The theme for homecoming this year is "The Greatest School On Earth." A summary of next weekend's events and more information on this year's Homecoming Court appear on page four.

AIDS TALK GIVEN

by Marc Brog

Thursday, September 24 at 7:30 p.m. a presentation on the topic of AIDS took place in the Campus Center theater of Albright College. Dr. Tim Ring, Associate Dean of Students and director of the Counseling Center moderated an informative discussion concerning AIDS within the Albright Community.

Medically, AIDS is defined as an often fatal breakdown of the body's immune defense system which occurs in previously healthy individuals. Those affected are left vulnerable to illness which might not otherwise occur. These illnesses are referred to as 'opportunistic infections.'

Among the panelists sat a Berks County mother who suffered the death of her son due to the disease. She boldly told of her experience while struggling with obvious emotional pain. In juxtaposition, information on the scientific aspects of the disease was imparted by clinical experts also on the panel. Topics such as how AIDS is transmitted, who is at risk, and what can be done to reduce the risks of contracting AIDS were discussed.

AIDS is transmitted through sexual contact involving an exchange of certain body fluids, transfusions of tainted blood, and the sharing of drug needles. Despite common consensus, the disease transcends all social and racial groups. Though there is no known cure for the disease, there are preventive measures one can take to reduce the risks. Stressed were two main preventive measures: (1) limit one's number of sexual partners, and (2) avoid the practice of sharing hypodermic needles.

The panel also impressed upon the audience the need for knowledge to bring forth compassion for those afflicted with AIDS.

Next Friday, October 9, Albright will be buzzing with activity. Not only is it the day before homecoming weekend, but over 150 students, faculty, administration, and staff will be brandishing their cameras to record A Day in the Life of Albright.

The Student Government Association will be supplying a roll of film to every individual who turns in a sign-up slip (it's not too late, turn yours in today. If you no longer have your letter, a slip has been provided on page seven). Early next week, you will receive information on where to get your film and instructions.

The final result will be a hard-cover photo-document of this day in the life of everybody at Albright College. Each photograph printed will have the photographer's name, time it was taken, and the names of the persons in the photograph. Every person who participates will have his or her name printed in the book.

The book is anticipated to premiere on May 1, 1988 (Jacob Albright's birthday). Everyone is encouraged to become involved with this one-day extravaganza.

Questions raised; Who Lives? Who Dies? Who Decides?

by Kurt Crowley

On Tuesday night, September 29th, Dr. Albert R. Jonsen delivered a speech on the ethics of medical care to the students and faculty of Albright College.

Jonsen is a leading figure in the field of bio-medical ethics, and is a Professor of Ethics in Medicine at the Medical School of the University of California. He is currently teaching courses at the School of Medicine at Georgetown University, and is also a member of The President's Commission on Bioethics.

According to Jonsen, the topic of medical ethics covers many different issues in today's technologically advanced society. These issues include: the definitions of life and death; the patient's legal rights; the physician's professional obligations; and artificially sustaining physical life without meaning, be it psychological, mental, or spiritual.

CHI LAMBDA RHO STILL SEEKS NATIONAL

by Greg Niel

Chi Lambda Rho's second denial of membership to a national sorority came on June 22, 1987 when Delta Phi Epsilon reneged on its apparent plan to induct the local sorority. Chi Lambda, currently housed in the Selwyn dormitory, is attempting to comply with a resent school policy which makes it mandatory that all of Albright's Greek organizations have a national charter.

The sorority, hindered by school policy which forbids a formal rush by localized Greeks, needs foremost to increase their membership before attempting to petition another national. Though distressed by their precarious situation, Jill Landis, pres. of Chi Lambda Rho, is encouraged: "We appreciate the support we are receiving from Panhellenic, Dean Vadersall, other Greek organizations, and non-Greek students."

Failing to go national does have adverse effects on a Greek organization. Locally based Greeks are refused voting privileges within the Panhellenic, and the possibility of disbandment persists, though Dale Vadersall, Dean of Students, is postponing termination procedures so long as the women actively seek a national charter.

Presently the 20 year old sorority partakes in most Greek functions on campus: homecoming, Greek weekend, and the ISC. They have won the academic trophy for ten years successively, and are also involved with raising funds for MS.

Chi Lambda Rho's state of anomie will continue for the time being, but Miss Landis remains determined to gain a national sponsor. However, with ten graduating seniors within their current ranks, if the drive to induct new members should fail it would seem inevitable that the sorority would disband.

emporary interest in the field of medical ethics began with the first human heart transplantation done in Europe, in 1967. With this historic event, Jonsen said, many questions arose about physicians' decisions in which one man is allowed to die in order to delay the death of another man.

Jonsen went on to document a number of famous cases which have occurred in the past ten years in which the courts have ruled in favor of stopping artificial feeding and respiration for patients who have been terminally comatose. He said the general theme found in these rulings is that if sustaining life does not benefit the patient, it need not be done. Jonsen also said the physicians must decide whether an action is or is not beneficial. Jonsen also spoke about the patient's legal right to decide on an operation or medical treatment and what happens when the patient loses this ability to decide.

The program, sponsored by the departments of Religion, Biology, Philosophy, and Nursing, and by Alpha Epsilon Delta, was attended by over one hundred people. As one student commented, "Jonsen was able to give an original and useful perspective on many current issues in the field of medical ethics."

Next week, the United States Senate Judiciary Committee will hold an historic vote. The Committee will be deciding whether the Honorable Robert Bork is worthy of replacing Justice William Powell on the Supreme Court. A vote of "yes" will pass the decision onto the Senate. However, a vote of "no" now, will force President Reagan to choose a more acceptable nominee. If approved, Judge Bork will remain on the Court for life.

The Court has done a pretty good job of protecting our rights and freedoms, but the votes have been close. With last year's nomination and acceptance of Justice Antonin Scalia and promotion of Justice William Rehnquist to Chief Justice, the Supreme Court has started a shift to the "right"; Bork's acceptance would push it even further toward ultra-conservatism.

Judge Bork's decisions in the past have shown a clear disregard for our basic human rights. First of all, Judge Bork does not believe in our right to privacy. His decisions have fought to extend government's arm into our own homes, into our bedrooms.... In fact, Judge Bork has continually decided against reproductive rights, letting his religious convictions apply to government policy. Not only does he oppose the right to abortion but Planned Parenthood has pointed out that "carrying Bork's position to its logical end, states could ban or require any method of birth control, impose family quotas for population purposes, make abortion a crime, or sterilize anyone they choose."

In addition to his rather far-fetched interpretation of the Constitution of the United States, Bork disputes various basic civil rights. Until a few years ago he opposed blacks' rights to public accommodation in hotels and motels. Of course, he has since "changed his mind" in light of wide-spread opposition to this position. In short, Bork has proven himself to be opportunistic as well as disregarding to a two-hundred year old precedent in Supreme Court rulings.

Clearly Bork does not belong on the Supreme Court bench. You can help protect your rights by calling Senator Arlen Specter, one of two key votes on the Judiciary Committee. The Committee's vote must be unanimous and, to date, Senator Specter has not made a decision. Obviously his vote is vital to protect our rights. Please call him or write him to let him know your feelings about Judge Bork. The number is (202) 224-3121, ask for Senator Arlen Specter's office. Or write him at:
Senate Hart Building # 331
Washington DC 20510

A brief long-distance call or 22 cents is a small price to pay for basic human rights.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor,

I'm not one to complain usually (I feel safe saying that cuz my name isn't given here!), but I'm afraid I must voice my dismay over Sunday's dinner. I realize that it is not possible or reasonable to hire a cooking or dish-washing staff, but I do feel that we deserve more than the week's leftover cold cuts and bread. All I am asking for are fresh rolls, recognizable meats (what food category does olive loaf fall into, anyway?), and a salad bar. If low attendance is the problem, be assured that if dinner were enjoyable, we wouldn't be so ready to shell out five bucks elsewhere.

Thanx,
a hungry student

Dear Editor,

Albright's Greek System has undergone many changes within the last year. By administrative decree, all fraternities and sororities were required to affiliate with a National Greek Organization. Gamma Sigma Sigma has always been a National organization; one that is dedicated to the ideals of service. This sorority was the first National sorority on Albright's campus. We, as a sorority, feel it is necessary to convey this to the student body, because it seems ironic that we are continually forgotten when discussing National Sororities.

In previous issues of The Albrightian, it has been evident that Gamma Sig has been overlooked as a National sorority. This negligence may have been the result of much confusion which has recently occurred due to the evolution of the National Panhellenic Conference. Hopefully some of this confusion was alleviated with the Albrightian article entitled "Pan What" of the Sept. 25th issue. Gamma Sigma Sigma serves as an associate member of the Panhellenic Conference. What separates Gamma Sig from being a full fledged member is bidding, which is forbidden as prescribed by the National charter of Gamma Sigma Sigma. The Panhellenic Executive board along with its members have stressed that it wants and is willing to work with Gamma Sig. And Gamma Sig is making every effort to achieve this working relationship. In understanding this relationship, it is worthy to note that associate membership does not entitle voting privileges, but does allow for an equal voice at all meetings.

As members of the Greek System of Albright College, striving to achieve Greek unity is the primary goal. Hopefully, in the future, this unity will eliminate such exclusions that Gamma Sig has experienced.

Respectfully Submitted, the Sisters of
Gamma Sigma Sigma

*An Experience Event*

In twenty states today, if a woman is living with her husband, regardless of whether she has given her consent, her husband has a legal right to sexually assault and abuse her. And in one out of seven couples, the husband takes advantage of this right.

In 1978, when John Rideout became the first man to be charged with marital rape in this country (he was later acquitted), a woman by the name of Laura X got involved. She began campaigns in many states to make marital rape a crime like any other sexual abuse, and in 1980 she started the National Clearinghouse on Marital and Date Rape. The NCOM&DR has since then been waging a war on husbands and boyfriends who abuse the women closest to them, and on the states which condone this abuse.

Laura X is herself the founder of the Women's History Library, and is a well-known women's rights advocate in the U.S. and abroad. She adopted her pen name, Laura X, in 1969 to protest the ownership of wives by their husbands, and to symbolize the anonymity of women's history.

Why this sudden interest in her? Because Albright students and faculty this week have the opportunity to meet with her, hear her speak, and ask her questions about the sensitive and alarming problem of marital and date rape. She will be at the Memorial Chapel on Wednesday, October 7th, at 7:30. Experience credit, of course, will be given. Bring questions!!

The Greatest School on Earth

by Jennifer Greenfield

With October 9th and 10th just a week away, Albright, 'the Greatest school on earth,' is looking forward to the greatest homecoming extravaganza on earth. This year's homecoming weekend will be filled with even more exciting events than in years past, and is expected to attract more alumni than ever. Daryl McMullough, '86, Director of Alumni Relations, reports that many alumni and their families plan to attend all of the weekend's events, including a large number of recent alumni. Look for many of your just graduated friends, and maybe even their kids! You all have received schedules in your mailboxes, but just in case, here's a brief rundown of the big events.

Friday night: Alumni will start arriving during Friday, especially for the day long Psychology Department reunion. Then at 8:00 the football players and students, along with alumni, will get psyched to "roast" Lebanon Valley at a huge Pep Rally at Albright Woods. This will be followed by an informal pre-game Party/Dance. Come see "Roseanna," the hot N.Y. top 40's band, and help start the weekend off with a bang!

Saturday: The day starts at 11:00 with a terrific show by the Royal Lichtenstein Circus. Bring your blankets and your meal cards, because following the circus will be a "Barbeque Under the Big Top." You can picnic and tailgate with all your returning friends, and get psyched for the Homecoming Parade and Game, starting at 1:00. Immediately following the game will be the annual Songfest and Homecoming Awards ceremony. Then head back to your rooms to get ready for the semi-formal Homecoming Dinner/Dance. This event should be extra-special, and the alumni and students are excited for the return of the Dinner/ Dance combo.-If you haven't gotten your tickets yet, hurry to the Alumni Trailer to get them because they're going fast.

Clearly the weekend should be the greatest ever. We are grateful to the Lion Diplomats, Student/Alumni Association, for their efforts to make Friday night's activities possible. Please help cheer on our football players, and join the alumni for this terrific weekend extravaganza!

NEWS IN BRIEF

The International Scene:

In case you haven't heard, our government is currently exploring the possibility of war with Iran. For instance, we're now trying the tactic of bombing those small Iranian boats famous for laying nasty mines in the Persian Gulf. We're really excited about this opportunity to demonstrate our exceptional military strength, although until now it has been rather stymied by the small, technologically backward Iranian armed forces. However, we'll keep plugging away in an effort to clarify our policy toward Iran-everyone's curious to know whose side we're really on after that Iran-Contra thing (oops, I said a bad word.). In the meantime, our allies are too dependent on Iran's oil, so while we're trying to assert our overwhelming influence, our allies are standing back and saying, "Don't look at us, we just trade here."

The National Scene:

Sen. Joe Biden, who was a member of that gang of Democrats running for the Democratic Presidential Nomination, is now making sure his appendages are all in tact after he became the latest victim of the media last week. (Remember Gary Hart?) It seems our hero was caught cheating and plagiarizing in law school 22 years ago, a fact which resurfaced mysteriously last week, causing a furor which made it necessary for Mr. Biden to pull out of the race even before it really got going.

Of course, with this exposure of Mr. Biden, who also happens to be the chairman of the House Judiciary Committee evaluating Hon. Robert Bork's nomination to the Supreme Court, America is faced with a difficult dilemma: is Mr. Biden qualified enough and moral enough to decide whether Mr. Bork's interpretation of the Constitution is acceptable? (For those of you who have forgotten, Judge Bork was nominated to the Supreme Court this summer by Ronald Reagan. He's created quite a fuss, since putting him on the Supreme Court is expected to make all of those decisions which used to go 5-4 for the "liberals" go 5-6 for the "ultra-conservatives." Some even venture to suggest that Mr. Reagan is hoping to stack the Supreme Court his way so that his influence will extend beyond his presidential terms. Friends of Mr. Bork contend that he is the most qualified for the job.) Anyway, some people are now suggesting that the real issue should be whether Mr. Bork's law school record is cleaner than Mr. Biden's.

The Sport's Scene--A Few Comments:

Believe it or not, at dinner last night someone asked me why there was no football on T.V. this week. Also noteworthy was that the Philadelphia Inquirer's lead article in the sports section was about how the strike was going to affect the gamblers. Perhaps most telling was that when I asked a friend what he was going to do with his Sundays now, he replied, "Oh, I guess I'll do some homework or something." I had no idea how devastating this strike was going to be. So, for those of you who missed it, the NFL has settled down for a long winter's strike.

DATE RAPE-- WHAT DOES IT ENTAIL?

When is rape not rape?

The growing phenomenon in today's college campuses is "date rape". Many women feel that they have not been raped, for frequently the rapist is a date, friend, or a fellow student. Only one out of 10 acquaintance rapes are acknowledged and reported to the police. This is caused by the ambiguity of date rape. This form of rape is the most damaging to the victim emotionally and psychologically. Also, this type of rape is the most frequently-occurring attack to women recently. For example, a survey of 7000 students at 35 colleges nationwide discovered one out of every 8 women had been raped. Over 90% knew their attacker. The startling fact remains: over 90% did not acknowledge the attack as a rape. Often these men felt that they were lead on by the women.

The Crisis Hotline serves the Albright Community as a non-judgemental "listening ear". We are not trained to counsel; however, we will refer the victim to able services. The Hotline is totally confidential.

Below is an article written by Jeff Meer which appeared in Psychology Today, July 1987. It gives a more knowledgeable approach as to what this phenomenon actually entails.

By now, everyone knows the scenario. Boy meets girl, they go to a party, get drunk, return to his apartment and he forces her to have sex.

Most people assume that date rape occurs on a first or second date between relative strangers. But new research supports a different conclusion: The individuals involved generally know each other fairly well.

Psychologist Charlene L. Muehlenhard and undergraduate Melaney A. Linton asked more than 600 college men and women about their most recent dates, as well as their worst experience with "sexual aggression"—any time a woman was forced to participate in acts, ranging from kissing to intercourse, against her will. More than three-quarters of the women and more than half of the men admitted to having an experience with sexual aggression on a date, either in high school or in college. And nearly 15 percent of the women and 7 percent of the men said they had had intercourse against the woman's will.

The researchers found that when a man initiated the date, drove to and from and paid for the date, sexual aggression was more likely. They also found that if both people got drunk (at a par- ty, for example) and "parked," or found themselves in the man's dorm room or apartment, the date was more likely to end with the woman being forced to perform against her wishes. Men and women who thought of themselves as having traditional values and those who were more accepting of violence were also more likely to have been involved in date rape.

But contrary to what one might expect, date rape and sexual aggression were much more likely to happen between partners who knew each other. On average, students said they had known the partner almost a year before the incident. "If women were more aware of this, they might be less surprised and more prepared to deal with sexual aggression by someone they know well," Muehlenhard says.

She points out that communication is often a big problem on dates during which there is sexual aggression. Both men and women reported that the man had felt "led on" during such dates. Men said that women desired more sexual contact on these dates than had others on previous dates. Women said that they had desired less sexual contact than usual.

Muehlenhard believes that a direct approach, such as a woman saying "I don't want to do anything more than kiss," might clear up confusion better than simply saying "No."

*Charlene L. Muehlenhard, Ph.D., and Melaney A. Linton are at Texas A & M University. Their study appeared in Journal of Counseling Psychology (Vol. 34, pp. 186-196).*

Review: Kuivila's electronic composition, Loose Canons

by Neal Wiser

A few weeks ago I wrote about how interesting Ron Kuivila's Parallel Lines was. Well, on Monday night Albright was treated to an appearance by the artist himself. Ron Kuivila, who is also an accomplished musician, performed his latest musical work, Loose Canons.

Loose Canons is not what most people would call music. In fact I thought R2-D2 was backstage having a tantrum. However, those of you who enjoy music which many call new, innovative, and different may have missed a master at work. Through the combination of computers and digital stereo, Kuivila produced a show unlike any that I have ever seen. Okay, so Mr. Kuivila didn't outperform U2. I do not think he was trying to anyway. I am sure some, like Max Headroom, would find his work to be stimulating, but I did not.

The compositions lacked any rhythmic style. My ears were subjected to an electronic cacophony. I think Mr. Kuivila's work belongs to the background noises of grade "B" science fiction, not on the airways, though that's probably not where he wants his music.

Perhaps I am not being fair to Mr. Kuivila. After all, he is innovative. Unfortunately, his brand of music is not mine and since I'm the one who's writing this review, well...

VOLLEYBALL TEAM HAS VERY ROUGH WEEK - LOSE TWICE

by Kevin Clark

While the Volleyball team is currently on the down-side of things, it's no reason to give up hope on them. The Lady Lions have a lot of talent and they'll eventually put it all together again and get back on track.

Last Wednesday, the team took the extremely long trip to M.A.C. rival Juniata where they lost three straight games. The game scores of 15-2, 15-1, and 15-2 truly indicate how good Albright's opposition was. The hosts are presently ranked 6th in the nation on the Division III level and now it's very easy to see why.

The Lady Lions returned to the Bollman Center on Friday to take on yet another league opponent, Lebanon Valley. Now while it was a match that Albright should have won, the outcome didn't hold true to this as the visitors took the match three games to one. After dropping the first game 15-13, the Lady Lions showed why they were expected to win by decisively taking game two 15-2. However, after losing the next game 15-10, Albright allowed their 9-0 lead in the fourth and final game to go by the wayside and dropping the game and match 15-13.

According to Coach Greenawalt the next several games should be beneficial for the team and one's that they could win. The talent is definitely there, but unless they come together as a team and fight their opposition on every single point, they might not reach their full potential in 1987.

PRETZEL BOWL
 WEAK LEGS MAY WALK

by Ross Fell

Most likely, the Albright Lion Football team will not play in the Orange Bowl this year. In fact, they probably won't play in the Orange Bowl in our lifetime. However, they are playing in a bowl game this year—the ever-popular Pretzel Bowl. The Pretzel Bowl is designed to help raise money for Shriner's Hospital for Crippled Children.

What does the Pretzel Bowl mean to the players? Is it just another game? Or is it something more? The winning team does get a trophy, but is that the only motivation?

Second-year Head Coach Jeff Sparagana took some of the team down to Shriner's Hospital. There, the players got a chance to meet the staff and patients. Delaware Valley's team, under Coach Dick Beddison, was also there. Together the teams played in a wheelchair-football game against people from Temple. The children acted as cheerleaders.

Coach Sparagana calls it a "very gratifying experience for the players." It's a shocking experience for a group of healthy athletes to see these sick and crippled children. The theme of the Pretzel Bowl is fittingly "Strong Legs Run That Weak Legs May Walk." As Coach Sparagana puts it, "it gives the players a chance to give something back."

The veterans who have played in the Pretzel Bowl before know the experience. Junior Right Tackle Pat Boyer calls the trip "a humbling experience." It gives the players a shot of reality.

It's not the game itself that motivates the players, but the idea that they are healthy enough to play in a game like this, and those kids may never be. "Strong Legs Run That Weak Legs May Walk."

ATHLETES OF THE WEEK

Mike Crovetti

Mike is a senior and the quarterback of this year's Football team. He's one of the Lions four co-captains and he's been a leader for the team all season. This past week, Mike threw for 217 yards by going 21 for 37. If he can continue to pass the ball like that, the team should end the season on a positive note.

Mark Rothrock

Mark is a sophomore transfer from the University of Maryland. In his first season as a Lion, he has played extremely well on defense. This past weekend, Mark was asked by Coach Sparagana to play on both offense and defense, and he did an outstanding job on both ends. Mark has been a very big addition to the team's defense and we can only hope for great things to come from him again in the future.
