Ground Breaking Ceremony To Initiate New Gymnasium

The new physical education building will be started next week at the ground breaking ceremonies on Thursday morning, November 2 at 11 o'clock. Many dignitaries of Reading and Albright will attend.

Dr. Charles Kachel, secretary of the Board of Trustees, will give the main address. Dr. Harry V. Masters will also give a short talk.

The actual ground breaking will be done by President Masters, representing Albright College; Judge Frederick A. Marx, representing the Trustees and Building Committee; Dr. Kachel, representative of the church; Ray Schlegel, president of the college Student Council, in behalf of the Albright students; Fred Howard, president of the Alumni Association, representing the Alumni; George Bollman, chairman of the Athletic Council, representing his group; and Sidney Kline, president of the Berks County Trust, in behalf of the community.

Dr. Warren Klein, President Emeritus of Albright College, will offer a prayer. The Alma Mater will be sung at the end of the ceremony. All participants will wear academic garb.

It is hoped that all students will attend the service. They will assemble under class banners held by the presidents of the classes. Jay Shenk of Reading, senior; Vincent Gentile of Philadelphia, junior; Edward Oberly of Shillington, sophomore; and David Keller of Bellefonte, freshman.

There will be no chapel for that day. In case of rain all the service except the actual ground breaking will be held in Union Hall.

November 2 is also Albright's Charter Day.

The gymnasium which is the only part of the building to be built at the present time will measure 114 x 160 feet and have capacity for 3400 students. The building will face North 13th Street.

It was expected that the entire project would cost the college $700,000 which was pledged in several drives in the community, county, and alumni drives. However, due to increased cost of building materials the first goal was not enough to cover construction of the entire physical education and field house plant. The funds for the rest of the building will be raised by personal campaigning.

Donators of a share, $150, or more will have their names engraved on a scroll of honor to be erected in the new building. Students who pledged $50 also will have their names on a similar

Council to Discuss Saturday Classes; Proposed Constitution Reconsidered

Discussion of Saturday morning classes and student participation on the special faculty curriculum committee highlighted the meeting of Student Council held last Tuesday. The proposed Council constitution was discussed for the first time since last May.

Vincent Gentile, on behalf of certain members of the junior class, made a motion that a committee be appointed to investigate the possibility of doing away with Saturday classes. He pointed out that many colleges do not schedule classes on that day. Prof. Clyde Harding stated that a study made by the administration had indicated that there was no practical way of abolishing Saturday classes, even though such a procedure would have certain advantages which the faculty recognizes.

Jay Shenk, senior class president, made a motion that Council investigate the possibility of having student opinion expressed on matters relating to changes in the college curriculum. Prof. Harding reported that a specially-appointed faculty committee has just about completed its recommendations for curriculum revisions. However, he said that, although the final choices must be made by the faculty and administration, the expression of student opinion would be worthwhile.

FTA to Entertain Reading High Club

The Future Teachers of America Chapter of Albright College will be host to the F.T.A. Club of Reading High School on Thursday, November 2 in the Lower Social Room. A panel for discussion will consist of three members from the Reading High group and three from Albright. Discussion will center upon such topics as extra-curricular activities, discipline, what kind of teacher the student prefers, and what kind of student the teachers prefer.

The meeting is open to everyone. Refreshments will be served following the discussion.

The Future Teachers will also sponsor campus observance of American Education Week from November 6 to 11. The general theme for the week will be "Government by and for the People."

There will be two speakers for each of the chapel programs during the week, who will speak on what the American school is doing to make better citizens, and how the school should fit students to take their places in the world. In each program one speaker will advocate the progressive school, and the other will defend the traditional school. After the talks the program will be open for a general question period.

Robert Ruoff, vice-president of the F.T.A. Club, is program chairman for the activities during American Education Week.

Student Council Dance To Be Held Tonight

There will be a Student Council dance in Union Hall tonight from 8:30-11:30. The celebrities, headed by Robert Rentz, will provide the music.

The proposed constitution was presented to Council by Russell F. Weigley, chairman of the constitution committee. He stated that the purpose of the revision is to provide more equitable representation and to foster class unity.

The first part of the constitution was approved by Council last spring. Further consideration of it on Tuesday bogged down in a technicality concerning the composition of the various subordinate governing bodies.

Tuesday, November 7 has been set aside as Leadership Day. Prof. Harding told the Council, from 2-4 o'clock on that day leaders of all campus organizations will be recognized and given additional training. Prof. Harding requested the appointment of several members of Council to help the faculty committee on student organization and activities in planning the program.

Camille Thorpe was appointed chairman of the committee which will direct a student evaluation of the faculty later this year. Such an evaluation was first conducted in 1947-48. It was decided at that time to hold an evaluation every three years.

Council approved the letter composed by a special committee to be sent to the National Student Association, notifying the group of Albright's disaffiliation.

Albrightians Sent To Cedar Crest WAA Conference

Two delegates from Albright, Barbara Wrisley and Patricia Miller, attended the annual conference of the Pennsylvania Division of the National Athletic Foundation for College Women. The conference was held at Cedar Crest on October 13, 14 and 15.

Present at the conference were 60 delegates from schools throughout Pennsylvania, including universities, small co-ed colleges and women's schools. The theme for the conference was "What Your College W.A.A. Prepares You For."

On Friday afternoon a tea was served for all delegates, and on Friday evening a ballet troupe from New York entertained. A conference with the 1949 women's amateur golf champion and two Philadelphia All-American hockey players was held Saturday morning concerning WAA sports after college. Two semi-pro Philadelphia hockey clubs played an exhibition game Saturday afternoon. Sunday was devoted to an executive meeting.

The Albright delegates acted as head of the nominating committee to choose next year's host for the conference.

300 Albrightians Attend Ivy Ball

Albright's annual Ivy Ball was held last Saturday at the Abraham Lincoln Hotel. Approximately 300 faculty, students and guests danced to the music of Whitey Meisky's Orchestra.

In the center of the ballroom was an artificial lily pond surrounded by ivy. Several white cranes were placed at the edge of the pond.

A dinner attended by 62 Albrightians was held at 6:30 P. M. followed by entertainment provided by the Class of 1954. Jay Schraier portrayed a typical student trying to study but interrupted periodically by a vivid imagination. Bob Skinner, vice-president of the freshman class, sang "It Isn't Fair." He represented the first disturbance, picturing love life. Then as Jay began to study again he was interrupted by the thoughts of social life as portrayed by Bob Skinner and Lois Stockinger, secretary of the class, doing ballroom dancing to the tune of "Lover." Amy Weitzel and his harmonica interrupted the studying for the third time. The poor student finally received a letter from the Dean of the college requesting an interview and was asked to leave the college. Dave Keller, president of the freshmen sang "Good-bye, Dear Dean," to the tune of "Good-night, Irene," at the close of the program.

Students Urged To Attend Rally

All students are urged to attend the pep rally today from 11 to 11:20 A. M. In fact, it should be a must for all Albrightians—students, faculty, and administration. Charles "Pop" Kelchner, of Lebanon, scout for the St. Louis Cardinals baseball team will be the speaker, announced Terry Connor, head cheerleader. The rally will be held in the driveway in back of the Ad Building and the speakers will be on the balcony of the Building. All students will be excused from class from 11 to 11:20 in order that they may attend. Ten to fifteen pieces of the band will be present and also all the cheerleaders. Let's all get out and show the team we're behind them!

Sadie Hawkins' Day Will Be Celebrated on November 3 As Albright Goes Dogpatch

Albright's annual Sadie Hawkins' Day will officially begin at sunrise Friday, November 3 announced Carol Kreeker, chairman of the event. The campus will be Albright's Dogpatch and all the students will be the residents of Dogpatch.

This day for eligible men and desperate women all began in 1937 in Al Capp's mythical town of Dogpatch when Mayor Hebezeiah Hawkins, in a last attempt to marry off his ugly daughter, Sadie, decided upon a scheme that ended Sadie's 35 years of singleness. His Honor decreed a footrace to be held between all unwed males and females and ordained that any man caught by a woman must marry her. The Mayor gave the bachelors a head start, and at the second gunshot the girls ran after them.

Sadie Hawkins Celebrations usually begin with the following official proclamation: "Know Yo' All, wherefore and whereas, Ah proclaims: Yo Gotta Run Ketch or Be Ketched. Whereas, if yo' lays yo' achin' unmarried haid in a sack in Dogpatch; and whereas, if you is man or gal, hooman or otherwise; and whereas, if yo' ain't hitched to man, woman, amnule, or post; then yo' is elegibull. Yo' just gotta run—yo' pore mizzable unhappy fools; your mizzable unmarried days is over! Ah proclaims these rules for Sadie Hawkins Day. Signed and sealed, Hebezeiah Hawkins."

Here at Albright, students should act and dress Dogpatch style—the dress consisting of blue jeans and plaid shirts for the men, and either jeans or short skirts for the women.

Everyone is asked to remember that even though they are now a member of Dogpatch society they are still a part of Albright's student body, and the only change in conduct is the fact that the girls openly become the pursuers.

Marrying Sam will read the proclamation at 11:00 A. M. on the Science Hall steps, and at the sound of the gun the race will begin. The race is not only for Daisy Mae and Li'l Abner and the other portrayed characters, but for the entire student body. Everyone is urged to join in.

Since Daisy Mae is already scheming how to catch Li'l Abner, the wedding ceremony is now being planned. Mammy and Pappy Yokum are happy to announce the

Masters to Report On College Status

When the General Conference of the Evangelical United Brethren Church meets in Dayton, Ohio, from November 10-20, President Harry V. Masters will report on the status of Albright College. This general convocation of the highest body of the denomination that supports the college will consider matters of importance to its educational institutions and give directives for future progress.

One commission to report to General Conference is presently concluding work on a survey of the educational institutions sponsored by the denomination. This report will cover the overlapping of territory for financial and student support, academic accreditation and other factual data.

Bishop A. R. Clippinger and Bishop John S. Stamm will retire from active service following General Conference. General church officers will be elected and requests from annual conferences seeking union will be considered.

Expecting an influx of delegates and visitors from throughout the United States and foreign countries, officials have engaged Memorial Hall in Dayton as conference headquarters.

This is the second General Conference since the formation of the Evangelical United Brethren Church at Johnstown, Pa., in 1946.

Seniors Ponder Dues, Class Gift, Year Book Details

The Senior Class held a meeting after Chapel on Thursday, October 19. The first business brought before the class was the payment of dues. After considerable debate and argument the class voted to compel all class members to pay their dues before they receive their diplomas in June. This means each member will have to pay $8.

Following the preceding discussion, a debate over a senior class activity for this fall was held. It was finally decided that due to the lack of funds in the treasury the class would have no event.

Viviana Kitzmiller and Lee Frickfort were appointed to decide on a class gift to the college. Ella Mae Shesley and Doug Ebling are to have charge of selecting commencement invitations.

John Savidge, editor-in-chief of the Cue, and John Wise, business manager, presented details of the financial trouble of the yearbook. The staff lacks $700 needed for completion of the book. Discussion of the deficit was held. Several recommendations were made: that there be no yearbook this year, advertisement be used, and a patron's list be used. It was finally agreed that a book would be produced this year even if each member of the class has to be assessed for the lack of money.

Council Stresses Need For Campus Publicity

An urgent appeal for members for the publicity committee of Student Council was issued Tuesday by Vincent Gentile, committee head.

Gentile stated that the work involved in publicizing campus events requires no artistic ability. Stencils for making letters are available, he said.

At present, Gentile said, only Phoebe Hunter and Sonia Phipps are working actively on the committee.

Freshman — 1950

The following article appeared in the "New York Times Magazine" last Sunday. Written by Charles Poore of the "Times" staff, the article is representative of the average American conception of the present college generation. The article is not reprinted in its entirety, but the noteworthy paragraphs are included.

"They are the hope of the ages, and they know it, without rancor and without vainglory, because they are not spectacularly sure that coming ages are going to be very tranquil, or that these passing days offer lavish grounds for hope.

She—or he—was born in the early Nineteen Thirties, when the world was going to pot, brought up in the Nineteen-Forties when the world went to pot . . . and is now asked to study, while the world sets its compasses for unimaginable blows, the civilization that brought us to the pretty pass we find ourselves in this morning.

Talk to one of the mid-century freshmen and you have talked to all—to all that is best and worth saying in civilization. He is astonishingly young in appearance. His age is around the Tarkingtonian 17. His mind, though, in an age that reads Kinsey to the obligato of the ticking Geiger counter, is formidably mature.

What about her? Well, we've always known, haven't we, that a 17-year-old girl is about 20 years and a clutch of eons older than a 17-year-old boy? That's still true, only more so. Also, she is prettier than ever!"

It was one of the girls who remarked that, "... nowadays, a woman must have a career so that she can take care of the children when something happens to the man."

"Not if something happens to the man . . . just when. O brave new World!"

Or, on the present international situation, "The dean told us just to do our work here, and not to worry. Well, we're not worrying so much anymore. We're just wondering how long it will last, and when they'll put us in those brown suits.

WHEN again. WHEN. When is the operative word to the Freshmen of 1950.

. . . the lost Generation that came out of World War I said . . . that it has misplaced its illusions. The generation that survived World War II has no illusions to lose. The 1950 Freshman is the child of the one and the younger brother or sister of the other. It is the first generation we have had in America since the Seventeen Nineties that was born and bred in a monstrous normality of depression and more war.

. . . they don't flap and philosophize as mud (in print) as they did in Scott Fitzgerald's era. They are young, but they don't flame with gin and youth so sputteringly. They are bareheaded and tieless. They must have lost their hats during the depression years, and they don't seem to have any more use for a necktie than does General MacArthur.

. . . All we know for certain is this: the world changes. But, the freshman goes on forever, changing with the changing world. He hopes the planet will grow up some day. But he's beginning to wonder whether it's up to him to say when."

After The Ball Was Over

"Whatta ya say, Joe, how's it going?"

"Oke, how's by you, Will?"

"Everything's goin' pretty smooth. Say, how come I didn't see you at the Ivy Ball."

"Who wants to go to those things? They're just one big act. No one ever has any fun at a Ball, they just say they do."

"Where've you been living, Joe? You missed a really great time. Let me tell you about it."

"O.K., but you won't change my mind."

"Well, at about quarter after six the first couples began to arrive for the dinner. The girls really looked sharp in their gowns and about half of the guys wore tuxes. Of course the other half of the fellows wore clothes too, but they wore their regular suits. At about six forty-five the guests of honor took their places behind the speaker's table. (I know what you're thinking, but there weren't any speeches.) The students and their guests took their seats at the other tables, and the waitresses began serving the dinner. It was the usual type of banquet dinner. Turkey, I mean, but it was better tasting than the usual type of banquet food. We ate by candlelight, one red and one white candle, for obvious reasons."

"The dinner part sounds pretty good, Will, but food always sounds good for some reason. What comes after the dinner?"

"Some of our classmates put on a little skit which was partially in pantomime. It was cleverly worked out and concerned the main distractions during a student's study time. Of course the material outcome of the student neglecting his studies was a scene in the Dean's office and the student's dismissal from school. There were no Frank Sinatras, Fred Astaires, or Cornell Wildes present, but all the participants in the skit did exceptional jobs and this made the skit very enjoyable to watch."

"I guess some of the kids in the class do have talent, Will. I would like to have seen them, but what about the dance itself."

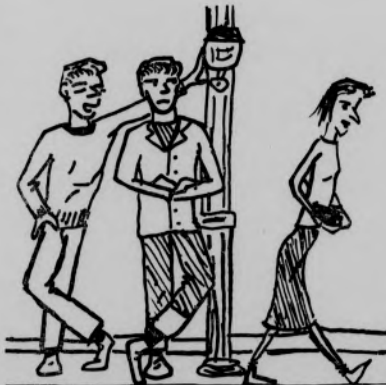

"Well, after the entertainment the couples who only attended the dance began to arrive in force. As I said before, the guys and girls looked very sharp. The corsages were beautiful and there weren't two alike. Whitey Meisky's band was quite easy to dance to. He has five saxes, two trumpets, a bass, drums, and a piano. A little unusual but very smooth. No matter where you looked people were having a terrific time. The dancing lasted 'til eleven-thirty, and everyone was sorry that it was over so soon. After the playing of "I'll See You in My Dreams," the fellows and girls left for their favorite eating spots. After the sandwich and coke the goodnight kiss at the girl's door was the perfect ending for a perfect evening."

"I really enjoyed myself, but I do have one gripe. There weren't any photographers present, and I heard a lot of the guys and girls complain because they would've liked to have their pictures taken. However, it was still a great evening."

"I guess you're right, Will. It does sound like a pretty swell time. I didn't go this year, but I sure can tell you who one of the first ticket purchasers will be next year."

A Writer Sounds Off

It's rough to organize a good feature page for a lot of reasons. First of all, you must have decent writers who can hold the interest of the readers; second, you must vary the content from week to week so that the reader can't say, "Same darn stuff." Also, you must have something to say. For hours we sit either in The Albrightian office or some equally noisy place and try to think of things to write about—things that will be of interest to the Albright student. You know, it isn't what the student should be interested in. We know that the dorm students will always read a re-telling of dormitory life. Science students will read Science Slants, and so on. The reason for this reaction is, of course, that when the student can identify himself with something, he's interested. It's too bad that the Albright student has not allowed himself to be educated to the point where he can identify himself in more than two or three divisions of interest. We, here on The Albrightian staff, have a lot to say about a lot of things; but we know that not more than 20 people in addition to the staff will read them. It makes us feel a bit futile. We sell our poor but sincere talents to the voice of public opinion—just to give them something that they will read.

There goes the cause of the decline and fall of America.

Calling Dandy Lion Doctor!

Calling Doctor Dandy Lion!

Yep, any medical treatment needed call on Bill Schaeffer, our Dandy Lion. Accepted at Temple Med School, Bill is rounding out his last year at Ye Olde Science Halle.

Contrary to belief that science students are kept under strict lock and key and never set foot off hallowed science hall ground except for a bookstore cup of coffee, Bill really gets around. Art Editor for this year's Cue, President of Skull and Bones, author of Science Slants in this dent of Skull and Bones, author of Science Slants in this weekly publication, one of the first tenors of Men's Glee Club, and a member of Delta Phi Alpha, honorary German fraternity, and Zeta Omega Epsilon, social fraternity, Bill's activities look like a Liberal Art's student's.

On the Dean's A list for all his semesters at Albright, Bill's favorite subjects when he gets together for a pre-med bull session are marriage and morality in general. This is just a sign of his general like for philosophizing. Any time you want to you can get into an intelligent discussion with Bill about anything from ethics to science to religion to the trouble with women. Besides his busy schedule of study and extra-curricular activities, he spends spare moments pursuing etymology (study of words). Anyone who knows Bill knows he has a more than adequate vocabulary, and it often comes in handy when he uses his well-known sarcasm (but it's the friendly variety of sarcasm).

He admits he is uncertain about his future and won't be pinned down about plans; but we know there will certainly be success for our Bill, for he can make his own.

Individuality

Not too long ago I had the opinion that my coming to Albright was an unfortunate thing. I felt that my college education would be incomplete without the gala affair, glorious week-end, sophisticated afternoon cocktail parties at the frat house. For, you see, all these were to be had at larger universities and colleges; it follows, though, that you must be a member of those select groups which exist in such places.

Here at Albright not much of that sort of thing exists. True, we have dances, fraternities, and sororities; but ours are not the large ostentatious affairs that one reads about in the magazine portrayal of college life. At our affairs and in our respective groups the individual must "make" or "break" them. There is no "role" to play.

This arrangement, i.e. where the individual must rely upon his or her own contributions and efforts, is more closely analogous to the situation found in life itself. Indeed, the sophisticate has his place in our society, but that place is found only in that which but a few of us will be exposed to in later life. Albright does not breed, nor pretend to create the "rah rah, boola boola, and let's have a little Scotch and soda" specimen. Instead it presents a situation where the weakly organized individual has a chance, in his or her four years, to develop into a person.

I feel that the Albright graduate is better trained, better equipped, and better educated for really sinking his teeth into life than many a product from the large education factories. L. S.

On Friendship

In the exciting first month at Albright most of us have been too busy to closely analyze our closest environment, the people around us. Freshmen thought that new acquaintances were nice to have around to fill the empty space created by leaving old friends behind. When the upperclassmen returned, they surrounded themselves with their favorite people. Friendships from last year were renewed.

Now, after living with these new people for a period of six weeks, we've begun to reflect about them, to think and talk about them. Albright is a friendly place, and almost everyone seems to get along with everyone else. Most people are generally accepted, few are rejected, and a special few are singled out by us. These, called our friends, are selected for special reasons—common ideas, common likes and dislikes. We like to be with them, for they make college a pleasant, worthwhile experience.

Observing them we see the different types of popular people. Some are popular because they're well-liked, others because their happiness is contagious, and still others because they're well-adjusted and are successful students. Some of them who have always been popular take their college achievements in stride. Others, unhappy before coming to college, turned over a new leaf, assumed an aggressive attitude, and have made friends and found prestige here. Others have let popularity go to their heads. They have what it takes, but aren't big enough to live with popularity.

The other people who occupy our thoughts are those who "have it," but somehow keep it hidden from view. We try to draw them out, but can't. Many of them will tread the path through college alone, their failures and successes unnoticed. Some few lonely souls will give much and receive nothing in return. Other than book learning, college life, to them, is empty.

Albright isn't click-ish. One's group of friends can usually increase as it's never too late to get in on something new. If you're lonesome and want company, seek it. Mingle with those who are popular and well-adjusted, and exert some effort to aid the others.

We can choose our friends, but we can never have too many. Each of Albright's 685 students is a potential, life-long friend. How many can you cultivate?

CATS SEEK REVENGE FROM DUTCHMEN

Lions Bow to Dips, 14-0, in Thriller

Lowder Scores Twice In Fray of Fumbles

The Roaring Lions fumbled away three chances to score in their game with the Diplomats of Franklin and Marshall College at Williamson Field in Lancaster last Saturday afternoon, enabling F&M to squeeze out a 14-0 victory. However the game wasn't as one-sided as the score seems to point out.

In the first period the Lions marched 47 yards to what looked like a sure touchdown, only to lose the ball on a fumble on the F&M two yard line. They came roaring back early in the second quarter when Ed Hanbicki recovered a Diplomat fumble on the F&M 32. This threat bogged down on the F&M 25 after four unsuccessful running tries.

Late in the quarter the Diplomats were able to capitalize on a Lion fumble on the 13 yard line. A 15-yard pass from Bob West to Bruce Westerdaal and a one-yard plunge by Co-Captain Jack Lowder gave the Diplomats a 7-0 lead at the half. Herb Galebach successfully kicked the extra point. Although F&M led at halftime, most of the two quarter's play had taken place in their territory.

Boaman Intercepts Pass

In the third period Jim Boaman drove off another Diplomat threat when he intercepted a West pass intended for Bob Hartman and returned it 19 yards to the Albright 41. A pass, Chauncey Krout to Rod Shipe, put the oval on the F&M 37, from where Billy Krohto gained three yards. Two more passes from

OFFENSIVE BACK

Bruce Tenley

Krout, one to Shipe and the other to Bruce Tenley, brought the ball to the F&M 9 yard line, within sight of the goal line, only to be lost on the next play on a fumble.

After an exchange of punts Lowder put on his one man scoring drive which ate-up 61 yards and gave the Diplomats their final marker. Galebach again kicked the extra point.

Outstanding features of the game were Krout's eleven out of fifteen passes completed and John Sudol's two long kicks, one good for 56 yards and the other for 63. The Cats outscored the Diplomats with eleven first downs to the victors ten.

Runners Split Two; Beat G-burg, 25-31, Lose to F&M, 19-44

Zellner Leads Cats Across Finish Line

Saturday, October 21 was a black day for Coach Gene Shirk's cross-country team as they bowed to the runners of Franklin and Marshall College, 19-44, on the winner's course at Williamson Field in Lancaster. It was the first loss for the Lion Harriers, who had previously defeated Muhlenberg and Gettysburg.

The Shirkmen are scheduled to face Ursinus today at home and West Chester next Tuesday, October 31, away, as was announced in late schedule releases.

F&M's Ken Dixon won the four mile grind in 24:37, just ahead of Albright's Charlie Zellner's 24:43. The Diplomats swept third through ninth places, with Wagner, Rohrbach, Hartman, Paterson, Sutton, and Hemsley all crossing the line for F&M. Dave Fulmer was the second Lion runner to finish, placing tenth, followed by F&M's Higgins. Mahlon Frankhouser, Jim Rocktaschel, and Don Long capped twelfth, thirteenth, and fourteenth places for the Lions, while Palermo, Mayhew, and Thomson finished fifteenth, sixteenth, and seventeenth for the Diplomats. Rae Hoopes trailed off for the Lions.

Lions Defeat G-burg

On Wednesday, October 18, the Lions won their second meet of the season from the harriers of Gettysburg, 25-31. The Bullet's Harry Hamer led the field in 20:16 and was followed in 20:43 by Charlie Zellner, the Cat's ace thincalad, who paced the victors. The Lions now have a record of two wins against one defeat. The summaries:

First, Hamer, G; second, Zellner, A; third, Rutherford, G; fourth, Fulmer, A; fifth, Frankhouser, A; sixth, Rocktaschel, A; seventh, Heldrich, G; eighth, Long, A; ninth, Schaffer, G; tenth, Hoopes, A; eleventh, Knauss, G; twelfth, Copeland, G, and thirteenth, Byrne, G.

Lionesses Face LV In Fray Tomorrow

Intramural Hockey Sponsored by WAA

Coach Eva Mosser's girls' hockey contingent is scheduled to battle Lebanon Valley tomorrow morning on the foreign field after winning only one of the contests in last week's playday at Kutztown. The Lionesses are scheduled to battle the Valley lassies in the morning and will remain for the afternoon football contest. In a hard-fought battle last year the Annville girls managed to eke out a 3-2 victory over the Lady Cats.

Moravian College's hockey squad was the only team to fall victim to the Lionesses in last Saturday's playday. Eleanor Spring, Nancy Stump, and Judy Leibach each scored once to give the Albright femmes their 3-0 margin of victory. In their other two contests the femmes lost to Cedar Crest, 1-0, and to Kutztown, 2-0.

Face Lebanon Valley Away Tomorrow; Rickermen Sport Three Win, One Loss Record

Sorrentino, Shellenberger, Shomosky Sample Head Blue and White Backs

After reverting to the loss column in their luckless battle with Franklin and Marshall last Saturday afternoon, Albright's Lions are anxiously awaiting their traditional meeting with the Flying Dutchmen of Lebanon Valley tomorrow afternoon at 2:00 P. M. in the Lebanon High School Stadium. It will be the 30th meeting of the two traditional foes in a series which has resulted thus far in twelve victories for the Cats, fifteen wins for the Dutchmen, and two ties.

Royals, Mules, LV Win, G-burg Loses Among Future Foes

Three of Albright's four remaining opponents won their contests last Saturday afternoon. Gettysburg, who lost to Muhlenberg, 28-7, was the only future Lion foe to fall.

The Dutchmen of Lebanon Valley beat a stubborn Moravian team, 14-8, on two long touchdown drives. Lebanon Valley's first TD came in the first period on a 27 yard toss, Lou Sorrentino to Bob Fischer, and Fischer's brilliant 40-yard gallop. In the third quarter, Ray Dankowski intercepted a Greyhound pass and raced 93 yards for the final winning marker. A one yard pass to Joe Gerenser accounted for Moravian's lone TD.

Mules Swamp G-burg

Elmo Jackson again went on a scoring rampage for Muhlenberg to spoil Gettysburg hopes for their Homecoming Day, 28-7. The Mules took the lead on a pass, England to Reed in the second period, that was good for 56 yards and a TD.

Jackson broke away in the third quarter and out-ran the entire Bullet squad for the Mules' second score. Later in the same period he added another on a one yard plunge. A 22-yard Mills to Reed pass play gave the Mules their final touchdown. Tom Faulkner, the Bullets' right halfback, raced 67 yards through the left side of Muhlenberg's line for Gettysburg's only score.

Royals Remain Unbeaten

Scranton University's grid squad remained undefeated last Saturday as they rolled to an easy 26-0 triumph over the Cadets of PMC. Three of the Royals' four TD's came on long aeriels. In the first period a 17 yard toss by Dan Shea to Bob Newman climaxed a seventy-yard Scranton drive. Pete Mondati, John Kopa and Dan Sargent accounted for the other Royal scores.

Lafayette Includes Lions in 1951 Card

Lafayette College of Easton, Pa., announced in revealing its grid schedule for the 1951 season that it will face the Albright Lions in its first contest on September 22 at Easton. This will be the first grid meeting of the two schools in their football history.

Since the war, Lebanon Valley won in 1947, 31-7, the Cats took over in 1948 by a score of 19-13, but lost again last year to the tune of 26-13. Three touchdowns and other stellar offensive dashes by the Blue and White's Hank DiJohnson, who was graduated last spring, paced the Dutchmen in their watersoaked victory last year. Although the Lions began the fracas with good offensive driving and two first half scores by Bill Krohto and Bruce Tenley, the ensuing rain dampened their spirits and halted any further scoring on their part.

Succeeding the venerable Andy Kerr this year as head coach of the Flying Dutchmen is Ralph (Dutch) Ricker, who is assisted in his duties by Dick Fox, end coach, and Warren Gockley, assistant coach. Thus far this season their Flying Dutchmen have won three games while dropping only one.

Only Loss to Dips

The unbeaten Dips from F&M nudged the Dutchmen 13-7 in their opener and only loss of the season. Lou Sorrentino sparkplugged the Blue and White to their 39-0 win over Mount St. Mary's in their second contest and initial home game.

On Saturday, October 7 the Dutchmen journeyed to Allentown and there gave the Muhlenberg Mules a surprise 20-13 defeat. The Annville gridders scored once in each of the first two periods for their first two tallies and knotted the contest in the fourth period on a pass from Sorrentino to Dale Shellenberger. This effectively halted a Muhlenberg fourth period rally which had already racked up two T-D's.

Barely Nudge Moravian

Last Saturday afternoon the Dutchmen found unexpectedly hard going against Moravian and managed only to eke out a 14-8 victory and emerge on the low end of the statistics department. A 27-yard Sorrentino to Bob Fischer pass plus a forty yard gallop gave the Dutchmen their first score, while Ray Dankowski raced 93 yards with an intercepted toss for the winning tally. Injuries suffered by Joe Gerenser and Ray Snyder in the third period cramped seriously the Greyhounds' running attack for the remainder of the game while their line continued to hold the Dutchmen at several crucial moments.

Teamed with quarterback Sorrentino in the Blue and White starting backfield are Shellenberger at left halfback, Fred Sample in the right halfback slot, and Walter Shomosky filling in DiJohnson's old fullback position. In the starting line positions for the Annville gridders are Sherdell Snyder at left end, Paul Edwards in the left tackle slot, Bob Gustin filling the left guard position, veteran Norm Lukens at center, Ed Tesnar in the right guard position, Tom Quinn at right tackle, and Fischer in the right end slot.

Other Lebanon Valley gridders who will probably see action in tomorrow's contest are linemen Glenn Thomas, Nick Bova, Frank DeAngelis, Joe Ferrer, Bob Palmer, and Barrett Oxley; and backfield performers Dankowski, Gluntz, Muselman, Joe Giordano and Joe Oxley.

Y Racial Equality Commission Hears Former Student

The Y meeting held last Tuesday was opened with a meditation on Creed by Dorothy DeLaney and Jane Katz. Y.M.C.A. President, Jay Shenk, then introduced Larry Bott, the speaker of the evening. Mr. Bott, who spent two years at Albright and two years at Stanford, spoke on "A Christian's Concern with Race Prejudice." He worked for the American Friends Service Committee and the Mayor's Committee to conquer Juvenile Delinquency.

He stated that we are dealing with something we can't exactly put our finger on. One major factor in race prejudice is the geographic situation. Life to a Negro in a border state is one of extreme uncertainty, insecurity and doubt. To us the racial problem doesn't mean much because we're detached from it. The Negro feels one way he can lift himself is through education.

Also the Negro seems to have been left out of our history books. Two problems facing the Negro are achieving class citizenship in the United States and color consciousness among Negroes themselves.

A Y Cabinet meeting followed with commission reports on Christian Faith and Heritage, Social Responsibility and Racial Equality. The World Service Fund Report was given and the budget for the year discussed.

The next Y meeting will consist of a Halloween Party in Union Hall on October 31 at 7:30 P. M. Lee Pomroy and Dean Hoffman have been appointed to take charge of this affair.

HEO Club Begins Year's Functions

The HEO club had its first meeting on October 9. The following freshmen were initiated into the club: Carol Charlton, Patricia Eisenbise, Joan Fleming, Nancy Herb, Lois Hiltz, Lucy Hoagland, Evelyn James, Arlene Kuhlman, Lois LeVan, Emma Seifrit, Patricia Shepherd, Jacquelyn Showalter, Shirley Slivka, Evelyn Weida, and Victoria Zampella. Mary Brenner, president, read the pledge, then each girl lighted her candle from the Betty Lamp, the symbol of the Home Ec Association. Each new member was presented with a chrysanthemum corsage.

Joyce Snyder and Ann Louise Kilian attended the Home Economics Workshop held at Juniata College over the weekend of October 13 and 14. Girls from various parts of the state were present. The talks stressed the importance of a friendly feeling and better understanding among the HEO clubs in Pennsylvania.

Six girls ended their six-week training at Sherman Cottage this past week. The girls who were at the Cottage from September 11 to October 23 were the following: Ella Mae Sheesley, Ruth Tyson, Shirley Echenroad, Joanne Deiter and Kay Collins Marquette. The girls gained new knowledge in home-making and also gained new experience in child care with the help of Jeffrey, their "adopted" one-year-old baby. As proof of the wonderful treatment Jeff is getting, the girls informed us he has gained three and a half pounds since coming to Sherman Cottage.

The second group of girls in Sherman Cottage started on October 23 and will finish their course on December 6. These include: Virginia Kitzmiller, Nancy Stump, Louise Hoff, Mary Ann Gerhard and Saranne Richards.

Dr. Kistler reviewed the Congress of Vienna and the comparatively peaceful century that resulted from it. He discussed also the Treaty of Versailles, the dissatisfaction caused by it, and the short period of peace which followed it. In conclusion he noted that the peace-makers of today might do well to review these past successes and failures before they begin to write the peace treaties for World War II.

Englehart announced that Dr. I. Lin would address the group at the November meeting. His topic will be announced later. Refreshments, coupled with an informal discussion period, concluded the evening.

It has been the opinion of the majority of dormitory women that they do not have enough voice in council or that they do not know what takes place at council meetings.
