Thank You, Mr. Carson

There are a few minor details in college lives about which we can't feel too secure at this date—such trivials as passing final exams or getting that diploma.

Those of us who were interested enough to keep tabs on the representatives from our individual organizations were fairly well represented in the meetings of this Student governing body.

The point is not so much how many activities we've taken upon ourselves but rather how we've gone about it.

So why do we send representatives and why are they willing to attend these laborious meetings? One of the answers, and strong answer, is that in these difficulties we have the very essence of democracy.

Here's hoping both that students next year will take as keen an interest in student activities, and that council will be just as active a legislative body.

Thank You, Mr. Voss

Glue your ear to that radio tomorrow night at 11:30 p.m. I 1340 on your radio dial! That's Frank Voss and Company at WRAW.

Last Wednesday, we all had a great time at the "D.P. $1000 Day".

We're very grateful to Stan Tauber who did a wonderful job of contacting interested persons in the community who contributed approximately $400 to the drive.

Let's all jump into this and give it the final punch necessary to hit the $1200 goal.

U. N. News . . .

Britisher Views Albright

The visit of Mrs. Susan Chapuisat, a member of the U. N. Secretariat, to our campus last Wednesday gave students an opportunity to glimpse the workings of the U. N. from a direct source without the usual distortions of press and radio.

A Britisher, with a delightful way of speaking, Mrs. Chapuisat is employed in the Public Information division of the Secretariat. At a meeting of the International Relations Club Wednesday evening she gave evidence of much wit, charm and self-possession during the informal discussion which was conducted there.

First, Mrs. Chapuisat discussed the general organization of the U. N., which at full strength consists of 3,600 members. She mentioned the fact that there are many workers at Lake Success who were formerly members of the League of Nations, and thus well-qualified for their positions by years of experience.

Mrs. Chapuisat spoke of the fifty-eight member nations as a huge family with many difficulties, but she stressed the fact that in the relatively short time since its organization, the U. N. has achieved a great deal.

The boy of the U. N., and particularly of Mrs. Chapuisat, seems to be the American institution of commercial radio. She commented upon the difficulty of securing desirable radio time, and added that the opening of the present base ball season would certainly not help matters.

Reflecting upon the future of the U. N., she stated her belief, "As day succeeds day, the prospect of war recedes further and further."

Mrs. Chapuisat believes the D. P. project at Albright is a splendid idea. She mentioned the fact that Britain has taken a tremendous number of such persons with great success.

During the course of the meeting a heated argument developed between Mrs. Chapuisat with her U. N. supporters and our staunch United World Federalists in the IRC group.

After the meeting, Mrs. Chapuisat spoke very enthusiastically about her impressions of Albright, the first American college she has ever visited.

"I like the American idea of stress, not only upon scholastic achievement, but also upon extra-curricular activities," Mrs. Chapuisat continued.

"I hope you understand I am not a 'stuffy Britisher,'" Mrs. Chapuisat concluded.

DANDY LIONS

This week's Dandy Lion is that gentleman with the slow, easy-spoken manner and the genuine smile, the fellow you usually see walking down the path with a young lady by the name of Erma.

Bob spends a lot of time up in the Science Hall on yon hill, for he's a biology major and a chem minor.

Looking into the future, Bob plans on entering the teaching profession after graduation. With his ability to understand people and to get along with them, he certainly should be successful.

Loony Antics-Result of Spring

By JANE POLLACK

Ahh, spring is sprung at last. Once again this is the time when a young man's fancy turns to thoughts women have had all winter long.

For instance, did you know that those frivolous dorn dames were so overcome by the spirit of Easter that they bought, not a bonnet, but a bunny! Needless to say, foreign specimens of the animal species are tabu in S.S.Wyn.

Little did she know that no sooner was the door shut when the box was overturned and one loose rabbit went exploring.

Now that isn't all, by any means. Just last week over in the Freshman dorm the males proved that they had caught this strange virus too.

Biologically Speaking

The General Bio students have started to work on the dissection of the frog.—Need more be said?

The Comparative Anatomy students are figuring out the automatic nervous system of the cat. Last Saturday three students were in the lab from 8 a.m. till 2 p.m.

Skull and Boners recently had a movie on the Physiology of Normal Labor. It was an open meeting and the attendance was overwhelming.

Volumentric analysis is the present worry of quan students. After making up acid, base, and potassium permanganate solutions, they are ready to do their stuff, and that is, handing in incorrect determinations.

Students aren't the only ones who worry; professors also have insomnia. The other day Prof. Handorf was sitting in his office doing the peaceful work of correcting papers when all of a sudden he heard a tremendous explosion in one of the labs.

"No Signs of Depression," Declares N.A.M. President

Interviewed by Bob Hoffman

"There are no prospects of a major depression for the United States in sight," declared Wallace F. Bennett, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, in a special press interview held Tuesday morning in the Abraham Lincoln Hotel. Bennett, a guest speaker for two days at meetings of the district Rotary International and the Manufacturers' Association of Berks County, emphasized the point that the gradual industry by industry change from a seller's market without competition, an abnormal situation that has existed for ten years, to a more healthy buyers' market with competition for sales and jobs, has shocked many people from fearing another business slump.

Progressives

The so-called "progressives" have taken this cue to call for more government control of big business and socialism. Actually farmers and manufacturers are better off financially than they have been for a time. The recent Federal Reserve move to liberalize credit is a true indication of our situation. In fact, the lack of people investing and venturing their surplus has made the dead stock more valuable than the moving stock because of the accumulation of capital.

Exports to Europe under the aid plans are not a vital factor to the success of a majority of American businesses. Bennett stated, "We have approached an equilibrium and a peak in actual wage increases." The ratio of wage increases will continually get less and less. And it is necessarily so because the break even point for profit or loss is getting higher as wages rise. Wages make up 85-90% of all prices and costs. Instead of wage increases, "fringe benefits" like pensions will be sought. Of American businesses, those connected with steel have the rosier prospects for success in the future, because of scarce supply.

Competition

"Although there will be more competition for jobs, and that's the biggest change—competition, college graduates will be absorbed into employment over the next few years." We now have the greatest percentage of employed in our population, with a turnover of 600,000 a year.

The N.A.M. favors a "labor bill written after calm consideration, without political pressure." Recent publicity about big business monopoly is just a big scare to bring more government control. The facts are, 70% of the N. A. M. members employ 250 people or less, and General Motors does not have a single stockholder with more than 1 1/2% of the entire stock. Bennett himself is president of a small paint and varnish company in Salt Lake City.

Conclusion

In conclusion, Mr. Bennett said that free private enterprise, the profit motive, and competition are the heart of our national success.

Addressing the B. C. M. A. on Monday evening, he stated that the present internal discord and difficulty in the United States has been caused by the acceptance of the fraudulent Marxian philosophy of an inevitable class struggle. To check the confusion and hopes of our enemies, American business leadership must "build a bridge of truth" over the chasm between owner and employee.

The Albrightian Goes to Press

The Story of Albright College's Student Weekly Newspaper As It Is Organized, Reported, Written and Published

As does every story have its beginning, so does "The Albrightian." Pictured above is Pat Poore, Assistant News Editor, posting the news assignment sheet on the bulletin board outside the Student Publications Office.

Whenever a picture is to be used in "The Albrightian," a "cut" must be made so it can be placed in the press forms. Mr. John Buchter, of Art Engraving Company, is shown above demonstrating the use of one of the machines used in the process.

Mary Fry, editor-in-chief, checks news dummies at the printer's office, before pages 1 and 4 go to press. As Mary confers on page lay-out with Bill, Earle sets type on the linotype machine.

Al and Pat call in news assignments that have not been handed in by deadline time. They both edit all the news copy, assign headlines, and help organize news lay-outs.

When the copy is printed on galley proofs, returned in the evenings from the printers, the dummy page of "The Albrightian" can be pasted together. Headlines are marked, and proof-reading is completed. Doris Chanin and Robert Hoffmann are seen here dummying their pages.
