Date of Ivy Ball Set for October 24 By Student Council

Second Annual Affair To Climax Customs Following Induction

Student Council has announced Saturday night, October 24th, as the date of the second annual Ivy Ball. This was released by Miss Sally Weaver, council president, after the first meeting of the Albright governing body, Wednesday, September 16th.

The all-college affair, inaugurated last year will follow the formal induction of the Frosh into the student body, to be held Friday, October 23rd.

Final details of the Ivy Ball have not been arranged as yet; however, Miss Polly Brossman, program chairman, has announced that orchestras and hotels are being contacted in the effort to make the ball a smashing success.

First Dorm Meeting Hears Miss Stevenson

Ten o'Clock Limit Is New Regulation

Miss Mary Jane Stevenson, Dean of Women, addressed the resident women of Albright College at the first dormitory meeting of the year in Selwyn Parlors on Monday night.

With a few exceptions the girls' regulations for the coming year will be the same as those of last year. Miss Stevenson announced that the time limit for regular permissions would be ten o'clock instead of ten-thirty. The reason for this rule, which was requested by the administration, is to allow more study time for both men and women. It is assumed that the men will study after leaving the girls. The parlors will be closed at eleven o'clock except on Saturday nights or in the case of special permission.

The girls will sign out for their hour permission after dinner, until other arrangements are made. Miss Stevenson explained all regulations in detail for the benefit of the frosh. Following Miss Stevenson's talk, Dormitory Council president, Ruth Hand, made several announcements. Ethel Mae Yeakel was chosen to head the dormitory flower committee, which is composed of volunteers, who will be responsible for purchasing and arranging fresh flowers in the parlors and entrance halls to increase the homelike atmosphere of the dorm.

"A Smattering Of Ignorance"

Did you ever have someone come up to you and say, "Hey there, how about turning into a talent scout for the dear old 'Albrightian'?" And then add, (maybe he was just trying to scare me) "OR ELSE!" However I accepted the assignment and began a truly aboveboard search for hidden talent in the "younger set."

Feeling much like Dr. Gallup, I began my survey. I found we have a sleight-of-hand artist in our midst in the person of Paul Mattson. His only comment was that the upper classmen are "pretty neat!"

We all have seen the effect of last Tuesday night's tribunal meeting, but you should have seen the victims minutes before the fatal hour. "Rete" Keller and her roomie, Patsy Ann (without the "e", please) Bartlett fulfilled a command appearance before your reporter. "Rete" was biting her nails, moaning "Oh that Schneider guy," and both gals were demanding that I recall my trip to tribunal. After answering their questions, I proceeded to fire a few of my own. They think Albright is one grand place, the students are swell, but customs were one step better—they were a

Miss Esther Fenili Named Library Head

Assumes New Post At Reading Branch

Probably many of you have noticed the absence of one of the most charming and popular professors on campus, Miss Esther Fenili. She has assumed the position of head librarian at the Spring and Moss St. branch of the Reading Public Library.

During the summer Miss Fenili earned her B. S. in Library Science at Columbia University, thus fully equipping herself for the position she now holds. For five years prior to that time she was assistant professor of Spanish at Albright. Her father, Dr. Raphael Fenili, is head professor of that department. Miss Fenili received her B. A. from Albright; then she went on to earn her M. A. in Romance languages from Columbia University.

The meeting was then devoted to questions and discussions about dormitory courtesies and regulations. At eleven o'clock, Miss Hand adjourned the meeting and the girls left, feeling very well satisfied with the plans inaugurated.

Drs. Douds and Geil Get Appointments

Others Of Faculty Enjoy Vacations

Dr. Milton G. Geil has been appointed chief examiner for aircraft pilots in this locality. He has given psychological and aptitude tests to four groups of prospective pilots. Dr. Geil wrote an article entitled "Personnel Guidance" which has been accepted recently for publication by the Social Science Journal. On Sept. 22nd he will address the Berkshire Heights P. T. A. on the subject, "Areas of Family Stress Growing out of the Emergency."

Dr. J. B. Douds has been appointed acting secretary of the Debating Association of Pennsylvania Colleges in the absence of Prof. R. T. Oliver of Bucknell. Prof. Oliver was called to Washington to aid in the National Speaker's Bureau.

Dr. Douds attended the English Institute at Columbia University from Sept. 5-7. This meeting of scholars was held to discuss topics of literary history and criticism. Among those present was Andre Maury, the French biographer. The most unusual discovery of a document containing a signature believed to be Shakespeare's was revealed at this meeting.

Professor Lewis Smith spent the summer at his cabin in the mountains, and did a bit of farming.

Miss Louise Eastland, librarian, worked at the School of Theology library in the early part of the summer and enjoyed the remaining months in Florida and her home in Portage.

Mrs. K. F. Freeland, assistant librarian, spent her vacation at Mannit, Mass.

Kauffman Acting Head Of P. B. M. Sorority

In the absence of the president, the Phi Beta Mu Sorority of Albright College voted last Monday night to have Marie Kauffman, vice president, serve as acting president until Mrs. Margaret Henry returns to college in January and resumes her duties.

ics, with her mind made up to transfer later. Both girls love Albright and are in favor of customs, dorm meetings, line-ups, and even classes on Saturday, but have a fear of the "horrid old tribunal."

Of the many other Freshmen to whom I have spoken, let me tell you they all are swell. Here's to a grand year, but don't ever forget to

Night School Opens Headed By Dr. Geil

Training Program Continues This Year

The Engineering Science Management War Training Program, sponsored by the Office of Education in Washington, will be offered jointly by Albright College and Penn State College on Albright campus for the second year, under supervision of Dr. Milton G. Geil, administrative head.

Thirty-seven courses are available. Each is based on some phase of engineering. The classes will be held four nights a week, Monday through Thursday, from seven to ten thirty o'clock, for fifteen weeks. Among its thirty-three instructors will be four men from our faculty: Dr. Graham Cook, Prof. Newton S. Danforth, Prof. John C. Evans, and Prof. Paul I. Speicher.

The approximate enrollment is 850. Of this number 25% is expected to be women, a small part of the fifteen million women in industry.

The only cost of the courses to the student is the price of his textbooks. There is no tuition fee. The work is on the college level, and in order to be eligible for enrollment each person must be a high school graduate, or its equivalent in industry. The status of any applicant who is not a high school graduate will be determined through a personal interview with Dr. Geil concerning his length of service and the type of work done in industry.

At the completion of the course there will be a certificate awarded, stamped with the Penn State College seal. However, there is no college credit earned.

Dick Weber Elected President Of Zetas

Dick Weber, senior from Roselle Park, New Jersey, was elected first semester president of the Zeta Omega Epsilon Fraternity to succeed Clifford Balmer who is now with the United States Army at Aberdeen, Maryland.

James Mosteller, Sinking Spring, was appointed Vice President, while Vester Peters was voted into the Secretary's position. Bill Spangler, treasurer; Lester Koffel, chaplain; and Paul Carls, Intra-Fraternity Council Representative, complete the new Zeta cabinet.

Combined Glee Clubs Hold First Rehearsal

On Thursday afternoon, September 24, the first rehearsal of the glee clubs was held. It included both the Men's and Women's Glee Clubs; also the new freshmen members.

Because of the shortage of tires and gasoline, neither club can plan out-of-town concerts. However, attempts will be made to contact various Reading churches and, if arrangements can be made, the organizations will visit them and offer programs to the local people.

Eight girls and two boys of the freshman class and two upperclassmen have been added to the clubs: Patricia Bartlett, Phyllis Carter, Martha Friedericks, Helen Grass, Jean Harer, Margaret Hendricks, Elizabeth Hummel, Mary Jane Weber, Thomas Chapman, and Harold Ulmer — all freshmen; George Evans and Cecil Pottelger, upperclassmen.

So You've Got a War-Gripe!

Every day I hear someone around here complaining about this war and all the evils it has brought—the shortage of gas, rubber, aluminum, sugar, meat, and countless other articles which we have much too long taken for granted. Rarely do I hear anyone remarking upon the improvements that have come about as the direct or indirect result of wartime regulations. Let's take a moment to look on the brighter side of life—and there always is a silver lining to even the blackest clouds if you just try to turn them inside out.

The bright spots are many. Though there is a shortage of coffee and tea, there seems to be plenty of milk and at last the eternal prayer of some of us dorm students is being answered: we are getting milk in the dining hall without having to get up for Jan's midnight breakfasts. And did you ever stop to think that even when meatless days do come there will still be plenty of wholesome fruits and vegetables done up in the glass jars that are rapidly replacing the old tin cans which you had to buy hoping that the food inside would look like the picture on the outside. The rationing of paper napkins may be a little hard on those day students who usually have their lunch supplied by the "slap together, wrap, and pocket" system from the dining hall, but think of the boom it will be to Pop Moser and Doc Boyer—and goodness knows Pop's always complaining about how much money he is losing in his "high class" luncheonette.

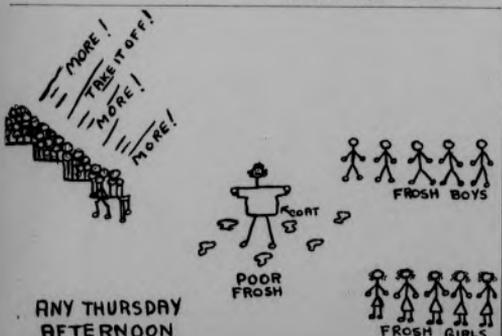

Now let's take this car trouble. Maybe some of you fellows with "A" gas rationing cards and slightly worn tires with no prospects of priorities coming your way do feel that fate is all too unkind. If you'll just take a minute to read the Reading Street Car Bulletin you'll be so thoroughly convinced by their persuasive "editorials" on the waste of "stop and go driving" that you'll wonder why you didn't think of the rationing idea yourself. And just think of what a big favor you're doing the trolley-commuting day students by patronizing the Reading Co. This quick prosperity might encourage them to turn in a few of those Toonerville Puddle Jumpers for some newer models. After all, we must take the comforts of the day students into consideration. And as far as not being able to go nocturnal "sightseeing" on Mt. Penn via car, take the inconvenience with a smile and cooperate enthusiastically in the Hale America program by hiking to the tower. Maybe we can arrange some more "Him Hikes".

Now I suppose you'll wonder how I'm going to find a ray of sunshine in the fuel shortage problem. It's really simple: maybe Student Council will feel justified in subjecting the poor resident men to the ordeal of coats and ties. And on the girls' side; they'll need sweaters to make up for the lack of heat in the dining hall, and the dining room committee may break down and allow them to wear some of those dress sweaters that they claim are only suitable for dinner. Anyway I'm still wondering who the excuse for a male is who actually complains about girls wearing sweaters to dinner.

The stocking shortage is another item about which there is much hullabaloo, but since it's patriotic to go without them another dining hall ban may be lifted and many allowances will grow fat on savings from stocking bills.

People may complain all they wish; but I believe that, contrary to Hitler's expectations, this war is solidifying the American people more than any other single thing could ever have done. I find the people I know more tolerant, more cooperative, more willing to lend a helping hand, friendlier, more appreciative of what real benefits they have, and more determined than ever to keep America at least as good as it is now. So keep smilin', keep laughin', keep happy, and let the shortages come where they may!

—ETHEL MAE YEAKEL.

Sob Sister Sue

Monday, Sept. 14.

Dear Diary:

Boy am I tired! After riding for hours and hours to get here, I arrived just in time to miss dinner! Some cute kid (he's a Freshman, too) showed me the way to a hamburger joint called Pop Moser's or Pap Moser's. There I cashed that ten dollar bill the folks gave me. You know, Dear Diary, I've been thinking that maybe I'll buy me a new yellow wooly sweater with what's left of that money after I buy my books. Uh! Those three hamburgers, double malted, and rootbeer must be holding a red hot jamboree! Guess maybe I'd better look around for my bed. I know it's here in my room somewhere, but where? . . . What's that behind my trunk? Oh, it's only my roommate and a pile of clothes. . . Sure, but isn't there anything under that stuff? Wait a minute, I'll see. . . By darn, guess what, Dear Diary, I found it! My ping pong ball! I found it! And my bed—well, ho hum, good night, Dear Diary, and sleep tight.

Tuesday, Sept. 15.

Dear Diary:

Oh, those horrible tests are over. (And I am I!) They weren't too bad, but I won't mind one bit being in Miss Stevenson's grammar class. You know, I wonder who that other cute little professor was who took charge of Freshman devotions this afternoon. I know one of them now—Dr. Gingrich (I guess that's how it's spelled.) This evening he gave one of the snappiest after dinner speeches—a retort to Dr. Gell's spurious remarks. And Dear Diary, you should see those upper classmen—I mean those who spoke tonight at the dinner—Gene Pieve, Sally Weaver, Ruth Hand, Nicky Schneider and Bruce Kinsey. They're so smart and dignified. Will I ever be smart and. . . Will I ever be smart too, Dear Diary?

Wednesday, Sept. 16.

Dear Diary:

Toss me another bromo, please! I stopped counting tonight after the fifth dog. After that my partner just fed them to me. Oh, what fun! (for him). No kidding, Dear Diary, we all had an A-1 WAAACY time. What if our feet did ache all the way home from Egelman's. This tire rationing! Now Sue, no unpatriotic thoughts. You know you love to walk. Umm—yeah! And can I doze off in a hurry tonight. Good night Deamnnnn.

Thursday, Sept. 17.

Dear Diary:

My first day of classes—and I had to get up at that unheard-unseen hour of 7:30 to get to an 8:00 class. Doggone it, if we freshmen don't get all the breaks. Here, have a cookie, Dear Diary. I snatched it from my big sister at the pajama party. You should have seen her in that red number! Pat Smith, the M. C. wore cute pink P.J.'s with big white polka dots. Betty Werley, that dangerous Junior, was slumming with some cute cookies and a half pint (of milk). Scoop Hopkins and Joyce Moyer came "deb" style in stunning house coats. As the evening wore on, pajama legs were worn up. Then came that most captivating of all games—that dangerous business of "chasing your man." Our men, however, were a bit pale from the experience, for the girls had no peace until they had nipped off an arm or a leg here and there to get the desired results. You see, Dear Diary, they had to chase these poor newspaper doll men all over the floor as they fanned them from one end of the room to the other. Just one more thing, Dear Diary, I think Alice Voit should get a medal for bravery. To think she had the courage to stand up before her peers and, without flinching, ask Mamma Ruebsamen point blank where tribunal would be held. Well, sweet dreams, Dear Diary, while I finish my last cookie (the only one my roommate didn't get).

Friday, Sept. 18.

Dear Diary:

Remember the ten dollars I had Monday? Well, I guess that yellow wooly sweater is definitely OUT. Those books cost a gold mine. From now on it's second hand books for me! Anyway, I've got something to make up for that—guess what? My first date. You're a, uher the cute fellow with freckles that fed me all those dogs at the freshman party? Well, need I say more? Oh what a heavenly night! We went to see Abbott and Costello and then stopped in for a soda and hamburgers. Uh! Where's that bromo?

Saturday, Sept. 19.

Dear Diary:

I had two classes this morning and oh, what a day! I just now got back from the reception and am I happy 'cause I didn't spill a drop of punch on my shirt. It certainly was a snazzy affair with the faculty showing up in their shiny best (The pants without the pockets). You know, Dear Diary, I can't figure out whose ~~and~~ it was—the Juniors or the Faculty. Those Juniors were surely taking it hard. I think it's about time they earned who's who on the faculty. Woe be it unto them if one faculty dame had been misplaced. Her name would have been likewise.

After that foot jitterbugging with that Jumping Jive Fredericks, guess I'll just have to rest up tomorrow, 'cause if this next week is anything like last week, I'll have to stock up on vitamin pills. But I'm game. Let's go!

Good Night, Dear Diary.

LITTLE SUE.

French Club Meets Sing Norman Songs

"The Province of Normandy" was the theme of the first monthly meeting of the French Club held in Selwyn Parlors on Wednesday at 7:00 p.m. Miss Elsie Gerlach, club sponsor, displayed post cards and snapshots of the province, and Miss Lillian Schwenke, club president led the members in appropriate songs.

IN MEMORIAM

Paul A. Hartman, one of the most outstanding chemists from this college, passed away September 15th at the age of thirty-six. A graduate of Schuylkill Seminary, class of 1927, he was a research chemist in war gases and gas masks for the United States Army. Mr. Hartman recently had set up laboratories at Northwestern and McGill Universities.

"Y" Vesper Services Begin Sunday Evening

Vesper Services will now be held at 7:30 every Sunday evening in the newly dedicated Sylvan Chapel. The services will be directed by the "Y". All students are asked to cooperate in making these services successful. Those of all faiths are cordially invited to attend, and will be asked to assist in conducting the programs.

The services were previously held Sunday afternoons, but have been changed because of the possible interference of students going on afternoon hikes.

With this arrangement, the "Y" hopes to secure more faculty support, and provide evening services for those who might not attend otherwise.

Staff Meeting

"Albrightian" staff members will meet at 1:00 P.M. today in room 210. All interested freshmen are invited to attend.

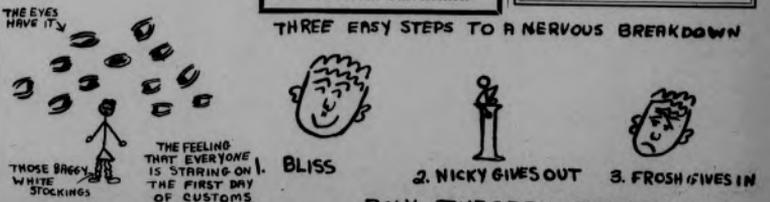

From time to time, odd jobs are accomplished miraculously and silently on the campus, and the people behind those jobs remain unknown and unsung. This column intends to bring some of those studies and studentettes to the fore. All the seniors, Juniors, and even some of the sophomores are "big sisters and brothers" to our motley fresh crew. Somebody had to see that the two met and that's where our two Dandy Lions, Mildred Ruebsamen and George Evans, stuck out their necks. In addition to their summer vocations, they had to send addresses to all the grown-up members of the campus and urge them to get in touch with the new arrivals.

Mildred Ruebsamen, "Millie" to you, is that effervescent junior home economics major who is continually flitting from chore to chore, followed more than frequently by Eugene Pierce. She's a true "girl from the city," the metropolis being Philadelphia. Millie is an active member of the Pats, Domino Club, Heo Club, Y.V.C.A., and the "Albrightian" staff. During her free moments, she stands before a mirror inventing still more intricate twirls to display as she struts down the gridiron with the band. Yes, she's Albright's lone drum majorette. Next to chewing gum, Millie enjoys talking most, and can she chatter!!!

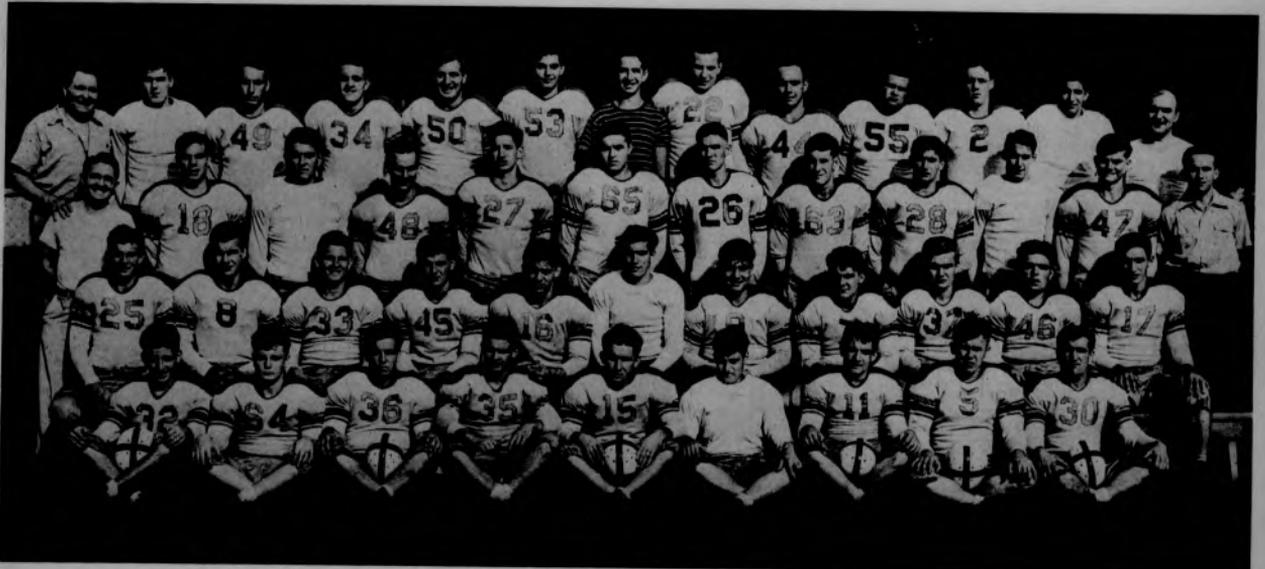

George Evans is the not-so-dignified senior who now serves as the campus paper boy. Through him you can order practically every paper published in the United States, including the "Albrightian." (This is not an advertisement; we charge for them). He is a lad from New York state who boasts an uncle on the faculty. George, a preacher in the rough, belongs to the debating team, Y.M.C.A., and the "Albrightian" staff. He resides on the second floor of the theology building. Because of his rise to the top of the upper class bracket, he wishes henceforth and forevermore to be known as George Moyer Evans. Don't start shrieking, girls, if you see him walking around with something alive; it will probably only be his pet snake.

How about an individual for Millie and George???

By DICK MAJOR

Undoubtedly some of you are wondering where all the Roaring Lions of 1941 are and what they are doing now. We're going to try to do what we can to throw some light on the subject.

Of the eleven boys who were seniors last fall, six are in the service. Curiously enough, Tom Lubin and Roy Conner are both in the Army Air Corps and both are stationed at Keesler Field, Miss. Steve Plaskonis is in the Army, too, and stationed in Alabama. Burd Miller now has a pair of silver wings on his khaki uniform, and Frank Bertino is awaiting call to active duty in the Marine Corps.

Of the other six not yet in service, Stan Kuklis is working for Hercules Powder in Radford, Va. With him are two other Albrightians, Steckley and Miller. Black Sam Coccodrilli is employed at Reading Steel in this city, and Chuck Klein holds down a job with the Atlas Powder Company somewhere in Missouri. The only one of the seniors in graduate school is Jimmy Breen, who is studying medicine at Georgetown University. Mike Dutzer is working for the DuPont Chemical Company, while Paul Michaels has enlisted in the Army signal corps and expects his call from them any day.

Five of our underclass gridlers went into the Naval Air Corps together this summer. Pat Nappi and Johnny Killiany, loss of whom is giving Coach Dietz quarterback worries; Herb Vogt, Sammy LaRue and Herb Derr make up this contingent of would-be fliers. The Army has gotten some others of course, including Vic Gigli and Bill Demidovich. George "Baldy" Urosevich enlisted in the Navy this summer to complete the picture.

To the best of our knowledge, the above info is correct; however if you know any correction or any other items of interest about athletes of Albright now out of school, please turn them in.

Albright Hockey Team To Meet City Girls

The Reading Recreational Department is forming several hockey teams this year in the hopes of increasing the popularity of that sport. Practices are being held every Saturday afternoon at 2 p.m. on the Albright hockey field.

Albright girls are invited to attend all practices and instruction classes which are held also on Saturday afternoons. Mrs. Mosser suggests that girls interested in playing hockey this season should come to these meetings.

Regular Albright varsity hockey practices will be held on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons. There is a possibility that two varsity teams be formed this season; therefore, more girls will be eligible for varsity hockey.

Because of the difficulty in securing transportation, there will be no intercollegiate games as in previous years. Instead, games will be played with the Reading Club teams and other teams of the vicinity.

Pass Books Issued

As a substitute for our former activity ticket, a coupon type pass book will be used this year, which must be presented to the ticket collector. The first coupon will admit you to tonight's game.

A.A.C. Lead Cheers For Indiantown Gap

The Army Auxiliary Corps of Berks County will supply the cheering section for the Indiantown Gap boys tonight. This organization of girls will have five peppy cheerleaders to back up the snappy Gap team.

Other girls will be seated in a "V" formation on our opponent's side of the stadium. Mrs. Spies, the sponsor of the entire group, hopes to have a mule to serve as a mascot this evening. Any display cannot be too spectacular for the boys from the Indiantown Camp, so this Army Auxiliary Corps will do their best to make it that way for the soldiers tonight.

Snappy Color Guard To Wear New Boots

The color-guard will really be stepped up this year. Boots have been ordered and will probably arrive in time for the first game tonight. This will add color and dignity to the band in general.

A definite system of cooperation has been planned between the band and the cheerleaders. Besides marching with the band, the cheerleaders will have the field for cheering, and then the band will play. No longer will there be a confusion of cheers and music at the same time.

At the same meeting the council adopted rules for intra-mural football. The attempt to codify the system of play for touch football reads as follows:

The rules of the Intra-mural Football League shall be those of the National Collegiate Athletic Association with the following corrections and exceptions:

Ithaca Here Oct. 2 Replacing Mansfield

Bombers Fill Albright Card

The administration announced Monday that Ithaca College of Ithaca, N. Y., had been signed to fill the date left open when the Mansfield State Teachers cancelled their October 2 game with the Lions. "The Bombers" were originally scheduled to play American International on that weekend, but the match was called off.

We have two mutual opponents with the Blue and Gold, West Chester and Moravian. Last year Ithaca won two and lost four, beating Kutztown 20-0, and losing to the powerful West Chester Rams, 28-0, in the process. This year Ithaca is scheduled to have one of the most potent teams in the school's history, so you can be sure sparks will fly when Coach Jimmy Freeman's men trot out under the lights next Friday.

ODT Asks Colleges To Curb Mass Travel

Ticket Control Suggested Solution

The Office of Defense Transportation has requested all college football authorities to develop such individual plans for their football games and other athletic contests this season as will eliminate mass travel of week-end crowds by bus and railroad.

Close supervision by college officials over the distribution of tickets to these games has been suggested as one way to control the influx of fans. Already the University of Pittsburgh has tightened up on its ticket distribution with this end in mind.

The University of Michigan telegraphed to determine whether the statement by Joseph B. Eastman, ODT Director, on curtailment of travel, meant that Michigan should transfer its home football games from Ann Arbor to Detroit to enable fans to use local transportation systems. Michigan explained that at Ann Arbor the attendance minutes between the first and second halves.

17 States Represented In 44-Man Squad Of Initial Opponents

Major Harry Menges of Reading is to blow the kick-off whistle at 8:30 p. m. tonight to start the grid-iron battle between Albright's Lions and the soldiers from Indiantown Gap Military Reservation.

The men in khaki will be well represented in Albright's stadium. Besides the squad of 44 men from 17 states which will do the actual playing of the game, there will be between 300 and 500 soldiers, including a military band, to enjoy the spectacle. All men in uniform will be admitted free.

Head coach for Indiantown Gap is Joe Hill, a lawyer from Lebanon. Hill played guard at Colgate in 1930, '31 and '32. He was mentioned for All-American honors and played for the East in the annual New Year's East-West game. He coached Wellesley (Mass.) High School, then served as an assistant coach at Harvard while he attended law school there in 1934, '35 and '36.

J. Gordon "Pete" Smith, the Indiantown backfield coach, started at Lebanon High School. From there he went to Temple to play three years under Pop Warner. He was also given All-American mention, and played in the Sugar Bowl Classic the following New Year's Day.

End Coach Captain Paul Weirich of the Signal Corps played four years at Stronovsville (Ohio) High School, then served as assistant coach there.

After meeting Albright tonight, the Indiantown Gap team goes to meet Lock Haven S. T. C., the Carlisle Hackacks, Lebanon Valley, Fort Monmouth, the Harrisburg Trojans, and Fort Totten.

Very little is actually known about the soldier team beyond the list of players, but Coach Dietz believes that they will prove a strong opponent.

Reading Symphony Announces Program

Professor John Duddy, music director, recently announced that tickets for the Reading Symphony Orchestra are available to Albright students at the special rate of $1.50 plus tax.

The 30th season of the Reading Symphony Orchestra concerts which open November 29, three o'clock at the Rajah Theatre, promise to be the best ever presented. Four concerts are included in the series which begin on November 29th. Included in the series this year are the following guest artists: November 29th, 1942—Elsa Hilger, noted cellist; January 10th, 1943—Carroll Glenn, a violinist of fine calibre; February 14th, 1943—Rudolph Ganz, world-famous pianist; and March 14th, 1943—an all orchestral program. Probably the best known of these guest artists is the last one, Rudolph Ganz. The 65-year-old pianist has been widely acclaimed in Europe, Canada, and the United States. He served as conductor of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra from 1921-27; and later became president of the Chicago Musical College.
