May Day Festival Plans Changed

Annual Affair To Be Held Outdoors Sometime In May

May Queen Crowning Will Proceed
As In Past Years

It has often been said that "it is a woman's right to change her mind". This week that fact has become very evident with a reversal of policy by the committee on May Day. The previously announced plan of crowning the May queen at the senior-junior ball has been cancelled and plans are going ahead to celebrate this annual festivity in the manner in which it was done in the past years.

The annual affair consists of a pageant and dancing sponsored by the physical education department and highlighted by the crowning of the May queen who is chosen by a vote of the entire student body. The names of the Queen and her court will be released in the near future.

The May Day festival date has not been set as yet, but the affair will be held sometime in May. The Queen and her attendants were elected in December.

Pi Gamma Mu Frat Initiates Pledges

Harry Buck
Presents Paper

Six new members were initiated to the Albright Chapter of Pi Gamma Mu at its last meeting. These members, qualifying for membership after having completed a designated number of hours in the field of social sciences and maintaining a high average and receiving a majority vote of approval from the active voting membership of the honor society, included Mary Jane Ward, Arthur McKay, Walter Greth, Earle Stetler, William Hostetter, and Robert Mattson.

After the ceremony, which was attended by faculty members, Miss Esther Fenili, Dr. Milton Geil, Dr. Hamilton, and Prof. Henry Buckwalter, refreshments were served by Esther Gingrich and Verna Fye. The meeting was highlighted by an original paper by Harry Buck dealing with the Philosophy of Defense Savings Stamps are now on sale at the Treasurer's office. Students are urged to buy as many stamps as they can possibly afford, to help our war effort. "Let's build defense against Axisents".

Chemists, Biologists Hear Research Head

Learn Antitoxic Values Of Proper Dieting

Dr. Marvin R. Thompson, Director of the Warner Institute of Therapeutic Research, an institution founded to further pure research, spoke to the combined meeting of the Reading Chemists Club, the Alchemists, and the Skull and Bones Society last Tuesday evening. Dr. Thompson's topic was "Changing Trends in Medicinal Agents".

Dr. Thompson traced the development of medicinal agents from the time of Hippocrates up to modern times. The era between the times of Hippocrates and the 19th century was said to be an era of trial and error. With the dawn of the 19th century, the germ theory found its growth and it was not until the 20th century that chemistry was applied to foods.

Dr. Thompson stated that if the masses of people would apply the knowledge of nutrition known to science today the average life span of humans could reasonably be expected to reach 100 years.

Today 48 percent of human deaths are caused by cardiovascular renal diseases. Dr. Thompson believes that the scientific evidence points to the fact that these diseases are due to nutritional diseases. Proper habits of eating will increase the human life span.

Dr. Thompson presented evidence from numerous experiments on hundreds of rats and rabbits to show that foods have a far greater value than that of merely supplying heat units or calories for our body. Foods, in addition to supplying calories, act as a detoxicant for the poisons in our body. A deficiency in our proper nutrition leads to a building up of toxins in our body resulting in disease in the organism.

Unity Committee To Sponsor Movies

A series of movies of various countries will be shown by the Committee on American Unity of our Civilian Defense. These pictures were arranged in order to acquaint the students with facts about these countries and to take away unbiased feelings.

The first movie will be held on Friday, February 27, in the chapel at 10 o'clock, when Professor Buckwalter will show his pictures of Mexico.

On March 9 and 10, a lecture on Typical American Life will be shown and a few weeks later there will be a lecture on Russia.

Professor Buckwalter is the faculty advisor of the committee, and Mildred Ruebsamen, chairman.

To Speak March 5 In College Chapel On 'New Frontiers'

A personality of world renown, Dr. Vilhjalmur Stefansson, will be on campus Thursday, March 5 to speak on "New Frontiers in War and Peace." Dr. Stefansson, who will be the last of the speakers in the Albright Cultural Program Series, has recently returned from the Arctic where, for two months, he surveyed flying conditions and climatic factors affecting the defense of Alaska and the Arctic regions. He has been for many years an advisor to the federal government on U. S. defense plans for Alaska and other northern regions and an advocate for the inclusion of Iceland, Greenland, and Alaska in plans for Western Hemisphere defense.

Dr. Stefansson was born in Manitoba, Canada the son of Icelandic parents. While he was still a child, he moved to North Dakota. He entered the University of North Dakota when he was 18 but transferred to the University of Iowa and then to Harvard University. In 1906, he made his first trip to the Arctic. He has totaled some thirteen years in Arctic explorations and has discovered more than 100,000 square miles in that region as a result of that and subsequent trips.

Today, Dr. Stefansson is regarded as one of the greatest living authorities on the Arctic. He has been honored for his exploration by learned societies in many countries and has received honorary degrees from six universities.

Senior Women Lead All Campus Groups On First-Semester Dean's List

Phi Beta Mu retains first place among sororities and fraternities. On the basis of the group ratings just released by Dean Walton, the women of the senior class, with a rating of 2.28, have scored the highest first-semester rating made by any class group since the academic year 1936-37. By maintaining ratings of "B+" or above, 33 seniors, 14 juniors, 18 sophomores, and 24 freshmen earned "Dean's List" honors for the first semester. All seniors and juniors on this list have won the privilege of voluntary class attendance for the second semester.

While 89 students were earning ratings which merit recognition on the semester honor lists, 4 juniors, 6 sophomores, and 17 freshmen fell so far below the academic quality requirement of "C" that they were placed on academic probation for the current semester.

Thus while 27 students have been placed on "cut probation," which accompanies academic probation, 47 seniors and juniors have won "Free-cut" privileges for the semester.

TOMORROW MAY BE TOO LATE

Why Cut It Out?

The time has come to gripe. We believe that no one can say that the Albrightian is not willing to do something for defense, but here is an item that we think needs immediate attention.

We didn't utter a word when the administration decided to curtail the school's program. We agreed that dances should be cut and telescoped—there was a reason for that. We were pleasantly surprised when it was announced that the May Day would be indoors so as to eliminate great expense and valuable time. This was surely the ultimate in sacrifice on the part of the campus coeds.

The committee on the junior-senior ball voted to eliminate corsages at their affair and contribute to defense instead. Some of the coeds kicked about this, but for the most the comments were favorable—the women decided that, even though flowers have a very significant meaning, they could do this little bit for their country.

Now here comes the rub. There has been a reversal in the May Day plans—it will be held outdoors anyway. Why the change we don't know, but we don't like it.

This isn't the point we wish to stress, however. What we can't understand is why the Mothers' Weekend was eliminated. This was the only chance that the daystudents had to entertain their mothers. But we are not kicking because the daystudents lost this day; we see no reason whatsoever for this curtailment, seeing no tremendous expense involved.

The issue has been advanced that the college has no facilities to take care of the mothers overnight. This may be so, but it still doesn't mean anything. How many mothers of boarding students attended this affair last year? Very few, indeed! The affair was backed to the hilt by the daystudents. Their rooms were packed with visiting mothers. If the facilities are not available for overnight visits, then make it a Mothers' Weekend for daystudent mothers.—Harold M. Werner.

MY DAZE

Tidbits from the Library
(extracted from the waste paper basket)

During a recent archeological venture in the library, I was able to reconstruct a section of society once existent in these "ivy-clad walls".

Working my way through two card indexes and stumbling through cases containing ancient documents in Pennsylvania Dutch hieroglyphics, I finally came upon it—that "storied urn of pleasures ever knew", the waste paper basket, surrounded by Readers Guides, scraps that missed, and Kathryn Muhs.

Right in the most prominent place was an empty box of chocolate snaps. I assumed this to be the typical students-in-the-midst-of-a-Biology-exam lunch, especially after I found pages and pages of circulatory systems, stimulated phagocytes, and ideal vertebrates filling almost half the basket.

Snuggled beneath these beautiful specimens of student life, was a crumbled ball of yellow paper which looked suspiciously like an ugly valentine. Upon opening it, I found some of the most revealing facts about art and poetry of the period.

Under the picture of a bespectacled and green-hatted male, carrying a portfolio, was the following ode:

You snoop the campus hunting news.

Your editorials drip.

Your readers usually are confused.

Your "type" just doesn't fit.

Your headlines are ambiguous.

Your puns and jokes aren't bitey and

Your style is not contiguous.

But You're the boss of the Albrightian.

Well, going on, I found those significant scraps of lives and loves—a "what cha doin' tonite"

note addressed to a Gretchen Bieber, and a Kappa open house invitation to Sally Weaver. There

"Could you call Bill Spangler at the Zeta House and tell him to come up to the office immediately?" "Would you keep calling that number until you get a ring instead of the busy signal?" "Long distance, please." "Could you give me some information on those defense courses Dr. Guire or Geel has charge of—or maybe the name was Gweel?" "There's a man who should be on your campus sometime this afternoon—at least he said he was going there. His name is Jones and I don't know whom he was going to see, but could you locate him for me?" "Oh, Albright College? Somebody called me from that number and didn't leave a name. Could you tell me who made the call?" "Would you call Railway Express and ask them to send the truck out for my laundry kit?" "Any special deliveries here for me?" "Did anybody find a pair of brown gloves and turn them in at the switchboard?" "Could you call a taxi for me?" "Long distance calling Marty Greenberg. The party calling thinks he might be in class, but can you get him for her?" "Miss Haupt? Well, I'm Mr. Brown of Balfour Co. I'd like to show"—Buzz—"Switchboard"—

Ah, but best of all is doing two jobs at once—operating the switchboard plus the mimeograph machine. Now understand just operating a switchboard becomes very monotonous or just running a mimeograph machine becomes most boring, but when doing the two at once you can't imagine the utter lack of boredom or monotony. In fact, sometimes you run through two or three sheets of paper before—buzz—the switchboard is calling. But when you almost have the inky stencil removed from the machine a little light is sure to flash. Inky stencil, you, and a buzzing switchboard mean less inky stencil, inky you, and an answered call.

Oh, for the life of a working girl—but, not a switchboard operator. But "scuse me, I hear that buzzing "Switchboard."

"Hello. I thought you were at the switchboard. Would you like to go to the movies tonight? This is the last night for the one that you wanted to see."

Mm, people know where to find a switchboard operator; they do have advantages at that!

Hungry Lion After Dutchmen

Advance any reason you want to about that Franklin and Marshall defeat last Saturday but we still think that the defending champs won that ball game with their well planned and finely executed defense.

Talking to two of the Dips after the game, we learned that Coach Shober Barr constructed a defense designed to stop the Lions high power offense. It did. According to the opinion of three of the Red and White players, the same thing happened at Lancaster earlier in the season. So maybe this talk about a jinx every time Albright meets the Diplomats on the court will be broken when the Lions find a way to crack the setup.

Don't give up hope, however, for rest assured your Lions will be in there battling the rest of the way for the crown. There's still a chance. Muhlenberg, still undefeated, has a tough road ahead. The Mules have five contests to play, four away from home, with Albright, F. & M., Gettysburg, and Bucknell furnishing the opposition. The reserved seat tickets for the Muhlenberg game on March 7 already are almost all sold. Hurry and get yours!

Big Johnny Durko has a wistful look in his eyes every time he gets near a basketball game. Johnny, who is a standout pivot man, used to earn some of those "green things with pictures of George on 'em" playing the professional game. Consequently, he is ineligible for varsity contests. "Turk" can't even play in the intra-mural league. The big boy however has some fun refereeing the games in the I. M. loop. He's doing a good job of it, too.

Have you seen Carlton Quinby limping about the campus? Quinby, who loves skiing visited his home at Chappaqua (you pronounce it), N. Y. last week where the snowdrifts are six feet high in May. C. Q. acquired the limp when after his 20th fall, his skiing pole pierced his knee. "Right into the patella," quoting Ray Hain.

Dick Major has been doing a fine piece of work as secretary of the intra-mural cage league. Dick drew up the schedule, a tough job, and has voluntarily assumed the responsibility of seeing that the balls are available for each contest. Last year many of the contests had to be cancelled because of the lack of a ball at game time. Major has eliminated this and deserves a lot of credit.

Girl Basketeers Cop Second Win As Moravian Yields, 22-19

Eleanor Platt Leads Scoring With 13 Points

The Albright girls basketball team brought home the bacon for the second time this year when they defeated Moravian 22-19. The game was played on Tuesday afternoon on the home floor of the Bethlehem girls. Albright led throughout the game, leading 10-6 at the end of the first half.

The combination of Shade, Platt, and Bomgardner worked well at the forward positions, until the third quarter when Elaine Shade was ejected on fouls. Her place was capably filled by Griswold, Laverty, and Muhs in that order. The guards upheld their end of the game, with honors going to Esther Whitehead and Kitty Geib, who is playing a very improved game this year. The four guards who played during the game drew only two fouls among themselves.

Leading scorer for the Red and White girls was Eleanor Platt with the lucky sum of thirteen points. Platt, who is playing her first year of varsity basketball, has consistently showed the way for her team. Erma Leinbach, a freshman addition to the varsity, intercepted many passes and shots intended for the pay dirt. High scorer for the Moravian girls was Madeline Keating with ten points.

Last week the Lady Lions beat Lebanon Valley 27-17. Tonight in the Thirteenth and Union Gym at 7:30, the Albright varsity will again tangle with L. V.

The Zetas and Kappas continued to lead the intra-mural basketball league as the race for the second half crown went into the second month of action. Both teams had little trouble in keeping their slates clean. The Zetas, first half champs, methodically took the A.P.O.'s into camp to the tune of 41-25.

The Kappas in swamping the Daymen 78-40 put everything through the net except the floor boards. Nick Schneider, with 23 markers was the high scorer for the winners. He was followed by Vic Gigli, 17 points, and consistent Paul Michaels, 18 points. The Daymen boast Tom Stoudt with 16 points, as their big scoring gun.

In the windup game, the Frosh defeated the Pi Taus 42-25 to break into the win column for the first time this half. Bob Bull and Jim Potteiger with 12 points each were the high scorers for the victorious Frosh. Art Deutsch led the Pi Taus at the net with 13 lucky markers.

Albright Still Out For Top Slot In E. P. C. Loop

Lion Frosh Look To L. V. For 9th Straight

Still in the running for the Eastern Penn Collegiate League championship, Albright's basketeers take on a weak Lebanon Valley quintet Saturday night at North-west, beginning at 8:30. The rival freshmen outfits tangle in the preliminary at 7:15.

The Lions will be rebounding after two straight losses suffered at the hands of Franklin and Marshall and Moravian. The F. & M. defeat was a heart-breaker with the Dips ace, Hal Mackin, sinking a foul shot in the final 30 seconds to enable the defending champs to win, 37-36. The Albrightians now will have to cop their remaining five loop tilts in order to oust Muhlenberg from the top rung. The Mules are unbeaten with a record of seven straight.

The Moravian downfall, a non-league fray, came on Monday at Bethlehem when the Greyhounds avenged a previous loss by eking out a 53-51 verdict over the Lions.

Albright rules the favorites to take the Flying Dutchmen from Annville on the basis of their win and loss cards. The proteges of Coach Mike Intriery occupy the cellar in the E. P. C. L. with one decision out of nine starts. The Dutchmen lone victory was at the expense of Ursinus, 39-36. The Lions have a loop record of five and two and are tied for second place with F. & M. and Gettysburg.

For Albright, Neal Harris will likely stand pat on his regular array of smooth Ken Hopkins, Chin Rhoads, Dick Shollenberger, Dewey Boltz, and big Bill Spangler. First line for relief duty are Sammy Gehl, Jim Kane, and George Uro-sevich.

The Annville passers will rely on the sharpshooting Captain Ralph Mease and George Smith at forwards, veteran Steve Kubisen at the center spot, and big Don Staley and Harry Matala in the back court. Mease, two seasons ago, copped the individual scoring title and is now well up among the leaders. Albright's Dick Shollenberger was the leader last year.

The Lions well balanced Frosh crew will attempt to stretch their winning streak to nine successive victories against the Blue and White yearlings. The Cubs haven't lost a tussle since dropping an overtime battle to the Ursinus Frosh, January 10.

Starting for the Lion Cubs will be Russ Guensch, Dick Stark, Jimmy Bunn, lanky Walt Hauser, and the hardworking Les Pushman.

Albright Debaters Talk This Week

Charles Miesse and Jacob Wagner participated in a debate on the labor question at Shoemakersville against Yeshiva College, Wednesday, February 18.

Verna Fye and Ethel Mae Yeakel discussed "Civil Liberties" in a forum at Ursinus College on Thursday.

Today there will be a debate on the question of regulation in labor unions with Seymour Mendelsohn and John W. Young, Jr., participating.

Senior Research

Do you ever sit back in an easy chair, and wonder if you'll ever amount to anything? Have you ever wondered if you'll be able to add anything, no matter how insignificant, to the sum total of human knowledge. Short stories and radio melodramas paint a glowing picture of scientists and their achievements, however after watching the work of senior science students, the silver lining of research becomes dulled by the constant routine of work and plenty of it.

With the coming of war and our present national emergency, the senior chemistry students are working on the problem of reclaiming tin from tin cans. This problem is of vital importance in our industrial production today. These seniors at present are trying electrolytic processes and reduction in their efforts to free the tin. We will follow the development of this problem with great interest and hope for successful result.

In the biology department, we find several of the senior students engaged in problems of their own choosing. Katharine Geib is working on the taxonomy of spiders, and I am informed that she has made some very excellent drawings of common arachnids.

Raymond Hain, who has been interested for a long time in cancer research, is working on the problem of cancer in the rat and guinea pig.

Irene Snyder has during the past months been working very industriously at the Reading Public Museum under Dr. Hornig, a nationally known entomologist. Irene's problem is taxonomy of the common forms of the Lepidoptera.

Three pre-medical students, John Nugent, Jim Breen, and Clem Boland are working on the haemoglobin of the rats, the spleen, and vitamin deficiency respectively.

These senior research problems are largely a matter of a great deal of work and very little glory. However, it is through such humble beginnings that new bits of Nazism. The paper provoked much discussion. The question arose as to whether the Nazi philosophy will die out with the defeat of the German army. Harry Buck settled the argument by stating that an idea of a people will exist as long as the people exist. Mr. Buck showed that Hitler's philosophy is fundamentally based upon the age old philosophy of Nietzsche . . . the will to power, although Hitler fails to recognize that fact.

Margaret Wolfe believed that the present war could have been averted had the "post-World War number one Germany" been aided a great deal more than she was. However, that does not take care of Italy and Germany . . . not to mention Russia. Dr. Geil and Dr. Hamilton gave their views on that point. Seymour Mendelsohn and Arthur McKay carried on their "Editorial-Battles". The discussion was reaching a critical point when
