SNOW STORM CAUSES SMALL ALUMNI RETURN

Those Who Returned Greeted By An Excellent Program of Week-End Activity

A. H. YOUNG, '08, ELECTED TRUSTEE REPRESENTATIVE

Although but a small number of alumni were able to return for the regular Mid-year Alumni Assembly, on Jan. 30-31, due to inclement weather, a most pleasant gathering was enjoyed by those who were fortunate enough to attend.

According to schedule, the business meeting was held at 4 p. m. on Friday, January 30. At that time they re-elected A. H. Young, '08, as their representative on the Trustee Board. During the regular supper hour they enjoyed their annual banquet which was served in the College dining room.

In addition to this, the alumni were kept busy by other activities which had been planned for the week end. The basketball games which were scheduled with Swarthmore, Temple and Wyomissing proved real thrillers. On Friday afternoon the girls' varsity lost an exciting game to the Wyomissing girls. On the same evening in a close fast game the boys' varsity defeated the Quakers from Swarthmore. On Saturday evening the varsity gave the Temple University team some stiff opposition, although they lost the game.

In spite of the fact that the cold and stormy weather interfered somewhat with the plans and expectations of the Committee on Arrangements, the Assembly was on the whole a success. The few who were able to get back had a most enjoyable time renewing acquaintanceships and attending the various events arranged by the Committee.

ALBRIGHT MEETS MUHLBERG IN TWO DEBATES

Affirmative Loses At Home—Negative Wins At Allentown

On Monday evening, February 2 the debating season was opened with the Albright affirmative opposing the Muhlenberg negative. Messrs Grumbling, Heil Gramley, Benfer and Wilkes represented Albright; Messrs Huddus, Koch, Ganzle and Underschoffer represented Muhlenberg. The question for debate was, resolved, that Congress should have the power by a two thirds vote to declare effective a law that has been declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court.

The debate was interesting. The affirmative excelled in facts, the negative in delivery and rebuttal. The judges decision was 2 to 1 in favor of the negative team.

On Wednesday evening, February 4 the Albright negative defeated the Muhlenburg affirmative at Allentown. The affirmative side was upheld by Messrs Rhoda, Shartell, (Continued on Page Three)

SPANISH CLUB ENJOYS INTERESTING PROGRAM

On Thursday afternoon, February 5, the Spanish Club was called to order by the President, Grace Snyder. After singing America and giving the salute to the Flag, in Spanish, the Secretary, Ruth Hetrick called the roll. Each member responded with a Spanish proverb. A program was rendered in Spanish: Current Events, Elizabeth Biddle; Sketch of the life of Cervantes, Ruth Hetrick; Solo, Violet Kinsinger; Dialogue, Russel Loucks and Charles Lehman; Song by Club.

TUCKER SMITH GIVES "Y'S" FOOD FOR THOUGHT

New York Y. M. C. A. Secretary Discusses Vocational Problems, Profit and Distribution

EMPHASIZES ADHERENCE TO CHRISTIAN PRINCIPLES

Albright was indeed fortunate in having the opportunity of hearing Tucker Smith, secretary of the Y. M. C. A. in New York University, and the man who is setting people to thinking on living lives which they have never before considered. This "real man with a real message" spoke before the combined "Y's on Tuesday evening, February 3, on the subject, "The Meaning of Jesus to Modern College Students".

He first told the story of his own life; of how his parents had held before him continually the ideal of success. They considered education, the choice of a good profession, and success the perfect life for their son. And he accordingly, set out to fulfill this scheme. But while in law school he was turned from this plan as a result of a short course in "The Social Teachings of Jesus."

Then Tucker Smith realized that he could not reconcile his idea of success with the rules of "seek ye first the rule of goodness and all these things shall be added unto you" or "happy is he who even fails in his own work, but is persecuted for My sake." Discovery also that "success had not made a successful world". Smith has chose to give up his law practice and try to offer Jesus' challenge to all college students. This challenge comes to all; to take a look at this carpenter, Jesus, and His way of living. And if this challenge is accepted lawyers will work for an equal distribution of foods, and in fact, all mankind will let mercy and compassion rule their lives instead of this ideal of success.

"We will all help to make a better or worse world," he says. "Not success first but the ideal of Jesus, the most practical ideal, and then all things shall be added unto you."

Wednesday morning, February 4, Tucker Smith again spoke to the student body on that great subject which seems to be his particular (Continued on Page Three)

MISS LUDWIG SENDS DIARY FROM ATLANTIC

Miss Anna Ludwig Former Albright Student Gives Events of Trip To Africa

Atlantic Ocean, Sat., Nov. 15, 1924. The great and notable day has come and gone. Many times have I gone over the gang plank, but never before with such dignity. With great importance did I hand over my passport and boat ticket to the officer for inspection before I stepped on the plank this time. Then with a wave of the hand and the following words: "These are all my visitors," I led the way to my state-room with about 15 of my school chums close behind. We were soon informed that the boat would not leave until to-morrow, so after a sight seeing trip over the ship we assembled in the music room and there held a farewell service consisting of music, prayers, and the quoting of scripture passages. Most of my friends left just before the 6 o'clock dinner bell rang. Mr. Kemptner got permission to have five extra guests for dinner, and so with his choice of four and my choice of one we had guests on board until about 8 o'clock this evening.

I am sure you will all be interested. (Continued on Page Three.)

ALBRIGHT TO COMPETE IN ORATORY

One Principal And One Alternate Speaker To Be Selected From Each Member School

ALBRIGHT TRY-OUT TO TAKE PLACE FEBRUARY 17TH

Up until four years ago Albright's public speaking contests were confined to her own Campus. At that time, however, she entered the field of intercollegiate debating. The next logical step, of course, was intercollegiate oratory. Hence, last year she joined the Eastern Intercollegiate Oratorical Union of Pennsylvania.

The membership of this union is composed of seven institutions: Ursinus, Gettysburg, Muhlenburg, Albright, Bucknell, Lafayette and F. and M. The membership fee is fifteen dollars.

This years contest will be held at F. and M. Saturday evening, February 28 at 8 p. m. The entries of (Continued on Page Three.)

Prof. V. C. Zener, Professor of Education, has been received into active membership by the University of Pennsylvania chapter of the Phi Delta Kappa national educational fraternity.

POLITICAL CLUB DISCUSSES THE PARIS AGREEMENT

Thursday evening, January 29, the Political Club devoted the major portion of its time to the discussion of the Paris Agreement. This discussion was opened by Ed. Harris. Messrs. Price, Miller, Hewitt and Newton Miller expressed opinions on the question.

ALBRIGHT BOYS WIN ONE--LOSE ONE--GIRLS SUFFER TWO DEFEATS

BOYS DEFEAT SWARTHMORE AND LOSE TO TEMPLE

Swarthmore Game Marked By Close Playing and Score—Give Temple Stiff Battle

Captain Glenn Raffensperger and his team-mates defeated the Little Quakers from Swarthmore in one of the prettiest exhibitions ever seen on the Albright floor on Friday evening, Jan. 30th, taking them over to the tune of 26-22.

The game was marked by a close score thruout, neither team holding the upper hand at any one time by more than three points until the last 10 minutes when Albright broke loose. Griggs started scoring for Albright by dropping in a neat field goal and a little later one point from the free throw line. After five minutes of play Swarthmore started scoring and led Coach Benfer's proteges a merry chase. At the end of ten minutes the score was 7-5 in favor of the visitors, at the end of the first period the score was 14-12 in Albright's favor; at the end of the first ten minutes of the second frame, the score stood nineteen all. Up to this point it was anybody's game. Then Albright broke loose and ran up seven points holding the visitors to three. The final score was 26-22 in favor of Albright. The game was featured by the stellar guarding of Hollenbaugh who time after time prevented scoring by his opponents and got the ball by out-dribbling his man.

Line-up:
Albright Griggs Forward Richards
Raffensperger Forward Bartlett
Zeller Center Price
Hollenbaugh Guard Evans
Wissler Guard Shane

Substitutions: Albright—Angle for Griggs; Swarthmore—Hearse for Evans, Baum for Bartlett, Ward for Richards.

Field Goals: Griggs, 2; Raffensperger, 2; Zeller, 4; Hollenbaugh, 1; Wissler, 2; Swarthmore—Evans, 1; Price, 2; Baum, 1; Bartlett, 1; Ward, 1.

Foul Goals: Griggs, 2; Zeller, 1; Wissler, 1; Price, 6; Bartlett, 2; Baum, 2.

ALBRIGHT GIRLS LOSE TO WYOMISSING AND URSINUS

Opening Games Show Teams Fighting Spirit

The girls opened their basketball season with a game on January 30 with Wyomissing High on the Albright floor. The game proved very interesting from the beginning, with both teams determined to win. At the end of the first half the score stood 24-18 in favor of the visiting team. In the second half the Albright team put up a better fight, although the game ended with a Wyomissing victory. The final score was 30-26. The line up was as follows:

Albright	Position	Wyomissing
Helm	R. Forward	Britton
Line	L. Forward	Buchanan
Benfer	Center	Lorah
McCurdy	S. Center	Taggart
Hangen	R. Guard	Putt
Bertolet	L. Guard	Lonigud

Field Goals: Britton, 11; Line, 9; Buchanan, 3; Herr, 2.

Fouls: Britton, 6; Line, 4; Buchanan, 1.

Substitutions: Albright—Herr for Helm, Helm for Bertolet; Wyomissing—Long for Buchanan.

Referee—Zellers.

The second game of the season was played at Ursinus, February 3. It also was a game lost to the Albright sextette, but was not without that "fight to win" spirit. Perhaps the biggest handicap for the Albright girls was the slippery floor, which prevented getting a footing. The score at the end of the first half stood 20-4 in favor of Ursinus. The final score was 35-7. The line up was as follows:

Albright	Position	Ursinus
Herr	R. Forward	Cornog
Line	L. Forward	Leo

MISS E. A. GARLACH ENTERTAINS LUTHERAN STUDENTS

On Thursday afternoon, February 5, the girls of the Lutheran Group were entertained at tea by Miss Garlach, their leader. The number of girls in the group is ten, and they take an active interest in the affairs of the Lutheran collegiate organizations.

During this social and business hour, each girl promised to make a gingham dress for a child in a newly opened Mission in the Virginia mountains.

COMMENT

Again the roll-call of America's colleges is marshalled to summary in a supplement published with this issue. Again the story told is one of swift and stirring advance. Eighty-three of the Nation's 600 colleges and universities now have 245,248 students enrolled for full-time work. This is an increase of 15,299 since the academic year of 1923-24. The rate of growth—nearly 6 1/2 per cent—is faster, proportionately, than the growth of the whole population of the United States. Think what that means! Fifteen thousand students, are enough in themselves to make a small city. But one cannot consider these boys and girls alone. Behind them are fifteen thousand American families. And it is fair to assume, in the large, that every one of them, less than a generation ago, stood wholly remote from the possibility of being able to send a child to college. Yet now, in a single year's increment of the enrollment-list, fifteen thousand of their sons and daughters enter into the gates and the abounding opportunities of higher education.

The rising enrollments of our colleges in general are seen in their most dramatic form in the records of our largest institutions. In 1910 the Transcrite's census showed only two institutions from coast to coast having more than 5000 full-time students—Columbia and the University of Minnesota. Today there are eighteen. Again, the ten largest universities of 1910 had a combined enrollment of less than 43,000; today they have more than 101,000. The mastery of the tasks of administration and educational organization which such vast numbers of students impose is a challenge to the greatest executive talent and qualities of leadership, mental and spiritual, which the United States is capable of producing. In the eager entrance of thousands upon thousands of new students each year into the colleges of the land is the Nation's greatest single promise of a noble and worthy future. May our educational leaders look well to the trust committed them!—Boston Transcript.

(Editor's Note: The above "Comment" was sent to us by, and is printed in our editorial column upon request of, Mr. Fred G. Livingood, '22, now completing a graduate course at Harvard.)

COLLEGE THINKING

Some students have evinced a certain unwillingness to meet new facts. While this may be in part due to the spirit of traditionalism that pervades the school, college students' minds should be open to conviction. This does not mean to excuse vacillation or ignorance of conditions. Nor, on the other hand, does it mean that one must become a Bolshevik if some perhaps radical ideas are brought to the fore. It does mean that the college student should weigh what he hears, take out the good, leave the bad, then stand firm in his convictions.

As students, let us be thinkers and doers, not afraid to look things in the face. Respect the other fellow's opinion. That can be done without sacrificing your own.

Campus Chatter

Good day, everybody! Rather springlike weather we've been having, these few weeks past. All except under foot, of course. Did you see Mr. Stoner trying to shovel away the rivers last week? He had to, you know, because many of the students can't swim, and the danger of having to do so was quite imminent.

Yes, that reminds the Parrot that he's had quite a few good laughs lately, all on account of this difficulty in navigating the Campus. Terrestrial animals are always more or less awkward when placed in aquatic surroundings, and the Albright students are no exception to the rule. Moreover, the conditions of locomotion are not only aquatic, but polar. There seems to be, under the rivers, nothing but an ice bottom.

Oh, yes, there are a few spots where one can put his feet on solid ground. There at the studio door, where McCurdy and Johnnie always stand after meals the ice is worn pretty well away. Mary and Dubs and Caroline and Dale have the spot over by Dr. Bowman's house in pretty good condition, too. But elsewhere it is as we said. To keep his balance, one must go along as if he were swimming instead of walking.

So, together with the weather, and this big musical production, "Springtime", we're almost beginning to think it's time for Commencement. Yes indeed, this "Springtime" certainly had the professional springy atmosphere. For the springy part, there was the dancing. Truly you can't imagine anything more lithe than the show girl's dance performed by some of Albright's fair students. And as for the professional part, why Steltz was the ardent lover, and if you wouldn't call him professional, well, what would you call him?

Although the springtime urge seems to be the most powerful influence on the campus at present (note the budding cases, also—Kermit Smith and Rosalie Walter), yet by persistent investigation, your Parrot has been able to discover a few more casual factors that are steadily working on the student constitution. There have been the class games. They have formed a fairly interesting diversion for the long idle evenings of this late winter time. There has really been quite a good deal of excitement engendered by them. Janet yells a lot when the seniors play, and Marg always gives the juniors her full support. Among the sophomore girls the spirit hasn't been so pronounced, but Grace Snyder cheers for their team, because she is their class cousin, you know. The freshmen, like all freshmen, are always out in full force to back their team. The novelty hasn't yet worn off. And the freshmen team is showing the result of this support. Ray Freshmen!

Another powerful influence which has been making itself felt even more forcefully than at the time of the Parrot's last writing, when he merely mentioned it, is the spell of the Black Cats. The followers of this animal of dire foreboding seem to be making their presence in Main Building quite obvious. They have succeeded in attracting the attention of Brother, Getz, for he asked one evening in a terror-stricken voice, "Say, will you please tell me what the Black Cats are?" You should make a charm against them, Mr. Getz. It's the only way to be safe.

As for the other activities that the Parrot has discovered, these last two weeks—well, they don't amount to so much. Some of the "buggy" people at the College have been putting a little time on such minor affairs as classes, Speculum work and Bulletin reporting. But, we are glad to say, it is only a few of us who have allowed such trifles to bother us, and the major portion of the student body is still safe and happy.

There was one slight casualty that we almost forgot, it's true. Tucker Smith was here, at the news columns will tell you, and for awhile we were afraid that he would turn Albright into a sock-knitting community. The affair turned out satisfactorily, however, for all that happened was the beginning of a mild stream of thought among the Y "attendees". Surely this can do no harm to Albright's treasured traditions.

Parrot asks your pardon if his tongue's been sharp. The spring weather makes him feel fresh. He'll give you some genuine made-to-order gossip by the next time.

Eccentrix

Class basketball is under way. The seniors and yearlings are trailing with the juniors next and the sophs leading. According to advance dope, many stars were to be seen in action, but the only stars seen were those seen by the players themselves.

"Springtime" has come; at least all indications point that way. The weather has moderated, and every one worked hard for its success.

Rain sent down by the Jupiter Pluvius of Albright (the sophs) has temporarily ceased, pending further prayers from the freshmen for rain.

During the Temple-Albright game, several students were almost convinced that the game was played according to the Marquis of Queensbury rules.

The main points which most of the textbooks used this semester emphasized are pencil points.

We hope that looking at and studying cross-word puzzles will not make people cross-eyed.

: Who's Who At Albright :

PHYLLIS MARIE BICHER

A good worker, an athlete, (Phil jumped center for the girl's basketball team until illness prevented), a good pal, in short, an all around good sport, that's Phil.

Phil has been prominent also in debating. She is a member of the Themisian team, and you just ask a Neo or Excelsior debater how he likes to get up against her in a debate, especially in rebuttal. Phil has a knack of seizing an opponent's argument, tearing it to pieces and generally demolishing it. We hand you due honor as a debater, Phil.

We must not get the impression, however, that debating is all Phil can do. It isn't. Her dramatic ability has been demonstrated a number of times. Her latest bit of acting was to be seen in "Springtime", in which you'll agree she carried out the part of the mercurial wife to perfection.

Phil's executive ability is being used in her present position as president of the Themisian Literary Society. She also deserves the credit for the successful minstrel presented in a recent meeting of that society. We have heard it rumored that Phil intends to continue her education at a school of oratory after she leaves Albright. We feel sure that this is a field in which she will succeed.

MILLARD KELLER DIETZ

The busiest man at Albright—Well, that's a little strong, and could never be true as long as Dr. Gobbie is here, but we'll all admit that Dietz does his share of work around the school. For instance, he is in charge of Albright's book room, and that is no small job to manage. It certainly requires a great deal of time and patience to get the students started in their semester's work.

Salesmanship is not the only one of Dietz's activities. He is a member of the Male Glee Club, church choir, is the President of the Y. M. C. A., and, with all of these duties still finds time to be a "Sheik". Yes, he's a real sheik, girls, but, careful there! There isn't a ghost of a chance for you, for his choice never varies, it's the same yesterday, today, and—if present indications are true—forever. Here's luck to you, Millard. The Bulletin is wishing the nicest charge, the coziest paragonage, and the girl of your dreams for you when you leave Albright.

ALBRIGHT MEETS MUHLENBERG IN TWO DEBATES

Knittle and Henrich; the negative by Messrs. Dale Gramley, Henninger, Hewitt and Price.

Both teams presented good arguments. Albright, it was apparent, had the better presentation and connected argument. In the rebuttal, also, the Albright debaters had the advantage time after time refuting and effective argument. The decision was 2 to 1 in favor of the Albright team.

AT TEA TO MRS. C. A. BOWMAN

A glowing fire
In a cheerful room,
And the whirling snow on the lawn;
The dancing flames
With their tinge of blue,
Like the leap of a startled fawn.

The fairy dreams
With the shadows dance,
And the winds with their ceaseless
moan;
The cup of tea
With its wealth of cheer,
And the comfort that's all your own.

The light of blue
By the mantle place,
When the twilight is stealing in;
The glowing coals,
And the murm'ring tones,
And the cobwebby dreams they spin.

The cheerful talk
And the merry smiles,
In the flickering flames bright glow;
It's nice to sit
By a fire and dream,
When the world is adrift with snow.

MISS LUDWIG SENDS DIARY

ed to know something about my first meal on the boat. Since there are only 12 second class passengers we have one long table which seats all of us. The first difficulty I encountered was to move my chair to the table; but after a vain effort to do so I discovered that it was fastened to the floor. I shall probably find out later why this should be necessary. The napkins were snugly folded up and stuck in the tumbler in fanlike fashion, almost too pretty to be disturbed. Behind us stood three eager, dark-faced, white-clad stewards ready to serve us whatever we chose from a menu of about 12 different varieties. I was very glad that I had managed to sit between two older missionaries, for when the boy held before us the menu card hooked on to a fork I should very likely have taken it and handed it to the one nearest to me instead of pointing to the food desired. Then too had I been served first I might have taken the dessert spoon to eat my soup or the fish knife to spread my bread. But now my friends the first few hours of living on board a ship are past history, and I shall tell you to-morrow just how I got into my bed hitched up so close to the ceiling, and also concerning my departure from New York.

each college shall consist of one principal and one alternate. Three prizes shall be awarded; the first, thirty dollars; the second, twenty; the third, ten dollars.

The winners of this contest, will in so far as it is now ascertainable, compete with the Western Intercollegiate Oratorical Union of Pennsylvania, at Harrisburg. The victors shall contend in the Interdivisional Oratorical Contest at Jefferson College. The final contest will be national and will be held near Chicago.

Albright will have her try-out for the F. and M. contest, Tuesday evening, February 17. Competition in the try-out is restricted to matriculated students who are pursuing undergraduate work for their first degree from the institution. The oration used at the try-out may be used at the contest if it does not exceed eighteen hundred words.

It is urged that both faculty and students generously support this new movement at Albright.

BOYS DEFEAT SWARTHMORE—
LOSE TO TEMPLE

Temple 27—Albright 15

After taking Swarthmore's scalp on Friday evening the Red and White basketballers took on to the fast traveling Temple quintet on Saturday evening, Jan. 31st in the Albright cage and lost 27-15.

From the start Temple took the lead and held it till the final whistle. At half time the score stood 18—7 in the visitors' favor; at the end of the game the score stood 27-15. The score, however, does not reveal anything concerning the game put up by Albright. The Temple combination has been cleaning everything so far, having an exceptionally fast and rangy team, but was given a tough battle by the home team. For the Red and White Griggs and Raffensperger played fine games while the work of Simms and Thorn stood out for Temple.

Line-up:

Albright	Forward	Temple
Griggs	Forward	Stak
Raffensperger	Forward	Thorn
Zeller	Center	Jepson
Hollenbaugh	Guard	Shain
Wissler	Guard	Simms

Substitutions: Albright—Griggs for Zeller; Angle for Griggs, Garrett for Angle, Henninger for Griggs, Brown for Hollenbaugh, Derr for Wissler; Temple—Lynch for Shain, Reese for Jepson, Cratey for Stak.

Field Goals: Griggs, 1; Angle, 1; Raffensperger, 1; Zeller, 1; Wissler, 1; Shain, 1; Lynch, 1; Simms, 4; Thorn, 3; Stak, 2.

Foul Goals: Griggs, 1; Angle, 1; Raffensperger, 1; Hollenbaugh, 1; Wissler, 1; Shain, 2; Simms, 1; Thorn 1; Stak, 1.

Time of halves: 20 minutes. Referee: Zinn.

hobby, "Christ and Modern Industrialism".

Mr. Smith states that there are certain very fundamental inconsistencies in our industrial system and that these conditions must be made impossible if we wish to lead men to Jesus. We must seek for every man supreme good will—love, life and the greatest possible development and realize that the greatest men are those who serve.

Tucker maintains that the chief function of industry today is to gain profit. This plays upon the side of a man that Jesus does not wish. It is opposed to the giving side. Man must put away the "Law of the Jungle" and live Jesus' law not only on Sunday but every day.

The present profit motive system creates an unequal distribution of goods, false system of rewards, premium of rickety, and the desire "to get all you can as long as you can". Its companion, the competitive system, assumes that there is better work done when men work against each other. And if these systems are right Jesus is wrong. Both principles cannot stand—one must be labeled fanatical and the other accepted. And which will you accept? Is the unanswered question Mr. Smith has left with us all.

The morning discussion of Industry was resumed after supper Wednesday evening. The main topics discussed were: (1) Why Christ's ideal of service and the profit motive cannot be reconciled. (2) Is the laborer living up to Christ's principles? (3) Is this doctrine akin to socialism? (4) Will substitution of trusts and productive corporations remedy conditions?

Mr. Smith closed the discussion by stating that he has unlimited faith in human beings. His purpose in coming here was to place a question mark in each student's path and cause him to think the matter out. As for himself, he said, "I have proved that Jesus' principle works and I ask each student here to give this question careful consideration." If we, as educated men and women, the leaders of this new world, want to reform the present system of industrialism we must, according to Mr. Smith, "seek first His rule of goodness and all the rest will be added unto you".

OUR FACULTY

LYDIA MOYER

Quiet, modest, unassuming and sympathetic are but a few of the many qualities that can be ascribed to Miss Moyer.

Her motherly attitude towards the girls has won for her many friends. Ever ready to advise and comfort, she is one upon whom you can safely rely.

Miss Moyer is the type of an individual who does not let her left hand know what her right hand does. In her characteristic manner she is continually helping someone. She serves in such a manner that the service is often unobserved by many people.

She is a graduate of Spring Garden Institute of Philadelphia. Before coming to Albright, she painted pictures and paintings for private interests. Her talent as an artist is a true gift of nature. Her whole heart and soul is poured forth in all of her paintings.

As an instructor in the Art department, she very creditably holds her position. All alumni members and students of Albright feel that no individual will ever be able to take the place of Miss Moyer, not only in the work of the Art department, but also in their hearts.

ANNIVERSARY ORATOR

your business, which is getting ahead in the world. First take a look at the man who wonders whether it is worthwhile to try, and then at the six big servants that take his bidding.

These six servants, like everything else in this world, can be well used or badly used. You can make of each of them an excuse for not doing anything. You can find in each of them the thought servant, a good reason for starting at once an argument to free yourself from all doubt and dread.

For instance, this is how the wrong kind of a young man uses the six servant words. He says: "What is the use, life is so short? Why should I worry myself to death? When I am dead and buried what difference will it make? How can a man get a start in the present world of fighting competition? Where could I find an opening worthy of my talents? Who would appreciate me if I did try?"

Many have the wrong kind of a thinking brain that utilizes the six servant words, finding in each a reason for inactivity. Used in that way, the six words are like six flunkies lounging in the hall of some worthless nobleman, standing around doing nothing, while he does nothing.

A different kind of a mind makes a different use of these six words in this way: "What others have done I can do. Why should I not succeed where others have succeeded? When you have youth and health what excuse is there for failure? How can a man look the world in the face unless he at least tries? Where there is a will there is a way. Who can fail if he refuses to include the word failure in his vocabulary?"

Byron wrote, "Who never climbs, as rarely falls." The right kind of a young man, or old man, would rather climb and fall and, if must be, break his neck than have it said he never tried to climb at all. For a broken neck, literally or figuratively speaking, is far better than idle life and the contempt of others.

Due to the illness of Dr. J. L. Fluck the morning service in the local Reformed Church Sunday, Feb. 8th was supplied by Rev. H. Welker and the evening service by Rev. Morgan Peters.

At a recent meeting of the borough council the resignation of Borough Constable, Harry Anspach was received, and an ordinance was passed regulating the removal of snow from the sidewalks.

Miss Violet Kinsinger, of the Albright Music Department rendered several vocal selections at a meeting of the Myerstown Woman's Club held Monday evening, Feb. 9th at the home of Mrs. S. P. Beekey. She was accompanied at the piano by Miss Mary Schultz also of Albright College.

The Myerstown High School Boys played a quintet from Albright College on Friday, February 6, due to the cancellation of Shillington High School.

MINISTERIAL STUDENTS
VISIT SCHUYLKILL

The ministerial students of the Junior and Senior classes spent a pleasant afternoon and evening as guests of Schuylkill Theological Seminary, Wednesday, February 11. The program included addresses by Bishop Breyfogle, Dr. Theel and Rev. J. A. Heck and an informal discussion on theology and Schuylkill as an Evangelical training school for ministers.

The trip to Reading was enjoyed by Messrs Oswald, C. T. Miller, Hewett, Price and Wilkes. The men were given a royal reception by the students of the college, including a fine evening meal in the dining room.

Y. W. C. A. MET FEBRUARY 10TH

On Tuesday evening, February 10th, the Y. W. C. A. met in Mohn Hall reception room. The topic was India, and the leader, Arline Herr, gave a fine talk on that subject, emphasizing the caste system as one of the great evils of India. A short program added to the interest of the meeting. Violet Kinsinger delighted all with a vocal solo, and Mary Shultz with a piano solo.

The service closed with the Y. W. benediction.

Dear Editor:

I have been observing student life ever since I came into College. I have been disappointed in some respects with student life, but on the whole I have reason to believe that most students are sympathetic with the idea that a fourfold life is essential to good character building, and for a successful and full life, a one hundred percent life.

We come to Albright with the thought that we are entering a Christian institution and felt that way until we are here some time and hear that phrase, "Albright College is a Christian Institution", used lightly and sneered at so often that many of us soon think that it is a joke. Let us ask ourselves this question. Whose fault is it if this College is not what we expect it to be? Is it the fault of the faculty, or are we, students, alumni, and friends of the College mostly at fault? We must not forget that all these have a great part in making an ideal institution. You will, some of you, ask how we, alumni and friends help in the making of an institution. It is amazing to note the influence, both good and bad, an alumnus or friend of an institution may have upon the students. So much for that. There are a few other things I would have you think about, but there is one in particular. I am realizing it more every day of my student life and in contact with the problems of other schools.

What I really want us to think about is the "Brim Full" life. Why go through College with the idea of only developing one side or two of life and some even all the way three, letting the most important one, the religious, go? Since we are given the divine gift, "Life" why not live it to the brim? Another thing to think about. Do we do it?

Finally, an important problem we are facing is our general attitude, our attitude toward our studies, toward certain regulations made by the faculty, toward those who carry out their moral obligations. All these attitudes help to form a "Brim Full" life. Yes, I know it is a hard life but give me a one hundred percent man and I'll move thousands. Are we finding the way God goes and then, going that way?

Let us think about these problems and then let our convictions be guided by the Golden Rule.

Sincerely,

INTERESTED.
