"Compass" Now to be College Publication

The "Compass", the annual handbook for freshmen, is for the first time this year being published by the College. Having as its editor the Director of Public Relations, the frosh manual will now be in the form of a directory.

The publication was a previously published and edited by the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. This year's edition is expected to be mailed to all freshmen before the opening of school, announced Lester L. Stabler, Public Relations Director.

For her graduate degree, Miss Baker took courses in student personnel administration, educational foundations, group activities in colleges and secondary schools, vocational and educational guidance, and mental hygiene.

Gym Instructor

While attending Boston University, the new dean of women was active in student publications, dramatics, athletics, and group work, and served during summer vacations as a camp counselor and supervisor in an orphanage. Miss Baker was a gym instructor at St. Mary's High School, and did group work at Greenwich House and Grosvenor Neighborhood House in New York City. Education and You

This summer, many Albrightians have contended with summer jobs in order to help with college expenses. With their fellow workers, students from other colleges, they have been following the path of the students before them and keeping it open for those who follow. It is all part of an endless procession.

Too often, as a part of this procession of those who have chosen to advance themselves through higher education, we complete our studies and follow a pattern without thinking and never comprehending the value of this opportunity. What is the value of this opportunity? It is said that you get out of a thing only what you put into it. Thus it is with college. If we concentrate on studies alone, the result is the well-known book worm, a nice chap who is a good target for jokes. Any extreme is dangerous.

During our college years we want to put ourselves wholeheartedly into several campus activities such as studies, clubs, student government, social life, and the other organized activities, and into the companionship of dorm, day-room, and campus. In this way we learn to respect others' opinions, to see the good in others, and to delve under the surface of others to better understand human nature. And, after all, since the important part of our world is the people in it, our striving towards understanding human nature is of prime importance.

Perhaps we should ask ourselves why we are going to college and what we are going to do with this advancement after we have been graduated. After four years of working and studying, we should be able to show the world about us good reasons for going to college, for spending extra time, money, and health on educational advancement. If we earn more money than others, is that reason enough? Some of the richest people in this nation never finished high school, while many college graduates live in threadbare clothes for the remainder of their lives. Our motives should be higher than the search for wealth; reaching out of the selfish realm; they should shoot for the higher stars of civilization. The wealth of great men has not lasted down through the ages, but the deep thoughts and the great deeds of men still mark our lives today. We too should try to give to the world the best of that which we gained through college.

Looking at population statistics, one says—but "I" cannot affect the whole world. Yet each person can make the world about him a better place, and each person is only a part of the endless procession of those participating in higher education and in turn giving of their best to their individual environment.

Let's put our hearts into the campus life so that we can give in full to a world which has given us so much.

Come Cheer Alma Mater

When we hear the familiar strains of our Alma Mater, we are filled with joy—or at least we should be. We have that peculiar feeling inside of us—the feeling that makes us cheerful, the same feeling that sometimes makes us sad. And that feeling is school spirit.

School spirit is an immaterial thing. It's one of those free things in life, and it's something that every loyal Albrightian should have.

It is only fitting that we speak of school spirit at this time of the year—the football season! Yes, school spirit plays a great part in our athletic contests and events. There is no need to impress upon every Albrightian the importance of school spirit. Although our 1946 football team was not too successful, this year's team can be a great team. Our coach, his assistants, and the players themselves will try their best to have a successful season—but, every single Albright student must also help. Yes, that means YOU. We must let them know we're behind them—not 50%—but 100%. Our school spirit will help to determine whether or not our gridiron campaign has been successful.

So—kids, let's get on the ball! Let's learn those cheers and Alma Mater! When that football season starts, let's go down to that stadium and cheer our team to victory! By earnestly participating in all campus activities, every one of us should have good school spirit—and be filled with joy when we hear...

"Hail, hail, the Red and the White
Hail Alma Mater with a cheer..."

Our Policies

Occasionally "The Albrightian" is criticized for either not printing a news item or for favoring the news of one campus group over the news of another college organization.

It is the policy of "The Albrightian" Staff to attempt to print all worthwhile news. If any individual or group has any news, we ask that it is not kept as a secret. Any worthy news submitted to us or "dug up" by our reporters will make print.

Another policy which is strictly adhered to is the non-partiality in printing the news. No one campus group shall dominate where the position of its news in the paper or the frequency with which the news items shall be printed.

We try, in so far as we are able, to show no favoritism. However, for an item to be printed, it must first be news.

By ANNE ONYMOUS

Oh, what strange things happen at outings! Johnny Woynarowski was seen slinging the hatchet at the summer school doggie roast held at Hampden Park recently. Albright's own Paul Bunyan, eh? Carl Lieberman and our sports editor, Big Dave, were caught cheating in pinochle. Naughty, naughty!

It was also noticed that a certain faculty member managed to consume a great deal of food. I wonder, I wonder! We hadn't known that Prof Green was an expert in the manly game of quito. He's ready to take on any and all opponents. Any professionals interested?

And what do we hear from the Science Hall? The biology students were never happier than on Friday, August 15. It seems that Prof Hollenbach was convening at a convention. Here's to longer conventions!

Have you heard the walls of the Science Hall echoing the strains of the current song of Chemistry 4b—'Tis Mince, 'Taint Mince? You haven't? My, what you aren't missing! And yes, it's rumored that Dr. Scoles is a chess-nut. So, that's where he learned to "check" those chem papers!

Now for that Casanova, Heber Yeagley. He is supposed to be a counselor at Chococnut Camp. But the girls' camp across the way seems to be a big job for him, too!

Wedding bells are still ringing for several Albrightians. Barbara Pearsall and Chester Keffer will be married on Sunday, August 31. On September 10, Gloria Landis and Ralph Miller will walk down the aisle. Johnny Yocum and Bill Davis will also have September weddings. Oh yes, that nurse from back home marched Eldon Snyder to the altar recently. Ah, love, love, love!

Joe Coleman has been handing out cigars to celebrate the arrival of young Gregory Augustus Coleman. Joe, a first-time papa, was so worried about the arrival of little Greg that he almost had a nervous breakdown. Rumor has it that Mrs. Coleman is expected to recover before Joe. Also among the new parents are Vic Gillis and the Bud Fromouths.

Annie's sympathy to Prof Speicher, who broke his wrist in falling off a bench. And this just proves that an apple a day doesn't always keep the doctor away!

By Donald Ordeman

This column is dedicated to William "Baggie" Tragle, who claims that his name did not appear here last time. Evidently Bill can't recognize his own name anymore, for it certainly was mentioned. Maybe physiology has something to do with that, eh Bill? Anyway, best of luck at Temple. Johnny Deam is scheduled to go to U. of P. Medical School. We're sure all departments will miss him, especially Prof Merkel. The same holds true for Eddie Kalbach, who leaves for dental school. Some of the other worthy science students scheduled to go to medical and dental schools this September are Willard Grubb, Val Koltun, Perry Mats, Mark Powers, and Dick "Cookie" Duster. Bertollette. (If you don't know what we mean by that nickname, take one look at Dick.) If we have missed anyone, please let your reporter know.

Well, the end of summer school is almost here, and if you take a walk about the Science Hall, you will see many interesting things. You might, for example, see a little group of

AN OPEN LETTER TO FRESHMAN

Dear Fresh:

Very shortly you will be entering into a period of indoctrination into college life known as "Orientation Week." During that time, you will be dined, danced, teled, picnicked, advised, preached at, and prayed over. Needless to say, you will also be confused. But when in the very depths of confusion, never despair. Just look at the seniors and say to yourself, "If those dopes can graduate, anyone can."

And now, while your mind is still open, papa will tell you about hazing. Hazing is the revered practice of putting frosh through all sorts of indignities, discomforts, and torments in the belief that it will instill a feeling of humility and proper respect towards alma mater and upper classmen. Whether it does or not is always a disputed question, but hazing is carried on mostly because it is an old college custom continued in all colleges simply because it is an old college custom. Anyway, if you weren't hazed, you wouldn't know you were in college—you might think you were still at Podunk High.

You will also learn without any help from papa which courses are the "snaps," how to make your required courses as painless as possible, how to paraphrase for term papers, and how to shove Pop Moser's pinball machine without tilting.

And now let me give you some vital statistics. While at Albright—

- 49.6% of you will graduate
- 12.3 will be drafted
- 7.1 will get married and/or have children
- 5.1 will succumb to dining-hall food
- 19.3 will go mad taking biology 2
- 5.9 will never survive hazing
- 7.4 will break heads playing football for alma mater
- 8.0 will be caught robbing banks to pay tuition.

All of which adds up to 114.7%. Oh well, so it's a big class.

I'm sure this won't discourage any of you. Besides, it's too late to transfer now. Remember—faint heart never won fat diploma. Just keep an open mind, and don't let them fill it with any of that learned stuff either.

people looking at bottles and counting and another group waiting with a stopwatch and tinkering with an overgrown compass with a meter rule stuck through K's heart. Don't run away; they are just a group of embryo physicists obtaining H—the horizontal intensity of the earth's surface.

There's nothing to report from the Technology Department; in fact, none of them are so worn out they can't even talk. Prof Green gave Bailey a bawling out when he discovered that Glenn was breathing. While you are there, ask Bill Stavrides about the "belly button" on his cat. It seems he couldn't find the natural one, so he sewed on an ordinary button, astounding Prof Green by his claims of discovering that elusive portion of cat anatomy.

As you approach the upper floor of the Science Hall, you can hear the Frank Sinatra of organic chem lab singing. Yes, it's our little "mockingbird" Sokol backed up by a canary quartet made up of John Woynarowski, Steve Winter, Karl Walter, and your own venerable author. Here, there are signs of cracking up, as you can see perfect circles and dotted lines on the blackboard contributed by Don Fornwalt and Jay Carver.

While you are in the Chemistry Department, visit the quantitative lab and look a few of the gentlemen in the eye. Beary-eyed, aren't they? They got that way from counting spaces on the analytical balance. Are we correct, Zitman?

This just about winds up our last visit through the Science Hall for this summer, but we will be looking forward to seeing you all back at the building of wonders in September. This greeting I'm sure, goes out from the old to the new, who are just beginning their college life.

Although the heat's been bothering Dandy this summer (you'd be hot too with all that fur) he rises, stretches, and gives a healthy roar for one of his favorite sons, Bill Ebbert. Bill, when he stands still long enough to be recognized, is a lanky lad with glasses, a thatch of straw-colored hair, and a lot of nervous energy.

Bill, who hails from Wyomissing, has used up a lot of his inexhaustible energy serving and boosting his alma mater. He has been a loyal member of Kappa Tau Chi, Honorary Pre-Ministerial Fraternity, and International Relations Club both for four years. His writing and reporting talents have been exercised for the benefit of The Albrightian, and for his efforts he was awarded the sports editorship his senior year.

Bill also gave the "Cue" the benefit of his talents as co-editor of sports with Kenny Good. It is as a sportswriter that Albrightians will remember him best—an eager observer and rooster at all the games. Bill also was a member of the German Club for two years, the Daymen's Club four years, and the Interfrat Athletic Council his freshman year.

Among Bill's special likes are food of all kinds, cut-throat pinochle, and Thursday night sessions in The Albrightian office. Needless to say, the staff is going to miss Bill's capers and the famous Ebbert burp.

A pre-ministerial student, Bill intends to further his studies at the Theological Seminary in fall. Since his graduation at the end of the first half of the summer term, Bill has been hitchhiking solo over the U. S. At present writing, Bill is believed to be somewhere near the west coast, but wherever he is, here's good luck to a loyal hardworking Albrightian.

Summer Swan Song

Those students who haven't been too busy studying (or otherwise occupying the plentiful summer hours) have noticed many changes on campus.

Fraternity members have recalled with unconcealed joy the razing of Sylvan Lake, only to be sadly disappointed by the immediate construction of a new Sylvan Lake—smaller, deeper, farther removed from the College Dining Hall, but just as wet as ever and just as useable for enterprising pledges next spring. At this point we should perhaps bow our heads for a brief moment in remembrance of our beloved swan and babe.

"Farewell, beloved swan so fair,
Farewell, O glorian babe so bare,
Farewell, farewell, O ancient pair
Farewell, thou gods of beauty rare!"

We are indeed sorry to see these two lake inhabitants leave. (Let us only hope that the new Sylvan Lake need not have another such beauty mark.)

Conspicuous on campus because of their absence have been the squirrels. Maybe they've heard rumors about a strike in the cat embalmers' union. (This strike, incidentally, was precipitated by anatomy students who hoped to eliminate the cat from their curriculum—not mentioning a ny names in particular.)

The waste cans on campus should be a great boon to the cleaners—a boon, that is, if anyone takes time to notice them. Unfortunately for Hallowe'eners, these cans are bolted

FOOTBALL PRACTICE STARTS TUESDAY

Search for Basket Mentor Continues

Lion Gridders Prep for Season; Open Campaign with Millersville

Albright's newly assigned head football coach, LeVan P. Smith, announced that the Lion gridders will begin practice on Tuesday, September 2. This year, instead of roughing it at a football camp, the leather-luggers will work out two sessions daily in the College Stadium.

Smith, who piloted Albright's first baseball team in ten years through a successful campaign last spring, will be faced with the problem of rebuilding a team which will arise like the proverbial Phoenix from the ashes of Dave Strong's 1946 aggregation.

To date no assistant coaches have been named. It is expected however, that last year's captain, Bud Fro-mouth, unable to play this year because of wounds received in action during the war, will be on hand to assist Coach Smith.

Forgetting last year's record and looking to the brighter side, we see that the majority of last year's squad will again don red and white uniforms this season. Although losing Les Pushman, Ren Ridolfi, Herb Vogt, and Vic Gili through graduation, Smith will probably be banking on a team built around Mike Plaskonas, George Urosevich, Jerry Pedota, Bernie Koskultz, Al Harnly, George Baumgartel, and the other veterans. Top billing among the new freshman entries seems to point toward Filbert Laser, all-county tackle from West Reading High School. Last year's rookies such as Potty Chambers, Slug Oxenreider, Bill Wesner, Dave Koch also should be in line for action.

Lion gridders will begin practice in September, with all loyal supporters hoping for a winning team. So, to Coach Smith go our fondest hopes for all the breaks.

The ten-game scheduled released by Eugene Shirk, Faculty Manager of Athletics, includes four night games, three of which will be played on Friday nights under the lights at Albright Stadium. In addition to the Lions' games, local high schools will again use the stadium, making a total of fourteen night games to be played in the stadium this fall.

Lion Golfers Pastime In Local Tourneys

Albright's golfers, who performed under Coach Paul Matten's tutelage last spring, have been making their names on the greens this summer. The Berkshire tourney, fought back in July, found four Albrightians participating. Ed Funk, Aaron Taub, Howie Donitz, and Art Dunlop were the Lion representatives. Dunlop reached the finals in the fourth flight but bowed out in the flight finale.

Johnny Yocum, also a Lion golfer, recently got his name in Gordon Williams' "Chips and Putts" column in the "Reading Times." Seems Johnny was cavorting out at the Manor golf course that day. Frankie (three put) Casper has been looking shrewd at the game of golf. Your reporter shot a couple rounds at Pleasant Hills with him this summer. Looks like Paul Matten might have a new recruit on his hands.

than 15 months in the European Theatre where he served as an interpreter. This summer he is studying at the Middlebury College German Summer School at Middlebury, Vermont, in preparation for future graduate study.

Graduate Assistants Named

President Masters also announced the appointment of two Albright alumni as graduate assistants. Virginia Woerle will be employed in the home economics department and Larry Haag in the chemistry department. While at Albright, Miss Woerle was president of the Phi Beta Mu Sorority and the W.A.A., and was Art Editor of the "Cue". A Pi Tau Beta, Haag was a member of the Alchemists Club and Skull and Bones Society.

At the same time, President Masters announced the resignation of three members of the Albright family. Robert A. Deach, who began last February as a graduate assistant in the chemistry department, will leave Albright to attend the Medical School of the University of Georgetown in Washington, D. C.

City Tennis Title Won by Coach Bloom; Hildebrand Dethroned

In one of the most impressive tennis matches ever staged at the Albright College courts, Albright tennis mentor, Leo Bloom, whacked his way to victory and the city tennis title over Paul Hildebrand. In smashing Hildebrand three sets to two, Coach Bloom ended a reign on the part of "King Paul" which extended ever since 1940 in unbroken string.

Bloom was superb, combining hard, backhand smashes and a blistering service to turn back the perennial Reading tennis monarch. Bloom dropped the first set and was forced to come from behind to rout little Paul in the ensuing two sets. Paul Hildebrand beat Bloom in the fourth set to knot the rivalry at 2-1. However Bloom, rallying swiftly, nosed through to win the fifth and deciding match to walk off with the title.

Elsewhere Bloom's proteges in the tennis "racket" have been playing in various matches around the city! John Dohner and Paul Siegfried fought in the same city title match that their "boss", Leo Bloom, won. Dohner and Siegfried also saw action in various city and county title matches.

Intramural Sports Open to Fresh

Freshmen, meeting Albright for the first time, will have plenty of room to choose recreational activities. A full program is on deck with the Athletic Department directing the activities. All freshmen will be invited to participate in the intramural program on the various teams. The three sports offered are touch football, basketball, and softball.

Freshmen will have opportunity to join the Daymen teams, the dormitory teams or form one among their friends. Soon after the fall term begins, touch football will be in the limelight. Following football a red hot basketball season pursued by an even more torrid softball season will complete the program.

Medal Awards on Hand

For the first time in the history of men's intramural sports at Albright, medal awards will be given to each member of the victorious clubs of each sport. With this as an incentive, the program will probably meet with roaring competition in all fields. From past experiences, the writer feels that participation in these contests will not be a wasted effort. So comon' frosh, let's see you in the intramurals!

"Pete" to Leave

Peter VanDriel, Albright's chief cook, has resigned to take a similar position in New Jersey. President Masters then revealed that Leonard VanDriel, Peter's brother, will stay at Albright and become chef. The new kitchen-master has had experience in country club work and was a steward at the Berkshire Country Club.

Mrs. Harting Resigns

Mrs. Levi Harting, assistant in the Albright Alumni Memorial Library for the past three years, has submitted her resignation to accept a position with the American Casualty Insurance Company.

That Hardwood Situation

By Dave Voigt

I hopped down to Mr. Shirk's office just before press time hoping to get the low down on the choice of the new Lion basketball pilot. Sorry to say that at the moment Shirk has no earthly idea who the new court mentor is going to be. It seems like new cage custodians are scarce as the proverbial hen's teeth—anyway at least good ones. So it looks like the local athletic council of Alma Mammy will continue to scout the hardwoods with an open checkbook.

Local Pre-Min on Hitch-Hiking Tour

Although the character of this story is hardly an athlete, in the bruiser sense of the word, he has set an enviable record for eccentric athletes in the future to shoot for. To begin with it was ex-sports editor, William Ebbert's sad lot to have to survive six weeks of summer school heat while attending Albright classes to achieve his diploma. And round about the fifth week I realized something was wrong with the lad.

Consequently, I was hardly surprised when he came through with the alarming announcement that, immediately after the conclusion of the first summer semester, he would begin a hitch-hiking tour of the country. Imagine my extreme shock upon receiving, two weeks later, a post card from Little Rock, Arkansas. On the back of the card was a fond hello, plus a plan for further action.

Ebbert didn't stop there. A week later another card arrived. It seems my old boss was at Pike's Peak, Colorado at the time. He complained of a snow storm which was in progress while he was clad only in an Albright "T" shirt. (Must remind Gene Pierce to order fur lined ones for next year's purchasers).

But stick around, folks! The lad had approximately $150 in coin of the realm. Five weeks have elapsed since his crusade and still no Ebbert. The most recent card hit me last week and came from the far off Canadian Rockies. Who knows but perhaps our boy is beyond the ice cap by now. At any rate he must be too broke to afford any more post-cards. Leave it for a sports writer to show our athletes how things should be done!

But when one really starts to consider the problem it seems that a lot of the worry and gray hairs can be banished without further ado. For with all the material which will be walking the campus, they could pick "Lynwood" and still come up with at least a 500 season.

There's been a persistent rumor fitting about, which, if it materializes, will make a lot of basketball fans happy. Eddie Anlian, last year's flash, and holder of the most valuable Lion Athletic award may return to Albright in the fall. You will recall at the close of school there was much talk about big Ed taking off for some engineering school. Eddie's return, if the rumor materializes, will leave only Russ Guensch, who graduated, missing from last year's squad. Filling Russ' charmed shoes is going to be a king sized job for anybody.

Added to last year's terrific squad will be the return of some of the stars from the immortal '44-'45 aggregation who copped 19 out of 20 games that season. Cookie Wagner looked like a million bucks in last year's season with Modern Dairy. Ray Chelius, crack set shooter, will also be looking for front line duty. Add Jesse Ervin, Jim Braun, Stew Beyerle and their Modern Dairy teammate, Dan Bieber, and you've got the answer to a coach's prayers.

That '44-'45 bunch really had a system. There used to be a pinocle game or two going on in the locker room just before game time. Then between halves the boys would switch to a little friendly poker just for a change. Alf Deach and Tiny Landis, two other mainstays of that squad, managed to perfect the art of booting field goals through the door transom of the men's dorm. I just wonder what's going to happen when the '44-'45 bunch with their little eccentricities meets with the bow tie wearing outfit of last year. It should really be a prize to watch!

Here's some dope for you incoming freshmen ball hawks. There may be a freshmen team instead of a junior varsity squad. However, this needs official confirmation and also the O. K. of the new coach—whoever he may be. Whether freshman or J. V. there will be plenty of court action scheduled for next year. Don't miss out on any of those games, fans!

ALBRIGHTIAN STAFF

An issue of The Albrightian will go to press shortly after school opens—before we can organize completely—so look on the assignment board as usual for your assignments. Since we will be working with a depleted staff, 100% cooperation of the seasoned reporters still on campus will be needed.

The '48 Packard convertible that some of us have seen on display is a good example of how most of us begin every new year—green, push-button control with a minimum of brain work, and essentially on the installment plan. Maybe the incoming frosh won't be that way but they always have been.

Council Holds Outing For Summer Students

Over sixty summer school students attended the doggie roast held at Hampden Park on August 11. The event, sponsored by Student Council, was the first outing for the Albrightians attending summer school. Games, including baseball, pinocle, and quads, were enjoyed and prizes awarded.

Science Profs Attend Pa. Academy Confab; Green Vice-President

Dr. Clarence A. Horn, and Professors Marcus H. Green and Charles B. Hollenbach represented Albright College on August 15 and 16 at the 1947-summer meeting of the Pennsylvania Academy of Science, of which President Green is the eastern vice-president.

The Academy, which met at Susquehanna University, Selinsgrove, Pa., visited on the first day of convening, the epileptic colony in Snyder County. The scientific value of this tour was emphasized by the facts that the colony, extending over 1600 acres of land and caring for a thousand patients, is the only one of this type in Pennsylvania, and that doctors of the colony conducted discussions pertaining to that field. The group also visited the American home of Joseph Priestly in Northumberland and viewed some of his original chemical equipment.

During the evening session the subject of the preparation of qualified scientists and science teachers was discussed.

On August 16, the group of scientists took an extended tour of approximately twenty miles along the Susquehanna River Valley. A geological study of the area by the group revealed fossils, several of which are now in the possession of Albright College.

Attending the convention were professors from all the larger universities of the state and from many of the smaller colleges, as well as Pennsylvania high school instructors and representatives from the Pennsylvania Department of State. Dr. Horn is a charter member of the Academy and a former president.

Recent Graduates Spread Fame of Albright As Teachers, Technicians, and Scholars

Following commencement, the Class of 1947 scattered very quickly into many different fields of endeavor. As nearly as we can gather from the latest reports, this is what the class will be doing in the future.

Alice Albright has accepted a position teaching home economics at Shoemakersville High, while other home ec teachers are Mary Ellen Hill at Hamburg High and Louise Trostle in the Reading School District. Joy Cutler will serve as a dietician at Altoona High School.

Marion Fiedler has been engaged to teach English in Mt. Pleasant and John Kissinger to teach social studies at West Reading High. Vic Gill will be the Spanish instructor in the high school at Netcong, N. J.
