Development Plan Presented To Board

42 Albright Students In EUB Pageant

Forty-two Albright students, together with students from Lebanon Valley College, will present "The Wild Olive Branch," an historical pageant tracing the development of the Evangelical United Brethren Church, October 12 in the Zembo Mosque, Harrisburg, Pa. The pageant is scheduled for the Sunday session of the General Conference of the church.

The hour-and-one-half long drama, highlighting significant events in the church's history, will feature orchestra, organ and choir music; drama and pantomime; and a verse speaking choir.

Dr. J. M. Thurmond, professor of music at Lebanon Valley, will direct musical portions of the pageant. Patricia A. Hostetter, director of dramatics, is in charge of drama.

Narrative Group

Members of the narrative group are Ruth Hansen, '60; John Weaver, '61; Agnes Oaks, '61; Sally Dettra, '59; Carol Matz, '62; James Geiselman, '60; William Garrett, '59; and Robert Perless, '59. The main cast includes John Weaver, '61, as Martin Boehm; Howard Vassallo, '59, as Philip William Otterbein; Jack Price, '62, as Christian

No Downtown Float Parade

A survey of the organizations scheduled to compete in the Homecoming Day float parade indicates that, although the idea of moving the float parade to downtown Reading is generally favored, it would be impossible to accomplish such a move this year.

Willard Stitzel, '60, chairman of the Homecoming committee, reported to student council that his committee has therefore decided against any such project. Stitzel also stated that the idea was well received by the downtown merchants and city officials.

Reasons

The main reasons for deciding to postpone such a project are the lack of time between now and Homecoming Day, and the fact that the weekend is filled with other activities.

Stitzel stated that the organization members want to take floats of excellent quality downtown when, and if, they decide to undertake this project. Such a desire would probably lead to working late into Friday night. This would prohibit students from attending the Ivy Ball.

Herbert Zakrisson, '59, student council president, suggested that council should consider the idea of having the Ivy Ball set for a time other than the Friday night preceding Homecoming Day. "I realize

Ivy Ball Kicks Off Homecoming

Ivy Ball is set to kick off Homecoming Weekend. To be held Friday, Oct. 31, from 8:30 p.m. to 12 midnight in the Physical Education Building, this traditional dance will be the first of several events scheduled for the weekend.

The crowning of the Homecoming Queen, who may represent any class, will highlight Ivy Ball. Her nomination and election will be under the direction of the Student Council Election Committee.

Theme

"You and the Night and the Music," the theme of the dance, will be carried out in the publicity, decorations, programs and favors. Johnny Barker and His Redcoats will furnish the music for the ball.

Committee chairmen for the Ivy Ball include Marianna Wonder, '60, general chairman; Janice Hochhaus, '60, decorations; Jane Yeager, '60, refreshments; Linda Hershberger, '61, program and tickets; Sandra Stricker, '60, and Marilyn Catlow, '60, publicity; Gary Skala, '60, special lighting effects; and Alan Seifart, '60, music.

WSA Accepts IAWS Invite

The Women's Student Association has accepted an invitation to participate in the state meet of the Inter-Collegiate Association of Women Students. The meet is scheduled for October 18 at Pennsylvania State University.

Selecting "The Multiple Role of Women Today" as their central theme, the delegates will discuss religion, standards of conduct and similar topics during the workshop periods.

The women of Albright, provisional members of the IAWS, have been selected to serve as recorders for the event. Full membership is slated for the local chapter at the national meeting of the IAWS, to be held sometime later this year.

Sarah Dettra, '59, WSA president, will head the Albright delegation.

10 Year Program To Cost 5.2 Million

A $5,200,000 program for the development of Albright College was presented to the College Board of Trustees by LeRoy M. Burkholder, director of development.

Lions To Meet Flying Dutchmen Tomorrow

Albright College will fight to keep its 1958 record spotless tomorrow night when the Flying Dutchmen of Lebanon Valley College invade the stadium at 8:00 p.m.

The Annville gridders, coached by Ellis McCracken, also sport a clean slate, having defeated Wilkes College in their lid-lifter last weekend. They will also be out to avenge last year's defeat when the Lions laced the Dutchmen, 32-8, Albright's only win of the season.

Line Averages 218

The starting Lebanon Valley forward wall will average a hefty 218 pounds. Giant tackle Ken Longenecker, at 325 pounds, will be the heaviest man on the field. Two other two-hundred-plus men will start up front for the Dutchmen, increasing the load on the Lion linemen.

Valley coach McCracken expects this team to be his best in five years. Twenty-one men returned from last year's squad which posted a 3-3 log. Each of the eleven starters is a holdover from a year ago.

Albright Leads

Albright College leads in the long series between the two clubs which dates back to 1892 when Lebanon Valley won, 18-11. Since then, Albright has won eighteen contests, losing fifteen. Two games were deadlocked.

Lebanon Valley last took the measure of an Albright team in 1953, when they earned a 13-0 victory.

This plan includes a survey of the school and its facilities and recommendations for development over the next 10 years. The plan outlines the arrangement of the school's financial needs into a 10 year fund raising effort.

Since the centennial campaign for funds, costs have risen so that additional funds are needed for the chapel. Then, too, the financial obligations of college operations must be considered and the debt retirement for the Albright Court dormitories must be paid. Funds must be raised for the food service building.

Science Hall Addition

There are plans for an addition to the science hall to increase both classroom and teaching facilities. Additional library facilities including physical expansion and augmentation of volumes is contemplated. Building modernization is a part of the plan also.

Expect 850

Until the future picture of students seeking a college education becomes more clear, an expected enrollment of 850 by 1959 will be used. Within the next 10 years additional residence halls are to be built which will accommodate this increased enrollment. In the event of a greatly increasing resident population the infirmary also will have to be enlarged. The infirmary may be a separate building or a unit of a building.

The building and land needs of the college represent 40% of the total program. Non-building needs represent 60%. The non-building needs include a plan for a faculty

Council Hears Committee Reports: Lipkins Heads Rally

Due to a lack of interest on the part of student council representatives, a non-council volunteer was given the task of planning tonight's pep rally and bonfire. The appointment of Stephen Lipkins, '61, to head the pep rally committee was announced during Tuesday's meeting of council.

Council also heard reports from the Homecoming and Friday night activities committees, discussed the Ivy Ball, and received a report from Lipkins during the regularly scheduled meeting.

Stitzel Reports

Willard Stitzel, '59, (APO rep.), reported that the Homecoming committee, which he heads, has decided against holding the Homecoming Day float parade downtown. Citing as reasons for this action the lack of sufficient time and an already crowded weekend, Stitzel told council that the idea was favorably received both on campus and among the merchants and city officials of Reading.

Student Council President Herbert Zakrisson, '59, suggested that council consider the idea of having the Ivy Ball scheduled at a time other than Homecoming Weekend. Zakrisson stated that he knew it was too late for any such change this year, but that it should be kept in mind for future action.

Arthur Younkin, '60, (APO rep.), reported that last Friday's dance was "quite successful." The Friday night activities committee has scheduled a dance for tonight to begin immediately after the pep rally.

Pep Rally

Lipkins told council that the cheerleaders, a "representative" part of the college marching band, and members of the football team will attend tonight's rally.

The rally is scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m. and will last approximately one hour.

Suzanne Schick, '59, (Pat rep.), announced that Michael Weinhold, '61, (Zeta rep.), has missed three consecutive council meetings and is no longer acceptable as a student council representative. Miss Schick requested that Zakrisson direct the Zeta Omega Epsilon fraternity to elect a new representative.

Absentees

Other absentees were Gerald Bauer, '60, (Pi Tau rep.); Kenneth Messner, '59, (Day man rep.), second consecutive absence; and Stanley Michelak, '60, (Zeta rep.), second absence.

Sophs Score High On Comprehensive Exams: 28 Score 'Off The Profile'

The results of last year's sophomore comprehensive exams appear favorably impressive.

A report, compiled and recently released by Dr. Milton G. Geil, director of the college Psychological Service Center, points out the areas in which, according to the norm tables, outstanding achievement was demonstrated by the Albright sophomore class.

Converted Scores

The Albright converted scores, based on a norms table determined by the Educational Testing Service prior to the administration of the tests last spring, were placed in quartiles (00-24, 24-49, 50-74, 75-100) by Dr. Geil for facility in comparing them.

In every one of the five areas tested: reading, writing, science, mathematics, and social studies, the Albright class average was higher than the national norm average. Over 70% of the sophomore men and women scored in the upper half of the profile. The expectancy there is 50%.

Women Score High

Almost 72% of the women in the class of '60 scored in the highest quartile in writing.

In science, math and social studies 40% of the male students made scores in the highest quartile. (The expected percentage for each quartile is 25.)

In reading, 32% of the men and 52% of the women scored in the highest quartile. In both science and social studies, 56% of the women scored in the 75-100 quartile.

"Soph" Nebbish

Man, I went off the profile. The wrong way!

Seventy-five percent of the women made scores in the upper half of the math profiles.

In the overall picture of Albright soph scores, the two middle quartiles, 25-49 and 50-74, have close to the expected 25% in each group math, which has 40% in the 50-74 quartile. However, our scores in the two extreme quartiles do not follow the national norm. Our percentage in the top quartile is, in all cases, above 25. Only from 3 to 8% of the scores fall in the lowest quartile in all cases except reading, where the 17% is still 9% below expectancy.

28 'Off Profile'

Among the persons scoring in the highest percentile, 28 sophomores actually went "off the profile" in one or more of the tested areas; that is, they obtained scores higher than any anticipated by the testing bureau. Of these, 21 scores "went off" in writing, three in science, three in social studies and one in reading.

STEP Norms

The above results are all based on comparisons with the norm table set up by the testing bureau of STEP (Sequential Tests of Educational Progress). It determined its norms from the sample performance of approximately 200 entering sophomores in 97 schools. As yet, there is no data available to show how the above predetermined norm compares with the norm of the overall nation-wide results. The tests were taken by 22,000 sophomores in 135 colleges simultaneously last spring.

Since this exam was the first of a new series, the results cannot be compared with those of previous years.

Schlegel Scheduled By Pre-Legal Society

The Epsilon Nu Pre-Legal Society has scheduled as its first speaker, Raymond Schlegel, '51. Schlegel, a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania Law School, will address the group on "The Trials and Tribulations of the Young Lawyer."

Having as its purpose "to acquaint undergraduate students with the study and practice of law," Epsilon Nu is the youngest organization on campus. The initial meeting is set for 7 p.m., Wednesday, October 8, in Teel 204.

that it is too late to accomplish such a move this year," stated Zak-rison, "but I would recommend that we consider such a change of schedule for the future."

The Albrightian contacted Daniel McDevitt, mayor of Reading, and William Ruoff, city councilman, in an effort to obtain their opinions of the suggested downtown float parade. Both men expressed a favorable attitude toward the proposed move.

Development Fund

improvement fund. Such a faculty fund would provide for increase in faculty salaries and would foresee a possible enlarging of the faculty in view of a growing enrollment.

The impact of the entire development program on the future of the college will not be fully achieved unless the endowment is tripled in the next 10 years. Currently Albright has an "average endowment when compared to other colleges its size." Burkholder stresses the fact that the endowments of our contemporary, relatively small colleges will also increase in the next 10 years.

Albright development includes plans for the general promotion of the college, its expected increase in enrollment, determination of the needs of the school in view of the current financial support and the need for acquisition of additional land or buildings to meet the physical requirements of the college program.

Shirk And Grant Attend Seminar

Dr. Samuel B. Shirk, chairman of the student publications committee, and Thomas Grant, '59, editor of the Cue, will attend a yearbook seminar at Abington High School Monday.

Sponsored by William J. Keller, Inc., the seminar will cover all phases of yearbook publication. Topics are finances and organization, scheduling and production, typography and production, theme art and layout, covers and binding, and photography.

Specialists in each phase will conduct the separate discussion periods. The seminar has been designed to familiarize key yearbook personnel with the Keller Yearbook Manual.

Kangaroo Court Sentences Frosh

The Kangaroo Court sat in session Monday evening. Fourteen Customs violators were brought before the Court to plead their cases and, when guilty, receive their just sentences. (By some strange coincidence all 14 were found guilty.)

Charges ranged from not carrying a copy of the Compass to being insolent to an upperclassman. Eight freshmen women were assigned the task of washing the steps of White Chapel, directed to sing the Alma Mater every day this week and told to wear appropriate signs.

The male violators were assigned punishments ranging from wearing pajamas to class to collecting 1000 used matches from the campus.

The Kangaroo has announced that the Court will sit again next week.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

by Dick Bibler

The Kangaroo Speaks

(Editor's Note: The Kangaroo requested this space for the purpose of relaying his message to the Frosh. It seemed like such a small thing for the Albrightian to do.)

Frosh, beware!

The voice of the Kangaroo is upon the campus.

Fourteen of your comrades heard me speak Monday evening. As the chill of night descended over the campus, the 14 were taken from their studies and brought to the place where I and my court sit.

Blindfolded, they were led before the court. Our most esteemed group listened to the horrid accounts of their delinquencies, judged them and pronounced punishments befitting their transgressions.

This is not the end. I have called the court into session again. Too many of you Frosh are taking Customs too lightly. We have our ways of dealing with you.

So when the sun sets this Monday evening, listen for the knock at your door. The Kangaroo may summon YOU!

Don't Sit There

An under-manned, under-sized Albright squad traveled to Philadelphia last Saturday to meet a larger, in both size and depth, Drexel football team. We all know the outcome.

We also know that it would be foolhardy to predict a winning season on the basis of last week's game alone. It would be even more foolhardy, however, to state that the Red and White's first victory of the season will be their last one.

The team stands a good chance of defeating Lebanon Valley tomorrow night. With another victory under their drawn-in belts who can say how far this hungry Red and White eleven will go?

Your support is needed and deserved. Attend the pep rally tonight and the game tomorrow. Let the team know that you are proud of them.

For those of you who have been waiting for "something to cheer about," here is your opportunity. Use your cheering to praise last week's effort and to urge the team to duplicate the feat.

Don't sit there and stare at the cheerleaders!

Dead Wood Reps

What kind of representatives are we sending to student council?

Because council members refuse to show any interest in the responsibilities of the positions which they accepted, a non-council member volunteered to head the pep rally committee.

When Herbert Zakrisson, '59, student council president, asked for volunteers to assist in several small tasks, no one stepped forward.

A student council member was disqualified for missing three consecutive meetings. (Perhaps even worse, the senior class does not have a student council representative.)

When are we going to wise up?

Student council and the other campus organizations are only as strong as the representatives we select.

Get rid of your dead wood!

The Dark Spot

By TOM GRANT

Thoughts in transition. Interposition of intellect and infinity. Bleeding fingers on the rocks of Parnassus. Calvinism, Pragmatism, Freudian Psychology. Who understands? Who gives a damn? Each an attempt to give meaning to a void. Each adding something to unalterability. Effort in the midst of futility. Futility engrained in all effort.

O! Where is the reality for which man searches?

Reality is the apple a child bobs for at Halloween. Even though the apple evades the tiny mouth, the bite is small, the satisfaction of hunger is negligible, but the apple has been pecked at, and the skin has been pierced.

Reality is an instantaneous awareness, an eternal longing — as all existence is a longing.

A smelly, rain-drenched dog longs for a door opened; a man longs for a woman; a writer longs for a publisher; a scientist longs to reach the moon, then after reaching the moon, longs to reach Mars, then Saturn, then?

All that is hoped to be immortal will perish. Cities will continue to be built upon cities. Genealogies will continue to lengthen and the oldest names forgotten. Graves will continue to decay and greatness and wreaths will eventually disappear from before tombstones.

Immortality is not contained in the material or physical, it is contained in an individual's few moments of response to reality. These responses may occur undetected by an individual, yet they will remain immortal, because they can be grabbed, experienced and shared by others.

Korean Student Likes American Methods

By PARIS GADZOURIS

Last October, Chin Hwas Row, an Albright freshman, came to the United States for the first time. He left his hometown, Kwangju, Korea, to study political science. After attending Juniata College for one semester, he came to Reading with the aid of James Mantis, a Reading restaurant owner.

James, as he is called by his friends, says that he hopes to see the day that Korea will be as fine a country as the United States. American teaching methods appeal to him better than the Korean ones because he can learn for himself by reading the books of his choice rather than just writing down what the professor says.

Musicians

Having played the clarinet in the University of Korea Symphony for three years, he prefers classical music. He has also had two years of piano lessons. When asked about Rock 'n Roll, he said that he prefers waltzes, tangos, and fox trots. For pastime activities, he likes to go to the movies—he saw "Three Coins in the Fountain" three times—likes to listen to music, and discuss world problems. He also enjoys teaching his roommates how to write "I love you" in Japanese, Korean, and Chinese. He has mastered these three languages in addition to English and is now learning German.

James was one of thirty-two students to have an audience with Syung Man Rhee before coming to the United States. He remembers most of all Rhee's plea to the students to come back to Korea and carry on his work.

After graduation from Albright, James plans to get his master's de-

Albright Is Talking About

By BARBARA SYCHTERZ

The motion made at Student Council that the annual Homecoming Parade be held on Penn Street this year. In my estimation, this is a truly great idea. If the idea is acted upon by Mr. Stitzel and his Homecoming Committee, (as I hope it will be,) the parade will really make the people of Reading sit up and take notice of Albright. A parade on such a large scale will also spur the various fraternities and sororities on campus into making bigger and better floats. And I'm sure you'll all agree that a little competition never hurts anyone. As the situation now stands, Homecoming is an event participated in by only some of the students and alumni of Albright. If we could move the parade down to Penn Square, it would become more of a community affair, whereby Albright College would assume a more important role as an integral part of Reading. So, let's get on the ball, Willard, and make this the best Homecoming that Albright and Reading ever saw.

'Swingin-Sub'

A juke-box that would revolutionize the "Sub." It seems that there are quite a few students on this campus who would like to see a juke-box installed in the "Sub." A juke-box in the "Sub" would really liven the place up. It would also be an invitation to more students to congregate down there.

The amazing victory of our football team last Saturday. We may be small, but we're good. As the old philosopher says: "The bigger they are, the harder they fall."

The insincerity of some of the students on this campus. It seems as though some people don't know what they want. When Student Council failed to provide an All-Campus Dance two Fridays ago, the students of this school were quick in rising up in protest. So, Student Council, willing to please the students, in whatever way possible, organized a dance for last Friday night. And what was the result of their efforts? Poor attendance—that's what. Granted that the weather was somewhat inclement, but that only excuses some of the day-students. Where were all of the boarding-students? In comparison with the enrollment of this school, the attendance at the dance was negligible.

The activities that are planned are arranged with the well-being of the student body in mind, therefore, isn't it only fair that we should attend these activities? I think so, and I'm sure that you do too. So let's not be social failures, let's get out and show some school spirit. Remember, there's a football game tomorrow night at the stadium. Let's fill up those stands, and show Lebanon Valley what real school spirit is.

Coed's Delight

By LOU ROSS

'Twas a cool, windy, moonlit night,
That fell o'er the campus at Albright,
That started the Coed's delight—
A lass being hugged by a lad
With all, all of his might.

Now the petting of youth is surely right,
But some consider love an evil
sight,
So faculty decided to clamp down
tight
In an effort to end the Coed's delight.

The board of trustees all joined the fight
To circumvent use of white moonlight,
And a letter to parents they did write
In an effort to end the Coed's delight.

So from all ports, parents took flight
And on campus gathered, one chilly fall night,
But these legal lovers, too, felt the bite
Of the bug that causes the Coed's delight.

Lions Tangle With Dutchmen Tomorrow

Mack Leads Harriers Into Haverford Meet

The fine running of captain George Mack will lead the Albright College cross-country men into their first meet of the year with Haverford here Saturday, October 4.

The harrier captain, who holds the school record in the half-mile, will begin his fourth year of carrying the Red and White colors for coach Gene Shirk.

During the current season, Mack will endeavor to inspire the Albright team to better the 6-5 record of last year.

Accounting Major

Mack is a day student, residing at 1950 Perkiomen Avenue, Mount Penn. A senior accounting major, he will graduate this January at the mid-year commencement exercises.

The local lad has proven his running ability during his career at Albright. Last spring he acted as co-captain of the Lion track and field squad while competing as a middle-distance runner. He ran in the two mile, mile and a half and one mill events for the Red and White.

Mack is president of the Kappa Upsilon Phi fraternity. As secretary of the Inter-Fraternity Council last year, he helped promote relationships among the four fraternities.

Photography Hobby

When he is not on campus or studying, Mack likes to spend time with photography, one of his hobbies. He enjoys sports, too, having played intra-mural basketball.

His experience in accounting enables him to serve his church as the assistant financial secretary of the Sunday school.

The Boy Scouts of America are fortunate, too, in having the services of this Albright senior. He is assistant scout master of Mount Penn Troop No. 1.

He graduated on the honor roll from Mount Penn High School in June of 1950. He played four sports during his stay at the suburban school and was a member of the first inter-scholastic volleyball team there. Soccer gained his attention in the fall as did track in the spring. The winter months saw him on the swimming team.

After graduation, he enrolled in the McCann School of Business in Reading.

Army Duty

The ever-rolling eye of Uncle Sam singled Mack out while he was at McCann's School, and before he knew it he was wearing the uniform of the United States Army. His two-year tour of duty was spent at Fort Lee, Virginia, where he served in the quartermasters corps. Mack is now in the United States Army Reserves and attends their weekly meetings every Monday at the reserve center.

Mack will begin his fourth year on Gene Shirk's cross country squad tomorrow when the harriers face Haverford at home.

INTRAMURALS

By STEVE NICOLO

Our lesser exponents of the pigskin game have begun banging heads on the intramural level. All four fraternities, the Daymen and the Courtiers make up the six team league which is now in its second week.

The APOs and the Zetas are off to flying starts, having gone undefeated in their first three games. The Pi Tau men managed to pull one out of their red and black hat while the Kappa, Day and Dorm elevens have yet to wear the victory laurel.

The boys from Olive Street, managed by bouncing Paul Marella and Captained by bumping Dave Townley, squeaked past the Kappas in their opener, 14-6, on the strength of Bobby Shoupe's deadly aerials. The daymen were next to test the might of last year's champions, and test it they did. They gave the APOs only seven points, but that was seven more than they could get.

PTB Surprised

PTB was first to be surprised by the efficiency of the Zeta offense which managed to score twice in the two 25 minute periods. Most of Young's flips wound up in the arms of Don Cockell who makes it a point to be in the right place at the right time. Final count, 14-0.

The Daymen threw a scare into the Alsace Athletes before finally bowing, 14-6, in a game that was anyone's to the last. The hustle displayed by the local boys should give coach "Tiger" Seifart good reason to sport that Cheshire smile. The Dorm squad proved somewhat easier for ZOE but the line play of short, stocky Ray Fraiese is something that should be scouted by future opponents of the Court's eleven. The final in that one, 19-0.

The only other winner on the eve of printing was Pi Tau Beta who scored their victory over the Daymen organization. Going half the length of the field on a completion to Bobby Jones, the men of Red and Black came from behind to win it, 15-7. PTBs biggest single asset is Levie Benedict, a guy who likes to throw the long one.

Current league standings:

Zeta	3	0	0
PTB	1	2	0
Kappa	0	1	0

Lions Upset Drexel With 21-0 Triumph

The Albright Lions encountered little opposition last Saturday afternoon in Philadelphia as they outplayed and out hustled Drexel Tech for a 21-0 victory.

The Lions completely dominated the host Dragons in the initial contest for both squads. The relentless running of fullback Gerry Bricker, who gained more rushing yardage than the entire Drexel team (104 yds.), led the spirited Albright attack.

Drexel's Only Threat

Drexel's only real threat occurred in the third quarter when Bill Alter recovered a fumble on the Albright six. On the next play, Jim Doremus picked up a Dragon bobble, and the Lions were out of trouble. Only one other time, late in the final period, did Drexel penetrate beyond the Albright twenty yard line.

Both teams exchanged punts in the beginning of the game. Drexel attempted a field goal from about 35 yards out. The kick was not good, the ball going into the end zone, and Albright took over on their own 20 yard line. Eight plays and a 15-yard penalty later, the Lions went into the lead, 6-0.

80 Yard March

The 80-yard march was aided by two twenty yard runs, one by Frank Sudock and the other by Gerry Bricker. The latter play put Albright on the ten yard line with four tries at paydirt. Mike Matto picked up three, and Bricker matched it before Sudock rambled over from the four. The attempted pass for the extra point was no good.

Later in the same period a Drexel punt put the Lions in a first-and-ten situation on their own twelve. A draw play by Bricker and Matto's 21 yard jaunt enabled Albright to penetrate Dragon territory to the 49. Mike Weinhold bit off a 28 yard chunk of turf, Matto ran twice, and Bricker carried for times, the last for the second Albright touchdown.

As provided for in the new ruling, the Lions earned two extra points on a pass from Sudock to Gary Sheeler. The score stood: Albright 14, Drexel 0.

A costly Drexel fumble led to Albright's final tally. Joe Zador, Dragon halfback, lost the ball while gathering in a Claude Lynch punt. Weinhold recovered on the Drexel 23 yard line. Dick Crouse, Sudock, and Bricker worked the ball to the one where Bricker broke over the right side for the touchdown. Lynch kicked the PAT and Albright, maintaining this lead to the final whistle, won, 21-0.
