ANNUAL ALUMNI HOME-COMING DAY, NOVEMBER 25th

Y. M. C. A. SHOW APPRECIATED BY MANY STUDENTS

Comedy Entitled "It Happened in America" is Feature of Evening Program

On Friday evening, November 10, the Y. M. C. A. of Albright College sponsored an entertainment held in the chapel.

Marshall Brenneman, master of ceremonies, introduced the participants of the acts. The program opened with saxophone solos by David Fray, accompanied at the piano by David Fields. Next, Professor Gode von Aesch spoke briefly on Martin Luther and how the revelation of the means of grace came to this great Christian.

At the conclusion of the talk several selections were played by the Harmonica Boys, Gene Barth and Paul Ottey. A play, "It Happened in America," presented by members of the Domino Club and coached by Richard Roeder, followed. Those taking part were: Marjorie Beglinger, LeRoy Garrigan, and Bernice Isaacs.

After this well-acted comedy, a trio, consisting of Robert Hollinger, Joseph Ehrhart, and Marshall Brenneman, entertained with a medley of vocal numbers. Robert Hollinger accompanied on the guitar. Several selections then were played on the piano by David Fields. This was followed by a two-piano arrangement of Robert Workman and Harold Zelders.

The climax of the evening's entertainment was magic mysteries, brought to the audience by Albert Kuder, assisted by Guy Brown.

There was a large audience, which received the program with generous applause. Y. W. C. A. girls sold candy at the close of the performance.

STUDENTS ORGANIZE NEW PHILOSOPHY CLUB

A meeting of students interested in a philosophy organization was held on November 8. The group which wishes to organize as a club is sponsored by Dr. Greth.

The purpose of the proposed organization is to further the interest of philosophy among the students of the campus, to discuss informally the problems of philosophy, and to discuss the personal philosophical problems of the individual.

Otho Hoofnagle was nominated temporary chairman and Mary Yohn temporary secretary.

The Program Committee consists of Norman Hummel and Anna Benninger. Leroy Bringer, Edwin Minnich, William Basom and Dr. Greth were appointed on the Constitutional Committee. When the constitution has been formulated, the requirements for eligibility will be known. Their report is due on November 22, when the next meeting will be held.

Those present at the first meeting were: Dr. M. S. Greth, Dr. F. W. Gingrich, Miss Shaffer, Irvin Bailey, William Basom, Anna Benninger, Willard Burger, Marshall Brenneman, Leroy Bringer, John Fay, Glenn Flinchbach, Otho Hoofnagle, Norman Hummel, Edwin Minnich, Lester Stabler, John Wyle, Mary Yohn.

ELEVEN RECEIVE BIDS TO SENIOR DRAMATIC CLUB

Domino Club to Present Play, "The Other Side," at Benefit December 6

The annual try-outs for membership into the Domino Club were held Thursday, November 9th, at 8.15 P. M., in the parlors of Selwyn Hall. Try-outs consist of participation in a play presented before the club at a given time. Coaches for the plays were Miss Betty Rimmelspacher, Miss Mildred Rothermal, Mr. Bailey Gass, and Mr. Richard Roeder. The play thought to have been the best worked out was repeated at the Y. M. C. A. show last Friday evening. We wish to thank all the coaches, and congratulate Mr. Roeder on his play having been the chosen one for the Y. M. C. A. show.

The following have been given bids and will be received into active membership after the Thanksgiving holiday: Miss Betty Ketner, Miss Betty Rosenthal, Miss Marjorie Beglinger, Mr. James Doyle, Mr. George Messersmith, Mr. Joseph Ehrhart, Mr. Joseph Vargyas, Mr. Robert Diltz, Mr. Le Roy Garrigan, Mr. Wesley Stevens, and Mr. William Basom.

The Domino Club will present these try-out plays at the Friday morning Chapel periods in the near future. They ask your support.

On December 6th you will be privileged to see "The Other Side," which has already been cast and which promises good entertainment. This drama of prison life will be seen at Jan's show, to be held at Maier's bakery.

PROF. M. H. GREEN LECTURES TO PRE-MEDS

The Skull and Bones Society held its regular meeting on Monday evening at 8 P. M. in the Science Hall, at which time Prof. M. H. Green lectured on his research, "Inter-relation of Brain and Skull Sizes and Forms in Rats." Following the lecture, a motion picture on "Our Sixth Sense" was shown. The meeting was well attended and the society urges all the students to take advantage of these meetings, as they are open to the entire student body. At frequent intervals, prominent men in the fields of medicine, higher biology, chemistry, and physics are heard, so again let us urge you to come to these meetings and broaden your education.

SOCCER TILT TO CLIMAX FROSH-SOPH ACTIVITIES

Will Frosh customs be abandoned at the Thanksgiving or Christmas vacation? This question as well as numerous private scores will be settled by the soccer game at the Eleventh and Pike field on the forenoon of November 25th, Alumni Day. Spirit is running high in both classes, assuring a hotly contested battle for the entertainment of the Alumni as well as the student body. Although soccer is best played by the Scotch, the Irish rank a close second by virtue of the battle slogan, "If you can't kick the ball, kick the other fellow's shins." Let's all turn out to watch the Frosh and Sophs turn Irish for a day—You'll get a kick out of it!

RIVAL GRIDIRON ENCOUNTER WITH LEBANON VALLEY FEATURES ANNUAL ALUMNI HOME-COMING PROGRAM

NOTICE!

On Friday, November 17, at 10 A. M., J. Bennet Nolan will inaugurate a series of lectures on "Early History of Pennsylvania," to be held in the College Chapel. Mr. Nolan is a recognized authority on this subject, and students will find it well worth their while to attend. Subsequent lectures in the series will be held on Friday mornings: Nov. 24, Dec. 8, and Dec. 15. All the students who can possibly do so are urged to be present.

CHEMISTRY STUDENTS TO HEAR DR. H. A. NEVILLE

Dr. Harvey A. Neville, associate professor of chemistry at Lehigh University, will address the Reading Chemists' Club in the Science Lecture Hall at Albright College, Tuesday, November 21, at 8 P. M. This lecture will be open to students.

The subject of Dr. Neville's address will be "Chemical Light on Advertising Laure." This will deal with the chemistry involved in the many dubious methods employed by the various companies in marketing their products. By means of lantern slides the compositions of some well-known toilet preparations, antiseptics, patent medicines, etc., will be shown and contrasted with the extravagant and impossible claims made in advertising these products.

The lecture will be of great interest to all since it will deal with facts concerning products of daily use by every one every day.

PARENTS' DAY IS INITIAL EXPERIMENT AT ALBRIGHT

Parents' Day, Tuesday, November 21, will be held for the purpose of giving the parents of the student body a cross-sectional view of the class activities and campus life at Albright College. The parents of every student are urged to be present that day. Classes will be held according to custom and will be open visitors.

Special programs will be given at Chapel and at the lunch which will be served free of charge to the parents.

This will be the first affair of this kind at Albright College. Many interested parents are expected.

ALBRIGHT ALUMNA SINGS WITH PROMINENT CHOIR

Miss Jane Fray, an alumna of Albright, is a member of the Westminster Choir, Princeton, New Jersey, which sang one of the programs in connection with the opening of the National Broadcasting Company's new studios in Radio City. Friends of Miss Fray will be delighted and pleased to hear this. The Westminster Choir broadcasted over the WEA network on Monday, Nov. 13, from 2 to 3 P. M.

Alumni to Substitute Card Party for Annual Dance This Year; Mr. Elmer Mohn Heads Committee in Charge

Saturday, November 25, has been chosen as the date for Alumni Home Coming Day, when all the graduates of Albright College will be given a special invitation to return to their Alma Mater. The Alumni Association is planning a varied program for a house party.

The day time feature will be the ever popular football game with Lebanon Valley College. After a dinner at 6.30, the program for the evening will be comprised of cards and dancing. Music for dancing will be furnished by an orchestra composed of students of Albright.

The committee in charge of arrangements consists of Elmer Mohn, Fred Howard, Mrs. Miller, and Raymond Dengler.

BUSINESS DEPARTMENT TO REORGANIZE CLUB

The Business Administration students recently reorganized the Albright Business Club. The club endeavors to bring the business students of Albright together for the discussion of modern problems relating to the business world.

The new organization will hold its first meeting Tuesday evening, November 21, at 8 o'clock. Mr. Thomas Leinbach, of the Narrow Fabric Company, Wyomissing, will lead the club in a discussion of modern merchandising problems. All business students and those interested in this discussion are urged to attend.

At the first meeting of the newly formed organization the following officers were elected: President, William Burg; Vice-President, James Emlich; Secretary-Treasurer, Paul Vanness. Professor Evans and Professor Buckwalter will act as faculty advisors to the organization.

DEBATE TEAM CHOOSE TOPICS FOR DISCUSSION

With several tentative dates set for debates, the forensic enthusiasts, under the capable tutelage of Dr. Page, are ready to launch another debating season. Although no definite schedule has been arranged, the squad has received a number of letters from schools desiring to meet Albright in debate. At the present time an effort is being made to secure information on two subjects which are to be debated this year. Those questions which apparently are in favor with most of the schools in Pennsylvania are as follows: "Resolved, That the Federal Government Should Own and Operate All Banking Institutions," and "Resolved, That the Provisions of the N. R. A. Should be Made Permanent." The squad is working very hard and hopes for a more successful season than any Albright team has ever had.

EXAMINATIONS

During the past week we have been involved in what the majority of students consider a trying and strenuous period, namely, the mid-semester check-ups. With the quarterly appearance of these periodical reviews there arises the question that is being debated more and more every year in the college circles. Are examinations necessary and are they the most efficient manner in which to make the check-up and ascertain the knowledge of the student? Certainly the question is debatable.

Coincidentally, one of our English classes is at the present time discussing a problem similar to this. They, however, are limiting their problem to the final examination for Seniors. It is conceded that final examinations offer advantages. Without doubt the training secured in reviewing and organizing material studied over a long period of time is valuable. Also the ability to sum up one's knowledge of the subject matter in order to meet a critical situation is certainly a quality worth cultivating.

Dean McConn, of Lehigh University, in speaking to a group of educators in New York City, urged that a series of informal tests be substituted for the present system of examinations. This plan he said, would eliminate the existing tendency to make final examinations the goal or climax of a course of study. In speaking of the disadvantages of our present system he believes the most serious to be that final examinations tend to become goals, which standardize, stifle and devalue the whole of the teaching system.

The problem is one for our student body to ponder. We all sense the pressure that constantly hovers over us during the periods of examinations. Is the customary "cramming" an essential or is it merely an opportunity for those students who are "breezing" to cover an entire course the night before exam? I believe the tendency for many students is to let the work slide, with the knowledge that a check-up or exam will enable them to maintain the proper grade. Obviously then the fundamental purpose of our courses of study is not gained. We should be striving for knowledge, not grades.

Literary Column

By Lewis Jones

We do not intend that this column devote itself exclusively to criticism, either literary or of the social order. To us, the term criticism has a decidedly odoriferous connotation. It carries with it an aura of patronage, of self-satisfied indulgence to the creatures on whom it deigns to cast its favors. Every pen-pusher since Aristotle has tried his hand at criticism, with more or less fatal results; that may be the reason for its disreputable reputation.

And yet, the informal essayist, better known as a columnist, finds it difficult, indeed, to avoid the pitfall of criticism. Shrink from it as he will, when he reads over his work, he finds that he has set himself up as a commentator, or worse, of some phase of life or letters. Then, with a shrug, will he submit to the predetermined order of things, and in unison with the natives of Wessex, sigh, "It is to be."

All of which is but a long way around to saying that, today, at least, we will illustrate one way of writing a column and still avoid the critical attitude.

Last week, while rather wearily turning the pages of a work on Colonial customs and home life, quite accidentally our eyes were drawn to a paragraph that brought us sharply to attention. It was part of a letter written by Andrew Burnaby, an Anglican clergyman traveling about the colonies. He says that he had been shocked by a practice common enough in the northern states, called "bundling." Due to the coldness of the winters and the inability to keep warm except alongside the fireplace, a young man courting a maid was put to bed with her, fully clothed and wrapped in blankets. Then, "if the parties agree, it is all very well; the banns are published, and (the two) are married without delay." Sometimes, altho it was not universal, a board was placed between the two; but this was a mark of prudery, and the more enlightened scoffed at it. A young man's breeding was judged by whether he removed his shoes before taking his place beside the young lady.

Well . . . comment is unnecessary; but that such a practice was allowed to flourish alongside the rigid doctrines of the Cotton Mathers and Jonathan Edwards of the day is a curious commentary on the unreasonableness of men in general, as well as evidence of the strength of old customs and practices.

A DESTRUCTIBLE COMMODITY

We have just been apprised, in a very forcible manner, of the perishable quality of college degrees. A friend, recently graduated from the pride grist-mill of the East, was notified by the authorities there that he could have his diploma by sending the enclosed card. All very simple. Reading further, however, we learned that on receipt of the diploma it was necessary for him to send still another enclosed card, on which was mimeographed:

Received from C..... University, (date), one certificate of graduation from C..... University, School of Journalism, in good condition.

THEATRE COLUMN

ASTOR—"Love, Honor and Oh, Baby!" featuring Slim Summerville and Zasu Pitts in a grand piece of delicious hilarity.

ASTOR—Starting Wednesday, Ruth Chatterton in "Female," the story of a female Don Juan!

Vaudeville on Stage Every Day
EMERALD—"I'm No Angel," a sensational film starring Mae West and Cary Grant.

LOEWS—"The Prize Fighter," an entertaining film which features Myra Loy, Jack Dempsey and Max Baer.

CAPTEOL—The theatre that gives a new deal in entertainment. Stage shows and first class motion pictures.

The "Y" Column

One usually expects to find in college life all the best social graces and cultural surroundings; accordingly, it is more than distressing to observe the actions of students in our dining hall. Yes, this matter of saving places for our friends at the table to the humiliation of other fellow classmates is quite the most un-Christian and unsocial act that we as students resort to. Is our boarding student body so large that we cannot afford to become acquainted with none other than our own particular group? "Well," you may ask, "what has that to do with the Y. W. C. A. program?" We answer, "Everything. If the Christian organization on this campus cannot take a stand against such unsocial actions, we have no right to continue on this campus. Let us rid ourselves of our petty prejudices and so grow in grace."

Rev. G. F. Schaum, pastor of Christ's Evangelical Church, will be the speaker at Vespers, Sunday afternoon, in the College Chapel at 5 P. M. Rev. Schaum has in the past responded faithfully to religious activities on the campus. He is a friend to both students and faculty. He has been extremely cordial to the college "Y" in activities carried on in his church. Let us respond to Sunday night Vespers with a large representation of students and faculty members. We need your support, but even more than that we feel that you will benefit greatly by attending.

A fine group of college students interested in the work of Christian institutions gathered in the College Chapel on November 12 for the regular Vesper service, which was in charge of the Y. W. C. A. Miss Grace Ketner rendered a solo. Another feature of the service was a reading on "The Meaning of Prayer" by Miss Betty Campbell.

The speaker for this Sunday was the ever-popular and well-known Dr. J. Arthur Heck, professor of Old Testament and Systematic Theology of the Albright Evangelical Seminary. His theme was "Christian Leadership."

By way of introduction, Dr. Heck spoke on the leadership qualities, responsibilities, opportunities, and defined Christian leadership as the social recognition of the moral and spiritual authority of an individual. The following are a few statements made during the afternoon:

"College young people are a favored class and normally leadership should come out of this group. They are the hope of the world."

"The qualities needed of leaders are: (1) Willingness to pay the price; (2) a leader must have initiative; (3) independence; do not follow the crowd, for 'the great are ever lonely'; (4) willingness to work hard; (5) confidence in himself, his cause, and his co-workers; (6) aggressive idealism; (7) recognize the rights of others—he a servant of all; a person becomes a leader by the way he works with his fellowmen; (8) optimism, and (9) possession of a genuine consecration to Jesus Christ."

Last Wednesday night Y. W. members were privileged to hear a very fine message from Mrs. M. E. Ritzman, wife of Dr. Ritzman, of the Evangelical Seminary.

Mrs. Ritzman began her work in China in 1912 and spent more than seven years as a teacher in a girls' boarding school. She also did much missionary work among the women in China. It is easy to see from her personality how her work has been so effective.

She spoke on religious experience in general and her own Christian experience, stating her attitude toward Jesus Christ, the Bible, and society in general. She has that which society needs, and is therefore bound to share with everyone that which means everything to her.

PROMINENT PEOPLE . . .

MARSHALL BRENNEMAN

Who is this? You may recognize him as the president of the Bible class, of the Lutheran Club, of Sigma Tau Delta, or of the Domino Club. It is none other than Marshall Brenneman, a campus leader, campus scholar, and holder of the gold A.

In addition to his presidencies, Brenny is an active member of the ALBRIGHTIAN staff. Last year found him bearing the responsibilities of financing the Cue, as business manager of that staff.

If one is to be judged by the company one keeps, it is obvious that Brenny rates quite high on the campus. What a wonderful bond of friendship there is among the Lutherans!

Marshall's musical ability and dramatic inclinations, together with his love of writing, have destined him to be a great English teacher.

DR. CHARLES E. ROTH SPEAKS AT SPECIAL ARMISTICE PROGRAM

On Friday, November 10, the International Relations Club presented Dr. Charles E. Roth as the special speaker for the Armistice day program in Chapel. Mr. George Deiningner conducted the assembly and Mr. David Fields played a piano selection.

Professor Hamilton introduced Dr. Roth, who has as his topic "Why We Celebrate Peace." After mentioning the value of an International Relations Club on a college campus as a means of treating with open mind international problems, the speaker expressed the wish to share with the students "a few things gleaned from underneath the surface of the ordinary man."

Take It From Me . .

Jay Fay

The once Mighty Albright Lion roared last Saturday, but it was not loud or ferocious enough to have any effect upon West Chester. Albright played a brand of football on Saturday that they have never played before in the history of the college. A weak team scored early in the first quarter and was able to hold that lead throughout the game. The Lions lacked fight, spirit, or something of that sort. They made nineteen first downs to their opponents' nine, but when they got within the fifteen-yard line they played like school boys. The team as a whole needs something to bring in victories that are sadly needed. It seems that they need plenty of practice in clipping and tackling. This seems to be the general fault that every one is finding with our team. Tackles are high, and as a result the opposing team easily slips out of them. We are not getting the proper interference, and there are too many of our opponents standing on their feet at the end of each play.

The blame lies some place, but to heap it all upon Coach Smith and his team is ridiculous. The idea that a coach can build up a team with the proper reserve material is out of the question, and "Iron Teams" are the exception and not the rule. Coach Smith is trying hard and no mortal man can do more. He is out there in charge of the team, and because of the fact that he does not desire to substitute the way the fans or the students think he should is his business. The team is trying hard and at least we can give them that credit, but the fact that we are on the losing end of the score does not help the matter a great deal. Everyone has heard the old story that we play the game for the sport, but we all know that there is more sport in winning. If we want to lay the blame on the proper ones, we should go higher than the coach and team; go to those who have charge of the administration and we can find the primary causes. Our administration asked for a de-emphasis of football, and now they have it the students and everyone would like to know what they are going to do about it.

Today we tackle one of the "biggest-little colleges" in the East in Davis and Elkins. For three years Cam Henderson has been bringing his charges from West Virginia to beat the Lions and each year he has gone back with the feeling that next year will be his year. He is out for revenge, and if it is at all possible he will not only try to beat the Red and White, but also to humiliate them in the eyes of the football world. He comes here with a team that has rolled up 319 points to date and with four backfield aces who are among the five leading scorers in the country. If Albright can rise to the heights that they did in the St. Joseph game, they can hold Davis and Elkins and have a chance to win. If they play like they did against West Chester, Davis and Elkins will roll up a large score.

The Lebanon Valley game is next on our list and "Hooks" Mylin has a good team this year and is out to beat Albright. We have to win this game, and we must win to have any kind of a football season. We need plenty of pep, spirit, and whatever you have during this coming week. Dress those frosh up and keep everyone conscious of the fact that WE MUST BEAT LEBANON VALLEY. Let this be your slogan for the coming week and make it big. Remember that if we lose that game our goal posts go with it and it will be the first time in a good many years that such a thing has happened.

RED AND WHITE SUCCUMB TO W. CHESTER, 6 to 0

West Chester Takes Advantage of Breaks to Score Lone Tally on Smith Men

A badly under-rated band of West Chester Teachers, who never knew when they were licked, took advantage of every break possible to down the superior Albright eleven. Final statistics showed that the Lions had gained 19 first downs to 6 for the opposition, but football games are won on touchdowns, and in this matter West Chester was slightly ahead, 6 to 0.

A recovered fumble led to the only score of the game, registered when barely enough time had elapsed after the opening whistle to allow one to adjust his blanket. On the first running play of the game Stan Hino fumbled Andy Lund's bad pass from center, and the Profs. recovered on the 12-yard line. One plunge and two reverses found Bennett, West Teacher guard, safely past the last stripe with scarcely a finger having been laid on him.

The visitors, seemingly inspired by Fortuna's smile, played heroic defensive football, especially with their backs to the wall—a situation which occurred at one too few intervals. Peter Slack's line bucks and Stan Hino's flat passes to Tommy latesta put the ball in scoring distance, only to have the Teachers fight superbly to take possession of the leather.

Even the least hopeful Albright rooters refused to believe the Lions would rise in their might to massacre the purple-clad enemy, and the Red and White team seemed to have the same idea as they emerged for the second half. For a few fleeting moments visions of those fighting teams of Albright's zenith appeared as hard tackling and irresistible ball-carrying shoved the West Chester team back to within the shadow of their goal posts. Always close, but not quite enough, for even tho they reached the four-yard line and the five-yard stripe at two noteworthy moments, the attack managed to bog down with victory in their grasp.

Shoddy pass-receiving, high tackling, and loose interference spelled the final downfall. However, Bailey Gass on the line and the whole starting backfield were glorious even in defeat.

A. P. O. AND Z. O. E. LEAD SECOND HALF INTER-FRAT. TOUCH FOOTBALL LEAGUE

International spirit is kept at a high pitch by the keen rivalry seen at the touch football games. At present it appears that the A. P. O. and Zeta fraternities are the most likely contenders for the second half championship.

Thursday's battles proved a win for the A. P. O.'s over the Pi Taus by a score of 6-0.

The Zeta Omega Epsilon fraternity dance, Saturday night, was enjoyed by all those attending. Chaperones were: Prof. and Mrs. Joseph Knapper and Dr. and Mrs. F. Wilbur Gingrich.

Altho this column is glad to receive contributions at any time, we refuse to make it a weapon whereby personal spite can be expressed; we therefore request that anyone sending in a bit of news or dirt must sign his name or the dirt will not be published. These names will not be revealed.

The open house affair held Wednesday evening by the Alpha Pi Omega fraternity was reported to be a decided success.

I heard that a certain member of the football team almost broke a leg kibitzing a bridge game the other night. He rushed from hand to hand in such a hurry that the rug slipped and he landed on his ear. Serves him right, says I.

The Non-Fraternity dance will be held tonight at the Iris Club in Wyomissing. The dance will start promptly at 8.30 and continue until midnight. All non-fraternity and freshman students are invited to attend this gala affair. Music by a good band and pleasant surroundings indicates one of the best dances of the season.

That girl who made some unfavorable comment about one of the frats has more nerve than a sore tooth; she spoke as if she were an authority on the subject, and yet she's never seen the inside of the above mentioned house.

Madge Dieffenbach attended the Princeton-Dartmouth game on Saturday, after which she was a guest at Dial Lodge at a tea-dance.

Remember the guy with the derby at the St. Joe game? One of our Frosh girls, who insisted on heckling him at the game, got a letter Monday, reading:

Dear—
West Chester, 7; St. Joe, 6.
West Chester, 6; Albright, 0.
Who's lousy ?

Bill.

It seems to me that smacks somewhat of irony.

Our infirmary has been doing a thriving business the past week. Those who are confined are: John Bostwick, President of the Freshman class; Howard Mayer and Louis Druker.

Did I ever chuckle when that little bow-legged guy got squelched? He thought he was astounding the class with his knowledge, and the teacher thought otherwise and promptly told him to pipe down—he was all wet. He was knocked flatter than a sheet of tissue paper.

Mrs. Nettie Currier, head of the Art Department, spoke at the State Teachers' Club in Reading the other evening on "Modern Art."

The boys in the Southeast corner of the Ad. building are still wondering who mused their room the other night. I could tell them, but I won't.

Several girls in the Senior class have received bids to membership in the Phi Delta Sigma alumnae sorority. The sorority will hold a luncheon Saturday, November 25th, in their honor.

The best known Irishman on the campus is offering a reward for the return of the teeth he lost in the Stadium. The poor boy was so handsome, too.

James Oslislo entertained Ralph Stauffer, an alumnus of the college, on Saturday.

We regret to hear of the illness of "Stosh" Hino, co-captain of our football team.

Boy, is that Sophomore girl meowish? She complimented this column for withering two of her sex last week. I wonder if the old green-eyed demon is at work again.

Clyde Mullen and John Wiley, A. P. O., were the guest of Louis Drucker at his home in New York City over the week-end.

Rumor has it that one of the Angel Factory Frosh steps out every night with a Senior High girl. The report is that both are avid students of astronomy. I might add that if the pater familias ever glimpses him he'll need a better alibi than that. Maybe he could pose as the Fuller brush man.

Mildred Wissinger, and several of her friends, Lydia Schober and her sister were guests at Selwyn Hall over the week-end.

Unless I am extremely mistaken, I think there is a romance blooming among the retorts and test-tubes of the chem. lab. A certain lab. assistant is constantly darkening the doorstep of one of the Frosh. She is well on the way to being a campus widow, having already broken more hearts than test-tubes.

On Thanksgiving Day Miss Pauline Kaseman, an alumnus of Albright and the Pi Alpha Tau sorority, will become the bride of Lester Grubb, of Altoona, Penna.

A certain weakness in regard to contracting disease seems to be prevalent among columnists and retailers of gossip. W. W., my favorite contemporary, is slightly ill and can't write his column. I have a cold in the head, but refuse to give in—the dirt must come out!

Ruth Turner and Rachel Snyder plan to spend the Thanksgiving vacation together at Penn State.

Does that Sophomore look weird with his new haircut? The report is that he entered the shop of a hostile barber who chloroformed him and perpetrated the outrage. Personally I believe it, s'elp me.

Dorcas Haines and Catherine Yerkes spent the past week-end at their respective homes.

Gladys Hildebrand, a member of last year's freshman class, is in the Reading Hospital convalescing from an appendix operation. Speedy recovery!

"Cliff" Zartman, an alumni of the Kappa Upsilon Phi fraternity, visited the headquarters on Tuesday.

James Schwenk spent the last couple of days in Harrisburg, where he took the entrance examinations for West Point.

"Pop" Kelchner was a week-end visitor at the school.
