Student Council States Position; Custom Maid Stands Pat

By President of Student Council

Fifth Columnists on our campus? No, it can't be! But there is your evidence staring you right in the face. And in the Albrightian no less. What are you going to do about it? Well, this is still a democracy we're living in, isn't it? Guess our only recourse is to try and set these unfortunate individuals right about a few things.

Perhaps we should start out with the poor, unfortunate, misinformed Custom Maid, who seems to have attracted quite a bit of attention in the last two issues of our school paper. You know, we on Student Council actually feel sorry for her, for she is evidently the victim of a little knowledge, and "a little knowledge is always a bad thing." Take her article on Frosh Customs for instance. If you have read it carefully, you will note how often she contradicts herself. But then that is to be expected of one who knows little about what is actually going on.

But the pay-off was her article advocating the abolition of the student council. That really is something. First she tells us that she wants a powerful student government organization and then she does all in her power to disrupt it. Her criticisms are vague and elusive; mere generalities, no less. It's easy to plan a trip to Mars, but try and get there if you will.

By CUSTOM MAID

In our tirade last week we analyzed the Student Council situation. We said it should "either mend its ways or close up shop."

One week has passed. In the interim we've been called everything from a "chronic knocker" to a "fifth columnist." That's perfectly okay with us. If we didn't get a reaction, we'd consider ours a lost cause.

However, in order to clear up what we believe were misinterpretations, we are redefining our position. First of all, we did not direct our statements toward personalities. That's too cheap and vulgar. If we get to the point where personalities enter the picture, we'll use names.

In the second place, we still believe that as council is operating at present it is of no use to the school, other than as a rubber stamp. That's what we're opposed to. We believe council has all hopes of functioning as a student representative body—one that will have the backbone to legislate on its own volition when and as questions arise. And we're going to hop on the bandwagon to make it the powerful organization it should be. That's where our phrase "mend its ways" comes in. We still believe that if council doesn't make use of its power, it might just as well "close up shop."

Eight Seniors Named To "Who's Who"

Student Council Selects
Candidates For Yearbook

To represent Albright College in the annual yearbook, "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities," eight seniors were selected this week by the Student Assembly.

The students are: Margaret Schmeck, Margaret Hollenbach, Betty Ebbert, Margaret Savidge, Marshall Popelka, George Henry, Vincent Rusbosin, and George Eppchimer.

These Albrightians were chosen on the basis of character, leadership, service, scholarship, and citizenship.

What They Do

The campus biography of any of these outstanding seniors is too long to repeat here. Briefly, George Eppchimer is president of the Y. M. C. A., vice-president of the Senior Class and of the Kappa Tau Chi. George Henry, assistant editor of the Cue, is president of the Senior Class and of the Domino Club. Besides being president of the student government, Vincent Rusbosin is a varsity football player. Marshall Popelka, president of the A. P. O., is captain of the varsity football team.

On the co-ed side, Margaret Savidge, girls' basketball captain, occupies the presidency of the Y. W. C. A. and W. A. A. Betty Ebbert, among numerous other things, is secretary of Senior Class and member of Frosh Commission, and Y. W. C. A. cabinet. President of Phi Beta Mu, Margaret Schmeck holds the vice-presidency of the German Club and the Woman Dormitory Council. Managing editor of the Albrightian, and president of Sigma Tau Delta, Margaret Hollenbach is also a member of the Cue staff, Phi Gamma Mu, and I. R. C.

Git Goin' Fellers! Sadie Hawkins' Comin'

Start runnin', fellers! Get set, gals! That day is comin' round ag'in! It's Sadie Hawkins Day tomorrow. The Pat's will observe the anniversary with a Sadie Hawkins Party in the Y. M. C. A. on Monday night.

For those who are unfamiliar with the facts, here are the historical data behind the affair: Sadie Hawkins, the daughter of the earliest settler in Dogpatch, was the homeliest gal in all them hills. At 35 she was still unhitched. Her father decided something had to be done about it. One day he called all them town single fellers together. After giving 'em a fair start, Sadie ran after 'em. The unfortunate individual she caught became her husband. Oh Happy Day! It's an annual affair now.

3rd Term Candidate On Short End Of 178-99 Vote

Dr. Gallup to the contrary and the Fortune poll notwithstanding, Wendell Willkie will be the next president of the United States if the Albrightian poll can be taken as an indicator.

Casting their ballots during chapel periods Tuesday and Wednesday mornings, 294 students gave the former Commonwealth and Southern president 178 votes, President Roosevelt, 99 votes, Norman Thomas, Socialist, ten votes, Earl Browder, Communist, four votes, and Roger Babson, Prohibitionist, three votes.

A majority of Willkie's votes were cast on Tuesday morning when the Juniors and Freshmen were in chapel. They gave him 112 ballots to Roosevelt's 57. That first morning vote would have been enough to outdistance Roosevelt's total for the two days.

On Wednesday morning, Willkie received 66 votes to Roosevelt's 42. The Seniors and Sophomores gave the third-term candidate more support than the other two classes.

The election will be held on Tuesday. Check the results.

Dads Take Over Here Tomorrow

Tomorrow is Dad's Day. Two features of the day's program are the Franklin and Marshall football game at 2 o'clock and a banquet in the dining hall at 6 o'clock. The dinner will be informal. Vincent Rusbosin, president of student council, will present greetings from the boys. W. F. Snelbaker, Mechanicsburg, father of James Snelbaker, freshman, will speak for the dads.

Youth Conference Starts Tomorrow

A two-day program has been arranged for the Eastern Pennsylvania Youth Conference in Emmanuel Church, Sixth and Kerper Streets, starting tomorrow. Registration will begin at 1 p. m. Sunday's program will start with a worship service at 9:45 a. m.

Charter Day Programs Monday and Tuesday

A Charter Day program will be presented in chapel on Monday and Tuesday mornings. The principal speaker will be the Rev. E. E. Stauffer, secretary of the executive committee of the board of trustees of the college. President Dr. Harry V. Masters will preside. Several Gold A's will be awarded.

The Rev. Mr. Stauffer was a professor of English of Albright College when it was located at Myers-town. He is district superintendent of the Eastern Pennsylvania Conference of the Evangelical Church.

D. Fedotoff White To Address I. R. C.

Russian Will Discuss
European Affairs

D. Fedotoff White of Philadelphia, will speak on "Lessons of the Military Campaigns in Europe," at a general meeting of the International Relations Club next Thursday at 8 p. m.

White, a Russian by birth and education, is now General Manager of the Cunard White Star Line in Philadelphia. A high-ranking officer before and during the World War in the old Russian government, he fought with the army of General Kolchak against the Bolsheviks, was imprisoned by the Soviet government, later escaped, and finally came to America in 1921. He has written an account of his experiences in these years, entitled "Survival," published in book form by the University of Pennsylvania Press.

He was educated at the Gymnasium of the Historico-Philological Institute and the Naval College of St. Petersburg. He later studied at the Columbia University School of Political Science.

Lectures on Economics

He was elected to the chair of Ordinary of Maritime History at the Naval Staff College, Leningrad, and lectured on the economics of transportation at the Shanlavy University of Moscow.

During the first World War he served in the Russian Navy as commander of a destroyer in the Baltic.

French Club To Present Film In College Chapel

Show "Un Carnet de Bal"
Tonight at 8.30

The French Club will present the sound film, UN CARNET DE BAL tonight at 8 o'clock in the college chapel. The NEW YORK TIMES called this film "One of 1938's ten best." UN CARNET DE BAL (LIFE DANCES ON), is really seven films telescoped into one.

The whole is bound together by one dominating idea—the search of a woman for yesterday's lovers. The excellence of the production won for it many prizes including the award as best picture at the Venice Exposition of Films of All Nations.

The scenario as conceived by Julien Duvivier, who directed the film, is as follows: A widow of 35 finds among her late husband's papers the dance program of her first ball. She decides to seek out the half dozen men whose names are written there. What she finds when she visits each of the men who have sworn to love her all their lives, is both tragic and amusing.

The dialogue of the film is French, but there are English subtitles. Tickets are 25 cents and may be bought from Marjorie Lebo, Betty Siegel, Christos Bratios, or Margaret Thompson.

Analyze Customs Findings

The class in discussion technique has completed its consideration of the freshman "customs" situation and will give a copy of its findings to Student Council.

Custom Maid

Probably a large part of the trouble with council is this: It's a new group of legislators who have had no experience along that line. Maybe things will move more smoothly after a few more meetings. At least, that's what we're hoping for.

The first thing student council should do without wasting any more time, is pass the pending legislation to increase Student Council's membership. However, that legislation should have a definite provision which will bring heads of important organizations into council.

Why in the world shouldn't the class presidents have a vote? They can yell their heads off in meetings but can't do a thing to bring definite action. That's just an example of what we mean.

We were slapped by some persons for criticizing destructively. We'd like to defend ourselves. If you can dig up an issue of the Albrightian of three weeks ago, you'll discover that we advocated abolition of freshman customs. But that's not all we did. We suggested a program to create a real school spirit among all classes rather than among only the freshmen. If that's destructive, maybe Webster should be told about it.

Last week we suggested that student council should be abolished if it didn't make use of some of the powers it traditionally has had but never used. That sounds like a sensible suggestion to us, for we certainly can't take over council and reorganize it, even though that's what we can infer from some comments. Council must do its own reorganizing. No one can do it for them. By admitting their inability to get things going, council itself would prove our statement.

We're not trying to knock things simply for the sake of knocking. We have many other definite suggestions for council. But before they can be used, we suggest that council be enlarged, taking in the right persons, and then oil its machinery for smooth operation.

Hans Nix Pleased With College Orchestra

Hans Nix, director of the band and orchestra, is especially pleased with the orchestra. The present membership is about 28. Of this number, 12 are freshmen. Four additional violins and a string bass have greatly strengthened the string section. The orchestra made its first public appearance of the year on "Parents - of - Freshman Day."

The band consists of 36 members, a drum major, and a drum majorette.

In the October issue of THE HISTORICAL REVIEW OF BERKS COUNTY, there is an article entitled "A Survey of the Theatre in Reading until 1851," written by Jane Buttorff, who received her baccalaureate degree on this campus last June. This article represents the fruit of research carried on under the direction of our history department. Nor is this the first piece of Albright research to be published in this periodical. In the October, 1939 issue, there appeared "The Editorial Policies of George Getz" by Marshall Sellkoff, Albright College Class of 1939. These two pieces of work attest to the fine bibliographic research being done under the direction of Professor Milton W. Hamilton.

But I forget the reason for mentioning Miss Buttorff's recently published article on the theatre. It is a fine bit of writing on the early attempts at theatre in this cultural backwater. There is a string of delightful quotations from the pristine local press written with an overt kindness and forbearance on the part of the dramatic critics. Furthermore, there is quite a handful of illustrations, facsimiles, et cetera, mostly through the courtesy of Mr. Paul Glase (who, as is not frequently enough bruited, has the largest collection of early and contemporary playbills in this vicinity). Perhaps after reading the article you will find it difficult to be satisfied with one man's coming to dinner in a fallow fall season.

And now for a bit of publicity for two of the best newspapers. It seems to me, considering the still existing mint state of most of the copies thus far received, that the campus has not been made sufficiently au courant concerning periodicals in the Library.

This week physics takes the foreground and surges ahead in the race for scientific dominance. Professors Oliver George and Paul Speicher have been very active during the past week.

Professor George attended the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Conference of College Physics Teachers at State College, on October 25 and 26. This conference has no officers and no dues. Every teacher of physics in every recognized college and university in Pennsylvania is invited to attend. The entire conference consisting of a student meeting, an evening lecture, and a Saturday morning symposium all centered about one theme, "Physics in Medicine." On Friday evening a lecture on the role of physics in dentistry was presented by Dr. Gable of the University of Pennsylvania. Professor George reports that he was amazed at the number of applications of physics in dentistry alone. A thorough knowledge of mechanics must be had just to fit a pair of false teeth, Professor George explains.

Our professor related some of the changes that the conference suggested should be made in a college physics course for "Pre-Meds," "Pre-Vets," and "Pre-Dental" students. The course should be of the same type given to engineering students with no let-up on mathematics. He suggested that the school should present a secondary physics course for "Pre-Meds," "Pre-Vets," and "Pre-Dents" alone, stressing those topics which are passed over in the primary physics course. What do you think of this, "Pre-Meds?"

Professor Paul Speicher spoke to the "math" teachers section of the Northeastern District Convention of the Pennsylvania State Educational Association on October 18. The professor's topic was—Coordination of High School and College Mathematics.

Did you know that a problem of flood control exists in the "chem labs?" Won't some worthy "engineer" come to Dr. Cook's rescue, please?

Don't forget the Astronomy Club's trip to Philadelphia on November 14, to visit the planetarium at the Franklin Institute. This will be a quite interesting journey.

Professor Speicher, chief of the Albright "Willkieites," gave a talk over WRWW on Monday evening. Professor (Ralph, the announcer said) Speicher's topic was—What America Means to Me.

Is Dennis Strawbridge Professor Green's "lab assistant" or "lab REsistant"? It seems that Dennis wanted to make it possible to find a paramesium without the aid of a microscope. Just pick 'em off the floor, he says.

O. G., I didn't sit on my hat—oh gee!

Dips Drop In Tomorrow

Yes, THEY CAN BE BEATEN, and if the students and players show the proper enthusiasm, zest, and zeal, the DIPS WILL BE BEATEN. No, we're not trying to be dramatic, but we do want to point out that victory over the undefeated Diplomats is not as impossible as it may seem. The students will get a chance to show their spirit at the pep rally and bonfire tonight. The players will get their big chance tomorrow.

We all know how Franklin and Marshall stunned the football world by defeating mighty Dartmouth, 23-21 early in the season. And we also know the Dips were shaking in their shoes when they nosed out a fighting Muhlenberg team, 14-12, two weeks ago.

But even the best of teams cannot always be in the best mental and physical condition for every game. In that statement, we believe, Albright's hope lies. If you followed the Lions closely in Spring sessions, you know the Dips and Lions clashed in a practice tilt at Lancaster. The Lions looked terrible, offensively and defensively. And the F. and M. players haven't forgotten it. That's why they regard the Albright game as a breeze on their schedule.

On the other hand, Albright players must show a great deal more than they did during the last two games if they expect to win. They must be psychologically pointed in the right direction. They must be inspired. They must be told by us, the students, that they can win! All past performances must be forgotten because this is the game, a brand new game, in which they can start all over again.

Sure Franklin and Marshall has a powerful and deceptive offensive. But doesn't our gang have an excellent offense—one that's just as tricky as theirs is? True, we haven't seen it in the last two games, but those games should be gone and forgotten. This is the game we want, and don't forget, THEY CAN BE BEATEN.

Albright has defeated Alan Holman's team only once in 12 meetings, but that once made up for the 11 defeats. In 1935, the Red and White upset one of the best teams F. and M. ever put on the field, 9-6.

In this 13th meeting the same thing can happen — THEY CAN BE BEATEN. If you agree, the way to show it is to attend the bonfire tonight.

Tomorrow is the big day.

The date—Saturday, November 2d; time, 2:00; place, Albright Stadium. The cast—"Dip" Lomat (a local boy from the next town who made good in the big city). "Red" Lion (an unpredictable, inconsistent would-be Superman). Any similarity to living persons (besides the Albright and Franklin & Marshall grid teams) is purely coincidental. The hero and villain will not be labeled until after the performance tomorrow afternoon.

Coach Bill Dietz and his hopefuls are really very serious about this affair, and for their sake we hereby wipe out the previous 1940 record, wins and losses alike, and start from scratch. The Lions dropped their third game of the season to West Chester, 7-0, last Friday, but that's all past history. Any predictions on the Red and White's performance tomorrow can not be based on previous showings.

Looking for an upset over a team of F. and M.'s calibre on the basis of the 1940 record alone would be not only foolish, but fantastic. The Lions have hit their stride only in spots this year, and with injuries at their lowest ebb since the initial game, a real football game should be in the offing.

Players Given Workout

If the coaching staff has its way, the hero, "Red" Lion, will be a veritable Superman by tomorrow. If this reporter had a dime for every lap around the track administered by Messrs. Dietz, Harris and Horn, this week, we could buy the entire team gold-plated spikes. Condition is the by-word of the Red and White, currently.

Franklin and Marshall's set on this year might be likened to our 1935 eleven. Alex Schibanoff, stellar tackle, and Bill Farkas, sophomore halfback, spell disaster to gridders on the other side of the scrimmage line. Mike Kenny, the other halfback, is another threat in the Dip offense. But Alan Holman's chief asset is his reserve power. The Dips comprise two well-balanced teams, each carrying plenty of dynamite.

Popelka Recovered

Marshall Popelka, Albright's crashing fullback, has apparently recovered from his infected leg,

The Kappa Upsilon Phi Fraternity took undisputed position of first place in the Inter-fraternity touch-football league by blasting the Theolog Dorm Monday afternoon, 24-2. The Pi Taus and the A. P. O.'s battled to a 0-0 deadlock Tuesday night in the only other game played this week.

Nick "Curley" Schneider paced the defending champions with three of his team's four touchdowns. Rangy Sam Sehl registered the other Kappa score. The Theologs only points came as Chin Rhodes was tagged behind his own goal line for an automatic safety.

The Day Student-Zeta game scheduled for Wednesday night was postponed because of rain.

Woman's Glee Club Has 28 Members

This year there is a bigger and better Woman's Glee Club — 28 members — at Albright College. Each meeting is opened with a prayer by Professor Duddy or one of the group. Then the girls expand their lungs with some breathing exercises before they are ready to sing.

A system of monitors has been introduced so that each section can go over its part individually. The repertoire this year includes "Lo, Now a Rose," Praetorius; "The Perfect Song," Joseph Carl Breil; "Thus Then, the Love of the Spirit," J. S. Bach; "Mr. Mother Bids Me Bind My Hair," Madyn-Cain; "Built on the Rock," Lindeman; "O Sacred Head," H. L. Hassler; "Ave Maria," Scadelt-Anderson; "Cribbirlin," Pestalozza-Gore; "Dark Eyes," "O Lonely Heart," and Brahms' "Rhapsodie" for the alto section.

and will likely get the starting assignment at fullback. Bob Bennett fits in at the halfback post with Stan Kuklis or Jim Breen. Chuck Klein or Paul Petrucka will start in the signal calling slot.

The starting line assignments would be pretty much of a gamble with most of the forward wall aspirants showing their best in practice this week. Sam Coccodrilli, center, and Tom Johnson, tackle, have the most assurance of starting.

Boo!

Spooks Romp At "Y" Frolic

Shore, don't ya believe spooks were on the loose on Albright's campus Saturday night, past? T'wasn't only ghosts and horror, but a mixture of rollickin' fun and good eats.

The two Y's shore done a good job of party-makin'. First, when ya came in, ya had to go through the Horror Chamber with the hunchback of Notre Dame. Durin' your travels ya shook hands with a real corpse and, generally, nearly got scared outa your wits.

Meantime, upstairs in the Jack-o-Lanterned dinin' room were games and spook stories. Throughout the evenin' ya could go back downstairs, where two fortune tellers read your future by magic pumpkin seeds and a weight-guesser gave ya a lollipop if he mis-judged your poundage.

The best treat was saved 'til after the dunkers and cider when a real, snappy barn dance nearly brought down the rafters, bein' as it was called by a professional caller from the city.

An' ya shoulda seen the outfits. There was the ghost that bumped its head on the roof when it walked, and the scarecrow, just oozin' straw, and the 1890 auto driver, horn an' all. In fact, the "Bloomer girls" from A. P. O. didn't make sech a bad showin' an' o' course no party's complete without its jist plain farmers like you an me, Zeke.

We all, 'bout a hundred of us, went home purty tired out from dancin' but we'd had a ding-blasted good time.

Student Council

As for the other critics, we can only say this. Student Council is desirous of criticisms. They are its life blood, so to speak. But we don't want the underhanded, destructive type of criticism. Why not come out in the open and tell us what you think is wrong, suggest possible changes, new methods of procedure that you think might work to advantage. We will most heartily thank you for your trouble, and better yet, we will give your ideas a fair trial if they have possibilities.

If you are in the dark in regards to what student council is doing, ask some of its members to explain our set-up for you. It is simple. We are trying to regulate and promote the common interests of the student body and of our Alma Mater. Our powers are only those that you give to us. Our duties, to maintain order in the student body, impose fines or other penalties for violations of rules or for disorderly conduct, and in general to provide machinery through which the students and the administration can get together for mutual benefit.

From time to time you have heard just what we are doing this year. For those of you who do not know, we offer this brief resume: The first thing we attempted was a new system of customs, which you all watched operate. Woodrow Witmer was in charge of that program and, with his assistants, we feel he did a fine job. Naturally, mistakes were made, but that is to be expected when attempting something new. Carl Yoder is in charge of the dining hall, and I think you will admit that he is doing a swell job this year. So are all of the other committeemen. Right now we are attempting to change the constitution to provide for better representation. You should all be acquainted with what is going on there through your representatives. Let us hear your opinions through them. Much more is being planned but most of it is in the initial stages. Don't forget, we haven't had too much

Moritz Emphasizes Need For Community

Say It's Better
Than Individual Action

"Today power lies in community, not in individual action," said Paul Moritz at the "Y" recognition services on Tuesday night. Moritz, who spent the last year in China working with students, emphasized the essential unity of student groups.

Moritz listed two types of communities: A community built on force (which contains the seeds of its own destruction), and a community based on cooperation (which creates its own power).

Tells of Students' Conditions

Moritz also spoke in the chapel service Tuesday morning. There he talked about the desperate plight of the Chinese student who must get his education in spurts—between air raids and moving of headquarters. One university moved inland six different times, he said. The food eaten by the Chinese student is "the worst possible kind," Moritz said. On the other hand, he said, the "morale is probably the finest of any student body in the world."

The visit of Moritz was the first in a series of "Y"-sponsored projects to awaken the campus to needs of students in other lands.

Not wishing to take all the joy out of the few adventurous departments left here, I shall direct your attention only to THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR, which is now regularly subscribed for. The fact that issues arrive a day late is more than amply compensated for by the general excellence of the material therein contained.

Then, if one may point out the virtues of an old friend, THE NEW YORK TIMES deserves a little more attention. Of course, as Mr. William Bottonari, the local NYT representative can tell you, there are at least four persons on campus who subscribe through him at a quite modest fee. To the potential discoverers, however, who can desert the funny sheets long enough to do a mite of Kibbutz, I should like to give this little spur.

In THE NEW YORK TIMES MAGAZINE for October 6, L. H. Robbins has called attention to "Language Made in the U. S. A." Do you know about the DICTIONARY OF AMERICAN ENGLISH, which, under the editorship of Sir William Craigie, is being published at the University of Chicago? The first volume, A to Corn-Patch, shows one of the good old American words even in the title.

time to operate as yet, and above all don't forget that you play a big part in just what the student council accomplishes.

So send in those criticisms of yours. Get behind the student council and push it.
