The Girls' Glee Club has returned from a five-day trip thru the north-ern central part of the state. Much praise and commendation has been heard of their fine program and of the wonderful ability of their Meis-tersinger, Miss Ella Phillips, to send out a Club so well instructed. It is said, and it is true, the program is better than has been given for years. The club left Myerstown, Friday, March '23, under the chap-erongse of Mrs. H. A. ANNUAL HOME CONCERT GIVEN BY JOINT GLEES

The annual home concert of the The annual home concert of the Glee Clubs was given Tuesiay night March 20, in the College Chapel. As usual the concert was up to the high standard of excellence, both in pro-gram and rendition, and was present-ed to an audience which filled the entire chapel. Because of unexpect-ed circumstances several of the num-bers had to be changed about, but the substitutions were well chosen; and in spite of a few handicaps, the Glees gave an excellent promise of the things they were to accomplish on their trips. The program with corrections follopws: schedule was arranged so that each Evangelical church was provided with two soloists from the Club for each service. On Monday morning the Girls were privileged to sing in the Chapel service of the Williamsport High School and in one of the grade buildings, whose principal is Mr. J. W. Gilmore. Here they again pleas-ed and in the grade school was dis-played one of the finest pieces of appreciation, when the children, ac-cording to all parliamentary rule, gave the club a vote of thanks. The Albright College Male Glee Club will be featured in a specially arranged recital at Radio Station WCAE of the Pittsburg Press at Kaufman & Baer Co. next Saturday, beginning at 2:30 P. M. With this announcement

With this announcement the many thousands of the powerful 400 meter wave length station are assured of one of the most delightful musical treats of the season. The college boys enjoy an enviable reputation for the artistry of their presenta-tions and W.C.A.E. listeners-in, will no doubt be as enthusiastic as other audiences that have heard the Al-bright Club. One of the biggest features of the Albright College Male Glee Club is its knowledge of all classes of music-tored by these musicians but semi-classical, popular and novelty num-bers are also included in their reper-toire. thousands of the powerful 400 meter

For their radio appearance For their radio appearance a pro-gram of exceptional beavity has been arranged under the appervision of Miss Ella M. PETRys, meistersing-er. Vocal and bastrumental selec-tions will vie for popularity. A string tric, composed of J. Good Brown, ivest mandolin; G. W. Raf-fenspocces, second mandolin; and Watham M. EDITORIAL COMMENT

EDITORIAL COMMENT During the past summer, the writer visited in the home of a friend in New England who owned a large tract of land and took great pride in showing visitors around his splendid property. The neat, white-washed fences and carefully trimmed hedges spoke of the ex-cellent carefully trimmed hedges spoke of the ex-cellent carefully trimmed hedges spoke of the ex-cellent carefully trimmed hedges with a spor-ty. The day was ideal, and towards evening we turned into an old lane. The owner called attention to several trees growing by the side of the road. At one time, they, no doubt, were splendid, towering, magnificent oaks, admired by all who passed that way. Now they were dead, unsightly, withered trees, with vines, cov-ered with clusters of green leaves; twined around the trunks, which told the story—victims of parasites. Let us imagine the beginning of this condition. At trunks, which told the story—victims of parasites. Let us imagine the beginning of this condition. At first, a tiny tendril of the parasite fastened itself upon the bark of the tree, an unimportant thing, perhaps un-noticed by the person responsible for the care of the tree. But as time passed, the parasitic vine became stronger and stronger and finally, sapped out the last ounce of life blood of that giant Oak and transformed it into a useless mass of debris.

To not a useriess mass of debris. Can we think of our Alma Mater as a giant Oak? Let us look for a moment thru the glory of the Red and White and picture her as a proud, massive Oak, standing out among her kindered institutions, as the "King of the Forest" stands out among the other trees

Let us keep this picture in mind and turn to a group, of students who were discussing "exams" in the Din-ing Doom. One of the group, a Freshman, ventured the following information, "Exams aren't bothering me at all, I'm going to take ______'s advice, go to exams with an empty head, pockets full of information, and a conscience absolutely devoid of offense." The freshman who made this remark mentioned the name of a prominent upper class member, a leader on the Campus. The writer is not discriminating against the freshmen, as it is reasonable to suppose that the per-son who recommended this method of passing exams, probably received the same advice from an upper class member several years before. Later when the writer learned that this student had followed this advice and seemed proud of the accomplishment, his mind reverted to the dead tree and pictured the time when that one little tendril fastened its deadly grip on the thriving Oak in New England. The writer does not wish to convey the impression that he heavemes the victim of the name-tion of the Oak he heavemes the victim of the name-Let us keep this picture in mind and turn to a gr the impression that he thinks that the student should be classed as that parasitic vine; but believes that as a branch of the Oak, he becomes the victim of the parasite which threatens the life of an Institution like our Alma Mater. The spirit or attitude of the students who allow this to continue is the parasite that threatens the Oak

Oak. If you are anxious to keep her, a live, towering Oak, you will not be dishonest, even though you do be-lieve that exams are unfair; that you are taking the sub-ject against your wish; that you can justify yourself because others crib; that teachers are unfair in their because others crib; that teachers are untain in their polation marking of papers; or that exams are not a fair test of saucer. and's knowledge. We must recognize the fact that it is a poor student who can not cheat, regardless of how close the supervision may be. It is the writer's hope that every individual, and religious organization, in fact ev-ery agency of the College will unite their efforts to keep this deadly, poisonous parasite from gaining a hold upon our incoming students and upon the foundation of our beloved Institution.

It's all over. The big spring event is now history. Easter with its accompanying vacation has passed, and everything is back to work; some with new finery; some with bobbed heads; the glees with refreshing tales of their trips; and some few, oh very few, with lots of pep for work

Emerson Hangen and Hobson Wagner, both '22 vis ited school during Easter week.

The Easter vacation was a pretty general affair. Even the Bulletin Staff had a week off; we think we are more grateful for this vacation than we can tell you.

Spring, delightful any place, seems to us just about perfect in this section. The campus is so very beauti-ful, and the two things we shall never forget about on our campus, are the picturesque sunsets, and the many birds that always come back in the spring

The tennis courts should soon be the center of cam-pus attractions. They have dried off nicely, and lining should soon take place. With tennis tournaments plan-ned, and some likely games scheduled, the tennis sea-son promises to be very popular.

How Electrical Engineering began

T IS not enough to ex-periment and to observe in scientific research. There must also be in-tion. Take the cases of terpretation. Take Galvani and Volta.

Galvani and Volta. Onedayin 1786 Galvani touched with his metal instruments the nerves of a frog's amputated hind legs. The legs twitched in a very life-like way. Even when the frog's legs were hung from an iron railing by copper hooks, the phe-nomenon persisted. Galvani knew that he was dealing with electricity but concluded that the frog's legs had in some way gen-erated the current. Then came Volta, a contempo-

Then came Volta, a contempo-rary, who said in effect: "Your in-terpretation is wrong. Two differ-ent metals in contact with a moist nerve set up currents of electricity. I will prove it without the aid of frog's legs."

frog's legs." Volta piled disks of different metals one on top of another and separated the disks with moist pieces of cloth. Thus he gene-rated a steady current. This was the "Voltaic pile"—the first bat-tery, the first generator of electricity.

Both Galvani and Volta were careful experimenters, but Volta's correct interpretation of effects gave us electrical engineering.

Napoleon was the outstanding figure in the days of Galvani and Volta. He too possessed an active interest in science but only as an aid to Napoleon. He little imagined on examining Volta's crude battery that its effect on later civilization would be fully as profound as that of his own dynamic personality.

The effects of the work of Gal-The effects of the work of Gal-vani and Volta may be traced through a hundred years of elec-trical development even to the latest discoveries maae in the Re-search Laboratories of the Gen-eral Electric Company.
