LATE TRY-OUT HANDICAP

Only Two Take Part In Albright Preliminary Contest Held A Day
Previous

After a hurried try-out, held Mar. 17th, Harry Klingeman was chosen to represent Albright in the Eastern Contest Of The Pennsylvania Inter-Collegiate Oratorical Union. This contest was held in Brua Chapel of Gettysburg College at 8:00 P. M. Friday, March 18th. Only two students appeared at the try-out held at Albright, due to the fact that the preliminary was only announced a day before the eastern contest took place and the requirement was a twelve minute speech. An announcement that Albright would send a delegate had been made some time previous but no date for the event had been set.

Klingeman used the same oration in the contest that he used at the preliminary and took as his subject, "Beyond The Alps Lies Italy." The judges awarded him third place, which will permit him to enter the contest between the eastern and western schools of the state of Pennsylvania which will be held at a later date at the University of Pennsylvania. The three winners in the eastern contest will all have an

TEAM WORK RESPONSIBLE

They were to have closed their season with the Millersville girls, who had defeated them early in the season. Millersville had not been defeated this season, and the girls were all ready to hand them their first defeat, but the Millersville manager, after finding fault with the time of play which was finally adjusted, found that for some unexplainable reason they would be unable to play at all.

The success of the team can not be laid to any individual, but in the fine team work of the girls, and this has been outstanding in all of their games.

The Albright College girls basketball team have finished one of the most successful seasons on the court they have ever had, winning five out of their seven games. The work of Miss Van Duzer the coach of the team is to be complimented on and the fine team she has developed, and with practically the same team back next year an even better team can be expected.

Several of the Mohn Hall girls entertained friends over the past week-end. Miss Mae Thorpe, a graduate nurse of Shamokin, Pa. was the guest of Miss Mae Cooper; and Miss Mary J. Flexer visited her sister, Miss Margaret Flexer. Miss Flexer is a Junior in the Reading High School. The guests enjoyed their stay at Albright and their visit was marked by several "feeds" and "parties." Miss Flexer returned home on Sunday evening while Miss Thorpe remained until Monday.

CAST ANNOUNCED LATER

A special committee of the Class of 1927 recently chose "Stop Thief" by Carlyle Moore as the play to be given by the class this Spring. The committee had taken considerable time in deciding and a large number of plays were read and considered before the final choice was made. It is expected to start work on the play very shortly and the cast will be chosen in a few days. It was originally intended to give the play prior to the Easter vacation, but several incidents may delay the presentation till the latter part of April. Funds derived from its presentation will be used toward the class memorial. The play is a royalty one and will be produced by special arrangement with Samuel French of New York.

The teams lined up as follows: At Myerstown—Affirmative, Mary Ax, Hilda Heller and Hilda Hess. Negative, Russel Loucks, and Elwood McGuigan. Harry Klingeman, third negative speaker was at Gettysburg representing Albright in the Eastern Pennsylvania Oratorical Contest. The Girls' Glee Club started their season with a bang by giving a much-appreciated program at Fredericksburg, Tuesday night. The audience was the Parent-Teacher's Association of the little town. The services of the girls were secured by Miss Elsie Shirk '26, who teaches at Fredericksburg.

Miss Strassner, the manager-singer, has worked tirelessly a year, whipping the Club into shape, and all credit is due to her that the first program of the year proved to be a success.

The Fredericksburg Parent-Teacher's Association and their friends are only the first of many who will hear the Club with pleasure in the future.

Arrival of Warm Weather Gives
Boys Chance For Early Work-Outs

At the date of publication the Albright baseball team has been practicing for fully a week on Albright Field. The fine warm weather has enabled the full squad to be out in uniform, and with the field almost in shape for the coming season, some hard practices have been held. The outlook for the completion of another highly successful season seems bright, provided that Coach Weller can unearth an infelder and an outfielder, who can come up to the standard of "Red" Hartzell and "Fog" Smith, both of whom graduated last year. Their places, however, will be hard to fill for they had loads of ability backed with plenty of playing experience.

The pitching department will be stronger this year than it has ever been. "Lefty" Shoap, premier portside of college ranks, seems to be rounding into his old form, and at present it looks as though he will be able to take his regular turn at serving them. And to make this department look still better Roy Sherrid will be able to supplement Shoap, thus giving Albright as good battery-men as any college can boast and a Friday evening the combined Literary Societies met in the Excelsior Hall. The program commenced with a few songs. As the Neos could get only eight members out, the match began, conducted by Rev. Keen. The ten Excelsiors lined up on one side of the hall, while the eight Neocosmians took the opposite side.

The spelling began and went from hard to harder. One by one the Neos were forced to retreat, leaving Kneller the "lone star ranger" for the Excelsiors. Each took his place again trying to fight a little longer than before, but it was useless to match their strength against the Excelsiors. Malone spelled the last Neo. down and had beside him three other undefeated Excelsiors. Once more the battle started anew. However, it lasted a little longer this time. The harder words could not stand the test, so harder words were put away, and the hardest and more complicated words were used. The men were sifted, and only the strong could endure the test. One by one they were forced to their seat. The

DIFFERENT TYPE OF
MEETING BEFORE Y. W.

Virginia Zener, the Junior leader of Y. W. last Tuesday evening presented a very different type of meeting. The biography of Domenico Mastroianni, a great Italian sculptor was read, after which were shown slides, including the entire life of Christ. These slides were all actual pictures of the sculptures which he had done. All the girls appreciated this variation of the program, and hope for a good meeting next week, when the Seniors, led by Arline Herr, will have charge.

Both teams worked hard over the week-end and in the beginning of this week to prepare their respective sides.

PUBLISHING A COLLEGE WEEKLY

There are at present few areas of our great country that are not served by some form of a current paper. The term "Power of the Press" has indeed been justified. We rely to a considerable extent upon what we read. We judge by what has been presented to us. Although these reflections apply in general to our great newspapers they also have very practical application to the College Newspapers.

The purpose of a college newspaper is threefold. First, it is an advertising medium of low and positive results. Copies of school papers are mailed to thousands of prospective students each year and it is undoubtedly by their reading of the incidents of college life that their steps are eventually turned either here or there. This method of advertising is carried out by a great many schools, and is judged one of their most effective means. Every two weeks the Albright Bulletin reaches the homes of two hundred prospective students.

The second purpose of the college paper is to provide a news medium for Alumni and friends of the institution. There is nothing more valuable either to a school or its Alumni than a vital contact with the weekly happenings at Alma Mater. Many Alumni look forward to receiving their Bulletin with a great deal of anticipation. Here there is a last binding link between themselves and the activities of which they were once a part. It is the purpose of every school paper and especially of the BULLETIN to portray news in an exact, concise manner and this ideal is constantly kept in mind by its readers.

The third purpose of the college publication is to provide a permanent record of events as they occur and preserve the best of literary productions. The value of the paper from this standpoint is obvious. During the recent weeks on several occasions it has been necessary to refer to files of The Bulletin and they always produced the desired data. Students themselves often refer to their Bulletins, to ascertain results of elections, rules, faculty regulations, programs, appointments, etc. and the value of a weekly publication from this aspect dare not be overlooked.

The staff of most school papers includes less than thirty members and generally only about fifteen or twenty. This means that upon these persons is bestowed a tremendous responsibility and one which dare not be taken lightly for their work, their opinion, and their portrayal of the truth will to a large extent affect the thinking of others. We might wish that a larger number could participate in this work which is a primary school activity on every campus, but too large a number would prove disadvantageous and the publication must confine itself to the few who work, and work hard. The present work of publication of the Bulletin means that a staff of less than fifteen members are responsible for nearly thirty typed sheets of copy every week, estimating about seventeen (17,000) thousand words. In other words every member of such a staff writes the equivalent of the ordinary high school thesis every week. Needless to say the staff always appreciates a good supply of news.

The managers of publications also have a serious problem to face. Will their funds be sufficient, how much advertising should they accept or how much can they get. Will all of their subscribers pay or will they rely on charity? The cost of issuing a paper the size of the Bulletin exceeds the thousand dollar mark and for student initiative this is a tremendous undertaking. All of the Bulletin funds are derived from advertising and subscription and no staff member is paid, other than receiving his copies free.

We believe that if all patrons will continue to support the new staff they will have a very successful publication in every way. The Bulletin is now in its twenty-fourth year of circulation, and this is indeed a tribute to those who have worked on its staff in former years and presents a new challenge to complete the next its first quarter century of circulation under the name of THE ALBRIGHT BULLETIN.

IN PASSING

As this is the last issue of the Bulletin under the present staff, and marks in a sense the end of the trail for the Seniors, the trail that for four years has led them along a well-marked path, it is time to wish the new-comers, those who are going to follow in our steps, and who will try as we have tried to make a better Bulletin, and thru that perhaps a better Albright, the best of success.

It has been and will continue to be fun to work for the College paper. For one thing it is good experience; for another, it helps you to see your work in print. You have a chance to compare it with others, and see where you fall down, and for anyone who cares for writing, there is a thrill in seeing your name at the end of an article, or of hearing criticism of an article that you have written when they do not know who the writer may be.

Last year some trouble was experienced in securing girls to try out for vacant positions on the staff. They didn't seem to have the ambition as far as the actual work was concerned, and although admittedly liking to write, and even hoping to write well, left opportunities such as this go by. Here is hoping that this year they will not be afraid to really try, and in trying to co-operate with the staff, will have their work carefully written and in on time.

CREDIT WHERE IT'S DUE

St. Patrick's Day was already one day past, yet the Bulletin came out green. Oh yes! We see it was the Freshmen number, and a good number at that. The entire issue was made up by members of the Freshmen class, led by Harry A. Houseal, acting editor-in-chief, and received much favorable comment. Indeed the edition appeared to be much better than many of the regular issues. If this is a true indication of what the Freshman class can do, we would say that they show much promising ability, and we bespeak for them a successful career of college life.

GOOD WORK FRESHMEN

In these balmy March days, our thoughts turn more and more to the out of doors. Basketball gives way to tennis, baseball and hiking, etc., even to fishing. The snow melts away. The grass makes its appearance and the robins too. Along with these signs of life come the Freshmen boys and girls, for many are the announcements to be heard in the dining room, ordering the Frosh to work on the baseball diamond, or the tennis courts, getting them into shape for Albright's noble athletes.

With rakes and shovels, wheelbarrow and roller, they toil and toil almost the same as the Children of Israel did in Egypt. Of course some chafe under the conditions, but manual labor never hurts anybody; indeed it is good for the system, better than a spring tonic. And then again, Freshies, emancipation day is not far distant, when you shall be free of these exacting duties. So cheer up, cheer up, the work will soon be done.

The Intercollegiate Review

(From Exchanges)

Dr. William M. Lewis, president of George Washington University recently tendered his resignation to the board of trustees of that institution. He will relinquish his work there in order to become President of Lafayette College at Easton, Pa. The resignation is to become effective September 1st, 1927. Dr. Lewis has been at George Washington University only three years, but is anxious to get into closer touch with the lives of the students and in accepting the position at Lafayette he feels that he will partially achieve this goal.

An interesting motion picture was recently shown at Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute. The theme centered in electrical work, the subjects being "Power" and "The Electrical Giant." Scenes were taken from Niagara Falls and the Westinghouse Plant at that place and in the latter part of the picture the remarkable advance in the science of laying ocean cables was shown.

It appears that the Point System is going to be given a trial at Lebanon Valley College. The joint Faculty-Student Council is preparing to take definite action upon the matter and very likely by the fall of 1927 Lebanon Valley will enjoy such a system. The Women's student government association of the school has already discussed the matter and approved its adoption. Other organizations are now investigating it.

"Thirty-three students responded to the call for candidates, March 10th, for the editorial board of 'The Dickinsonian', twenty-three Freshmen, nine Sophomores, and one Junior were included in the number. They are to receive their preliminary instructions and experience during March and will function regularly in April. Only 4 of the entire group will be appointed on the new staff.

The last issue of "The Student Weekly" was a burlesque on the regular publication. Practically everything except the ads were humorous representations. The headliner of the paper, however, was a cut of Albright's "Coach Weller" giving Charlie Mayer the "High Sign" after the F. & M. football game. This appeared on the fifth page.

Gettysburg College was enveloped in sadness last week, through the death of Dean Jerome C. Jackson. Dean Jackson was only appointed to his position last June, after serving on the faculty of the department of Education for three years. During his time at Gettysburg he became the sincere friend of every Gettysburg man and was much loved by all. Diabetes was given as the cause of his death.

The annual event of the "Junior Prom" at George Washington University will either have to prove its popularity on the class ledger or it will be slated for the waste can. For the past several years the affair has been a failure and this year it will be conducted as a final venture. If it is again a financial failure it will be abandoned.

Rutgers University and Lafayette College last week introduced an added form of intercollegiate competition when they staged a basketball tournament between the intramural champions of the schools. Rutgers is planning for more competition along such lines with other schools. A game of "touch" football is planned with Princeton for next fall.

The debating teams of Elizabethtown College have set up an enviable record. To date their varsity teams have appeared in seventeen debates and won all but three of that number. An extensive tour is now being arranged for the debaters and they will travel through Virginia, Maryland, and West Virginia.

The Stone Church in which Allegheny College students have received their diplomas for more than thirty years was recently gutted by fire. It was long the religious home for many of the students and played a prominent part in college life. The fire is supposed to have started from defective wiring in an organ motor.

The unlimited cut system which is now in its second semester of trial at Haverford College has been a success in the semester completed, so Dean Frederick Palmer Jr., has stated. Under the system as used up-classesmen are allowed an unlimited number of cuts. This removes responsibility from the faculty by placing it upon the student. The Dean reports that in only four cases has the privilege been abused.

Seven acres of historic land at Castle Point, Hoboken, New Jersey, originally owned by Colonel John Stevens, confiscated by the British Government during the Revolution, and overlooking the old duelling grounds on the heights above the Hudson, where Aaron Burr shot Alexander Hamilton, have been purchased from the heirs of Richard Stevens by Stevens Institute of Technology, according to an announcement made by Walter Kidde, Acting Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Institute. Mr. Kidde is President of Walter Kidde & Co., and until very recently member of the New Jersey State Highway Commission. The land had been held by the Stevens family for 143 years.

cision on oratory, arrangement of material, and content. In presenting his decision he stated that the Lebanon Valley debaters excelled in the first, but in the last two Albright outclassed them, thereby winning. Prof. Albright's method of scoring was somewhat different, being the number of unrefuted points on each side. When the debate came to an end the score stood Lebanon Valley—4 points unrefuted, Albright—3. Therefore the Lebanon Valley Co-eds were declared victors, having more unrefuted points than Albright.

APRIL

April is coming,
I heard her laugh,
Free as the wind, and
As light as chaff.

Blossoms she scattered
With hand held high,
Pink ones and white ones;
So still they lie.

Marking the path that
Her feet must tread,
Some of them forming
An arch o'erhead.

Laughing, she holds in
Her hand a bird;
Golden-winged, singing,
I thought you'd heard.

Haven't her footsteps
Beat time for you?
Haven't you seen her
Long hair that blew?

Getting all tangled
With reaching trees;
Haven't you noticed
Them, signs like these?

April is coming
Small elfish sprite;
Thinking me dreaming
She danced last night.

Waking I saw her
With plaintive croon
Toss a kiss, sighing,
Straight to the moon.

I intercepted
And drew it close;
Finding it fragrant
As some wild rose.

Startled she ran, like
A nymph—a faun;
There for a minute,
—Then she was gone.

GIRLS BASKETBALL SEASON MOST SUCCESSFUL

pected. Ann Benfer, center, and Arline Herr, forward and captain of the team for the last two years will be the only two lost to the team, both graduating in June. Both girls have been important factors in the team's success and their loss will be keenly felt next year. But the services of Dech, Painter, Stauffer and C. Wilkes will still be available, and with F. Wilkes, Detterline and Steltz who proved capable substitutes back, plus the material from the incoming Freshman class the outlook for next year's team is very promising.

The girls opened their season with the strong Dickinson girls team, and won a close victory 17-14. The game was featured by close guarding on both sides.

Millersville Normal handed them their first reverse of the season at Millersville by the score of 29-22. The girls could not get going the first half, but clearly outplayed their opponents the last half.

The girls romped home with an easy victory over Schuylkill, 27-14. The Schuylkill girls were bewildered by the fast passing of the Red and White Co-Eds.

In the pre-lim to the boys game at Lebanon they won an exciting game from the Lebanon Valley girls 32-23. Gettysburg proved an easy victim, the girls winning an easy game 43-16. The substitutes played the greater part of the time.

Lebanon Valley avenged their former defeat, in the most exciting game of the year, taking the girls into camp 35-32. Not until the last minute of play was victory sure for either team. Albright's defeat was due to the poor playing of the first half, when Lebanon ran up too large a lead for the girls to overcome.

The second with Gettysburg proved as easy as the first and the girls had little trouble winning, 40-18.

right by Carlyle Moore under the title of "Cleptomaniac." All the costumes and scenes are modern and are drawn from a family of moderate income living in Providence, R. I. All the incidents occur during the actual playing time of the piece and this provides opportunity for rapid stage action that will add considerably to the story. The cast provides for twelve male characters and five girls. The three acts occur in the living room of a private residence.

The main plot of the play is well developed and is one that will appeal to every audience through the humorous situations it involves and the many close escapes of the characters. The principal of the play is a kleptomaniac who takes everything possible and then forgets. Three Police Officers enter into the cast as well as a Sergeant of Police, and this gives the audience a real sense of protection. "Stop Thief" promises to be the leading play of the year.

SENIORS TRIP FROSH TO WIN CLASS CROWN

deciding goals that won for his team, the game and the championship. His playing was the feature of the game and it was his timely shots that kept his team in the running. Starring along with Angle for the Seniors was Caulwell their lanky center. "Wild Bill" accounted for three field goals and one foul, all of which tied the score at different times in the game. The work of Youse, the Freshman guard, was outstanding for his team accounting for eight buckets.

It was a closely contested game from the beginning, the score being tied at ten different times throughout the game. At no time until the extra five minute period was any team more than two points ahead.

With but a minute to play and the Frosh leading by two points Angle got loose and dropped in a pretty shot, tying the score. Youse took the tip off and dribbled through for a basket, putting the Frosh once more in the lead. With but seconds to go, Gasull tied the score as the whistle blew, ending the half. In the extra period Angle broke loose scoring his first basket in thirty seconds, and following through with three more, all the Frosh could get was one basket, when Youse dropped one in from the center of the floor.

This makes the third year that the class of '27, has won the crown, losing only last year, when the present Juniors won it.

LITERARY RAMBLES IN OUR LIBRARY

In "The Last Days of Pompeii" by Edward Bulwer, Lord Lytton, the characters and scenes are in a great measure suggested by the peculiarities of the buildings which are still to be seen at Pompeii. The tale begins a few days before the destruction of Pompeii, and ends with that event.

The simple story relates principally to two young people of Grecian origin, Glaucus and Ione, who are deeply attached to each other. Arbraces, her guardian, is the villain of the story, acting under a cloak of sanctity and religion. His character is strongly drawn, and the struggle between him and Glaucus, form the chief part of the plot. Nydia, the blind girl, who pines in unrequited affection for Glaucus, and who saves the lives of the lovers at the time of the destruction of the city, by conducting them in safety to the sea, is a touching and beautiful conception.

The book, full of learning and spirit, is not only a charming novel but contains many minute and interesting descriptions of ancient customs, among which, those relating to the gladiatorial combat and the banquet are most noteworthy.

SPRING

Gentle Spring! In sunshine clad,
Well dost thou thy power display!
For Winter maketh the light heart sad,
And thou, thou makest the sad heart gay.
He sees thee, and calls to his gloomy train,
The sleet, and the snow, and the wind, and the rain;
And they shrink away, and they flee in fear,
When thy merry step draws near.

teams for the debate was, "Resolved: That the Volstead Act Should Be Amended So As To Permit the Manufacture and Sale of Light Wines and Beers." The Excelsiors, by lot, took the negative side, while it was left for the Neos to defend the Volstead act as it is. This question was substituted for the "practical tendency" question which was chosen before, but was later discarded, as it could not be worked up properly.

That the debate must have been carried out in masterful style is shown by the fact that all the participants were varsity debaters, with only one exception. The Excelsior team which attacked the Volstead act, included Harry Klingeman, Edwin Harris, George Croyle, and Garrison Wilkes, while Elwood McGugin, Russell Loucks and Hartwell Fassnacht opposed them in behalf of the Neosomians. Leon C. Hood, the Neo alternate, could not be on deck, still being confined to his home on account of his recent throat operation.

The judges for the debate were Edgar Landis, a Myerstown banker, Rev. David Lockhart, of the Myerstown Reformed church, and Rev. John Long, pastor of the local U. B. church.

The winner of this debate will meet the Themisians team for the year's possession of the Keller cup in the near future. As yet this date is unsettled, as the day for this final date was Tuesday, when only the prelim contest was held. However, it is very likely that this will be arranged as soon as possible.

THEMISIANS START NEW SERIES PROGRAMS

The Themisians have been divided into four groups, each of which will put on a program in place of the regular meetings. The following seniors are at the heads of the groups: Ann Benfer, Arlene Herr, Caroline Mowry, Mabel Kelchner.

On Friday night the first group presented Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew," as arranged and directed by Ann Benfer.

Only those scenes necessary for the plot were given; Baptista's refusal to allow Bianca to marry until after Kate was married, the arrival of Petruchio and his betrothal to Kate, the taming of the Shrew on the lonely road, and the utter submission of Kate upon their return to her home.

This play was very well characterized and ably presented by the following cast:

Petruchio ..... Rachel Painter.
Katharina ..... Peg Flexer.
Bianca ..... Mae Cooper.
Baptista ..... Esther Dettlerline.
Gremio ..... Grace Poff.
Hortensio ..... Orpha Hangen.

Final Number of Lyceum Course Appreciated By Large Audience

Last evening saw the presenting of the last number on the Lyceum Course, sponsored by the Women's Club. The entertainment was in the shape of a play, "Wandering Spooks," that was thoroughly enjoyed by a large audience. The number was a fitting climax to a course replete with very fine entertainments, and the Women's Club certainly deserves much credit for the sponsoring of such a course. It is very probable that the club will again present a course next year, and feel that they will be even more successful in the venture than this year.

: Who's Who At Albright :*NEIMAN S. HOFFMAN

About the busiest person you can find, is a fitting description of "Hoffie." However, he is not as busy with his work as one would be led to believe on the surface. Because if you go to his locked door and listen closely you will often-times hear the faint click of checkers and "Hoffie's" chuckle as he pulls a good play. And what he knows about the "American" each month is amazing. He is not to be criticized for taking recreation and getting away from work once in a while, but now we are on the secret of the locked study door.

Hoffman is a very capable and willing student. He can get his studies well and as Editor-in-chief of the handbook last year turned out a very good example of his ability. He is also a contributor to the editorial department of the Bulletin, and these editorials are of the very best.

"Hoffie" is a lover of the great out-of-doors. But before that we should have mentioned the fact that he plays basketball. His Class Team counts him a very important part in helping win games. He plays guard and scarcely does a game go by in which he does not ring up a few baskets. In the springtime however when the days are very tempting you don't often find "Hoffie" in his room, he is either out along some stream fishing, or down at the courts playing tennis, at which game he is quite good.

As his life's work "Hoffie" has chosen the ministry. He has already done some note-worthy work in his field and as he goes out from among us at the end of this year we wish him the best of fortune.

lot better than the majority of them possess. Each of these fellows can play the outfield and thus their hitting strength will not be lost even though they are not working in the box. Henry Klock, another newcomer on the squad, is also showing great form on the hurling mound.

Griggs, Angle, Gasull, Clemens, Strickler and Kerns compose the remaining veterans who will probably be seen in Albright uniform this season. Either Griggs, or Angle will catch, and while one of them is catching the other can play one of the infield positions, one that he has held for three years, and he is showing better form than ever before. Clemens will probably be seen in center field. Kerns, the regular second baseman of last years team, may either play at his old position or in the outfield, where his speed would be of great value to the club. Strickler will be seen in the role of pitcher and outfielder, as he played both places last year. What new material the coach will develop is as yet uncertain, and only time will tell if there is any ability in the new men who are in the freshman class.

National Community Foundation Arranges For New Cultural Advantages For Small Towns

Philadelphia, March 16th. A personal representative of the National Community Foundation, in which Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, Will Irwin, and Samuel McRoberts are leaders, will be in Myerstown shortly to confer with leading citizens of the community on plans for making available to the people of Myerstown the best educational and cultural advantages of both metropolitan and university centers, according to an announcement made recently by Charles F. Jenkins, executive chairman of the National Community Foundation.

Mr. Jenkins also announced that a brochure, "The Future for Your Town," which outlines the aims of the National Community Foundation has been mailed by Mr. Irvin to a group of citizens here known to be interested in civic welfare and in obtaining all possible educational and cultural opportunities for the people of the community.

The National Community Foundation, the booklet explains, aims to bring to the making of the people of the nation, who are located in the smaller cities, the towns and country, cultural and educational opportunities now enjoyed almost solely by metropolitan centers. The Foundation will project its work through the medium of chautauqua, and has chosen as its first field the 633 towns in 14 states and 4 provinces of Canada, now served by the Swarthmore Chautauqua Association, which is the only non-partisan, non-profit, non-sectarian chautauqua organization in America.

"The enduring foundations of America's strength are to be found in our villages, towns, and small cities," the booklet points out. "From them directly or as points of concentration come our basic commodities. From them also have come 75 per cent of the men and women who are the leaders of our nation."

"Under modern conditions distractions that make for discontent are being multiplied. Some of this discontent is due to the growth of cheap and sometimes vicious influences. A great part of it, on the other hand, is due to a justifiable hunger for better things. The Home Towns have done much for our national progress. They must now concentrate their effort at home and obtain additional educational and cultural advantages—not only in their own interest, but in the interest of our national future."

—Most of the "ideas for mothers" in the magazines sound very much as if they had been written by fathers.
