

Zeta Incident

Communications Fail Between Judiciary Board & Students

Zeta House - Will the For Rent sign become a reality?

by Bob Clark

On Tuesday, October 21, 1969, Albright's Judiciary Board reached an almost unanimous decision concerning the Zeta Omega Epsilon (ZOE) fraternity, voting to ban all ZOE activities for the remainder of this year. The house is to be closed as soon as those in residence there can be resituated in a dorm or an off-campus apartment.

On Thursday, October 30, 1969, the Zeta fraternity published a four-page open letter in which they presented their side of the story. Few people know more than what was in the open letter, and these only reached a limited number of people.

Nevertheless, a variety of opinion concerning the incident may be found on the Albright campus. The idea was to try and get a circle of opinion, by questioning Dean Weislogel (speaking as the Dean, not as chairman of the Board), a few of the Judiciary Board members, each of the fraternity heads, and several students.

Weislogel said, "Anytime a decision has to be made relevant to the action of students, it is extremely difficult. But I feel that the members of the Judiciary Board, both faculty and student, discharged their duties with a great deal of responsibility and concern, and that the decision reached was one that the members reached only after a long and serious consideration of all the facts. I'm sorry the situation occurred, but I would hope that out of this, ZOE will re-evaluate their goals and objectives and develop into an outstanding fraternity."

The Judiciary Board members asked, declined comment on the situation as a whole, pointing out instead that it has been the Judiciary Board's policy not to discuss such matters outside of Board Meetings. This was termed as their "code of ethics." They did point out, however, that "all decisions of the Board are up for acceptance or rejection by the President (of the college)."

Joe Kacenda, on behalf of Alpha Pi Omega, said, "Due to the fact that we do not know the whole story, we do not feel we can render a just comment. If anything, we would tend to feel that, perhaps, the decision was a little harsh."

Roger Gallo, speaking for Pi Tau Beta, said, "I do not like the idea of the school taking the house away from them. I personally think the Board went too far. I just hope this does not set a precedent so far as fraternities and every last bit of trouble they may get into is concerned."

Rick Bomberger, on behalf of Kappa Upsilon Phi, said, "In viewing a situation like this, I am very disturbed about several things. First, the IFC (Inter-Fraternity Council) was not contacted before or after the decision was made. Although the Judiciary Board may feel the IFC is a weak organization, the IFC should have been contacted for comments and suggestions. Second, the details of the case have remained a complete mystery to Zeta Omega Epsilon fraternity, THE ALBRIGHTIAN, the student body, and, to a large degree, the administration. Third, I do not feel the other fraternities can ignore the problem, for a precedent has been set and I am afraid it was a harsh decision, judging from the scanty evidence available to us."

Fred Gable, representing Zeta Omega Epsilon, said, "First we were accused..., then we were convicted..., and now we are being crucified. What price is justice?"

Several student-body members, not associated with the Zeta fraternity in any way, had a variety of comments, characterized by the following.

One student said, "It is stupid; it happened the year before I got here, for the same reason. They should know better by now." Another said, "You don't know what to believe; you can't get the true story from anyone." Finally, one other said, "Frankly, I have to side with the Zetas. I've done some checking into the matter and probably know more of the facts than the average student. I sincerely believe that if more students knew the facts, sympathy for the Zetas would be natural."

Peace Corps College Degree Program Expanded

The officials of the Peace Corps and the State University of New York College at Brockport announced completion of arrangements for continuing and extending the unique Peace Corps/College Degree Program to admit a fourth group of candidates in June, 1970. The members of the first contingent completing the fifteen-month program which combines the upper division undergraduate education with Peace Corps preparation are now serving in bi-national educational development teams in the Dominican Republic; the second group is now serving in similar assignments in Peru and Honduras; the third group is now in the academic year phase of this joint project and is slated for overseas assignment in Latin America in August, 1970.

The candidates will be selected from the ranks of students in good standing at an accredited college who are completing their sophomore or junior year by June, 1970. Those selected will be able to earn an A.B. or B.S. degree and be eligible for a Peace Corps assignment in one academic year flanked by two summers of fully subsidized and integrated academic courses and Peace Corps training. They are expected to major in mathematics or the sciences; those who have completed their junior year prior to entrance into the program have the opportunity for a double-major.

At the end of the second summer armed with the degree, a teaching license, in-depth cross cultural preparation and fluency in Spanish the graduates as Peace Corps Volunteers will be off on their Latin American assignment. As members of the staffs of teacher training institutions and/or consultants to secondary teachers of mathematics or science, they are important participants in the educational development efforts of their host countries. During their two year sojourn they have the opportunity to earn up to twelve semester hours graduate credit.

Peace Corps and college officials pointed out the several features which make this joint program unique including: academic credit for Peace Corps training, two fully subsidized summer sessions totaling thirty semester credit hours, in-depth Peace Corps training synchronized with the liberal arts and specialized professional preparation, individualized programming, opportunity for double majors and supervised overseas graduate work.

"This integrated program is based on our two fold conviction that (1) to combine the college and Peace Corps experiences is to make both more relevant and meaningful and the personal product more valuable (2) to provide much-needed skilled specialists—mathematics and science teachers—as Peace Corps Volunteers in Latin America is to make a significant contribution to all concerned," said President Albert Warren Brown, of the State University College at Brockport in announcing the extension of this unique partnership.

CONVOICATIONS TO BE IMPROVED

This year's convocation committee, composed of a parity representation of faculty and students, is busy working to obtain big name speakers and groups for the 1969-70 program. Operating on the philosophy formulated following the student demands, the committee is attempting to decrease the number of programs and to increase the quality. These two points are extremely important in considering student interest since attendance is now on a purely voluntary basis.

Scheduling of convocations is usually done a year in advance. However, this year's committee is operating under a handicap of time because no programs could be scheduled last spring until the decision was made concerning convocation attendance.

Convocations each semester will number approximately eight; speakers and groups are selected on the basis of interest, availability and a budget of $4,000.00 per semester. Included for the first time in the convocation funds are programs innovated by various academic departments which now have the opportunity to sponsor programs they feel attractive to their own majors and hopefully to all students. Formally department programs were not included because of the larger number of regular convocations and set budget allocations.

Student participation on the convocation committee has been extremely good. According to Chairman Yrigoyen, Convocation Chairman, students present fewer problems with attendance than do the faculty members.

The committee works for a meeting of minds - possibilities are first listed, then priorities are chosen according to interest and funds available. All convocations are geared to student interest and all are scheduled as college events. The aim is for the really big names among which are Nelson Rockefeller, Julian Bond and Mrs. Richard Nixon.

Second semester convocations as yet have not been determined. The first semester convocation series began with the China seminar, October 2. Other scheduled convocations to follow are: an organ recital, a theatrical performance and a speaker.

Carl Weinrich, director of music for the Princeton University Chapel, will give an organ recital in the Chapel Tuesday night at 8 P.M. Tickets for guests other than Albright students and faculty are available from members of the Reading chapter, American Guild of Organists, co-sponsors of the convocation.

A production of "A Thousand Clowns" by the National Theatre Company of West Orange, N.J. is scheduled for Thursday, November 13 at 8 P.M.

On December 4 at 11 A.M. Arthur Schlesinger, Jr., will speak at Albright. Schlesinger, a Pulitzer Prize winning historian and former special assistant to Pres. John F. Kennedy is author of "A Thousand Days" written about Kennedy's presidential term.

EDITORIALLY SPEAKING....

Silence From The 'Silent Majority'

The Albrightian understands Nixon's appeal for silence from the "great silent majority", the great unquestioning majority, the great unthinking majority. We acknowledge the political sagacity of calling on the support of a constituency whose essential response is silence. We note with interest the "major shift" in policy that is evident in the timeless timetable for the withdrawal of "all combat ground forces" from Vietnam.

The Albrightian rejects Nixon's opinion that the alternatives for action are only 1) disastrous immediate withdrawal or 2) his way. We believe there are other alternatives.

The Albrightian hopes that every student who has another plan will explain it to President Nixon during the student strike for peace November 13 and 14, and at the Washington Moratorium March Saturday, November 15.

Armbands-Symbol Of The Shafted

On October 15, when black arm bands were donned by peace demonstrators throughout the nation, most Albright students failed to wear this symbol. Yet, black arm bands recently became the symbol of the "shafted" Zeta fraternity. Though it is faintly amusing, the Albrightian finds it quite disconcerting that the brothers of this fraternity believe that they have a "cause". The action of the Judiciary Board hardly approaches the seriousness of the action of the U.S. government. Can the students of Albright College find time to focus their eyes upon the world?

The Suit Case Student

In its issue of 17 October, 1969, The Albrightian noted the "suit case student" phenomenon. This problem in part was attributed to a lack of social interaction in the campus area.

This lack of social intercourse is abetted by an undue segregation of the sexes at Albright. Men and women need to relate in a non-sexual, social and intellectual capacity. Contact between the sexes in the classroom and in the dining hall does not allow for sufficient interaction. Rather students should have the privilege of inviting members of the opposite sex into their homes-their rooms-for informal gatherings if they so desire.

Excessive social restrictions serve only to promote promiscuity on campus under risky and awkward circumstances. As a consequence, sterile relationships tend to develop between the men and women of Albright.

The Albrightian has noted a more liberal trend in the college's attitudes on dormitory restrictions. To help promote healthier relationships, The Albrightian would like to see a further lessening of dormitory restrictions. In particular, The Albrightian suggests more extensive and more frequent open houses.

Perhaps, too, Student Council could begin a study of co-op dormitories. Several universities have tried the plan and have noted that students (especially males), aware of the presence of the opposite sex, become less boisterous, less prankish, less often drunk, and in sum, more considerate of their neighbors and the college facilities.

Student Proposals For Curricular Improvement

We of THE ALBRIGHTIAN vigorously support the following open letter to the faculty.

It is evident on the Albright Campus that many students are lacking in motivation and intellectual stimulation. We feel that this problem must be attacked by increasing student involvement in the educational process and by making it more possible for the student to tailor a personal curriculum. This, however, is impractical under the present maze of administrative regulations regarding academic policy. We wish to assert the role of students and faculty in personal cooperation to shape a more stimulating academic program. Following is an outline of procedural changes which we feel could be instrumental in reshaping the academic atmosphere of the college:

1. Seminars at all Levels

We believe that it is desirable for students to feel their involvement in their classes and to contribute to them rather than to accept the role of passive auditors. We recognize that in certain basic courses dealing with a fixed body of information it would be difficult to conduct the course on a seminar basis. However, by incorporating within the three-hour structure of most courses one hour of recitation, it would be possible for students to engage in discussion with the professor and obtain clarification on points of interest. In more advanced courses our end should be transition from the lecture to the seminar structure and the encouragement of student research and contribution to the group study. It should be understood that this proposal is not to supplant the present lecture structure but to serve as an option for those students who desire it.

2. Independent Studies

For the highly motivated student independent study with the guidance of a concerned professor would promote a unique and individual academic experience. The student and professor involved could design their study to suit the needs and interests of the student unencumbered by the necessity of shaping the course to the common denominator of a large group. Though the student would work closely with a single faculty member, we feel that his work should be evaluated by the department either through a departmental comprehensive examination or through a thesis demonstrating broad knowledge of the subject matter. Any student who can obtain the sponsorship of a faculty member and the approval of the department involved should be allowed to enroll on an independent basis in any course offered by the college.

3. Extension of Pass/Fail

Pass/fail has already been recognized as a viable alternative to the academic pressure on grades. For those students wishing to utilize pass/fail to a greater extent than now permitted, a new pass/fail system upgrading the requirement for pass to the C level could be instituted. Achievement in pass/fail courses would then necessarily represent the quality performance required in the 2.0 average needed for graduation. The C level pass would be used only for students enrolled in more than one pass/fail course in a single semester. We recognize that increased use of pass/fail

Zettas Zap Back...

Patience

To Be Reasonable

Dear Editor,

After receiving the latest issue of "slip-it-under-the-door-while-nobody's-looking" (last time it was Vanguard, this time Stone), which at least was signed this time, I decided it was time for a reply from the "conservative fringe". I would merely like to tell Mr. Richards et al that I am sick to death of being berated by he and his cohorts, and equally sick of being told to get out and demonstrate, when there seems to be nothing worth risking my work, my reputation, or possibly my school career for (thank you, Mr. Richards, for the word of confidence on mass demonstration, but, as some of the "die-harder's" around here are so fond of pointing out, "Remember the Soble",...there are administrative retaliatory measures the administration hasn't even thought of yet). As for the Student Council, you can make all of the excuses you want for it...its main problem is simply that it has become a very bad joke, which has shirked or "overlooked" its functions in some cases and merely botched up a lot of others. Why, I might ask, are these people for radical change so afraid to even try going through the channels? Are they more afraid that the channels won't work and they'll be disappointed, or are they afraid that verbal, parliamentary procedures might work and force them to miss out on the spectacularism of a demonstration?

In conclusion, I would say (besides "nuts to them"!), show me an issue that the student body finds important enough to stand behind (and I don't mean the Homecoming Queen), and I'll show you an issue the administration is willing and ready to consider.

The mature adult, Mr. Richards, is one who has the patience to be reasonable; it is the child who must immediately throw a tantrum (or other such demonstration of physical power) in order to get his way.

Sincerely,

Joan S. Weisfeld

Soble In Retrospect

Dear Editor,

Hello. A short letter to let my friends at Albright know that I, my wonderful wife, and my beautiful child are alive and prosperous in Buffalo. At Albright, if you recall, I was one of those infrahumans with hirsute cheeks, but here at the State University of New York I am just another freaky graduate student. The sight is overwhelming: candidates for Ph.D.'s in history, sociology and physics, and candidates for law and medical degrees—many wearing bells and boots, sporting beards and curls, mouthing four-letter words and libtium. No inhibition of perscality here by overprotective, patronizing saints. No censorship of individual thought or the media. Nothing remaining to remind us of man's less enlightened era and modern examples of backward progress. Implication: some people will claim that graduate, law and medical schools do not consider bearded or hairy students (with a decent amount of intelligence) material for advanced degrees. Whoever claims this is only confessing to us his own narrowness of experience (from which the world assumes a shape based on preconceptions and wishes rather than on direct knowledge) and his limitations as a judge of competency. Pity to him who fulfills this description and lacks discretion to boot. We have witnessed the attempt of a frustrated and impotent man to make publicity for himself by being stubborn and controversial. But in the process he has forwarded an irrational and untenable position which is so simple that it hardly requires rebuttal. He is defining as "infrahuman" one who permits his body to manufacture sulfurous proteins ad infinitum. This is obviously preposterous. Yet my argument is superfluous. Of course graduate students have beards and become great men. This is fact, not fancy. But what is dangerous and frightening about this man (as already stated brilliantly by Brett Gamble) is that he is in a position of some influence. He is quite arbitrarily defining humanity (philosophically an outstanding accomplishment) on judicial grounds (philosophically stupid). I plead with intelligent people around this man to make him come to his senses (or remove him from office) before his fanaticism damages lives and reputations.

Before I close, permit me two more paragraphs. First, some advice to the editor of The Albrightian:

1. bone up on proofreading
2. repeat English 101-102 for credit
3. Try to buffer the DiVirgilio influence on the paper. It glares from every page. (Remember: He who licks everyone's behind cannot call his tongue his own).
4. Please design your own banner and stop using Ralph's creation. Be original, in other words.

Second. My address in Buffalo, for any of my friends to use who wish to communicate with me in the struggle, is: Department of Pharmacology, SUNYAB, Capen Hall 122, Buffalo, New York, 14214. (Note: do not send any back copies of The Albrightian to my department chairman since he has already read them. I wouldn't want you to waste the postage.) All oppressed take care.

With love,

Alan Soble

ICF QUESTIONS JUDICIARY BOARD

At the latest I.F.C. meeting the recent incident concerning the Zetas was discussed. Two questions were raised at the meeting: (1) Why wasn't the I.F.C. involved in the ruling? (2) Why wasn't the I.F.C. informed of the decision?

The Inter-Fraternity Council is a representative council of all fraternities on Campus. The omission of the I.F.C. concerning the Zeta incident questions the validity and integrity of this council. The involved administrators and Judiciary Board have ignored the proper function of this council by not consulting and collaborating with them to formulate the final decision concerning the Zetas.

The ruling on the two students involved in the incident is justified, that being one of the functions of the Judiciary Board. However, the I.F.C. believes the ruling released by the Judiciary Board concerning the Zeta Omega Upsilon fraternity is invalid, and continues to consider this fraternity an active organization.

The brothers of the Zeta Omega Epsilon fraternity issued a statement last Friday in defense of the actions that led to the decision of the Judiciary Board to suspend two students for two weeks, to suspend the fraternity's activities, and to close the Zeta house.

In order to fairly report the chronology of events in the Zeta version, The Albrightian reprints the statement as received. The Albrightian also asked the Judiciary Board to comment on the Zeta statement, and Dean Weislogel, chairman of the Judiciary Board responded.

The Zeta Statement:

This whole fiasco began the week of October 3, 1969. Zeta Omega Epsilon sent two of its fall semester pledges to North Carolina for their pledge trip. The purpose of this trip was to give the pledges a respite from their duties as pledges and also to bring messages from the brothers of ZOE to friends at other schools. If a brother asked for a shirt or other article, the pledge was to buy it or obtain it from the brother's friend he had contacted. Under no circumstances was stealing to be involved.

Any of you who have ever pledged a fraternity or sorority realize that during this pledge period your activities are not always completely rational. For those of you who have never experienced the rigors of pledging, this would be most difficult to comprehend.

To continue with our story - On Friday, Oct. 3, two pledges were given a list of brother's friends to contact on their trip. As they were leaving, they received a list from an alumnus of Zeta Omega Epsilon, who for the present will remain anonymous. On this list were things to steal, such as a jacket and a shirt. It is our contention that this alumnus meant the list to be a joke. No active member of the fraternity had any knowledge that the list existed. These pledges, upon arriving at North Carolina State, went to see the friend of a brother as they had been instructed. As pledges often do, they got carried away and stole various articles from the dormitory. Realizing what they had done, they panicked and drove to the house of a brother in North Carolina, whom they had dropped off on the way down, and confronted him with their problem. Upon seeing these stolen articles and fearing that these pledges would be arrested shortly if they remained in North Carolina, this brother decided that the best course of action was to return to Albright. When the brothers of ZOE saw what the pledges had brought back with them, we realized this was a very serious matter. We decided to return these articles as soon as was physically possible in order to rectify the situation the pledges had created.

Monday morning at approximately 9:00, Dean Weislogel appeared at our house. Immediately he took the two pledges to his office and informed us later that the stolen material must be in his office by 1:00. Unknown to the Dean, three of our brothers had left earlier in the morning to return the merchandise. Upon hearing this, the Dean informed ZOE that a roadblock and an All Points Bulletin had been sent out for a car with Penna. plates heading for North Carolina. He also said that these three men could be arrested for transporting stolen goods, and then made it be known that his sympathy did not lie with the fraternity for taking the initiative without consulting him, as if returning the things was a matter for him to decide.

On Tuesday, October 6, the two pledges involved when the things were stolen were brought before the Judiciary Board to see what punitive action would be taken against them. Up to this point, the ZOE fraternity was led to believe that we would not be implicated in the proceedings. Contrary to all former assurances of the administration, we now find that we are to bear the brunt of the Judiciary Board's action.

Now we take the opportunity to:

1. Present the facts to the students of Albright so that we won't be judged on just hearsay evidence.
2. Make it known that it is the opinion of the brothers of Zeta Omega Epsilon that the punitive measures taken against us are unjust and in actuality are serving as reparations for past actions.

A ten member board handed down the decision that appears in this week's Albrightian. The decision which was formulated by a "kangaroo" court was based on one-sided evidence. It was made known to us that before an honorable decision could be reached, the anonymous alumnus aforementioned must appear before the Board and explain his part in the whole affair. His testimony would have shifted the responsibility for the actions of the pledges from the fraternity to himself. For some unexplained reason, the Board reconsidered to disregard our main point of defense, and decided to arbitrate without hearing him. Their final decision was based on prior disposition rather than on the facts which would have been included in his testimony. We of ZOE feel that the Board displayed an extremely injudicious attitude and put their integrity in question.

Numerous reports were then circulated unofficially by the administration and various members of the Board. Never was any official

ANTI-WAR MOVEMENT ESCALATES

by Bonnie L. Reheard

Across the nation thousands of students are taking an increasing interest in world affairs and are becoming involved in important political issues. Foremost in significance is the U.S. involvement in Vietnam, it is the cause of much discussion, diversion and disension. Students are beginning to actively demonstrate their feelings as recently evidenced in the national moratorium, October 15.

Because the war is an important issue that affects every American citizen, all college students should be aware of the issues. Whether or not Albrightians are for or against the war is not the issue of importance. What is important is that the Albright campus is knowledgeable and informed. At this time, anti-war movements are strong and college groups are being formed to support troop removal from Vietnam. The largest organized group behind the movement is SMC.

SMC is the central organization for involved students. It is an antiwar organization that mobilizes high school and college youth, and brings together individuals and members of different groups who unite in actions around one issue—to end the war in Vietnam and bring ALL the troops home NOW.

SMC has in the past built many demonstrations against the war—from the Pentagon in October '67 through the nation-wide April 5 and 6 demonstrations ('69) which included the participation of active duty GI's.

Treat for Peace Campaign was run to raise money to carry out the November 13-15 anti-war activities. This activity was carried in various other communities and colleges than in Philadelphia proper. Two popular places included the rock and jazz concerts at Philadelphia's Civic Center, and a "Be-In" at the Belmont Pla teau, Sunday, November 2. Donations are also being accepted at the SMC office, 1011 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Penna., 19107.

The SMC of Philadelphia is building for strong support of the November 13-15 weekend. Friday, November 7 at 8:00 p.m. there will be a rally at the Ethical Society, 1906 S. Rittenhouse Square in Philadelphia. It's theme: Defend GI Dissent. Speakers include: Andrew C. Polley, Ex-Pvt. of Fort Jackson GI's United; Ethel Taylor, Philadelphia E Coordinator, Women Stride for Peace; Rev. Jesse Anderson, St. Thomas Episcopal Church; Spencer Cox, Exec. Director American Civil Liberties Union. Donation is $1.00 and sponsored by GI Civil Liberties' Defense Committee.

The rally is an outgrowth of the May 20th incident at Fort Jackson, S.C. when military authorities realized they had no case against anti-war GI's united against the war in Vietnam. That day the GI's were released from the stockades where they had been held because of their anti-war views. Their release marked an outstanding victory for the right of servicemen to oppose the war. This demonstrated not only the fact that GI's, as any other American citizen, have the right to voice their anti-war views, but that they can defeat attempts by the brass

The Vietnam moratorium October 15 was the largest manifestation of anti-war sentiment in American history with many schools and colleges closing down or centering their activities on the war with discussions, debates, teach-ins and mass rallies.

The moratorium was only the beginning of what appears to be a strongly backed protest, the beginning of the Fall offensive—a builder for even larger mass actions in November. November 14 and 15 mark the next significant events of a National Student Strike and March on Washington. Although these are the next two calendar events, the cause is continually strengthened by various speech-ins, rallies, and money raising campaigns all over the country.

SMC, the student mobilization committee in Philadelphia has been the center of coordination for many of the local anti-war campaigns. This past Halloween weekend a Trick or ignited the flaming interest among the youth of America—those fighting in Vietnam for a "free" nation, those booking in college to become the leaders of this mighty nation. Through rallies and mass teach-ins more strength and numbers are being obtained, all building up to the November 14 and 15 campaign.

NOVEMBER 14 IN THE NATIONAL HIGH SCHOOL AND COLLEGE STRIKE AGAINST THE WAR. The SMC has called a one-day national Student Strike for that day, and many campuses will be hopefully shut down. The Strike will be a build-up to the massive march the following day. Actions such as rallies, teach-ins, and debates compose the bulk of the Strike. In Philadelphia there is to be a central strike rally at 1 to prevent them from openly organizing other GI's to do the same

It is incidents such as this that have

LONDON GRAFICA ARTS' ON TOUR HERE

Avid print collectors are experiencing increasing difficulty in securing quality graphics as a knowledgeable public grows and more collectors enter the market. It is with great pride that this show is presented with a range and quality of graphics usually shown only in major galleries or museums.

London Grafica Arts continues to diversify its activities and widen its range of stock. Many important Old Master prints have recently been acquired, and among the moderns there are exciting new works by Miro, Wunderlich and Vasarely, as well as a continued flow of new publications by a growing number of young contemporary artists. All in ALL, London Grafica Arts looks forward to an exciting year with a full exhibition program, and with the prospect of adding many enthusiastic new recruits to the growing ranks of print collectors who find the appeal of aesthetics combined with investment potential difficult to resist.

After three years of regular visits to universities and museums, London Grafica Arts' touring exhibitions of original prints are now well established and popular events on the calendar of art lovers throughout America.

A quality exhibition of original graphic art will be on view and for sale at:

Albright College
Campus Center
Wednesday, November 12, 1969
1 P.M.—8 P.M.

The collection includes lithographs, etchings, woodcuts, and silkscreens by both old and modern masters; 19th and 20th century prints; and a full selection of contemporaries published by London Arts. Browsing through the collection one comes across original graphics by artists such as Rembrandt, Toulouse-Lautrec, Picasso, Renoir, Degas, Chagall and Vasarely at prices ranging from ten to several thousands of dollars.

For the discriminating collector who aspires to something better than a reproduction, there are sound aesthetic and commercial reasons for buying original prints. Various techniques of printmaking enable an artist to make a number of identical images of his work. The normal practice is to make an "edition" of between 20 and 125 numbered and signed impressions of any one work before destroying the plate from which it has been printed. Thus, although a print is not as unique an item as a painting, it nevertheless retains a degree of exclusiveness.

The boom in original prints continues unabated, and a recent survey conducted by the New York Times and Sotheby's showed that the prices paid for Old Master prints by Rembrandt, Durer, Brughel and Goya has appreciated between 1400% and 2400% over the past fifteen years. Equally fantastic increases have been recorded for the Modern Masters—Picasso, Braque and Chagall. The Times, however, feels that the ceiling has by no means been reached, and suggests that ten years hence we may look back with nostalgia at the prices of today.

"Les Trois Acrobates" by Marc Chagall is part of the London Grafica Arts collection on Tour in the Albright Campus Center Wednesday, November 12, 1969.

CCB Coffee Houses & Such

A good chance for good talk and relaxation tonight is sponsored by the Campus Center Board. A while back, the CCB took on the responsibility for the coffee houses that have been tried in the CCB on numerous occasions. The coffee houses were very successful in the past, and tonight's should be an equal success. Come to the club at about eight-thirty and stay as long as you like. There will be entertainment and plenty of coffee. This coffee house is the first of three that have been scheduled by the Campus Center Board for this semester. If they are successful, there will be more scheduled for the second semester.

Tomorrow night the Campus Center Board is sponsoring a victory dance in the Campus Center Lounge. The dance gets underway at nine and goes until eleven. Don't miss it.

Have you gotten your tickets for the concert yet? You ask, "What concert?" The Brooklyn Bridge. Tickets for students went on sale last Monday. This Monday they go on public sale. Don't miss out on the good seats. Tickets for the concert, to be held on the sixth of December,

Underground Films Win Over Nixon, Agnew, And Burning Pagoda

by Brett Gamble

Another November, Richard Nixon mouthing greased palstic obscenities over the tube and Spiro Agnew spitting nasties with harder edges to party dinners. Reading-Albright-Berks. It looks like rain again and the Pagoda's burning tonight. Business as usual - dull.

BUT

Professor Harry Koursaros does it again. Since Fall of '67 he's been sneaking modern film art into Albright College in the form of underground movies. Now, he's brought in some good ones - Scorpio Rising, Fireworks, The Brig - but this time he's managed to exceed himself and bring in the best lot of them all.

The showing led off with Tom Chomont's amazing Morpheus in Hell, an incredibly lyrical composition of pure image. Chomont with his brilliant use of superimposition comes on as one of the all-time great cinematic technicians. There's no way of talking about this particular film, except to recommend it to anyone who hasn't seen it.

Flick number 2 was called Leisure and dealt with the media swallowing robots who keep the blessed system rolling. George Kuchar doesn't let his vacuous (mostly high school) cast off easy. They, and the adults in the picture, are totally dehumanized devices for the absorption of American Band Stand and old John Wayne movies. They are incapable of anything but consumption.

Now comes the hard part. To talk about flaws in a great show isn't easy, but I found Bob Fleischner and Jack Smith's Blonde Cobra disjointed, uneven in quality, and generally a thoroughly abrasive experience. Maybe if this one were stuck into a lesser program, it would come off better by comparison, but for my money Fleischner and Smith really blew it on this one.

Invocation of my Demon Brother! Oh wow! Kenneth Anger made the movie and Mick Jagger (Yeah, that

Harry Koursaros, head of the Art Department

Mick Jagger.) produced the driving, slamming sound track. This is another image picture, but like most of Anger's work there is no smooth slickness in the way he handles his subject. The production technique is easily up to the best that can be done by any major studio. If Kenneth Anger keeps on improving at the rate he has, there's no telling what kind of magnificent stuff he'll be laying down in another year or two. I can't get off this picture. Anger's hard-edged clarity defies superlatives. You'll never forgive yourselves if you don't see this one somewhere, sometime. But if you don't, that's your problem too.

The last picture on the bill, Super

Spread by Rick Nelson (No, not that Rick Nelson, Heavens for Fend!) ran high too; but maybe because of my own sensory overload from seeing the other four, this one seemed to run a bit thin. I'd say Nelson relied a bit too heavily on speed and split-screen for Super Spread to stay solid all the way through. I found myself hit over the head a little too hard and often to really enjoy it.

I'd like to see more underground movies brought into Albright, if for no other reason than to keep us all aware that there is a world somewhere out there where things are being done. But Professor

EASY RIDER IT GOES DAMN HARD

After you have paid your dollar-and-a-quarter, don't get too comfortable as you wait for the film to begin. It begins innocently enough; there, in all her resplendent glory, stands Miss Liberty—the trademark of Columbia Pictures. This is the only quiet moment in the entire picture.

The first scene is set in a Mexican junk yard. This in itself, is symbolic. Enter Billy and Wyatt making a pick-up. Heroin, that is. The stuff is delivered to a rich kid who drives up to an airport in a chauffeured Rolls-Royce. Billy and Wyatt are paid and are off. Where the airport is located, by the way, is never made clear. For that matter, the entire film is very vaguely set. Places are referred to, but never explicitly located. This is good, because the film is set in the South; an area depressingly the same—from one end to the other.

But to get back to the matter at hand, Billy and Wyatt decide to go to New Orleans for the Mardi Gras Festival. They pick up a hitchhiker who turns out to be the leader of a hippie community located about fifty miles from nowhere. Is it Arizona? New Mexico? West Texas? Wherever it is, it is three days drive to New Orleans. After the pair leaves the community, they are arrested for parading without a permit. You see, they were caught in the middle and just went along for kicks.

The next day, George, a local lawyer on the town drunk, turns up in their cell, sleeping off his latest binge. He bailes them all out and decides to go with them. What follows is one of the best scenes ever put on film. This pair of Long-haired Hippie Communist Fascist Socialist Freaks introduce George to marijuana. It is refreshing to see the way this small-town Southern lawyer handles his first joint; he philosophizes and explains the UFO that Wyatt thinks he sees. You see, "They have been landing around here since 1946."

Now, the next day when they stop for lunch they are subjected to what George calls "Country witticisms." As they leave, one of the crew-cut, well-fed members of the Southern middle class remarks ominously that they won't make it "to the Parish" (Continued on Page Seven)

The Sportsman Speaks .. An Ode To Success Or Having A Ball

by Ron Rasansky, Sports Editor

The most popular part of the Albright athletic program is not a football game, not a basketball game and not a hockey match. Rather it is a sport in which both sexes can participate on equal footing, and age is no criterion for success. Strangely enough, I'm talking about the Albright Bowling League.

The league has filled a needed vacuum on the campus. Now there is something to do before dinner, and because of the handicap given to the weaker teams in the league, even the girls' team has a chance to win the championship. The league also gives many students who are not athletically gifted an opportunity to crawl out of the woodwork for a time, and is now a highlight of the intramural sports scene.

The teams in the league are not only out to win, but also to have a good time. This was illustrated in a game matching the Flock, a high-spirited outfit composed of Milt Benditt, Steve Perez, Henry Holtzman, Steve Goldberg, and Ron Rasansky, against the high scoring team of the Konverts led by 'Soloman' Pfeiffer and Sparky Purcell. These two teams will form the backbone of the league along with the faculty contingent of President Arthur Schultz, Doctor James Reppert, and Doctor Paul Leininger.

The key match of the league will feature the Flock against the Faculty I team November 18. Other teams to watch include the girls quintet, and the squads composing the Faculty II team and those captained by Arnie Freedman and Bill Baker.

The other squads are also colorful and are worth watching. But the key to success is participation. With a good turnout the league will be a continued success win or lose. By means of a tournament at the end of the year, everyone gets a chance to show his prowess. Without a doubt, the bowling league is the most successful part of the Albright Athletic program. Basketball and football move over.

Dutchmen Pose Strong Threat To Spoil Pretzel Bowl Game

The Pretzel Bowl is traditionally a contest which features the best half time entertainment of the year to make it's way into Albright Stadium. It is not a game wherein the sale of pretzels represents a main source of income. It is not a game where the fans sit in the stands, drowning themselves in pretzels and beer.

This year, the game promises to be an interesting contest. Besides the intense rivalry between the host Lions and the visitors of Lebanon Valley. The game poses a striking reversal from last season's battle. This year the Flying Dutchmen are 5-1, and in the running for a league title. They have a fine receiver in Greg Teter, and two outstanding running backs in Taki Bobatis and Tony DeMarco.

On the other hand, the Lions are doomed for a losing season and have only pride to shoot for. Both teams have played Moravian, and both squads were beaten. Lebanon Valley fell 17-0; the Lions lost a 26-23 heartbreaker last week to the Greyhounds. Records don't tell the whole story, as the Dutchmen have faced much weaker teams and are in a weaker league.

Since the game will be one of the last chances for the Albright Seniors to perform before a home crowd, the Lions should be rated a slight favorite. If their offense can move the ball, the fans will be pleased with the final outcome.

Harriers Hard Luck Extended

With the cross country season almost at an end, coach Mack probably wishes that he'd stayed in Chicago all of last week. Mack was in Chicago on Wednesday when the team was scheduled for a home meet against the University of Scranton. Scranton's station wagon broke down, however, and the meet was rescheduled for Thursday enabling him to be on hand to witness the most disheartening meet thus far this season. Albright's hard luck streak was extended as the team lost by one point, 27-28. The difference of one place would have meant victory. Co-Captain Alan Adelman, however, was forced to run a real "guts" race.

Adelman, who should have stayed in bed with his cold, managed to stay with Scranton's lead runner, John Brennan, until the final half mile of the race, when exhausted, he allowed Brennan to pull away. Still, Adelman finished second with a 24:00 min. time, only sixteen seconds behind Brennan, and a full thirty-nine seconds off of his best time for this course.

Bob Dingle came in third for Albright, and Mike Blatt, Bob Fallon and Jim Ogan came in fifth, eighth and tenth respectively. One joyous note for the team is, however, that Ogan, a freshman, has managed to shave a full two and one half minutes off of his time since he's been wearing his new blue kangaroo shoes.

In other cross country action, Albright lost to Haverford 19-44 on October 25th in a meet in which Adelman also managed to finish second. The Harriers were shutout in a triangular meet with Ursinus and Franklin and Marshall held at F and M. on Saturday, November 1. Only three more meets remain: Saturday, November 8 against Lebanon Valley at home, Saturday, November 15 against PMC away, and Saturday, November 21 in which Albright's runners will compete in the MAC Championships at Belmont Plateau in Philadelphia. With a bit more luck they still might be able to salvage something from this season. If not, there's always next year for this predominantly junior team.

Lions Bow To Hounds In Last Minute Despite Three Field Goals

by Jon Marks

Albright College, despite playing strong football throughout most of the game, fell to Moravian 26-23 Saturday as a result of a late defensive lapse. The game played before a large homecoming crowd at Moravian's Steele Stadium featured a see-saw struggle.

With the Lions leading 23-20 and just over a minute to play, Moravian Quarterback Steve Markovich found end Pete Brookfield open on a 4th and 6 situation. Brookfield grabbed the ball on the ten and carried it in the rest of the way for the winning score. The Lions fought back to the Greyhound 15, but after Quarterback Jim Strohl was pushed back to the 25, Bill Cooper's 42 yd. Field Goal attempt was short as the final gun sounded. Despite this miss, Cooper was brilliant on the field as he kicked Field Goals of 40, 35, and 28 yds. respectively, as well as making an interception and playing tenacious defense.

After a scoreless first period in which Albright controlled the ball most of the time the second quarter began with Cooper's first field goal to make it 3-0. Shortly after with Glenn Overk back to punt, the snap sailed over his head and he was downed on the one. Halfback Dennis Zimmerman who gained 92 yds. in 33 carries then carried it over to make it 10-0.

Moravian struck back quickly to take the lead. Co-Captain Hugh Gratz, who ran for 195 yds. in 20 carries and also played safety on defense, broke loose for a long gain to the 28. On the next play Fullback Jack Iannantuono, who picked up 98 yds. in 26 attempts, burst up the middle for a touchdown to make it 10-7. The Greyhounds then took over with a few minutes left, and brought it down to the 9, where Gratz carried it in to make it 14-10 at the half.

Early in the third period another bad snap went by Overk, and the Lions took over at the Moravian 15. Five plays later Zimmerman crossed from the one to make it 17-14. Cooper then intercepted on the Greyhound 33, but the Lions couldn't move. From his own 20 Gratz turned right end, broke into the open, and then outran everybody in sight to score and make it 20-17 Moravian.

The fourth quarter opened with Cooper's second Field Goal to tie it, and then moments later with the Lions stalled deep in Moravian territory, Bill again connected to give Albright the lead 23-20. Both of these drives had also been set up by poor snaps from center on punts, as Moravian kept giving the Lions good field position all day. With six minutes left the Greyhounds got the ball on their own 28, and coming through twice on crucial 4th down plays moved to the Albright 27. Here again faced with a desperate fourth down call Markovich found Brookfield to win it.

Despite the fact that the Lions played well, it is apparent that Albright is not going anywhere this season. It would seem that Coach Potskian might take a look at some of his younger players who will be playing next year to see what they can do.

EASY RIDER...

line." They don't. They are attacked while asleep and George is beaten to death. The South is so tolerant.

The pair, once again alone, make it to New Orleans, where they pick up a pair of prostitutes at the house George recommended to them. They spend the holiday on a trip, come down to earth again, leave New Orleans, and set out again. What follows is shocking and repulsive. You see, Southerners are so-o-o-o tolerant and hospitable. So much so, that both are the recipients of a typical Southern shotgun welcome. Literally. End of film.

The film is more than tragic, it is a very pointed indictment of modern bigotry, so rampant today. The three main characters, played to the hilt by Peter Fonda, Dennis Hopper and Jack Nicholson (as the tragic George), are typical members of their generation. They are free, and as such they represent a direct threat to the "freedom" of Middle America. Or at least, Southern Middle America. The Film is an eloquent plea for more than just tolerance, it is an anguished cry for acceptance, something this nation has been very hesitant to grant to the younger generation. The script, very well written by the way, is sparse, but says a lot in a very little. The photography is superb, with magnificent shots of mountains and canyons and what not interspersed with flash-backs, flash-fronts, and a satisfying collage, when Billy and Wyatt and their pick-ups trip out during Mardi Gras. There is none of the contrived and structured story development that so ruined Fonda's "The Trip" of a few years back. This film was awarded the "Best Picture by a New director Award" at this year's film festival in Cannes. But see it anyway. It is quite short, but is also profound. And a film doesn't have to be three and a half hours long to be profound; this one does very well in an hour and a half. "Easy Rider" will be at the Astor downtown for at least another week, so get down there and see it. Nothing is going on around here this weekend, anyway.

ANTI-WAR SENTIMENT ESCALATES...

1:00 P.M. at Independence Mall.

NOVEMBER 15, NATIONAL MARCH ON WASHINGTON TO BRING ALL THE TROOPS HOME NOW. This action was first launched at a national anti-war conference in Cleveland on July 4th and 5th. The New Mobilization Committee, a broad coalition was founded to build the action. Realistically, the November 15 march on Washington can be the most significant anti-war action ever held. Plans are in effect at colleges across the nation to bus students en masse to the march. Albright College is among these institutions; and plans are being made now to bus interested students. Other Albrightians are arranging to hitch or drive themselves. More information concerning transportation can be obtained from: Tom Evans, Box 397.

Proposed Curricular Improvements...

could create difficulties for those students wishing to pursue graduate education. This could easily be rectified by more extensive faculty recommendations on the present pre-professional model.

4. Extended Interdepartmental Courses and Majors

We feel that interdisciplinary courses promote the understanding that knowledge is not divisible but is rather unified across departmental lines. Introduction of new interdepartmental majors could increase the variety of major fields offered by the college without requiring increased faculty or formation of new departments. A special need exists for cooperation between the English and history departments to provide courses illustrating the historical perspective of literary works and the influence of literature upon history. The possibility of a liberal arts major is also worthy of consideration.

5. Change in Testing Procedures

We believe that testing should serve as a learning experience and not solely as a means of grading the student. Tests during the semester could be given not for grades but for student self-evaluation. Immediate discussion of such tests could help students pinpoint their weaknesses and understand their errors. A challenging final system in which students could take their final examinations whenever they felt adequately prepared should be considered.

6. Advanced Placement with Credit

We feel that requiring students to study material in which they are already proficient is wasteful and suffocates creative interest. To avoid this harm the college should grant advanced placement to students who demonstrate proficiency. Advanced placement with credit could be based on either the advanced placement tests of the CEEB or on tests prepared by the departments. Credits obtained by advanced placement testing should not be counted against the 17½ credits allotted to the student per semester.

7. Elimination of Prerequisites

We feel that prerequisites should not be used to prevent the adequately prepared student from enrolling in any course but rather as advisory guidelines only. The approval of the faculty member involved should be the only requirement for enrollment in any course.

8. Establishment of Courses by Student Request

We believe that the college should encourage students and faculty members to extend their study into subject matter not included in any of the established college courses. In line with this principle, the college should consider granting credit for courses initiated by student request. Such a course would not become a permanent part of the curriculum but be temporarily established for a single year or semester by a group of students and a faculty member wishing to do work in a specific area.

We feel certain that, though many of these proposals would effect only a few students, institution of a number of these ideas could make a great change in the atmosphere of the college. No longer would students be required to look off the campus to local and national problems for meaningful involvement. Rather they could devote their energies to involvement in learning and gaining perspective through knowledge. Further the implementation of these academic changes would be highly conducive to the recruitment of the superior and imaginative student. Such students are sorely needed if Albright is to move into the forefront of small colleges.

CO-PRESIDENTS SPEAK TO THE FRESHMAN

The election of October 29th and events preceding and following it proved to me an important fact; that we as a class should go to any measures to maintain our unity.

Robert Spegal and I won the greatest percentage of votes cast. The margin was so narrow, that by right of order we should have had a run off election.

It was fortunate for us as a class that a run-off had not taken place. The problem that has been presented to me though, is to now find a way to re-establish the unity that was lost during the election.

It would be unrealistic for me to think that any one person, while receiving my percentage of the votes, could acquire the support of all those who voted for other candidates. I feel therefore that the most beneficial form of government for our class would be one of a co-operate type.

Bob and I, as winners of the highest vote percentages should, by necessity, work together as presidents of this class.

There are numerous advantages to this system. First, it is well suited to the character of this class. We are a class of insight, of interest, and of change. Under the system we are initiating, more can be accomplished than by any other form of government.

We should not be underestimated as a class. The freshmen student government is of more significance this year than ever before. We have need for the most effective leadership we can find.

This decision called for a great amount of consideration. I have done this because I feel it is best for our class. Please support this decision and the new form of government we are now under.

Sincerely,

Brian T. Compton
Co-President, Class of '73

Members of the class of '73:

During my campaign, I, as did the other candidates, stressed the importance of unity within the class. Via this unity, we will preserve the enthusiasm and spirit of the class for the years to come.

As Brian stated, the margin between both of our results was extremely small, less than 1%. A run-off election was in order, but a run-off would certainly not have attributed to the unity of the class. And, as the situation stood at the close of elections, the task of class unification was an almost impossible one for any single person. Therefore, after much careful deliberation, Brian and I decided that, with the interest of the class in mind, a co-operate form of class government would be most beneficial. This is an excellent way of demonstrating to the school that the class of '73 is going to be "The Class" at Albright College. With your support we can continue to hold this distinction.

I wish to thank Brian for the opportunity to serve the class as one of its co-presidents, and I look forward to a great year for the class of '73.

Sincerely,

Robert W. Spegal

verdict given to the brothers of ZOE. This leads to the question of the validity of the Board's decision.

The two pledges received a two week suspension from school and indefinite probation. When they appeared in court in Raleigh, North Carolina, they were charged with trespassing and had to pay a $50.00 fine. They received no sentence and have no police record for their actions.

In view of this court decision, we feel that we have been made the scapegoat by the Board on an issue that was mishandled and completely blown out of proportion. It is ironic that in an area of our nation which is known for its strict adherence to justice, these pledges received such a nominal punishment, while here in an atmosphere of so-called "Christian, liberal thought," Zoe was castigated to such an extreme degree.

The Judiciary Board has ruled that:

1. The Zeta House is to be closed for the remainder of the year.
2. The functions of the fraternity have been suspended.

The difference between the Board's decision and the actual consequences that we must face is obvious. The Zeta House will remain closed until Dean Weisogel feels it should be reopened. The fifteen brothers presently living there will have to find other quarters, and until that time, the House is closed to all outsiders including non-resident brothers. Furthermore, we cannot have any pledge class, any meetings, or any intramural teams - therefore no fraternity.

We appeal to you and your sense of justice, and we ask that this outrage not go unchallenged by the students and faculty of Albright College.

THE BROTHERS OF
ZETA OMEGA Upsilon

The Judiciary Board Statement:

"Because of the desire of THE ALBRIGHTIAN to present the entire issue, and because of the interest of the matter to the general campus, I feel I should respond to THE ALBRIGHTIAN's request for a statement.

It is understandable that the Zetas wish to present their views and interpretation of the situation, and I recognize their right to do so. It is extremely difficult to respond to such a statement since it is the policy of the Judiciary Board to protect the integrity and confidence of the people who appear before the board. The rationale of its members in reaching a decision is also a confidential matter.

I therefore feel it would be inappropriate for me to publicly discuss the specific aspects of the case. In my opinion, the Judiciary Board was in the best position to hear all the facts of the case, and made its decision consistent with the evidence presented.

In a situation such as this, where the Judiciary Board cannot respond directly, it must stand on its past record of having been an effective, impartial judge of all cases which have appeared before it, and will continue to do so in the future."
