'Life of Gandhi' Will Be Featured In Culture Program

Louis Fischer, journalist and author of numerous authoritative books on international affairs, comes here for the last Cultural Program of the year next Thursday. This Assembly will be presented to seniors and sophomores. Juniors and freshmen are scheduled to attend Chapel Tuesday, but may also go Thursday. Fischer will speak on "The Life of Mahatma Gandhi."

In recent years Fischer has made a number of prolonged global surveys of conditions abroad in order to bring back to his lecture audiences the latest reports and analyses. In 1955 he spent six-and-a-half months abroad on extensive research in European countries which he has covered for so long as a foreign correspondent. He embarked on this prolonged survey after completing work on his latest book, a sequel to his monumental Men and Politics.

In 1952 he made a round-the-world tour of nine-months' duration that took him to Italy, Yugoslavia, Turkey, Israel, Pakistan, India, Burma, Siam, Indo-China, Japan, the Philippines and Alaska.

In each country he has visited over the years, Fischer has interviewed and watched at work virtually every important world leader. He was the house guest of Gandhi in 1942 and again in 1946. He knew Roosevelt, Churchill and Stalin. He has had several meetings with Tito and knows Nehru well. He first went to Germany in 1921, and four years later wrote an article about Hitler to which the German leader replied with a personal attack on him.

Born In Philadelphia

Fischer was born and educated in Philadelphia. He taught school before he became a journalist. In 1921 he was sent to Berlin by the New York Post and spent most of the next twenty-five years on roving assignments in Europe and Asia. He also knows the Middle East. He is one of the outstanding authorities on Russia, where he spent many years. After covering the Spanish Civil War, he was in France when World War II broke out and spent the first few months of the conflict practically commuting between London and Paris.

Shortly after Gandhi's assassination, Look magazine published Fischer's appraisal of him, an article that was reprinted as a booklet in India. In the spring of 1948, the same periodical used Fischer's appraisal of Stalin in a two-part article, one of the longest it had ever used. The Reader's Digest reprinted it later in the United States and ten foreign editions.

More recently, the veteran correspondent has been contributing his analyses to the Reader's Digest. Recent articles have included his observations on the 1953 Berlin rebellion, and an appraisal of Communist China's relations with the United States.

Itinerary Lists Eight Concerts

The Albright College Glee Club will leave for their annual spring tour Sunday afternoon at 2:30 and return next Wednesday. The 40-voice touring choir of the college will present concerts of sacred and secular music to audiences in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and Maryland.

Under the direction of Dr. John H. Duddy, professor of music, this group of mixed voices has been acclaimed by its audiences as a distinctive choral group in its singing of the world's choral masterpieces.

The itinerary for the tour will include a concert at the First Presbyterian Congregation of Connecticut Farms at Union, N. J.; a sacred-secular concert sponsored by the Church of the Covenant Evangelical United Brethren, Drexel Hill, Pa. at the Upper Darby Junior High School; concerts at the Milford Mill Evangelical United Brethren Church, Pikesville, Md.; and at the Grace Evangelical United Brethren Church, York, Pa. Several sacred selections will be presented to the members of the Evangelical United Brethren Home for the Aged in Philadelphia.

Secular high school programs will be given at the Clayton, N. J. High School; Springfield Township High School, Chestnut Hill, Pa.; and the Kenwood Senior High School.

For the first time, the alumni of the college have been instrumental in arranging each concert of the tour. In cooperation with Mary Fry Good, '49, executive secretary of the Alumni Association, alumni area clubs are promoting and in some cases, sponsoring these church concerts.

Robert Burcaw Drama Director

Robert T. Burcaw, instructor in English, has been appointed director of Domino Club by Harry V. Masters, president of the college. Professor Burcaw will be replacing Mrs. Annadora V. Shirk, assistant professor of English, who has been Domino Club director for ten years and who plans to turn her attention toward new activities.

This past year Professor Burcaw was technical director for both Domino productions and is presently directing The Happy Journey which is touring area high schools.

Professor Burcaw received his B.A. degree from Moravian College and his M.A. degree from the University of Pennsylvania. His directing experience began at Moravian where he directed Oedipus Rex and The Hasty Heart. One of his own plays, White Winter Comes, was produced as a reading by the drama group.

While stationed in the Army at Croix Chapeau, France, Professor Burcaw was able to expand his directing career as a student of Frederick Warder. He also had experience in the Service Theatre Group.

Point Of Order

A dormitory is not always a home—not when its facilities are so tied up with outside groups that those who live in the dormitories must either stay penned up in their own rooms or find some place to go off campus.

Last weekend three outstanding events took place simultaneously on campus. A stamp collectors' show was held in Krause Hall, a regional convention of Beta Sigma Phi, international cultural sorority, was held in Selwyn Hall, Teel Hall, and White Chapel Hall, and the annual Science Fair for Berks County high schools was held in the Physical Education Building.

All three of these were, worthwhile, and the college was honored to be host to each of them. However, by permitting so many large gatherings to be held at the same time, the persons in charge of scheduling activities on campus left literally no place for the students, who, after all, do live here.

The dormitory women were the most inconvenienced. Their parlors, social rooms, television rooms and lounges were all occupied by meetings. These rooms are included in dormitory planning so that there is some place besides one's room to study, relax, or entertain guests. Such rooms are recognized as being necessary whenever many people of varying interests and activities must live together.

Last Saturday, however, whenever these rooms were not actually occupied, the furniture was specially arranged for meetings to come, and they still couldn't be used by the dormitory girls. For instance, the davenport and chairs in the Green Room were arranged Friday afternoon in rows facing a movie screen. Express instructions were given that nothing was to be moved, so Teel Hall women had to entertain their dates Friday night in an annoying, unpleasant "pass the popcorn" atmosphere with each couple facing the backs of the heads of the couple in the next row.

The actual inter-sanctum of the dormitories also had to be on dress parade for the entire day—and one almost had to know the password to get into the hand-washing rooms. College life is hectic—and many chores such as hair-washing, room-cleaning, and intensive studying must be postponed until the weekend. Sunday is obviously not the time to do them, which leaves Saturday.

If Saturdays are taken up with open-houses, the poor girls who live in the dormitories never do have time to get caught up. No one minds the Homecoming Day Open House, or the ones on Parents' Weekend or Church Day—on the contrary, we are proud of our dormitories and are glad to show them off to alumni, prospective students and friends of the college. On these occasions, the campus goes all-out in cooperating with programs that are Albright traditions.

Open-house two weeks in a row, though, is rather an imposition on the time and privacy of the dormitory women, especially since the second one was not college-connected. Unless one hides in the closet, there is no place to retreat to in order to study or do anything else during an open-house.

No one wants to give the impression that the student body doesn't join with the faculty and administration in welcoming outside groups to our campus—we only ask that not so many be welcomed at once. A good rule of thumb would be to limit the number of simultaneous non-college gatherings so that there are a few little nooks and crannies left on campus for the students.

Laurels To The Leaders

The staff of the Albrightian, on behalf of all the students of Albright, wishes to take this opportunity to acknowledge the competent leadership we have witnessed in campus organizations during this Centennial Year. As president of the Student Council, Paul Hetrich has set a fine example for all other campus leaders to follow. His folder system was incorporated as part of the fulfillment of his platform of last year. Besides bringing new ideas to our student government, Paul handled school affairs with competence and tact. The superior status which he gave to his position we hope will be continued into next year.

The YM-YWCA programs this year have been well-organized and enthusiastically supported by the members on the combined "Y" cabinets. This could only have been achieved through the guidance of vitally interested leaders. Bill Davies had his committees set up with chairmen whom he knew would carry out their duties with responsibility. The activities were more varied this year than ever before and the cabinet was larger than in the past.

Barbara Babel, as president of the YWCA, created a sense of unity among her workers, which was evident in the spirit with which they did their work. The interested students of Albright have appreciated all that Barb and Bill have done to make this a well-rounded year. May the precedent which these people have set be followed in the future, for Albright can benefit by it.

Harry was sitting in the bathtub when the telephone rang. He muttered something nasty under his breath and rose from the . . . HARRY—the whole world is watching you — GRAB THAT TOWEL! Who do you think you are, Terry Moore or somebody? . . . and dry yourself off before you sit on that clean bedspread! One of these days I'm going to forget myself and—HARRY, I hope you don't expect to take that book into the tub with you. You know if you keep this up I can always ship you to the Republic of Monaco. What do you mean how? I'll disguise you as a wedding cake. Now let me have that book and if you promise to sit there and keep your mouth shut I might read a little to you.

This is the story of the three bears. In order of rank they were, Old Lady Bear, Daddy Bear, and Little Nude.

Say, Harry, what kind of a story is this?—well, if you read it in reform school I guess it's okay.

Now these folks were really poor, but they were as cozy as three peas in a pod. They went to the drive-inn together, they hunted human beings every Saturday night (just for fun, mind you), and they even worked together on honey raids.

It was on this one particular afternoon, when the Bear family were out walking toward the picnic grounds, that their home was broken into by an ex-con by the name of Goldy-the-Locks. Goldy wasn't actually an ex-con, he just called himself that because he broke out of the pen just a few hours earlier.

He tried to get rid of the "butterflies" in his stomach by taking an aspirin, but this didn't help for they only played ping-pong with it. He had to relax; there was a pack of cigarettes in front of mother bear's place at the table and he lit the whole package without even taking time to remove the cellophane.

"This is too rough on my throat. I want a treat instead of a treatment."

The next pack of cigarettes was in front of Papa's plate and when this too was sucked into Goldy's mouth and lit, he said, "This pack needs at least thirty days to be tested and I just don't have the time to develop a T-zone."

He then moved toward the last pack of cigarettes, but was already too sick by this time to do any more experimenting, so he merely used the eye test and found that this pack was more pleasing to the eye than any of the others. He felt it was smoother for his eyes and a lot safer for his lungs.

For his next trick, Goldy went right upstairs with the intention of taking a little nap, or at least he hoped to do this after he cleaned up a bit. He found Papa Bear's razor, plugged it in and began to move it slowly over his one week's growth.

"Why, this isn't even good enough to shave the hair off a bear," and with that he threw the razor out the window and went in search for Mama Bear's razor. He was quite displeased with the circumstances at the moment, and wasn't antic-

Albright Personality

Norm Ring

By Janet Weil

Notice who is occupying the celeb corner this week. Recognize him with the sunglasses? It's the man with the friendly grin — NORM RING!

Our featured senior calls Hillside, N. J., home, but has his mall delivered to the APO house while at college.

Run through his list of activities? Sure we will if you have lots of time. Norm is business manager of the Cue, a member of APO and Pi Delta Epsilon, plays intramural basketball and baseball for the APO's and was a member of the Orientation Committee.

He spent last year counting The Albrightian's money when he was business manager of this sheet.

Mention Carole and our "man of the week's" eyes will light up. She, quite naturally, heads his list of likes. Norm also gives his seal of approval to collegiate clothes, thick steaks smothered with onions, and ice cream.

Reminiscing over his college life in later years, Norm will be sure to remember his very pleasant senior year at Albright.

This, no doubt, ties in with the portrait which occupies a very special place in Norm's room.

Included in his plans for the future are raising a large family so, after June and graduation, Norm is going out in the big cruel world to utilize his training in business administration to earn a weekly pay check.

No early morning classes (in fact, no classes at all) would please Norm. In just a few short weeks, Norm will no longer be bothered by this pet peeve.

Guess we're just about out of space, but we do want to wish Norm luck in all his future endeavors.

Now that spring is really here, all nature lovers will surely be interested in the bird walks which are sponsored by the Reading Public Museum and the Reading School Board. These walks take place on the Museum grounds. If interested, consult the posters in the Library and Ad Building.

Last Concert Under City Auspices

On Friday, April 27, at 8:30 p.m., the Reading Philharmonic Orchestra will give its last performance of the season. The all-citizen orchestra will play an all-premiere concert by the Reading composer and pianist, Dr. Chester Wittell. Dr. Wittell will be at the piano. The program includes Heroic Symphony, Brass Quintet, Entrata and Rondo and a group of piano and vocal numbers. The symphony is written in the classic style and is being performed for photo-sat manuscript. Admission is free. The place is Southern Junior High School, 10th and Chestnut Streets.

This concert will be the last sponsored by the city of Reading. There has been some misunderstanding in the recreation department, which wants a group of musicians to rehearse and never perform and so the orchestra will be privately sponsored next year and will be forced to sell subscriptions.

This and That

A few weeks ago, I was privileged to see a sneak-preview of the motion picture Carousel. This production in the new Cinemascope "55" is excellent. The entire background is in focus and you can see everything that is going on. The color is enriched, and good taste is shown in the production numbers, especially June Is Busting Out All Over. Gordon Macrae, Shirley Jones and Robert Rounseville head the cast. Dick Rogers can surely be proud of his work now.

For all accompanists—HERE—is the record. The Unshamed Accompanist, on Angel Discs, proves to be a very entertaining buy. Gerald Moore, English pianist, narrates and describes the role of the accompanist in the concert hall. Moore has accompanied many of the famous artists both in performance and recording. He starts by playing the dull accompaniment to the Italian song, Il Bacio, and winds up with a discussion on transposition. Many laughs as well as some good pointers on listening are to be found on this one disc.

Coming in May—South Pacific. This will be the production by the Reading Civic Opera Company.

Albright Host To Strong Moravian Nine Today

IN THE LION'S DEN

By Phil Eyrich, Sports Editor

Almost from the beginning of sports in the United States, the question of amateurism versus professionalism in athletics has raged. Throughout this country's sports history, there has always been a controversy between fans, athletes, coaches, and officials as to what constitutes an amateur or a professional athlete. At various times the controversy has risen in public attention and publicity, while in other periods, interest has ebbed. The present appears to be a period of the former type mentioned.

All persons connected with athletics in any way, including fans, realize that there has got to be some differentiation between amateur and professional athletes. But the questions are, what are the criteria for making the differentiation, and what sort of punishment should an amateur athlete receive if he violates the rules?

Distinctions . . .

The most common criterion used for making distinctions between the two is based on money. Does an athlete receive pay for his prowess or doesn't he? This is a good criterion, if it is not carried to extremes. Athletes obviously need money just as much as everybody else, and so the line between amateurism and professionalism should be wide and not narrow so as to virtually force career athletes to be technically professional.

Association of amateur and professional athletes is also controversial. In deciding where to draw the line, it should be remembered that professional players should not have to be treated by their amateur counterparts as though the former has a contagious disease. It seems that relationships between the two, even to the point of playing together, as long as the amateurs do not receive pay, should be all right.

But there exists in the United States today a group of people who continually crusade, with a zeal that would put a Woodrow Wilson to shame, to ferret out by any means available every athlete who can possibly be associated with professionalism. Their tactics are not always the kind that would make the public support them if they were brought out into the open. They go to great lengths to keep athletes "clean and pure" and away from the pit of professionalism, as though professionalism is some sort of monster. As with other causes, their crusade has evidently surpassed its rightful boundaries and does more harm than good to amateurism.

Examples . . .

The recent incidents concerning Wes Santee and Wilt Chamberlain are examples of the above. Both of these cases are fiascos and certainly can not be held up by anyone as examples of good American justice. If nothing else, at least the amateur organization in this country needs revamping.

So much for the rules, how about punishments? It seems absurd to this writer that an athlete who has done a great deal for his country, in the way of establishing good will, should be banished from amateur running on such a flimsy case as Wes Santee was.

The solution to our amateur dilemma is not simple or clear-cut. It is obvious that something must be done. Now is the time for responsible people in the athletic field to begin to correct the evils in our amateur organization so that sports in the U.S. will have as bright a future as it has had a past.

Diamondmen Whip Penn; Lose First To Dickinson

The Albright baseball Lions brought their season's record to two wins, a loss, and a tie with a win over the University of Pennsylvania and a loss to Dickinson College in recent games. After dropping an 8-6 decision to upstart Dickinson, the Lions clobbered Penn 9-5.

Thinclads Whip Mules 92-33 For First Win

Albright College's track team romped to an easy win over Muhlenberg and placed second to powerful St. Joseph's in a triangular meet including Juniata last week.

The Lions drubbed the Mules 92-33 as Bob Wetzel, Paul Slapikas, and Bill Shirk registered double wins. Wetzel romped home a winner in the 120- and 220-yard hurdles, while Shirk won the mile and two-mile events. Freshman Slapikas was a winner in the broad and high jumps. Albright won 13 out of 14 events and had plenty of depth to account for such a lopsided score.

Place Third

In a triangular meet in Philadelphia, powerful St. Joseph's amassed 91 1/2 points, while Albright scored 47. Juniata wound up third with 15 1/2 points. The Lions could win but four events as Frank McLaughlin of the Hawks set a new track record for the mile with a time of 4:21.6. Tom Faust won the 220-yard dash, Jon Bradshaw took the pole vault, John Setticeerz won the shot put, and Jack Huntzinger copped the discus for the Lions.

Coach Gene Shirk's thinclads have split even in two dual meets and have placed second in a triangular meet for the season.

Albright, LVC To Wage Track Duel Tuesday

Eleven contests are slated for Albright's four spring sports teams during the coming week. Today the Lion baseball team will be host to the powerful diamond squad of Moravian. The game is scheduled to start at 3:30 this afternoon on Kelchner Field.

From their showing thus far this season, the Greyhounds have marked themselves as a top diamond team, having beaten such powers as Lafayette. Twelve veterans of the Moravian team of a year ago form the bulwark of the present squad.

Skip Fegley, Ron Gift, and Joe Heard are the leading offensive players for the Greyhounds, while pitchers Jerry Keyock, Fred Woltzschek, and Dick Haney head the visitor's mound staff.

Big Game

From all indications, this afternoon's game will be as tough as any scheduled for the Lions all season, and could be a good indicator of the Lions prowess.

Tomorrow the Potsklanmen will travel to Lancaster for a game with Franklin and Marshall. Although the Diplomats are usually only mediocre in baseball, with eight lettermen on their squad they could be troublesome for Albright.

Lafayette will be host to the Red and White on Tuesday in another key game for the locals. Hitting has been the Leopards' forte in early contests this season.

By winning the Moravian and Lafayette games, the Lions would establish themselves as one of the better Mid-Atlantic teams.

Coach Gene Shirk's track and field team will make its home debut on Tuesday when they meet the Flying Dutchmen of Lebanon Valley in Albright Stadium.

Lebanon Valley's 1956 squad is composed mostly of underclassmen. Coached by Ellis McCracken, the visitors from Annville are in a rebuilding phase of the thinclad sport this year.

Well-Balanced

All indications point to the fact that Albright's well-balanced track and field squad will definitely have the edge on LVC.

Adelphi and Franklin and Marshall will both invade the Albright campus for tennis matches this week. The Adelphi contest is slated for tomorrow, and the F & M match for next Thursday. With these two encounters the Red and White netmen will end their current five-match home stand, and will then be on the road for their next two contests.

The golf team plays Moravian on Monday and LaSalle on Wednesday in home and away games respectively.

George Conrad's single, an error on Bob Florindo's grounder, and a mighty triple to center field by Bernie Seaman.

Penn tallied a run in the home half of the same inning, but the Lions' Terry Reber scored in the third to make the count 3-1.

Reber opened the fifth frame with a triple to right-center field, and scored on an interference play a short time later. Singles by Seaman and Bob Moller, wrapped around an error, gave Albright two more runs.

Lead Cut

The hosts closed in on the Lions at 6-4 in the next inning, but doubles by Fred Dietzel and Conrad powered a two-run Albright uprising in the eighth, and the Potsklanmen added one in the final frame, along with Penn, to give Albright a 9-6 triumph.

Fred Dietzel started the game on the hill for the Lions and was the winner, although he was forced to leave the mound after six innings because of a swollen hand.

388 Vote On Customs; Few Changes Suggested

By Arthur E. Saylor, Chairman, Student Council Judiciary Committee

A total of 388 students voted in the recent evaluation of the freshman customs program conducted by Student Council. Of this number, 16 students had no opinion on the subject, and two questionnaires were invalid.

The results were as follows:

116 people were in favor of the present customs program

31 people were in favor of elimination of customs entirely

216 people were in favor of a modified or improved customs period.

The two main suggestions for a better customs program offered by the 216 people were: (1) A shorter period and (2) strict enforcement of the rules finally established.

Based on the general consensus of opinion of the 216 people, the following improvements should be considered:

1) The freshmen should not be required to wear the following: ties and prescribed stocking, also women should not be required to be without make-up.

2) All freshmen should be required to wear a large button with their name large enough to be readable at a distance, and they should also be required to wear dinks.

3) The Compass should also be in the freshman's possession at all times. He should be required to know the Alma Mater, purposes of customs, and the fundamental ideals for which Albright stands.

4) An upperclassman can require a freshman to button or repeat the requirements listed above only once at a given time; after which the upperclassman is to introduce himself, and shake the hand of the freshman—if this is not carried out, there are no grounds for reporting such a freshman as a violator.

5) All rules that are established should be strictly enforced with much better organization.

6) The method for reporting violators should be improved.

7) The customs period should last no longer than three weeks.

Chemists Gather For Convention

The fifth annual convention of the Pennsylvania Association of College Chemistry Teachers will be held on campus today and tomorrow.

The convention opens this afternoon with registration, a campus tour, and an industrial tour of the Beryllium Corporation.

A banquet and lecture will comprise tonight's activities. Dr. Harry V. Masters, president of the college, will deliver the banquet welcome and the Octet, under the direction of David P. Lubba, '56, will supply the music.

Dr. Robert D. Eddy, professor of chemistry at Tufts University, will be the lecture speaker. His subject is entitled "Concentrating the Diluted Teacher." This will be a joint meeting with the Lehigh Valley Section of American Chemical Society and Reading Chemists' Club.

Saturday morning's activities include presentation of papers, a business session, and a luncheon.

The convention will close with a lecture and panel discussion. Dr. Charles C. Price, professor of chemistry and director of the department at the University of Pennsylvania, will be the lecture speaker. "Trends in Chemical Education" is his subject.

The subject of the panel discussion is "The Training and Certification of the High School Chemistry Teacher." Dr. Benjamin H. Handorf, professor of chemistry, will be the moderator. The panel includes Dr. Charlotte Damerel of Wilson College, Dr. James E. Koken of Millersville State Teacher's College, Dr. Leroy K. Lauck, Berks County Superintendent of Schools Office, and Dr. J. Marilyn Yatron, '54 To Study In France As Fulbright Scholar

Marilyn Yatron, '54, has been awarded a Fulbright Scholarship for study next year at the University of Lyon, France.

She is at present a teaching fellow in French at the University of Indiana, Bloomington, Ind., where she expects to receive her master's degree in June. Miss Yatron is the second Albright student to receive a Fulbright grant.

As part of the International Educational Exchange Program, designed to promote a better understanding of the United States in other countries and to increase mutual understanding between foreign and American peoples, Miss Yatron will study French language and literature in Lyon.

An honor student at Reading High School, class of '49, Miss Yatron later received her A.B. degree at Albright, where she was active in language clubs and the Future Teachers of America. In her senior year she served as president of the French Club.

Last month her engagement to Gary R. Holden, of Greenfield, Ind., was announced.

Staff Attends Yearbook Clinic

Teeter, '57, incoming editor; Dorothy Englert, '57, and Barbara Pelkus, '58, co-photography editors; Sheldon Kaplan, '57, business manager; and Melvin Horst, '57, photographer.

Sponsored by the American Yearbook Co. of Hannibal, Mo., the clinic was conducted by Otto W. Quale, former member of the faculty of the University of Minnesota School of Journalism and associate director of the National Scholastic Press Association.

The clinic covered yearbook planning and content, layout, photography, artwork, copy writing and fitting, staff organization, and advertising and financing.

Seniors Take Exams

New Service Fraternity Organizing On Campus

A campus branch of Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity, is currently being organized. The aims of the fraternity are service to the student body and faculty, service to youth and community, service to members of the fraternity, and service to the nation as participating citizens.

Under the efforts of temporary officers William H. Lord, '56, president, John Fieh, '57, vice president, Robert Miller, '58, secretary, and Jay Baker, '58, treasurer, thirty names have already petitioned the organization of this group.

The preamble of this fraternity as it is stated in the national constitution is:

We, the members of the Alpha Phi Omega fraternity, in order to secure for ourselves, the youth of the nation and of the world, the blessings that come from the Scout Oath and Law, and to deliver a program of service to our fellow men, do hereby adopt and establish the following Constitution.

Faculty advisors are Dr. Paul M. Leininger, associate professor of chemistry and a former chapter advisor at Lafayette College; and Dr. Edwin L. Bell, associate professor of biology, a former member. The current service of this organization is to label the trees located on the Albright campus.

There are at present, during the thirtieth year of Alpha Phi Omega, seventeen chapters in Pennsylvania and over four-hundred chapters in the country.

This organization crosses all lines of honorary, social, and professional fraternities, and members of other campus organizations may also be active in this fraternity. The fraternity is not in competition with any other campus group but, on the contrary, seeks the cooperation of other organizations to broaden the scope of service.
