Students, Professors Express Opinions on Armaments

In order to learn something about the opinions of Albright College professors and students concerning President Roosevelt's defense plans calling for an outlay of over a billion dollars in addition to budgeted appropriations for army and navy expansion, several reporters of the Albrightian sharpened their pencils and wrote down the following comments.

Professor Lewis Smith seemed to be definitely in back of the preparations. He said, however, that we should not do it for offensive purposes. In addition, he said "we should not spread the idea that if Germany beats England and France, the United States then becomes the country to beat."

Dr. Morris Greth didn't waste words. He said, "We should have done it 15 or 20 years ago. We'd be better off."

Dr. Milton Geil commented as follows: "I am opposed heart and soul to the entire military program in the light of what's happening in Europe. It appears as though we're living in a different world than we thought. If appearances prove to be real, we are probably compelled in the direction of a rearmament program."

Professor Clyde Harding said he favored the defense-expansion program "provided we don't spend money wildly." Speed in putting across a well planned program is essential, he said.

Dean Allen seemed to agree with Professor Harding. He said he was in favor of more defense facilities, but not in favor of "unguided production."

George Henry, when asked whether or not he was in favor of the proposal, said, "You bet I am! The only trouble is," he said, "that he who opens doors to war finds himself in draft."

Robert L. Work had very little to say. In his words, "I know nothing about the present armament program and I shall support war in absolutely no respect."

Jane Dick's comment was, "Any program for war at this time is more than we can afford."

Mary Capallo's comment was, "It's necessary, but we should not enter the armament race in order to scare people into war."

Alan Hamilton said "I favor a strong defense. If arms are the only means of preserving democracy, in

Peace Workers To Tour West This Summer

Margaret Hollenbach and Verna Fye, members of the Berks Peace Council, will spend the greater part of their summer vacation doing peace work in the Middle West.

Like so many other American youths who realize the futility and consequences of modern war, they have volunteered to spread the idea of non-violent resistance in the hope that never again shall America's youth be sacrificed to the monster Mars.

Miss Hollenbach is being sent by the Student Peace Service, (this organization has for its slogan, "Youth Wages Peace." It was formed for the purpose of enabling young people to find a peaceful solution to the world's economic and social problems). The local peace council is sending Miss Fye.

Before heading West, Miss Hollenbach and Miss Fye, with hundreds of other college students, will attend a ten-day preliminary training conference at Denison University, Ohio. The foremost pacifists of the nation will be there to instruct the peace workers in the technique of speaking and presenting the pacifist program in a clear and concise manner.

"The purpose of the peace worker," Miss Hollenbach stated, "is not to condemn everybody that disagrees with him, but to get everybody working for peace in his own way." Both students gave as their reason for joining the ranks of the pacifists their firm conviction that only through non-violent resistance can peace be preserved.

Stage 'Alcestis' On Science Steps

The performance of "Alcestis," the Greek play, postponed from last week because of rain, was held yesterday afternoon.

Plot of "Alcestis" revolves around Admetus, who has been threatened with death by the gods. To save him, Alcestis, his wife, offers herself as a substitute. On her burial day, Heracles comes to Admetus' house and unwittingly makes merry. To atone for his actions, Heracles goes down to the "houses without light" where the dead are kept and brings Alcestis back to Admetus.

Scales Off Balance?

Students jammed chapel yesterday morning to watch athletic coaches distribute 81 awards to participants in the college's athletic program during the last year.

Those same students saw the president of the Women's Athletic Association read the names of girls who will get awards at a later date.

Most students do not realize that the WAA earned its own money by conducting dances, operating concessions at basketball games, and miscellaneous activities, in order to pay for their own awards. The girls paid dues, faithfully, during the year building their treasury up so it would hold almost $300 at the term's end.

They bought their own equipment. They paid hard cash from their bank account for an archery set costing over $50. And now they are buying their own awards.

What this editorial is trying to point out is the fact that not only the girls' athletic association, but numerous other organizations on campus apparently are forgotten, or overlooked when the budget is made by school officials.

We are heartily in favor of giving the boys their blankets, jackets, letters, or any other award they deserve. However, we also are heartily in favor of doing the same thing for students who take part in academic affairs, spending hours of precious time in preparing a debate speech, or learning lines in a three-act play, or singing in the glee club during Easter vacation.

We are not trying to say that organizations such as the Domino Club and Glee Club are not getting some financial support. We are saying, however, that that support appears out of proportion to the amount allocated for boy's athletics.

Undoubtedly, school officials recognize these facts. They know from experience that campus or-

Zetas Nose Out Kappas For Intra Mural Track Title

Al Gustitus Wins Individual Honors

The Zeta Omega Epsilon fraternity successfully defended its Intra-Mural Track title on Saturday afternoon by amassing 40½ points to nose out the Kappa Upsilon Phi fraternity. K. U. P. scored 38 points to finish second while A. P. O. collected 32 counters to place third.

The T. F. B. group, the Day Students, and the Pi Taus, finished after the leaders in that order. An interesting note here is that Ray Hain scored all 1¼ point made by the Pi Taus.

Al Gustitus, husky A. P. O. entry, won the individual scoring honors with first places in the discus, javelin, and shot-put for 15 points. Bob Gansel took second in scoring with 13 points for the Kappas. Dennis Strawbridge was third with 12½ points for the Day Students.

The Zetas won the meet despite the fact that they captured only two first places. They did however have the best balanced team as they copped two seconds, four thirds, three fourths, and one fifth. The Kappas and A. P. O.'s each took four first places.

Trackmen Crash Win Column

The Lion track team finally crashed through with a victory when they took over the Susquehanna squad last Tuesday afternoon at the stadium. Capturing 10 of the 14 first places, the Lions ended their season on a happy note before a meager crowd. The Lion trackmen had suffered previous defeats by Ursinus, and Dickinson and the taste of victory over Susquehanna was consequently very sweet.

Paced by Paul Golis, who accumulated 15 points by racing to victory in the mile, and two mile and heaving the discus 114 feet, 4 inches, the Lions amassed 77 1-3 points to the 48 2-3 scored by their opponents. Jim Breen captured firsts in the 100 and 200 and tied with Ken Kochej in the pole vault. Clem Boland ran a good second in the 220 and registered a victory in the 440.

Sam Sehl, in the high hurdles; Bitting, in the broad jump and Tom Johnson in the javelin throw, were other first place winners.

The Second-Floor Theology Dorm holds the ping-pong championship of the campus. Jay Williams and Ray Swett defeated Dennis Strawbridge and Theodore Kobrin, representing the Day Students, in the finals of the tournament. The champions on the campus for the 1939-1940 season are as follows:

Touch-football — Kappa Upsilon Phi.

Basketball—Zeta Omega Epsilon. Track—Zeta Omega Epsilon. Ping-Pong—Theolog Dorm. Softball—T. F. B. or Zeta.

As you noticed the softball championship has not yet been decided. But by the end of today, Friday, May 24, the champion will be known as no games can be played after today. Right now, the T. F. B. is in lead as the Zetas have not yet played off a tie with the A. P. O.'s. Each team has lost but one game. The Kappas can clinch the championship for T. F. B. with a victory over the Zetas tonight.

There's a story behind the track letter earned by Sam Sehl this season. Sam was down at the track one day working out in preparation for the intra-mural track meet when Coach Bill Dietz saw his tremendous possibilities as a high hurdler. Right away Lone Star worked on the lanky lad and on Tuesday we saw the culmination of Sam's ability and Dietz's coaching as Sehl captured the 110-yard high hurdles for Albright against Susquehanna College.

The tennis team will play its final match of the season on June 8, when they meet the Alumni on the 11th and Pike Courts. The match with Moravian was called because of wet playing courts.
