, in a challenging speech to the Albrightians and Alumni attending the Pi Gamma Mu banquet at the Berkshire Hotel, Congressman Frederick H. Muhlenberg stressed the fact that in the hands of us, the youth, lies the future of the United States, that the college youth have the opportunities needed to bring a solution to world peace.

Speaking of the difference between a scientific and a philosophic approach to the solution of social problems, Congressman Muhlenberg pointed out that he had learned through his construction work in the war to approach Congressional problems in a scientific manner.

Turning to labor problems, Muhlenberg said that to achieve peace in this field we must develop for Americans a sense of security and a sense of recognition as an individual. He commented further that we must learn to think of the greatest good for the greatest number of people, trying to work for equal opportunity for all and special privileges for none.

In conclusion, Congressman Muhlenberg said we must have a United States in which people give their utmost for the good of our future.

Commencement Day Sunday, June 1st

In last week's The Albrightian a mistake was made concerning the date of Commencement Day. We wish to apologize and bring to your attention the correct date, Sunday, June 1.

Council Says:

At the regular Student Council meeting last Thursday, Warren Engle, Council treasurer, announced an increased balance of $317.60 in the treasury. President William Walb appointed Frank Bird, who was approved, in the place of Helen Ross, as chairman of the Social Committee. The replacement was made because Miss Ross will not be a member of Council next year.

Dave Voigt, in charge of a committee on awards for intramural sports, reported that individual awards can be secured at a very reasonable cost to the school. Coach Neal Harris is in favor of the plan for awards and will take up the matter with Dr. Harry V. Masters.

Council voted for members to determine opinions approving or disapproving the existence of the "Celebrities." A motion by Gerald Laucks to have a representative of the "Celebrities," preferably the leader, appear in the next meeting of Student Council was approved. This representative shall present the first-hand facts pertaining to the "Celebrities."

Absent from the meeting were Hops Guldin, sophomore, president; Betty Savage and Virginia Fox, daywomen; George Koehler, A.P.O.'s; Heber Yeagley, Pi Tau's; Miss Ross, P.A.T.'s; Ruth Homan and Jean Flickinger, Mu's; Prof. John W. Khouri and Dean Le Van Smith, faculty.

Moving-Up Day Next Tuesday

The traditional Moving Up Day services for Albright women will be held Tuesday, 4:30 p. m., in the College Chapel. All women are urged to attend this meaningful ceremony at which it is officially recognized that all the girls have completed a year of college work.

New freshmen have become oriented and are ready, with the sophomores and juniors, to move up and accept the responsibilities of the class above. Similarly, the seniors have completed their college career and are ready to assume the role of alumni. Each class turns over its responsibilities and privileges to the class below it.

All women will enter the Chapel where they will be seated according to their class. The Women's Choir, organized by Marjorie Christ, will sing college songs. Joy Cutler will then step out of her office to challenge Geraldine Wentzel, new president of Women's Student Senate, to her task for the coming year. The new presidents of the dorm and day councils, Marjorie Christ and Marion Gerberich, will receive their offices from the retiring presidents, Joan House and Agnes Snyder.

Then the new members of both councils will receive the robes of office from the old members. These members are: Dorm Council, Grace Miller, Lucy Smith, Joy Davis, Helen Sieber, Clea Rein, and Hazel Moerder; Day Council, Miriam Kramer, vice-president, Betty Berger, secretary, and Joyce Thompson, treasurer, plus the representatives of each class.

Der Deutsche Verein To Have Doggie Roast

Henrietta Morrison, the newly elected president of German Club, announced that the group will hold the annual doggie roast at Hampden Park this Thursday evening at 6:00 p. m. All those members who have paid their dues are invited to attend; guests will be charged an additional twenty-five cents. Dolores Reinhart, the new vice-president, will be in charge of the program.

Flickinger Announces WAA Representatives

Class representatives for the cabinet of the Women's Athletic Association have been announced by Jeanne Flickinger, president. Adele Boothroyd will act as the junior class representative, while Anna Lauer and Jane Roney will represent the sophomore and freshman classes respectively.

ALBRIGHTIAN INTERVIEWS

"Well then, how did all this actor business begin? Did you always want to be an actor?"

"I suppose I always had the idea in the back of my mind," Tony said, "but I never gave it any serious thought. At Albright I intended to be a doctor at first and then a lawyer. It was probably the plays I did in the Domino Club, especially 'The Warrior's Husband' that decided me."

"Did you go to New York immediately after graduation?"

"Not exactly. I studied drama a while under Paul and Betty Sands, worked a few months at the Parish, and then left for New York. While there, I continued my dramatic studies and did some work with 'Stage in Action' — a group sponsored by such people as Norman Corwin and Canada Lee — whose purpose was to dramatize present-day problems. After that I was with the American Theater Wing and performed for servicemen in hospitals."

"What do you plan to do after 'Dear Ruth'?" I queried as Tony was acquiring a beautiful suntan via makeup.

"Well, the show closes next week in New Haven, and after that I hope to work in summer stock."

When I asked him whether he preferred comedy to something heavier, Tony said that he enjoyed making people laugh but would rather do something more demanding.

As for hobbies — when he has time for them — he collects musical comedy records and confessed with a charming grin that he has always been a frustrated singer.

Concerning his ambitions, Tony explained, "I want to become an established actor on Broadway — not just a personality or flash in the pan."

I suddenly noticed that it was growing near curtain time and rather wistfully bade Tony good-bye, thanking him for being so obliging and promising to deliver the messages he gave me for his old friends at Albright.

Of course I stayed to see "Dear Ruth" and found it hilarious and smoothly done. When Tony first appeared on stage, the home folks gave him a hearty round of applause. They applauded even more after Tony proved with a convincing and polished performance that he had an excellent command of the comic medium.

As I was leaving, I passed Shoulters at the door.

"Hey, sis," he bellowed, "we found the manager, and he sez you can come in!"

I looked at him and smiled my sweetest smile. "You know, you're cute. Why don't you come to Albright?"
