DR. STAMM TO DEDICATE LIBRARY

Elaborate Program Planned for June 6th

Dr. Frederick K. Stamm, pastor of the Clinton Avenue Community Church, Brooklyn, N. Y., will be the dedication speaker at Albright College, on June 6, 1936, when the Alumni Memorial Library is presented to the college, according to the announcement made this morning by Dr. J. Warren Klein, president. Dr. Stamm is a graduate of Franklin and Marshall College, and the Reformed Theological Seminary of Lancaster, Pa. On June 1, 1936, he will be presented with an honorary Doctor of Divinity degree from Piedmont College, Demorest, Georgia. Before accepting his position at the Brooklyn church, the library dedication speaker was pastor of the Calvary Reformed Church in Reading, Pa. He has been at the Clinton Avenue Church since 1929.

Dr. Stamm is on the editorial staff of "Religion in Life." He is president of the New York Congregational Club, and moderator of the New York City Association of Congregational Churches. He has contributed articles to the following magazines: "Good Housekeeping," "The Forum," "Review of Reviews," "The Reader's Digest," "Christian Century," and "The American Magazine." He is author of the book "Through Experience to Faith." In August he will begin his sixth year of "Highlights of the Bible" over WJZ.

Of Pennsylvania Colonial design, the new library will have stacks for 25,000 volumes. From the vestibule one will enter the main reading room, 33'x68'. On the north end is a mantle and fireplace with marble facings. The floor is of flagstones. The second floor is to be used as a stack room, librarian's office, workroom, and a large room for the Alumni directors. Over the main entrance is a small balcony, under main porch, reached by double French casements. The heating of the building will be from the central plant.

PROFESSOR R. W. STINE SPEAKS TO PHILOSOPHERS

"We are all artists," declared Professor Russell W. Stine, speaking before members of the Philosophy club recently.

"All science is an art, and whether or not we paint a beautiful picture of life depends upon ourselves. The physical, biological and social stimuli outside are the pigments and canvas for our painting. Certain patterns are necessary which are difficult to analyze. A painting has a soul; no one can know it unless they know the person who painted it. The soul of the picture of the modern world is a reflection of ourselves not found in books or in the laboratory. We come to know each other as we share each other's picture," continued the Muhlenberg professor of philosophy.

Professor Stine, who is national secretary of Alpha Kappa Alpha, honorary fraternity in Philosophy, spoke before the Albright club at their annual initiation and banquet held at the American House, May 5.

David Fields, York, chairman, welcomed the alumni and new members, after which the newly elected president, Guy Brown, Orwigsburg, briefly discussed the club's plans for the future.

President J. Warren Klein of Albright College last week announced that Dr. Daniel A. Poling, noted lecturer, editor, clergyman, and temperance advocate, will be the speaker at the dedication and naming ceremonies of the Albright College Science Hall. The building will be named the Merner-Pfeiffer Science Hall in recognition of the service to the local college by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Pfeiffer, of New York City, who are among the many benefactors and friends of the local institution. This dedication ceremony will be part of the 80th commencement exercises on Monday, June 8, when Bishop John S. Stamm, of Harrisburg, delivers the commencement oration.

The dedication speaker is well known throughout this country and foreign lands as a leader of youth. He is president of the International Christian Endeavor Society and editor-in-chief of "The Christian Herald Magazine." Among the fifteen books he has written are "Mothers of Men," "Huts in Hell," "Learn to Live," and "Between Two Worlds."

QUARTET CLOSES SEASON WITH NEWARK CONCERT

The Albright College mixed quartet closed their season with a trip to Newark, N. J., May 9. They sang for the Albright Alumni from the metropolitan area of New York.

During the past winter the quartet, which consists of Miss Stella M. Hetrich, soprano, Reading; Miss Marjorie Beglinger, alto, Crafton; Henry Hamer, tenor, Philadelphia, and Joseph Ehrhart, baritone, Kingston, has appeared at the following Reading churches: Christ Evangelical, Immanuel Evangelical, Park Evangelical, First Reformed, and First Baptist.

In addition, they have sung at several services of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Boyertown, Hereford Church at Bally, and Faith, Olive Branch and Trinity Evangelical Churches in Baltimore at the latter services in connection with youth conferences.

The quartet will appear on the musical program to be presented by the Mixed Chorus on May 17 under the direction of Willy Richter in the Little Theatre.

MUSIC CONCERT TO BE GIVEN SUNDAY

The music department will present a concert Sunday, May 17, at 3.05 P. M., in the Little Theatre.

The concert is to be presented by different groups, including the Mixed Quartet, the Glee club, and our large Mixed Chorus of one hundred voices.

The Mixed Quartet will sing two numbers:

"Spirit Flower," by Campbell, Tipton-Riegger; "The King of Love," by Shelly. Members of Mixed Quartet are: Stella Hetrich, soprano; Marjorie Beglinger, alto; Henry Hamer, tenor; James Ehrhart, baritone.

The Mixed Chorus will sing: "America the Beautiful," "Gypsy Life," "The Heavens Resound," "Lost Chord," with William Maier as baritone soloist.

The Glee club is composed of eighteen male singers and will sing these numbers: "Shepherd's Sunday Song," Kreutzer; two chants: (1) "Mobile Bay," arranged by Bartholemew; (2) "A-Roving."

Prof. Willy Richter will direct. A silver offering will be taken at the door.

DR. J. A. MACKAY ADDRESSES FORUM

Present Day Mexico Described As Critical

In an address to the students of Albright College following the noon meal on Thursday, May 7, Dr. John A. Mackay, secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church, stated that the anti-religious feeling which is so evident in present day Mexico is a natural outgrowth of the unsocial form of Christianity which has existed in that country ever since its discovery by the Spaniards. Christianity as it has been practiced in Mexico has been directly opposed to the two main objectives of present day Mexican leaders, namely, "give land to the people," and "educate the masses."

Briefly describing the present political and economic conditions of Mexico, Dr. Mackay said that Mexico is one of the most original countries of the Latin American group. "The Mexican revolution was a subterranean movement which disrupted the old and introduced modern civilization to the people. Probably the greatest artists of the world today are the creators of the Radio City murals and the Dartmouth murals, Diego Rivera and Jose Orozco, both Mexicans.

"The socialization of knowledge will lead to human welfare and service to one's fellow men," said the speaker in describing society as it exists today. "Pseudo-religion is always a hindrance to human progress, and it is this that the Mexican leaders are striking against today."

Dr. Mackay has spent the most part of the past twenty years in the Latin American countries. He is the founder of a boys' preparatory school in Lima, Peru, and has been recognized as one of the leading intellectuals by Mexican scholars. The lecture on the Albright campus was made possible through the Student Christian Movement of New York City.

ELIZABETH TOPS

A census of the first names of all undergraduates on our campus affords some interesting comments. Among the girls' names Elizabeth holds first place with eight co-eds bearing that appellation. The most popular name for the boys is William with the high number of sixteen.

Today Helen runs a close second to Elizabeth with seven young women answering to that name in the class rooms. Mary ranks third with six Albright girls bearing this name, and Margaret and Evelyn are tie for fourth place with four votes each.

John comes next to William among the boys with thirteen, followed by James with eleven and George and Arthur closely trailing with eight scores each.

One hundred and seventy-six different names are borne by the four hundred and fifty students of Albright.

Among the girls, certain names stand out as being individual: Maryet, Elvira, Selma, Stella, and Serta. Some striking boys' names are Benfer, Hunter, Meyer, Lee, Pawling, Dickson, and Seldon (no doubt a family name), Forrest, Marco, Ainslie, Aris, Alastair, Ardo, Agnew, and Franklin.

OUR HOPE

With this issue of THE ALBRIGHTIAN your new editor takes up the editorial pen with the hope that he with the co-operation of his staff, the administration, the faculty, and the entire student body may produce a paper truly representative of Albright College. We sincerely hope to restore our publication to the ranks of successful and interesting college newspapers. This will be an impossibility if we do not receive the whole-hearted co-operation of every person concerned.

Realizing the responsibilities of its position, the staff will not purpose so much as to make drastic changes. We will, however, make every attempt to improve our publication. Should we be successful in this respect, we shall feel that our duty was well done.

Up to the present, co-operation with the staff from the above mentioned groups has been entirely unsatisfactory. THE ALBRIGHTIAN is supposed to present a cross-section of the life of our campus. This can be done when each of us takes sufficient interest in the publishing of a collegiate record of all activities from matriculation time to the commencement season. The staff has expressed its willingness to work earnestly. It will be better fitted to do its work if all the students and faculty members constructively suggest—not destroyingly criticize.

With the aim to present to the student body a paper of which it can be justly proud, we will proceed on our way, trying to do our best and to give our utmost to the cause.

THE MAGI AND THE SHOWDOWN

One time there was a great and rich land and suddenly its people became very poor, or so they thought, and a thick, dark gloom settled upon them; they could not or would not see three feet in front of their noses; they called it the "depression," and the more they talked depression the more depression they had.

So the people held a great council and chose from among themselves a certain soothsayer to lead them out of the depression, and he forthwith assumed the powers of a mighty magician, calling to his side a numerous regiment of lesser soothsayers and telling them that now was the time for all good men to come to the aid of the party.

The soothsayers turned magicians, took counsel among themselves, and said that what ailed the country was that the people had gold. So they went out and got the gold, much of which they hid in a cave which they had dug in a wild and barbarous region called Kentucky. Then they gave out scraps of paper, which they insisted were as good as gold, to the people who worked and to some who did not work, and the people began to smile and swap jokes and swap their paper for chariots and many kinds of gadgets and trinkets, so that the gloom began to be dispelled, and many of the folk had an awfully good time while they had it.

The magicians collected tribute from all the people who had possessions. They collected it in scraps of paper which were as good as gold, though it was no longer exchangeable for gold, and the tribute payers thought they were only turning in paper, but in truth they were giving up their property, their cotton, their wheat, and their pigs.

In order that the people could have more scraps of paper, the magicians commanded that there should be less cotton and wheat and fewer pigs in the land. As long as the scraps of paper were exchangeable for chariots and gasoline and gadgets the people paid and paid, the great majority of them not knowing that they were paying, as the paper was extracted from their wallets in curious ways while they were doped, so they say.

The people who labored and who smoked and drank beer and ate meats and wore clothes all paid the tribute, but as long as they had jobs they were full of joy, and they remained unconscious that the number of people who had no jobs and whom they were supporting grew no less, notwithstanding that 800,000 of the smoother kind were enlisted as sub-magicians and as scribes and fetchers and carriers for the great ones. All of the 800,000 were given pay that enabled them to ride in chariots, to have plenty of the fluid called gasoline that constitutes the more abundant life, and to imagine themselves the sons of toil.

The tribute collected was not enough, so the magicians gave another kind of paper called bonds to the money-changers called banks, and the banks gave to the magicians paper called money, and the money went round and round as the song has it. Some of the bonds were taken by rich persons because whosoever had nothing but these bonds escaped paying the tribute in the form of income taxes, which are never paid by people in a trance, as other taxes are. And the music went round and round. The truth was that the people were giving to the magicians their cotton and their wheat and their pigs and signing mortgages on their houses, their farms, their factories, and their stores, the number of which was not increasing but in fact decreasing. More and more of the people began to have faith in the magicians and to believe that always they would feed and clothe them because it was their duty to do so.

REPRESENTATIVE STUDENTS

This week we present James Doyle, '36 who has been one of the active persons on the Albright campus during the past four years. He has been a member of the victorious debating teams. Last year he was editor-in-chief of "The Albrightian." He is a member of the Alpha Pi Omega fraternity. Recently the members of the class of '36 voted Jim to be the most clever person of the senior class. Many of you do not realize how much work Jim has done to make the work of the Albright College Press Bureau so successful during the past year. He has been responsible for the publicity of all the athletic contests of Albright. As yet he is undecided whether he will become a journalist or a lawyer. Best of luck to you, Jim, no matter what you undertake to do in the years to come.

After a time the music stopped, and the people woke up with a bang to the discovery that the recovery which they had so much enjoyed was no more than the eating of stored up cake which they could not have and eat too. What happened at this event—which in the language of the vulgar is called the showdown—is not yet recorded, but it will be some time or other if the recording instruments shall not go up in smoke along with other properties.

A fable much like this was about an old woman whose eyes went bad on her and who consulted a rascal of a doctor. He slowly restored her sight, but kept her in darkness long enough to appropriate and carry away her household goods. Aesop tells that story, and he says that the old lady when she could see told the judge that she really could not see, she could not see her household goods, and the judge, who was no fool, caused the doctor to give them back to her and let him charge her no fee.

In the case of magicians who dispelled the thick gloom from the land there was no judge after the great showdown, and all the people and their children and their grandchildren had to take their medicine and go on taking it through the weary years.

ARTS AND LETTERS

FIRST LADY

Charles J. Moravec, '37

Periodically there comes to the New York stage a historical play of significance which startles press and public opinion into discussion, even controversy. This year the play which has continued to be the biggest box office attraction, a splendid work of art, and a literary accomplishment, and, above all, which has aroused universal praise and widespread dissension, is Gilbert Miller's production of Victoria Regina, by Laurence Housman, starring Helen Hayes, the first lady of the drama.

The realism, vitality, and sense of abounding life that informed Helen Hayes' work on the screen and recently on the radio in The New Penny are even more prominent in her achievements on the stage. As the leading lady of dramatic art, Helen Hayes' portrayals of prominent characters are more influential in building a true appreciation of culture in America than many of our recent books of fiction, cinema presentations, and the altogether simple and suggestive lyrics of modern jazz.

The star of Victoria Regina, a historical drama revealing the private and public life of England's beloved queen, is a human genius of understanding, personal observation, vitality, charm, sincerity, and polish. After seeing Miss Hayes as the young Cleopatra in George Bernard Shaw's Anthony and Cleopatra; as the queen of the Scots in Mary of Scotland; a poetic drama by Maxwell Anderson, who recently was awarded the New York critics award for writing Winterset; and informally at a flower show as on the principal thoroughfare of Nyack, N. Y., from where she commutes daily to and from the large metropolis, I can safely say that Miss Hayes is a modest lady of beauty and charming appeal.

The charm and value of Helen Hayes' characterizations owe something to all the categories of culture and intelligence, and have something to say to every kind of theatregoer or radio listener. Miss Hayes, who has played leading roles in The Good Fairy, What Every Woman Knows, and Farewell to Arms, shows an increasing love for the living theatre.

Some time ago motion picture devotees were shocked when the leading lady of Another Language refused to sign a long-term contract for the production of future films at a very attractive salary. However, Miss Hayes made a wise decision. On the legitimate stage she can act in a play that she likes instead of a film that she would be forced to appear against her wishes. Then, too, Miss Hayes does a better piece of acting before a living audience—not critical directors and technicians. She belongs on the "gay white way," which now boasts of the largest and most expensive electrical display of Wrigley's in the world. The patrons of the current vehicle in which Helen Hayes reveals 60 years of the life of Queen Victoria realize the importance of the year's dramatic event. Every day long lines of prospective ticket holders may be seen at the Broadhurst. May the line continue for another year.

As time marches on, Miss Hayes remains and will remain a constant companion to a deathless stage.

ALBRIGHT NINE VICTORS 9-1

Down Susquehanna For Second Time; Smoot Stars

Albright's winning baseball team shelacked Susquehanna by the score of 9 to 1 behind Stan Kosel's five-hit twirling last Friday.

This marked the fourth victory of the current season for the Lions.

Johnny Muller, diminutive center fielder, led the fifteen-hit attack with a pair of doubles and a single out of five times at bat.

In an exciting nip and tuck battle, climaxed by a two-run rally in the eleventh inning, Albright defeated the strong Penn Athletic club, of Philadelphia, by the score of 6 to 5.

Behind the four-hit flinging of Alec Smoot, the Lions came from behind on three occasions. At the end of the regulation nine innings, the count was deadlocked 2 to 2. In the tenth inning, each team scored twice, again deadlocking the count. Penn A. C. registered a lone tally in the second extra inning, only to see the locals eke out a victory on a walk by Oslislo, a double by pinch-hitter Felty, a smash to the box by Trexler which scored Oslislo, and a wild pinch by Simon, relief hurler for the Pennacs.

Although extremely potent with the willow, the Hinomen were woefully weak in the field, committing many errors.

"TROJAN WOMEN"

The students of Cedar Crest College, Allentown, will present Euripides' "Trojan Women," in their outdoor theatre on Thursday and Friday, June 4 and 5, at 6:30 in the afternoon.

Pauline Shaadt Kocher, head of the music department, has composed all of the music for the choral odes. The dance patterns for these odes are the creation of Dorothy K. Landis, head of the department of physical education.

This is the twelfth production of this kind to be presented at this college during commencement week.

PEACE ATTITUDE POLL RESULTS

Only four per cent. of our student body would be willing to bear arms or otherwise support every war which might be declared by the United States government. Fifty-four per cent. of the students would be willing to support only a war to repel an unprovoked invasion of continental United States. These percentages were made known this morning by Professor Milton W. Hamilton, head of the history department and faculty adviser of the International Relations club, who conducted the poll under the auspices of the Emergency Peace Committee.

In answer to the question whether the United States government should, in seeking to protect the lives and property of its citizens in foreign lands or on the high seas, refrain from resort to war under all circumstances and always restrict itself to pacific methods, 66 per cent. of the boys and 64 per cent. of the girls said "Yes," 22 per cent. of the students replied "No," while 12 per cent. were in doubt.

There are 26 per cent. of the boys and 18 per cent. of the girls who refuse to support any war, civil or international, and 14 per cent. more are not willing to approve of or participate in any war engaged in by the United States government.

The general consensus on the Albright campus concerning United States' joining the League of Nations seemed to be negative. 52 per cent. voted "thumbs down" even with the provision that only the United States would determine if and when the United States should use armed force to support the Covenant of the League. 31 per cent. are in favor of this proposal, while 17 per cent. have no opinion. The general conclusion to be drawn from the poll seemed, according to the sponsor, to be that the students don't want war, but that they do not have faith in the League of Nations as a preserver of peace.

CHESS CLUB

Three Seniors, William Harris, Malcolm Reider, and Leroy Garrigan, were presented with charms for their service to the college chess club during the past four years, at a meeting held on Wednesday evening in Selwyn Hall. Officers elected for the coming year are: President, Jack Lutz; Secretary-Treasurer, Arthur Steitz; Miss Elsie Garlach of the French department is faculty adviser of the organization.

The presentation of awards closed the successful season of the year during which the club was victor in four out of six matches.

ALUMNI DAY

Under the direction of Mr. Elmer L. Mohn, president of the Alumni Association, elaborate plans have been completed for the Alumni Day ceremonies to take place on our campus on Saturday, June 6. The program will include athletic contests between alumni teams and the present varsity teams. This part of the program will be supervised by Coach Clarence L. Munn. A business session will be held following the Alumni luncheon in the dining hall. New officers will be elected for the coming year.

At 3 o'clock the new Alumni Memorial Library will be dedicated by Dr. Frederick K. Stamm, noted radio lecturer and author. A literary tea will follow this dedication address in the reading room on the first floor of the new building.

"A Peasant Festival in the Bavarian Alps" will be the theme of the evening's banquet and entertainment. Supper will be served in the stadium and a program by a cast of about two hundred will dramatize life in the German villages of the Alps. This will be, according to the announcement by Mr. Mohn, one of the most spectacular celebrations ever held on our campus.

At 9:00 o'clock the 36th anniversary of the founding of the Kappa Upsilon Phi fraternity will be observed in the new home on Union Street. The charter members of the fraternity have signified their intention of attending this anniversary program.

The committee in charge of arrangements includes in addition to Mr. Mohn the following: Mrs. Florence Schlegel Miller, Mr. Leonard M. Miller, vocational guidance director of Rockland County, New York; Mr. Edward Binkley, treasurer of the Berks County Alumni association; Mr. Fred A. Howard, graduate manager of athletics and president of the Berks County Alumni association; Miss Isabelle Willard, and Miss Thelma Magnus.

"In the acquirement of, what we feel justified in calling it, a fine, appropriate school library, the school is to be congratulated. The undertaking of the head master of collecting a large number of books suitable for the purpose was perhaps somewhat formidable, but by the united efforts of masters and fellows a solid foundation has been laid—yes, more than a foundation—for we really believe that now Selwyn Hall has one of the very best libraries of the schools of the country. The reading room, which has been lately renovated, is large and well lighted, and we may say one of the pleasantest rooms in the house, as it should be. The cases, three in number, are well filled, and now it is the desire of The Cadet to see another filled before the close of the year. To accomplish this end, work must be immediately begun. We feel sure that every fellow, when he goes home for the Easter vacation, can secure one or more volumes, and we earnestly ask them not to neglect this matter, but to put the life into it that its importance deserves."

The above article is reprinted from the April, 1886, issue of "The Cadet," the student publication of the Military Academy housed in Selwyn Hall. Selwyn Hall will be 100 years old on June 6. Appropriate ceremonies will be held under the auspices of the Albright Alumni Association, of which Elmer L. Mohn, Elizabeth, N. J., is president.

Dr. J. Warren Klein, Coach Clarence L. Munn, and Dr. Graham Cook addressed the Metropolitan district of the Albright College Alumni association last Saturday. The Albright quartet rendered several musical selections.

A five-and-a-half-pound girl, Elizabeth Rose, was born to Professor and Mrs. Paul I. Speicher on Monday, May 11.

Mrs. Randall Snyder, of Allentown, was a week-end guest of Miss Marie Kleppinger last week.

Jan VanDriel, college chef, spent last week-end in York City and Morristown.

Charles Moravec was one of the many thousands visiting the largest zeppelin in the world, the Hindenburg, on Sunday, May 10.

Coach Munn and the Riffle boys were the guests of honor at the annual banquet of the Business Men's Association in Corning, N. Y., last week.

Miss Ida Gaiamo, former student of Albright College, became Mrs. Allan Meseroll. Miss Esther Fenili, a classmate of Mrs. Meseroll's, was the maid of honor.

Sidney Shefrin and Julian Polansky spent the weekend in New York.

The Pi Tau Beta fraternity had its open house on Tuesday, May 12.

The freshman class elected its officers for next year on Monday, May 11. The results were as follows: Marshall Selikoff, president; Frank Persico, vice-president; Gene Gaines, secretary, and Bob Hoppes, treasurer.

That bus load of visitors that we had the pleasure of entertaining, were prospective students from Rockland County, New York.

Last Thursday J. Walter Reider, noted violinist played three selections during the Freshman Chapel service. Mr. Ralph Tragle was his accompanist.

Mr. George Britton, tenor, formerly of Reading, accompanied by Ralph Tragle, Reading and Philadelphia pianist, presented a musical program in chapel on Wednesday, May 13.

Dean George W. Walton presented an appropriate address at chapel on Monday. His topic was "Trees."

Marshall Brenneman, '34, and now a member of the Y. M. C. A. staff at Paterson, N. J., was a recent visitor at the Pi Tau Beta fraternity.

"Y" GROUPS ELECT

Betty Campbell was elected president of the Y. W. C. A. for the coming year at the annual election held on Monday. Other officers for 1936-'37 are vice-president, Marian Heck; secretary, Mary Falcone; treasurer, Mildred Newkirk; and day student representative, Eleanor Richards.

To head the Y. M. C. A. for next year, the active members elected Gerald Boyer as president. His assistants will be vice-president, Charles Ream; secretary, James Reed; and treasurer, Lewis Briner.

The annual installation service will be held in the Evangelical School of Theology Chapel next week when both presidents appoint their working cabinets.

The Men's Glee Club, which will present a concert with the Albright Choral Society and the Albright Quartet under the direction of Willy Richter, on Sunday, May 17, at 3 P. M., in the Little Theatre of the campus.
