Tickets On Sale For Film Tonight

Tickets are still available in the Administration Building for those wishing to see the showing of the film, "Of Mice and Men" by John Steinbeck, tonight in the Science Hall lecture room. Tickets for 25c will be available at the door tonight. The production is being sponsored by the Domino Club and Sigma Tau Delta, honorary English fraternity.

The film, which was taken from the short novel by Steinbeck, has been widely acclaimed. It recently appeared with five other short novels in a book, "The Short Novels," by Steinbeck, who is considered by many critics to be the most important American writer.

"Of Mice and Men" has its setting in the Salinas Valley in California. This is proper since this is the country in which Steinbeck grew up. Because he has used it so extensively in his novels, it has now become known as "Steinbeck country."

Departmental Volumes Added To Library List

Many new books have been added to the Albright College library during the past month. "Triumph and Tragedy," by Winston Churchill, tops the list of new books in the field of history. The origin of the Kellogg-Briand Pact can be found in Robert Ferrell's book, "Peace in Their Time."

For students taking speech, a compendium of source material to make a speech sparkle is found in "The Public Speaker's Treasure Chest," by Herbert Prochnow. The book also includes directions for use and specific instructions on how to prepare an interesting speech. For philology majors, many new additions have been made. In the reference department of the library, "The World Almanac and Book of Facts for 1954" has been added. Other reference books are "Information Please Almanac" and "The Lincoln Library of Essential Information for 1953."

To the department of social science, books concerning opportunities available in many different fields such as plastics, horticulture, electrical trades and hotel industry are now on the shelves. The "Major Features of Evolution," by Simpson, is one of the new science books. Stories concerning William Blake, Charlotte Bronte, Ralph Waldo Emerson,

Prize-Winning Performances

Back to nature proved to be the popular trend in last Friday night's Stunt Night skits, for both groups who turned in prize-winning performances capitalized on swaying palm trees and native terpsichoreans. First Winning Season In 3 Years Ends With DePaul As High Scorer

Albright College's basketballers closed out their first winning season in three years two weeks ago with a great upset win over F & M to put their final record at 13-12 over a rough schedule. George Conrad's 11 points in the final game gave him 404 points for the campaign, and he therefore became the fourth Albright player to reach that magic total in the college's history. Together, Conrad and Mike DePaul, who garnered 432 points to lead the team this year, established a record by having two players score more than 400 points in one year for the first time in the Lions' basketball history.

Conrad won the Ron Regar Trophy for being the most outstanding player of the season. Mike DePaul won the honors in his freshman year. Earlier DePaul became the third Lion basketballer to reach the "400" class with his 21 points against Lehigh. His 432 points raised his two year total to 815 points and Conrad boosted his total to 641. The 29 points scored by DePaul in the last game was the season high for a single player, and Conrad's 26 against Juniata was second high.

Despite the fact that Capt. Jim Croke will return next year for the first semester, it appears that he played his last game against F & M. Because he appeared in four varsity games in the latter part of the season in his Freshman year, the rules disqualify him next year. In his four seasons at Albright he's scored 233 points in 67 games, but that doesn't nearly indicate how valuable he was to the team. Most Lion basketball fans would agree that Croke's leadership has been as important as Howie Landas's play and spirit has been to Lebanon Valley.

Freshmen Bruce Riddell and Jim Foreman contributed many sparkling performances to the Lions' cause. Riddell hit his highest single total in the last game with 23 markers, but his 22 points against Lebanon Valley at home was a big factor in forcing the game into overtime. Foreman hit his peak in the victory over Muhlenberg, 65-59, with 14 points, and his steady playing enabled him to post an 8.6 average.

Missing only three games, sophomore Bill Spaide proved to be a valuable substitute by contributing 61 points to raise his two year total to 207. Don Pryor and Bernie Seaman tallied 50 and 44 points respectively, and Johnny Schiavo and Bernie Krick, who divided time on both the varsity and JV's, had 17 and 8 points respectively.

While scoring 1674 points for the season for a 67 per game average the Lions were holding the opposition to 69 points per game average for a 1725 total. In the Middle Atlantic States Conference games the Albright squad scored 401 points to the opposition's 411.

Baby Lions Post 58 Point Average

While posting a rather disappointing overall record, 6-17, Coach John Potskian's JV's did well in holding the opposition down to 1375 points for a 59.8 per game average, while his well-balanced squad was scoring 1335 points for a 58 points per game average. Ronnie Pisano led the team in scoring by leading in field goals with 82 and adding 58 foul shots to post 222 points for a 9.6 per game average. Dale Yoder led the team in successful foul shots with 61, and he was second in scoring with 193 points.

Five additional players scored better than 100 points during the campaign. Myron Hallock's 8.6 average was good for 189 points and third among the leaders. Mickey Harbach and Ron Bernhardt tied for fourth by scoring 155 points each, however Harbach played in five fewer games. Mike Daugherty sank 116 points and Johnny Schiavo had 111 markers. Herb Levine just missed the 100 mark with 98 tallies. Bernie Krick, who served varsity duty along with Schiavo, posted an eight point per game average with 89 points. Gordon Oplinger rounded out the scoring with seven points.

Yoder was high individual scorer for the season with 24 points against Hamburg's Berks Rec team. Harbach was highest in the collegiate circles with 23 tallies against Dickinson. Krick hit for 21 points against Bucknell and Pisano collected 20 against Muhlenberg.

The Baby Lions won two and lost four in the MASC junior varsity competition. Pisano was high in those six games with 58 points and Yoder was second with 52.

 and John Ruskin are only a few of the new non-fiction books in the biography category.

New additions to the fiction department are Asch's, "The Apostle," "Sorrell and Son," by Deeping, "Success" by Feuchtwanger and "The Abbe Constantin," by Halevy.

Copies of past issues of the "Cue," "Scriptus," and "Speculum" now are available in the reading room. The Speculum was the yearbook of Albright College when it was located at Myerstown and the Scriptus is the yearbook of Schuylkill College and Seminary. Some of these books date back to 1911.

Throughout this month there have appeared in the display cases pictures denoting famous dates and events in March. With the historic dates appear pictures of teachers and students celebrating birthdays in the month of March.

DANDY LION

Ever hear of a queen who greets her subjects in knee socks, whose only decree is "You clown, you," and who knows that Rorschach didn't have a leaky pen? Before we burst with pride, allow us to introduce you to just such a queen—our own Annjeannette Innis, one of the Jim-dandiest lions of them all.

Anjie's reign began that day in February when blond hair, gray eyes (that will level yours if you happen to stand 5' 7") and page-one features were unanimously and judiciously chosen the winning qualifications for the May 8 queen.

But ask her sister Mus, and they'll inform you that here's royalty who can let down her crown and really live it up. As the Mu veep and fall dance chairman, Anjie's flair for the untried and unusual were expressed in her spectacular decorating theme.

This flair for the artistic has expressed itself in still another manner, for as one of the leading ingenues in the Albright theatre, Anjie made two major Domino productions Standing Room Only productions.

As a top innovator in the field of fashion, she has a pet peeve—critics who insist that knee socks and Bermuda shorts were invented for yodeling atop Mt. Penn.

These are but a few of the Must Know facts about Anjie. If this were to be written in installments, the next issue would carry one devoted to her fondness for modern dance, tremendous music, Sub sandwiches sans onions, Greek, playing forward on a basketball team and her home on West Shore.

Leaving first things till last, Annjeannette places among the intelligentsia of the campus. Incidentally, we've heard through Anjie that the psych clinic does more than pass out free lead pencils. And she acquired this practical bit of knowledge through her experience as a psychology major.

A unique queen—to be sure. Since Anjie's past and present have been equally bright, need we say the obvious as to the future?

Recreation Night At Y

"The Pause That Refreshes" is the theme for Y night next Tuesday, March 23, in Krause Hall. Everyone is invited to take a break that evening while they are studying for exams.

Phi Beta Mu Wins Trophy; APO's Take Second Place

By Pat Wehner

Quite a cross-section of campus talent was exhibited at Krause Hall last Friday night in the annual Stunt Night performance. Emceed by Nat Wright, the entertainment was presented by the four local fraternities and two sororities, and judged by Mrs. Bonnie Borelli, Earl Henry and James Lynagh. The judges awarded first place honors to the Phi Beta Mu sorority, second place to the Alpha Pi Omega fraternity and third place to the Pi Tau Beta fraternity.

The Kappa's presented a safe scene that abounded in take-offs on famous characters, featured a rendition by the Rahamajah, George Updegrave, and ended with more dead bodies on stage than Hamlet.

Alpha Pi Omega went native with an African cafe seen, complete with visiting British, exotic, hip-swinging native dancers and Mahlon Frankhauser as Tarzan, who entered the hard way, by a rope from the balcony.

Phi Beta Mu presented a take-off on the Arthur Godfrey show with all the little "Godflees" and two show-stopping talent show winners. Hula dancers, songs, sweet and funny, and a hat-raising performance by Dotty DeLaney helped to put over the show to the crowd.

The Zeta fraternity produced a "television" show highlighted by commercials, a snappy Charleston, and a hilarious take-off on "Romeo and Juliet," but marred by technical difficulties and a slow beginning.

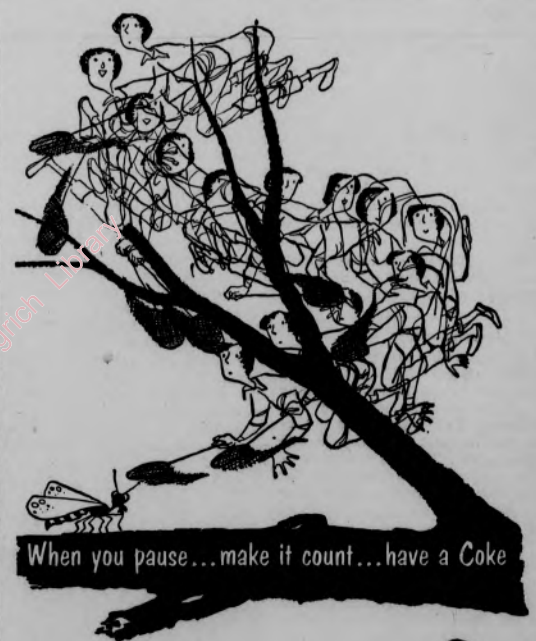

Unique and beautiful settings and costumes dressed up the skit presented by Pi Alpha Tau sorority . . . a dream sequence in the lives of three dreamy students at Agatha Agony's finishing school. Outstanding were the can-can dancers and much of the material, but the continuity was somewhat disjointed by combinations of Indians, can-can girls and a French poodle on stage, and the skit met a somewhat chilly reception.

Pi Tau Beta fraternity presented an original and highly entertaining bit on entrance tests at the pearly gates. The characters and the jokes were entertaining . . . Jimmy Zaferes in particular bringing forth chuckles with his infectious humor.

On the whole, Stunt Night indicated more planning and rehearsals than some previous years and afforded those that attended an entertaining evening.

Mohammedan Religion Is Subject For Vespers

Speaking at the Sunday evening vesper service on March 21 will be Oscar Jensen. His talk will be based upon his two-year study on the Mohammedan religion and the Koran. Jensen will explain the principles of Mohammedanism and point out the similarity between it and Christianity. He will also use charts during the opening portion of the service. Jensen, a sophomore transfer student from the Towson State Teachers College in Maryland is preparing for the ministry.
