The opening of the 1927-28 college year was officially ushered in by the first chapel assembly of the year, last Wednesday, Sept. 19th. President C. A. Bowman, in charge of the exercises made a short address of welcome to the incoming freshmen as well as the old students and faculty members. At this time he announced that Dr. Weber had been engaged to head the department of Social Sciences, and that Dr. Charles of F. and M. would be Professor of Physics.

Rev. Wilkes, of Baltimore was then introduced to lead the devotional exercises. The customary opening address was given by Dr. Fluck, Professor of Psychology and Ethics and also of Bible, replacing Prof. Keen who is out at North-Central in Illinois as professor of this last department. Dr. Fluck, in an intensely inspiring and interesting discourse spoke of the changing relations between faculty and students which have been effected during the last few years. The wide gulf which so often exists between the two should be eliminated, he said, and the two, instead of being antagonistic forces should become supplements of each other. This he pointed out is one of the great advantages of the small colleges, which is everywhere being recognized.

After all the student and faculty members are humans alike, and there

JUNIOR CLASS BANQUET HELD AT CHEF'S PLACE

Beautiful Night? Good Eats, Fine
Program All Unite To Make Class
Affair A Great Success

Last Friday evening a large truck pulled up in front of Mohn Hall and the Junior Class were off for their annual banquet. Last year, instead of the usual formal affair they had the same kind of informal affair which was so well enjoyed this year.

It was a beautiful night and the open truck filled with straw afforded every advantage for moon gazing and astronomical observations. But that wasn't the purpose.

They were bound for Chef's Place and arrived there safely. First on the program was the banquet, consisting of chicken and waffles and all that goes with it. The food sure disappeared. Then when everyone was satisfied as far as their appetite was concerned, Dr. Sottery, faculty advisor and chaperone, made his little speech which started the after-dinner program.

The girls had prepared an impromptu program and there the fun began. Everyone entered into the program with the spirit that has characterized the class since its matriculation; even "Pat" Clemens did his solo dancing. Solos, duets, both vocal and instrumental, helped to make the program a big success. And then, too, there were the games for everybody.

Then the ride home. That's always the best part of a straw ride and this was no exception. What is so nice as a moonlight night in September?

SENIORS APPRECIATIVE REFLECT MORRIS PRES.

Members of '28 Again Choose "Red"
To Preside Over Their Affairs
For Rest of Career

PLAN FOR RECEPTION

The Senior class recently bestowed upon its most popular and hard-working member one of the greatest honors that any class can award an individual, when it elected him president of the class for the second consecutive time. "Red" had served as president during his Junior year also.

In appreciation of the efficient manner in which he performed his duties, versatile and complicated as they were, which merely served to prove the mettle of their popular leader, the Seniors voted him back into office by an almost unanimous vote. Morris, in addition to his incumbency as class president has taken an active part in almost every line of extra-curricular activity on the campus. These include the Y. M. C. A. presidency, glee club membership, and management, also membership in the Red and White Quartet, art editor of the 1928 Speculum, and Literary Society activities.

To complete the roster of class officers, Paul Wissler was elected vice president, Betty Bittle secretary, and Warren Wadsworth treasurer.

After the election of officers the class decided to hold the annual Senior reception on the coming Monday night which would allow an interval of one week between this and the Faculty reception, according to custom.

DESTINY OF MOHN MEMORIAL DETERMINED

Funds Originally Intended For Piano
To Be Placed On Interest To Award Music Prizes

At last the destiny of the Mohn Memorial Fund seems to have been determined. The history of the fund can be read in the 1928 Speculum in case anyone is not familiar with the project.

A new plan was suggested at commencement time by the Alumni of the college in their business meeting as to the advisability of finding a more suitable memorial than the several in view. The piano, of course, was voted a good idea, but the arrangement for placing books of a musical nature in an alcove in the library to Mrs. Mohn's memory received little or no consideration. Then a new thought appeared. Why not create a bank account that would draw enough interest each year to make possible the presentation of two music prizes in piano and voice, of ten dollars each. This suggestion met unanimous approval, being most de-

"Y" DOGGIE ROAST IS WARM RECEPTION TO NEW STUDENTS

GOOD EATS—SOLIS—GAMES!

Held Primarily To Help New Students
Get Acquainted—Hood Does
Hero Act

Another splendid evening has passed. What we looked forward to with much anticipation and anxiety has now become history. It was the annual "doggie roast" in honour of the Freshman class.

At seven fifteen last Saturday night the students and friends as well as members of the faculty assembled on the athletic field where a large bonfire had been kindled. Soon the field was well illuminated, and many happy faces appeared on the scene.

The students entered heartily into the singing of many well-known songs, including the "College Medley." The tumult of song having died down and quiet again being restored, Glenn Morris, and May Cooper, presidents of the Y. M. and Y. W. respectively, gave short but interesting speeches in which they welcomed all the students, new and old, to the college.

Then, as the fire died down, the bayonets were loaded with "doggies" and the roasting began. There was

FACULTY HOSTS AT FINE RECEPTION STUDENT BODY

First Official Social Function of Year
Proves Enjoyable Event To Great Crowd—Fine Entertainment
Provided

The first of the receptions which form the major part of the social events at the opening of the school year was given last Monday evening in the Mohn Hall Reception Hall by the college faculty. The event was well patronized by the students and it can be averred with confidence that all present had a royal time.

The reception opened as is the custom with the introduction of the students to the members of the faculty and their families. This task being disposed with, Dr. Bowman in a short speech welcomed the students not only to the college, but into the home of the faculty members as well. The Doctor rejected his usual witticisms which helped to break the ice for a very sociable time during the remainder of the evening. By way of entertainment, the talent of various members of the faculty were used. Mrs. Welker re-

SENIOR RECEPTION ON MONDAY NIGHT

On Monday night, according to annual custom, the Senior class will hold a reception for the student body and the faculty. Details of the event have not yet been worked out fully, but the Seniors are planning to make it one of the finest of its kind in recent years, which assures the student body that there will be a genuine attraction in Mohn Hall reception hall that night. It is scheduled for eight o'clock.

Every student, whether residing in the dorms or in the town should make it a point to be there and participate in a good time and a fine social evening. All are cordially invited.

GREAT TIME AT BERKSHIRE

The Freshman class after first being frustrated in their attempt to hold a banquet at the Berkshire Hotel, Reading, decided secretly to hold it Thursday, Sept. 15th at the Penn Harris Hotel at Harrisburg.

The party consisting of about thirty members of the Freshman class, made the journey by bus and partly by "Whit" Lynn's Ford, which broke down a short distance east of Hershey. This accident forced its occupants, seven in number, and including the toastmaster Mr. Lynn to "bum" their way to the big city.

The "gang" arrived at 8 o'clock and in a few minutes the dinner was served in a private dining room reserved for the occasion. After the dinner was over Mr. Lynn toastmaster, introduced the "chaps" Professor and Mrs. Hamilton, each of whom gave a short address. Following these the members of the party became better acquainted with each other by giving individual speeches, some being very amusing, others sedate.

During the banquet, election of officers took place with the following results: President Sam Lynn, Vice President, Miss Eva Laucks, Secy., Miss — Gross and Treas., Mr. Wm.

MRS. BOWMAN HOST TO FACULTY WOMEN

Serves Tea In Home of Mrs.
Hamilton

On Saturday, September 17th, the women of the faculty were delightfully entertained at the President's home by Mrs. C. A. Bowman.

The affair was a tea, from three to five, given in honor of Mrs. Milton Hamilton. Mrs. Bowman poured; she was assisted by the guest of honor. The rooms were fittingly decorated for the occasion with fall flowers and bitter-sweet.

WELLERMAN OUT TO REPEAT OVER M'BERG

Boys In Fine Spirits As First Game of Season Draws Close At Hand.
Determination Evident

BEN'S MUHLENBERG GRIDDERS
WILL BE OUT FOR REVENGE

Coach Weller Has Plenty of Good
Men Which Promise to Make Names
For Themselves And Alma Mater

Tomorrow the Red and White prys the lid of the 1927 football season open when it will encounter the powerful hordes of "Haps" Benfer's Muhlenberg collegians at Allentown. The latter, still smarting from the humiliation of their totally unexpected defeat at the hands of the Wellermen last season will be out in full array for sweet revenge.

On the other hand, the Albright gridmen are equally determined to repeat last year's 30-6 victory, when running wild against their ancient foe and antagonist which usually is such a pestiferous thorn in its side, the local hoves won their second victory in eleven starts. There was nothing "flukey" in last year's game. Albright proved itself the Benferites' superior in all departments of the game, and have a good chance to repeat, for the law of averages is not against it.

One of the most pleasing features which augurs well for the morrow is the fine spirit and moral state of the Red and White. There is no doubt but that the spirit which has been manifested on the practice field all year is much better than it has been for years. The boys are working hard with peace and accord, and are cooperating for one common end—to beat Muhlenberg again. Realizing that this task will be far from a set-up the boys have been giving their best, and promise to do it tomorrow.

Whereas last year only one Borrelli had to be checked, now there will

SOPHS WEND JOYOUS WAY TO CLASS BANQUET

After Debates Crowd Into Small Bus
For Annville—Addressed By Prof.
Zener and Wissler

On Thursday of last week the Sophomores wended their way to the Lutheran Church, where they assembled for their trip to Chef's Place at Annville for the second banquet of their College career.

After an unprevailing argument over buses they finally crowded into a small one and began that memorable trip. Having arrived there they mixed up and it was found that there were exactly thirteen couples, including Prof. and Mrs. Zener, who acted as chaps. If you don't believe that they had a good time just ask Wray.

The eats were exceedingly fine and disappeared rapidly, especially the waffles. After the meal Prof. Zener gave a fine talk concerning the benefits derived from such a gathering and expressed his desire that it would be continued throughout the succeeding years. This speech was followed by a pleasing talk given by "Mike" Wissler, Senior Vice President and representative of that class. He brought greetings of the Seniors to their class-cousins. They then returned to the college happy and refreshed.

Mrs. Naylor—How did you get the black eye, my boy?
Rowdy—Fightin'.

Mrs. Naylor—Certainly feel sorry for a little boy with a black eye.
Rowdy—Then go home and feel sorry for your own boy. He's got two of 'em.

THIS WEEK

Who's The Real Loser?
When A Frosh Needs A Friend.
An Auspicious Start.
A Social Need.

The monster spectacle of two huskies socking each other on the chin last night, attracting almost a larger crowd than was ever assembled for any other purpose, with only a few exceptions, shows that after all we, despite our highly touted civilization, we are only a few jumps ahead of our flesh eating ancestors.

In order to satiate its ancient desire to see someone get beat up (when did we not enjoy seeing two kids or dogs fight?) almost two hundred thousand citizens of the nation claiming the highest civilization paid about two million dollars to witness a slugging exhibition between two heavyweights who in probably any other occupation would be worth several dollars a day, despite reports of one or both reading Shakespeare and Santayana, and mastering Gibbon's "Fall and Decline of the Roman Empire."

Which causes us to wonder after all who was the real loser. Tunney may have lost his title, or Dempsey his prestige, but will not a cool million suffice for that? What is a black eye, or even a title compared to two million which is lost to society? An amount which would have seen three or four thousand worthy boys through college this year? When we consider that the present public school system was started through five dollars which Benjamin Franklin gave to a town committee to start a library when they wanted a bell, we can realize the studenduous potentialities in two million dollars.

This is not cynicism. Neither is it attempted revolt for the sake of revolt. It is not a slap at any sport. The only trouble is that these spectacles have ceased to be sports. At least clean upright sport.

That brings us to the milk in the cocoanut. Prize fighting is so directly in the hands of crooks and degenerates, that without some form of governmental supervision, it would fall of its own weight. To give it any semblance of decency, those who are engaged in it professionally as fighters or promoters are more than glad to accept state regulation and supervision. Without it, the business would perish. Football does not need it. Baseball gets along without it. Tennis and golf do not require it. Prize fighting would be stuck in its own muck and mire, but for the sustaining hand of the state.

Are we in a moral slump?

Ten years ago the freshman was initiated into campus life by one grand brawl. He was treated as a savage by savages, and came to the natural conclusion that a freshman at college was the least desirable of mankind. By the time the freshman attended his first class, he was broken in body and spirit.

Mark how all this is changing in the few short years of our college course. Today the freshman seems to be the most popular person on the college campus. He is welcomed by the president and the deans. The churches make him feel at home and the fraternities prize his friendship.

What a more receptive mind the new student is in by the gentle and sincere introduction to college today than by that of ten years ago! Instead of carrying a bruise in his heart, he has thankfulness toward his newly made home. Instead of being a jackass to perform for the others' amusement, he is made a prince in a strange principality.

The sight of a college swinging into action for a new year was a spectacle delightful to witness. It seems to be one of the most auspicious beginnings in the memory of any of the students in the college at the present time. Compared to last year's morbid opening week or two, which to all intents and purposes resembled a funeral more than the celebration of exultant youth returning to a common rendez-vous for fun and learning, from the affects of which the school hardly seemed to recover all year, despite the brilliant success of the football team, the 1927-28 opening is a revelation. Coming at the time it did, or rather under the circumstances which accompanied this revival, it is all the more striking. Students came back to find some of their most valuable equipment, including books, rugs, furniture, and a host of miscellaneous items gone, lost during the summer alterations, despite the efforts of the administration to prevent the same. Although these events are regrettable, there is no use crying over spilt milk.

It is a good spirit, and augurs well for the coming year.

Both the Y-Doggie roast, at least up to the time that mob psychology had the chance to go into effect, and the faculty reception demonstrated a social weakness. It is entirely possible that in a college where mental and physical attainments are emphasized that the social phase can be neglected. During the past several years, social events have been gradually decreasing whereas the present trend is to have them increase. For this phase of college life is constantly receiving more emphasis. Social poise is rapidly becoming an imperative necessity.

Instead of eliminating the faculty reception, which unconfirmed rumors say may be done next year, not only should it be continued, but several other official ones should be inaugurated. Last year the Junior Prom died a natural death, and unfortunately exigencies prevented any substitutes. Nor is this the only recent evidence of the fall and decline of our social life. It is true that the faculty reception is usually stiff, formal, and perfunctory. But it should not be thus. It certainly is not the faculty's idea or doing. It must be then as Cassius said: "Tis not in our stars, but in ourselves, dear Brutus, that we are underlings." No, the king is not to blame this time.

THE MAN WHO WILL STAY

A thorough survey of the fraternity journals, in an endeavor to find what type of freshman is being most widely sought for by the various organizations, reveals the fact that the football star, the moneyed youth, the handsome chap, the "most popular in high school" type, and all the traditional favorites are no longer in the ascendancy. The new favorite who is taking the place of the old is The Man Who Will Stay Four Years.

WELCOME, LITERARY SOCIETY OPENING!

Tonight the Literary Societies will swing into action and should if we can place any confidence in their announcements. It will be one more chance for these organizations to turn over new leaves and give a little more hope for their continued existence. Last year almost marked the end of their enviable career, and but for a few faithful souls would be keeping company with the Political, Science, and Speaker's Clubs.

Last Friday night brought the first disappointment. Not so much that the older students minded it, for they have long since become used to postponements, but to the newer men and women it was a misfortune.

The Literary Societies are no longer a force on our campus, and it is only a matter of time until they will become completely inactive. We are confronted with a condition and we must face it knowing full well that no longer can we expect men and women to spend time in an organization that altho it has near to a hundred members is not attractive enough to draw more than an average attendance of nine or ten persons.

ALBRIGHT ETHICS

Some time ago someone wondered just what constituted our Alma Mater's code of ethics, and it was almost impossible to explain clearly and concisely the exact meaning thereof.

We want to say that honor is held above all things; that we insist upon fair play, squareness in all things either of an athletic nature or in the classroom—and that means we abhor a sneak or a cheat; that we feel our classmates our equals; that we approve of the fellow who is a good sportsman, who overlooks our little faults to see the good in us; that we are altruistic and generous; that we have high standards of scholarship; and that we are keenly desirous of doing our best for our school, our schoolmates, and ourselves.

Remember these things and see to it that you can measure up to all of them. We want every Albrightian to understand our code, and when you understand it—and count it your own, then you will really and truly belong to Albright.

Of course, the laggards and the sneaks are sure to creep in among us, and this points to another duty that falls to our lot. There is a roommate, or someone across the hall, who seems to forget once in a while the ambition that brought him to school. Just remind him of his job, and suggest that his work should be done. Passing the good work along always makes us feel better and more like studying ourselves. And not only there can we find an outlet for our good will. It always takes two to make a fight! If we do not play square, maybe the other fellow neglect our studies, etc., etc. are more likely to try it, also.

Here is something, then, to cut out and tack above your desk: "Albright's Ethics"

"A just sense of honor; a spirit of fair play whether on the athletic field, in the classroom or on the campus; a spirit which calls for equality for everyone; an abstract, indomitable feeling of sportsmanship showing itself at all times; a generous toleration which surmounts little differences; a concept of altruism and generosity; an ideal of true scholarship, and a keen desire for service—these constitute Albright's code of Ethics."

sirable, while the piano prospect was relegated to second place, the still in favor.

The Memorial Fund Committee, consisting now of Virginia Zener, chairlady, and Mae Cooper, associate, has looked over its accounts and finds the Alumni the heaviest contributors. The fund, as it stands, lacks over one hundred dollars to purchase a piano, while only thirty-eight dollars and fifty-three cents is necessary to complete the five hundred dollars. This amount can be furnished thru the Music Committee, and on the whole the prizes would be a more fitting memorial to Mrs. Mohn than a piano, for this way her name would be mentioned every subsequent commencement time from the platform, while anything else one would soon forget.

Therefore, the Committee will, in two or three weeks, announce the conditions under which the prizes will be offered. This will be something worth while to which the pupils of the Music Department can look forward.

Prof. Walton Tells About Eventful Tour Thru West

Drives "Chevvy" For Total Distance of 1545 Miles in 51 Days For Grand Average of 157 Miles Daily. With Family. Enjoys Good Roads With Only Few Exceptions—Escapes All Traces of Accident and Illness

FINDS BEAUTIES OF THE COUNTRY ALLURING

Prof. Walton believes in "Seeing America First." In an extended sight seeing trip covering the greater portions of the western part of the United States, the popular professor of Biology and Geology traveled a total distance of well over five thousand miles in a period which extended almost two months.

Knowing that Prof. Walton had much that would be of a great interest to the student body, the Bulletin is here printing his own account of the alluring trip:

"On August the 25th, Mrs. Walton, Dick, Peggy Jane, and I returned from a 51 days' tour through the middle West, during which time we travelled 5245 miles through 13 states and Canada. As the trip was made for the purpose of "seeing and visiting" rather than merely "going," we did not attempt to "make time"—our daily average of only 157 miles for the actual days of driving would indicate this.

"We left home on July 5th, in our Chevy Touring, and drove West for 1545 miles through Chambersburg, Bedford, Cumberland, Wheeling, Columbus, Indianapolis, St. Louis, Kansas City, Topeka, Manhattan and Salina to Bison, Kansas, where we visited for three weeks with my sister and her family (Rev. and Mrs. P. D. Womeldorf), and enjoyed to the full the royal hospitality and generosity of a Kansas community. While there we roamed 1400 miles through Kansas and Eastern Colorado; going as far West as Colorado Springs, the Garden of the Gods, and Pikes Peak. On our homeward jaunt of 2300 miles we drove north-east through Lincoln, Omaha, Des Moines, Davenport and Chicago; thence eastward through Gary, South Bend and Maumee, and along Lake Erie shore from Sandusky through Cleveland and Erie to Buffalo and Niagara Falls. After visiting Queenstown, Ontario, we followed the "Honey-Moon Trail" to Rochester, and turning South thru the Finger Lakes region we accompanied the dreamy Susquehanna along its scenic trail through the mountainous grandeur of Pennsylvania from Athens to Harrisburg, and home through the familiar beauties of our own Lebanon Valley.

"A continuous rolling ribbon of excellent concrete, brick and macadam pavement carried us west to Topeka and east from Davenport. The sand and gravel roads of Kansas and Nebraska were also in fine condition, and afforded pleasant and easy driving. The only poor roads encountered on the entire trip were the "gumbo" mud roads of Kansas in which we were marooned 70 miles from our destination one night at ten-thirty during a thunderstorm; and the mud roads of Iowa through which we plowed, and over whose ruins we rumbled, for two days during and following a rain. (Iowa is now in the midst of a program of concrete road construction which will, in a few years, provide an excellent system of through trails, over a beautiful rolling landscape.)

"A few of the interesting features which challenged our attention enroute were: the mountains of Pennsylvania with the expanses of picturesque landscape they unrolled before us; the long straight stretches of sun-drenched roads over the level reaches of Mid-West plains which offer a new experience indeed for the motorist accustomed to the shaded lanes of traffic which penetrate the sylvan sanctuaries of our Pennsylvania hills; the sacrificial mounds of the ancient Mound Dwellers in Illinois along the right-of-way of the "Father of Waters"; the sand bags lying along the roads in the Mississippi "bottoms"—a mute evidence of man's heroic attempt to check the ravagings of a raging torrent, the white crosses along the highways in Ohio, which mark the spots of fatal auto accidents, and which utter their silent appeal to the passing motorist; the limitless expanse of treeless prairies of Kansas covered with their carpet of virgin buffalo grass, studded with yucca and sage, and dotted with herds of grazing cattle; the giant harvesting combines devouring their way through the wheat fields of the west; the extensive irrigation systems feeding the sugar-beet fields of Western Kansas and Eastern Colorado; the impressive magnitude of Pikes Peak and the Southern Rockies; the Palmer School of Chiropractic and their radio broadcasting station WOC at Davenport; the Sand Hills of Southwest Kansas, and the Sand Dunes along the Southern shore of Lake Michigan; the majestic falls and gorges of the Niagara River; and the delicate beauty and artistic grandeur of Watkin's Glen. And to this wealth of natural attractions must be added man's contribution of beautiful cities, and excellent systems of through routes and trail markers which enable the traveller to find his way in ease through "foreign fields"—a tribute to the organized Motor Clubs.

"Throughout our entire route, we found the prominent service stations, tourist homes and hotels attractively clean, and the managers anxious for the welfare and comfort of the traveller; and the general public generous and cordial towards strangers. From such a ramble (enjoyed without a single day's illness, and without a mishap—not even a puncture) we have brought back a wealth of impressions, experiences and pictures which now constitute the "memory" after the trip is done.

"The student body itself seemed very enthusiastic and full of ginger, snap and pep, as well as anxious to get started. The chapel was comfortably filled, and to all appearances, the student body is larger this year than last year. Especially is this true of the dormitory students, where the increase is quite marked. The number of day students is practically the same. The outlook for the coming year, on the whole is very promising.

The names of the students who have matriculated since the last edition of the Bulletin together with those omitted before are not available at this date, although Dr. Goble will have all of them available for the next edition. However, a conservative estimate places this number at about fifty. But as all had not yet registered as the Bulletin went to press, the total number was not available.

should be no discrepancy. We went on to pledge in behalf of the faculty the greatest service which they could render to the students, and emphasized the faculty's great moral obligation to the students.

The student body itself seemed very enthusiastic and full of ginger, snap and pep, as well as anxious to get started. The chapel was comfortably filled, and to all appearances, the student body is larger this year than last year. Especially is this true of the dormitory students, where the increase is quite marked. The number of day students is practically the same. The outlook for the coming year, on the whole is very promising.

Y. W. MAKES NEW GIRLS FEEL AT HOME

The Y. W. C. A. is aiding the new girls as much as possible to become better acquainted at Albright, and on Monday night they made a special effort to make them feel at home. A "Newspaper Party" was given—that is a party at which each girl writes an article about herself, just as it would appear in a newspaper. Various other games were played and refreshments were served.

: Campus Chatter :

Hello Folks, Parrot is back. But then so is the piano tuner, and Mr. Toobold, so there isn't so much excitement in the fact that Parrot has arrived on the scene. The connection—well, Mr. Toobold can chatter so fast, and the piano tuner make so much noise, that Parrot won't have a chance anyway. Oh Pshaw! What is the use of existing when there is so much competition?

The Juniors had a banquet the other night and they had the best fun. Parrot peeped in and it actually made him envious. You see somebody was kind enough to provide one stray straw for him on the way to Chef's, but he just couldn't have any of that chicken or those waffles. They might have given him one bit. "Hodge" Miles, "Benny" Wilkes and "Pat" Clemens ate all the extras ones, so Parrot had to be content with just a glimpse of them.

Hot pups! And the doggie roast is a thing of the past. Guinther got injured in the fracas, but a smile from Clara fixed that up to perfection and Parrot hears it is all O. K. now.

Parrot hears something else, too. 'Tis this—the freshmen like Albright. Parrot heard one of them exclaim, "we have more fun, why today there were three Victorias going at once, and you should have heard the commotion." Another reason he knows they are getting acclimated is, he heard them practicing the Alma Mater all afternoon—"Come Cheer Alma Mater, etc.," then silence for a while. Pretty soon, "Come Cheer Alma Mater, etc.," and the good old song again. Go on freshmen, we like your zeal. It speaks well for the rest of the year. They looked cute with their seven pig-tails, too, didn't they?

Now Prince Flory will come to class on time, and Prof. Zener will be minus the worry of wondering whether he is still in school. Parrot is laughing, too, and the laugh has spread behind his ears. You see it is this way—Parrot heard the boys had a matron to make their beds, so they have to arise and be about their classwork. Great? Well, I should hope so. No more missing half their lessons, no more flying trips across the campus, no more bewhiskered faces and missing collar buttons.

New case, new case. Parrot saw it—yessirree! No more is Harry Wray a bashful bachelor, 'cause he has a girl—she is pretty, and her name is Norma. You can guess the rest. And so we start the new year with a biff bang. Lots of enthusiasm, lots of pep, and a new case.

And somebody says, (somebody who is taking Dr. Chislett's nov. course) wait—just wait until we see those ten little dime novels of our mind. Then we'll have something that appeals to the intellect. Oh boy! What have we here?

But Parrot is tired of chattering. His feathers are drooping, and he must stop for a rest. Besides, we have another week ahead—but only a Parrot knows what that means.

dered a very pleasing piano solo, which was followed by a splendid reading by Mrs. Landis. Miss Strasser sang two very beautiful solos which were enjoyed immensely by her listeners.

But the best part of the affair was left till the last. All that can be said is that the eats were fine. This can be verified by the fact that very little remained of the copious supply that was laid by for the occasion.

And of course the affair closed with the Alma Mater and a Boom Yell for the Faculty.

Become Acquainted With The Library; Here Are Some Valuable Suggestions For All

To Be Kept Open All Day To Assist Students With Various Needs—Unabridged Dictionary Contains Wealth Of Information About Many Subjects. Books Are Well Classified

OF SPECIAL BENEFIT TO NEW STUDENTS

For the benefit especially of new students, a few suggestions are offered with regard to the use and helpfulness of the college library. As there are some of the other students who have not used the library as much as they might have done, these notes may be of equal value to them.

First, let it be understood that the books, magazines, and pamphlets in the library are meant to assist students in the various subjects of the college curriculum and supplant the same. The library will be open practically all day with the librarian or one of the assistants present to help students. Until the privilege is abused, students may go to the shelves and examine and select books for themselves.

It may be that not all students know that an unabridged dictionary is the first place to go to for information. In the General Vocabulary, besides the spelling, pronunciation, definitions and synonyms, are included nouns in mythology, fiction, proverbs, etc. There is also a Gazetteer of the World, a Biographical dictionary, and a reference History of the World. In fact this large volume contains the pith and essence of a reference library. Everyone should bear in mind that the more recent words are to be found in the Addenda directly preceding the General Vocabulary.

More extended information will be found in the Reference Book in the first case to the right as one goes into the library. Here are the New Americana, the Britannica, and other encyclopedias, as well as Bible dictionaries and concordances, cyclopedias of quotations and various other reference works.

On a shelf in the hall between the library and the reading room is a complete file in bound volumes of the Readers' Guide to Periodical Literature. This is a big help in many ways if students will learn its proper use. The library staff will be glad to explain its use to all who are not familiar with it. The files of many leading magazines are arranged alphabetically on the lower two shelves throughout the entire library room.

Nearly all the books of fiction will be found in the first case to the left as one enters the library. In three of the new cases will be found the books reserved by the professors for their various departments. In one of these cases (No. 51) are several shelves of selected books of a miscellaneous character among which students may find some of especial interest to them.

For the present, students will use the old catalog in the hall. This is in two parts: One by author, and one by title and subject. A new catalog and filing cabinet will replace, before long, the old one. Then all books that have been recataloged will be arranged on the shelves according to their respective classes.

All new students should make it their aim to become well acquainted with the library and use it as frequently as possible because there is much information stored up on those books, which can be obtained only by reading them.

ALUMNI RETURN IN ROLE OF VISITORS

Last week three members of last year's graduating class and one of the year before gave the undergrads a pleasant surprise when they dropped in very unexpectedly. They are Arline Herr, Katy Miller and Homer Heisley, who is attending Yale Divinity School this year, and Paul Price '26, who is attending Schuykill Theological Seminary. Price was recently elected editor of the first annual that school is publishing.

COMPLIMENTS OF*BANBURY BAKING COMPANY*NEW MEMBERS JOIN C. E. AT FIRST MEETING

Amid pattering rain, drops President Kneller opened the first meeting of the College Christian Endeavor. Due to the incessant rain fall the girls were not able to be present and to participate in the first meeting of the year.

A few hymns were sung and prayers were offered by Morris and Keifer, after which President Kneller asked for propositions for membership. Seven names were proposed and accepted: Messrs. Lewis, Todd, Witt, Williams, Reynolds, Griffiths, and White.

President Kneller then gave a brief address welcoming the new members into the society and the old members back again. He also stated the purpose and aim of the society this year: To set forth the life of Jesus as an example and try to live as like Him as possible and to study his life in order to make this possible.

CLARA BOW DEMONSTRATES REMARKABLE VERSATILITY

Clara Bow plays her first mother role in "Children of Divorce," Frank Lloyd's new Paramount picture now playing at the Myerstown Theatre. She found the part fascinating and was very much impressed by the opportunities for dramatic expression it offered.

"Here is my chance for something different," the sylvan little red-head earnestly states. "I'm not tired of being 'the flapper of the screen.' I always want to remain young and full of life and laughs, but I also want to show audiences that Clara Bow isn't stereotyped—that she can sigh as well as smile."

"Metropolis" the giant Paramount—UFA special will be on view at the Myerstown Theatre next week.

-: Poets' Corner :-*CELEBRITIES

The toast of the town today,
And the road tomorrow;
Such is the way of life
With its joy and sorrow.

Let those who are mad for fame
This one thought remember;
Hemispheres praise one day,
And the next, an ember.

Is all that is left of you
Who were petted, fêted;
Jostled from your high perch
You are then berated.

Yet fame is the flame that paints
With a lucid finger,
Highways where you must march,
And you dare not linger.

But when you have reached the peak
Of your high desires,
Glorious in the warmth
Of a love that tires.

Remember the open road
Where the wild-birds call;
Leaves that have crimson turned
With the coming Fall.

For soon you will join the hosts
Who are marching past;
Losing yourself, as they,
In the shadows cast.

The toast of the town today,
And the road tomorrow;
Such is the way of life
With its joy and sorrow.

—Blanche McCauley.

Soft moon glowing
Thru the pinetops all round thee!
Fountain sparkling

'Cross the distant, silent lea.
Calling always,
Silence only answers me—
My heart's longing
Vain forever more to be.

: Who's Who At Albright :*MAY COOPER

I would like to introduce to you, Miss May Cooper, a member of the Senior Class of '28, and a splendid all-round girl. We, who have known her for three years, know that she is a good sport and full of fun, even though she does seem very quiet and reserved.

May is president of the Y. W. this year, and all indications are that she is going to be a very efficient one. She was also a delegate to the Eagles Mere Y. W. and Y. M. Convention last summer, and has served two years on the Y. W. Cabinet. She belongs, too, to the Women's Student Government Council, and for two years has been a member of the Girls Glee Club. So you can see that she has not been idle despite her seeming quietness.

But May has other interests besides her fun, her books and her various activities. One of the members of the class of '27 seemed to find her as nice as we girls have found her. So there is nothing strange at all in the fact that the name of "Snyder" possesses a great attraction for this blue-eyed young lady.

Best of luck May, thru the year, and thru the others that are to come, and we are hoping that success will always crown your efforts.

also an abundance of marshmallows, apples, and buns which can be shown by the fact that even the "Mighty" Weller was stalled for the first time since his arrival at Albright, a number of years ago.

After every one had his fill, the old standby "three deep" was played, which was followed by a number of other games, including bull in the ring; pom, pom pulaway; farmer in the dale; and the jolly miller. Although everybody entered heartily into the games no noses were broken. However many slipped on the wet grass, but this necessitated no inconvenience except when "Doggie" did the "hero act" when in the process of a game, a young lady fell for him, or rather in front of him. The evening and the roast was enjoyed by all and was considered one of the best in the history of the college. The success of the event was due to the untiring efforts of the committees headed by Leon Hood and Clara Wilkes.

Glosser. As the banquet progressed new acquaintances were formed and the party got more "pep". At about 11:00 o'clock it was necessary to adjourn, as our time was limited.

Those members who were stranded at Harrisburg due to the breaking down of "Whitely" Lynn's ford, voluntarily decided to hike to Myerstown, hoping to receive lifts from passing motorists.

An enjoyable evening was spent by all, but on returning to school the boys were sadly disappointed because they did not receive the "DUCKING" that they had long looked forward to.

'Y' CABINET RETREAT REVEALS MANY PROBLEMS

On Saturday morning the Old Canal, a little west of Myerstown was the scene of a Y. M. C. A. Cabinet retreat, the first cabinet meeting of the new school year.

Accompanied by Prof. Zener, the faculty advisor, the cabinet went into lengthy discussion concerning the campus problems which it expects to deal with within the next year, and tried to formulate plans by which the problems might either be cured or at least alleviated to some extent.

It is expected that the "Y" Cabinet shall ask the chapel program committee for permission to have charge of one Chapel period a week, preferably Friday. This had been in effect during the latter part of last year and proved very inspiring and helpful.

The problem of cribbing during exams was also discussed, and although no definite plan was accepted, some rather tentative outline was laid out, the result of which will be ascertained later on.

Garrison Wilkes the Vice President has charge of all the programs for the year and although he as yet does not have all of the programs formulated, he has some very fine speakers listed. The topics that will be handled are of a wide variety covering the moral, social, and international spheres.

DR. FLUCK PREACHES AT COLLEGE CHURCH SERVICES

Despite the plentiful downfall of rain on Sunday evening a few found their way to the first services of the school year in the College Church, which were conducted by Dr. Fluck. The sermon brought by Dr. Fluck in such a fine and impressive style touched a very vital problem. With the subject "Wayside Altars" he stressed the importance of reserving our powers for some definite and useful activity. "Do not offer yourself on every altar." With a few fine examples he showed how great lives had been ones of reserved energies and specialization. Dissipation of energy leads to failure. "This is the day of specialists" he said. This advice he applied to the vocational, the social and moral, and the religious life.

At the present time, no definite successor to Rev. Keer has been announced, although at a board meeting on Tuesday night the matter was discussed, and in all probability some definite satisfactory arrangement will be made in the near future regarding a permanent pastorate at the local college church.

be two. For the famous Nick's kid brother, highly touted as his elder's equal will be his running mate in the back field, along with Dickert, who was a cause of all kinds of trouble for three years.

For the locals, Captain Frock, Loucks, Asper, Reisinger, Enright, Lynn, Weaver, Brown, and Wissler, veterans of last year will all see service on the line, with several other boys sure to see plenty of action. In the backfield will be seen Garrett, Clemens, Abbott, Leidy, Graham, Perry, and the two Hughes will hold down the backfield berths.

were sorry to learn that Miss Heffing who was elected to this office last year would be unable to return until next semester.

At the same meeting the girls also decided to hold some kind of an entertainment the Friday evening before the Lebanon Valley football game, which makes the night of this pre-game attraction November 19th. This should prove to be quite an interesting innovation, although the exact nature of the entertainment has not as yet been definitely determined.

Frater Ed. Harris, '27 likewise is attending Schuylkill Seminary.

Frater Homer Heisley '27, visited the Fraternity, last Monday and Tuesday. He is to enter Yale Divinity School next week, where he will start work for the B. D. degree.

Frater Paul Hartranft '27 is teaching in the Schuylkill Haven High School.

Brother Harry Klingeman '29 is discontinuing his work at Albright for the coming term.

A foreigner was rushing madly down the street when he was grabbed by a policeman. "Here, you mustn't race about like that," said the latter. "What's your name?"

"Je ne comprends pas," gasped the foreigner, as he tried to wriggle himself free from the constable's grasp. "Je ne comprends pas."

"Steady, steady," said the policeman, pulling out his notebook. "How d'you spell it?"
