Dean Cunliffe Resigns to Accept Similar Post at North Central

President Harry V. Masters has announced that The Albrightian that he has accepted the resignation of Dean Helen L. Cunliffe as Dean of Women in order that she may accept a similar position in the sister Evangelical college, North Central, in Naperville, Illinois.

Having initiated her career as Dean of Women at Albright in September, 1944, Dean Cunliffe wishes to express her gratitude to the college for making her experience here such that she wishes to continue in this field of work. Previous to her position here, she had taught social studies in two high schools and worked in the U.S.O. at Indiantown Gap.

Incorporation of Senate

Dean Cunliffe's work at Albright has resulted in the organization of the Women's Student Senate, not as a separate body on a co-educational campus, but as a part of the whole student body, with the purpose of making a meaningful contribution to the campus, for she feels that the problems in living concern both the men and the women of the college.

Respect for Albrightians

When interviewed, Dean Cunliffe stated that she has appreciated the support of The Albrightian in the women's work as a self-governing group in educational and in social relationships. In conclusion, she expressed her deep respect for the type of student attending Albright.

Chaperones for the evening were Rev. and Mrs. Eugene H. Barth, Professor and Mrs. Lloyd Stutzman, and Miss Ernestine Elder. Louise Trostle was in charge of arrangements.

Lessing Discussed By Delta Phi Alpha

The Beta Psi chapter of Delta Phi Alpha, national German fraternity, met last Thursday night in Selwyn Hall Parlor. The new members were inducted into the club by President Marian Fiedler in a candle-light ceremony. Then poems about spring, required as initiation by the new members, were read and approved. The following officers were elected for the new year: Walter Keller, president; Geraldine Wentzel, vice-president; Dorothy Seisler, secretary; and Henrietta Morrison, treasurer.

The program was conducted by Luther Brossman, who gave a talk on Lessing and his influence upon German literature, especially Goethe and Schiller. At a later meeting, members plan to trace German influence on English literature.

After the serving of refreshments, the meeting adjourned.

Upon graduation from Albright in 1948, Miss Weaver taught foreign languages at the Wyomissing Institute of Fine Arts. For the past two years she has done research work in Philadelphia as an Engineering Aid for Navy Aviation and Supply.

Attention Please

This week is Campus Clean-up Week. Everyone is expected to participate in this effort under the impetus of the freshman class to improve the appearance of our campus. After the business session, William Grubb, Val Kolton, and Betty Burnett read excerpts from term papers which they wrote for physiology. Miss Burnett addressed the group upon the function of anaesthesia.

Active chapter members met with the alumni at an earlier meeting on the campus for informal discussions. During the dinner, Master of Ceremonies Bob Reeser congratulated Gloria Landis and Frater Ralph Miller on their recent engagement.

Jack Kenny and his orchestra played for the dance in the Mirror Room. President Gerald Laucks and members extended a cordial welcome to newly-inducted fraternity members and to the many alumni attending the affair. Bracelets with the fraternity seal were given as favors to the ladies. Professor and Mrs. Donald S. Gates and Professor and Mrs. Newton S. Danford were chaperons. The dance ended with the singing of the fraternity song.

Committee chairmen in charge of the reunion were: Decorating, George Lamberson; Social, John Patrician; Executive, Warren Engle; Favors, Perry Mats; Tickets, Bob Holtzapple; Program, Bob Reeser; and Publicity, Bob Reed.

Who Is Narrow, Anyway?

Often, when we delve into those deep campus discussions about our philosophy and why things are the way they are and about people in general, the term, "narrow-minded," keeps wedging into the conversation. "He's narrow-minded." "Your opinions are narrow-minded." "That's a narrow-minded attitude." And on they go, everyone accusing all the others but without stopping to really think.

What is narrow-mindedness, anyway? Or, to look at the constructive side of the question, what is broad-mindedness? This latter term seems to imply that one's mind should be open to a wide sphere of life, that a person should know, understand, and value parts of each phase. A life which adheres to just one side at the expense of another can become warped.

You have often heard of the psychologists' theory of a balanced life—one with equal emphasis on work, play, religion, and emotion. To attain balance one must be broad-minded enough to include all of these. A person can be just as narrow-minded by constantly harping on one phase as on another.

Hell Week— For Better and for Worse

Last week ended fraternity initiations here on campus. Pledges henceforth may live as quiet, dignified, active-chapter members of their fraternities. But, oh that Hell Week! Students regarded pledges with amusement and with satisfaction that other people instead of them were running through the hazing. Citizens around town may have wondered how people could be made to perform the various requirements of frat pledges. Frat members rubbed their hands with glee. "Fine bunch of pledges!" The pledges themselves may have wondered how and why any group of human beings could be subjects to such "inhumanities", but no gripes could be aired—at least not audibly.

Now that initiations are over, the neophyte members suddenly realize that they really earned, the hard way, membership into a swell organization, their own fraternity. New members appreciate, only after Hell Week, the binding factor of what they went through for their organization. In fact, it instills a sense of respect between the members, new and old. And after the initiation is over, it does not look nearly so bad as when the pledges went through it. At least it will not be too hard for next year's pledges. Frat initiations have been standard procedure throughout the country for years gone by.

Since the Albright fraternities have not been able to secure their own houses, it has become increasingly difficult to maintain our fraternities in anything like a fitting manner. Hell Week, along with intramural sports, constitutes one of the chief binding factors within our fraternities. Hell Week is really not so bad, especially after it is over.

It's Spring Again

The campus at this time of the year is a spectacle of beauty to behold. Rushing between classes and meetings, we sometimes take this fact for granted. But comes evening, students notice the yellow daffodils in back of the Administration Building. In fact, students, usually in "groups" of two, especially in the evening, notice the fragrant odors of the blossoms, the stalwart white pillars accentuated by the well-kept green grass in front of both the Merner-Pfeiffer Science Hall and the Alumni Memorial Library, and the magnolias north of the Chapel. Yeah, you guessed it! Spring is in the air!

Mort Says

Clanghaven the Beautiful

Clanghaven College is a typical charitable liberal arts college, and Joe Crimp is just an ordinary G.I. student at Clanghaven, struggling along on his monthly subsistence check, which comes regularly when the politicians stop talking and start remembering and the Treasury doesn't run out of money. It is true, though, that Crimp never made the "Danky Lions" at Clanghaven nor won the Gold "C" for browning beyond the call of duty, but he did hold the cut card record last year and the pin ball tilting title at Pop Hoser's, which is some small claim to fame.

When Crimp entered Clanghaven, he thought that his money worries were finished, and they were—but not sooner than his money. Joe was not discouraged when his money ran out because he never held a grudge against anyone, not even the college treasurer, whom he regarded as a man after his own heart and ready to take it at any time. Nevertheless, Crimp never became discouraged because he knew deep inside of him that life could be beautiful at Clanghaven.

Money at Clanghaven wasn't everything, and it wasn't long before it wasn't anything to Crimp; but he had to admit that it went a long way and paid more fees than anyone ever thought possible. There was a room-reservation fee, a mail-box fee, a locker fee, an activity fee, a late registration fee, and just a plain registration fee. But no one could ever say that room and board were not kept at a minimum at Clanghaven. Rooms were beautifully decorated and often improved. For instance, such improvements as the adding of room-mates and the raising of rents were met enthusiastically by members of the administration. Nevertheless, Joe Crimp was never discouraged because he knew deep inside of him that life could be beautiful at Clanghaven, that is for a small carrying charge, of course.

In The Good Old Summer Time

Leave it to Albright's students to find a variety of interesting occupations for the summer recess. Here are a few of the more unusual ways by which some of the students hope to meet the rising costs of obtaining an education these days.

"Ra" Ravitz has a position as a counsellor at Camp Asodi, the day camp sponsored by the Jewish Community Center. Her duties include teaching arts and crafts, sponsoring sports and outdoor activities, telling stories, and generally guiding the recreation of boys and girls six and seven years of age. Nowing the "perpetual motion" quality of youngsters that age, it may well be expected that Ra will be kept stepping, but we're sure they will benefit greatly by her able leadership.

Jean Long recently expressed a desire to do playground work this summer, but after an enlightening chat with former leaders Betty Sarge and Carolyn Powers, Jean isn't so sure. It seems that Betty and Carolyn advised her to keep a baseball bat handy (for reasons best known to former playground leaders), never turn her back, and be impervious to irate parents of children who have taken offense at her gentle admonitions.

We know of many girls who are migrating to the shore to act as waitresses, but we have now heard of a new type of position. Adele Boothroyd will soon be Jersey bound as a "salad-tosser" and Mac McKittrick will be a "pastry-maker." The girls affiliated with hotels and restaurants will do exactly what their titles indicate—toss salads and make pastries. We are sure that their efforts will be more than a credit to

How It All Began

Hell Week

Once upon a time, there were four great frats in the world, the Zetas, Kappas, Pi Taus, and APO's. Of course, there were a few other minor organizations, but they didn't amount to much.

Being such prominent groups, these frats excited the envy of all, and membership was sought after avidly. In fact, even the devil himself got to hear of these frats and decided he wanted to join one of them.

Well, when the frats got wind of the humor of His Satanic Majesty was interested in joining up, they were indeed bewildered. One frat (the Zetas, it is believed) declared that they had plenty of characters in their gang, but they were still a little wary of admitting Beelzebub. The other frats were just as puzzled, although the APO's thought the old boy might be quite an asset.

While they were debating the problem, a messenger from the lower regions arrived with a message from Chief Satan. When the smoke and smell of brimstone had died away, the frats found that His Highness had made them a proposition—he would take their pledges and see that they got a thorough initiation into the frats if one of the frats would admit him to membership. The frats, eager to give their neophytes the best indoctrination available, decided to accept and accordingly placed that year's group of pledges in the hands of the devil.

They lined up their trembling pledges, and, as a group of fiery satyrs conducted them to the lower regions, wished them well and bade them have courage. But something went wrong. Evidently the pledges were too soft to stand the gaff, for, alas and alack, not one of them returned.

This relieved the frats of the problem of admitting the devil to their midst, but they rather mourned the loss of their pledges. Finally they decided that in honor of these martyrs they would institute a week of rigorous initiation with torments reminiscent of those Satan must have inflicted—but much easier, you understand. This week would be known forever after as "Hell Week."

Perhaps this explains some of the queer sights you saw on campus last week. Wednesday brought so many odd sights that a nearby carnival offered to put the pledges on its super-duper girls' show. The nameless burlap bags and stove-pipe heads were the Kappas, who obligingly announced the time between classes every minute on the minute. The Pi Taus wore all baseball players—or couldn't you tell? The APO's, in white knickers, black silk stockings (the seams of which were never straight), and dashing chapeaux, were little boys—actions and all. The Zetas really looked sharp, however, with ice-cream trousers, black coats, straw hats, and canes. They really gave Albright a tone.

Wednesday night, the pledges repaired to Penn Square, where they put on a show for the benefit of the town. Street signs were dusted, pedestrians' clothing brushed and shoes shined in a "Keep Your City Clean Campaign." We would like you readers to know that even old Albrightians are worth money, for Willy Marlow made 75c selling back issues to indulgent buyers. While John Dohner nonchalantly fished in

NOTED ON THE RUN

1. Why do profs dish out assignments as though there were no other courses to be studied? . . . 2. Squirrels on Albright Campus are probably far more intelligent than the average squirrel. . . . 3. Future enrollment at Albright: last Sunday two bonnetted little ladies, height 80 inches, aged 2 and 3, with their Poppa were sizing up the prospects of enrolling at Albright. . . . 4. There are 228 walking steps between the west door of the Science Hall and Pop Moser's. . . . 5. Bill Bollinger has a wonderful singing voice—but he could put Frankie out of business.

Home Ec Omelet

The semester is nearly over, and we have begun to realize that the summer vacation is near at hand. With these thoughts we have become aware of the fact that the seniors will not be with us much longer. Last night we had a farewell party for these pals. All "Heo'ers" gathered in Hampton Park at 6:00 to enjoy a buffet luncheon, which was planned by Mrs. Smith, assisted by Marian Gerberich. The junior meal-planning group again had an opportunity to display its cooking ability. Doris Hicks had some fun and games planned for the group.

You may notice numerous empty seats in the dining hall these next two weeks. It's those juniors that are missing again. They are now eating all their meals in the foods lab as a part of a term project.

There are going to be some changes made on campus this summer, and the home ec department has had an early start on theirs. The demonstration kitchen in the foods lab is well under way. When we return in the fall, we will find a completely and newly-outfitted unit kitchen including a brand new stove, refrigerator, and Laundry-mat. The painters have been busy refinishing the interior of Sherman Cottage. Our department will soon be ready to greet the new semester and the fine group of Freshmen, which, we have been told, will be with us next year.

the sewer, Ozzie Kriebel measured the square between Fifth and Sixth Streets with a frankfurter. (Did you say 1,275,000 links, Ozzie?)

Thursday was written down in the annals of the pledges as a day to be forgotten as soon as possible. Festivities began for two of the frats with a banquet. The Zetas feted their pledges with an egg dinner, topped with cigars for dessert. The Kappas started off with stogies, followed by caviar, raw scallops, and herring with limburger sauce. These meals were doubly enjoyed—once down and once up.

Now, what could be nicer after dinner but a nice, long walk! That's exactly what the pledges thought, so they took one.

The Zetas took their pledges some thirty miles out into the wilds and told them to find their own way back. Imagine Joe Lauck's surprise when he walked into a group of pledges who had arrived back before he did! Some of the Zeta neophytes weren't so fortunate, however, and it is rumored that pledge Mort plans to do some reforming within the frat.

The Pi Taus had an elaborate note hunt planned by that mastermind of strategy, Bob Deach. After strolling through Berks County, digging up notes that were buried in the woods, suspended from the rafters of a barn, and floating in the middle of a stream, the pledges, worn and weary, returned just in time for Friday's classes.

The APO pledges are still congratulating themselves on the fast one they pulled. Instead of walking to the airport, the tower, and points west, they waited until the frat men had gone home, dug up their little, hidden automobile, and hunted in style.

The Kappa pledges, after a refreshing dip in Selwyn Lake, were taken for such a long ride that several of them had to hop a freight train to get back.

LIONS VOTE FOR TOP ATHLETE THURSDAY

APO's Slip as Softball League Tightens

Fightin' Daymen Blast APO's, 9-6; Kappas, Pi Taus Surge Forward

Despite last week's bad weather offensive, which featured rain and November temperatures, the intramural softball league race ripped along all the hotter. The "immortal" Kappas shook their rained-out jinx and managed to reel off three games before the week's hostilities ended. And the fading A.P.O.'s, who lost one game and barely sneaked through in another, clung like drowning men to a slim half-game lead over the surging Kappas and Pi Taus. The brightest star in the intramural galaxy was the brilliant Dave Matthews, Daymen pitching find, who silenced the A.P.O. bats.

Pi Taus Bow to Kappas

The snappy Pi Tau aggregation opened up the horseshide warfare by lacing the dangerous Zetas, 5-2. Lefty Bruce Reber was brilliant as he allowed only six hits in coasting to win No. 2. Bob Boland was on the hill for the Zetas, but couldn't silence the Pi Tau artillery.

The following afternoon the A.P.O.'s padded their lead by accepting a forfeit from the Dorm squad. The A.P.O.'s never looked better as they cruised to a 9-0 win!

And that same evening the Kappas unlimbered their brown bats to nudge the Pi Taus, 7-3. An unfortunate first inning gap in the Red and Black defense cost Lefty Bruce Reber his first setback. The Kappas, led by the steady flipping of Mike Rudzinski, bore down from here on in and staved off a heroic last inning rally by the Pi Taus.

Zetas Conquer Kappas

Last Thursday the Kappas hooked up in a twin bill. In the afternoon game the big boys pounded the Daymen 18-0 behind the air-tight flaying of Mike Rudzinski. However, in the second game played at twilight, the Zetas edged the Kappas, 6-4. Joe Reeves, twirling for the Zetas, was superb as the Kappa klouters out away at the ozone. Reeves' teammates, Elmo Davis, John Patrician, and Red Lamberson, bumped in the runs to give Mike Rudzinski his initial lumps.

A.P.O.'s Meet Waterloo

The brilliant Daymen, ably coached by Robert Moser, pulled off off the greatest comeback of the campaign with their brilliant spurt against the faltering A.P.O.'s. With Dave Matthews in the box, the Daymen forced the hard-pressed frat boys to go two extra innings before losing out 4-3 on a questionable decision.

However the Daymen drew sweet revenge the next day as Dave Matthews, brilliant new flinger, avenged his previous setback and throttled the anemic A.P.O. bats to gain a brilliant 9-6 victory. This loss virtually threw the league wide open once more and according to the latest betting figures released by Pinocchio Commissioner Paul Ruth, the A.P.O.'s went down 50%.

The Pi Taus took advantage of the A.P.O. setback to move within half a game of first place as they swept the Zeta series by winning, 9-3. Bill Miller went the route with his "nothing ball" for the Pi Taus. Joe Reeves, the Kappa conqueror, lost this fracas for the Zetas.

Well, fans, that sums up the softball dope for the week. The rivalry was keen—even rough in spots—as all clubs fought to the bitter end. But for one brief hour—when the all-stars ganged together to bump Moser's mummies—there was peace.

Male Stinkers Bump Mosser's "Mams" 4-1; Tab Third Skunk Win

Playing under frigid weather conditions, the male bruisers demonstrated that there is still a weaker sex at Albright and that they're not it! It was Skunk Day last Friday afternoon and for the third straight time since the inaugural back in 1945 the lads emerged triumphant. This time it was far closer than the usual and although the fellows collected 4 runs, they tallied only 4 safe hits and none out of the infield. That they checked in with this quartet was largely due to personality, charm and shrewdness. (The fact that Prof Hollenbach was kibitzing against the girls within the safe confines of the bugology lab was a prime factor also!)

In bowing to the fellows the gals collected six good hits—one a double by Jumping Jeanie Borgstrom which enabled the femmes to dent the dish. It was a tough loss for righthander Jean Schwartz who did a fine job on the mound. Timidity in the field cost the gals the ball game.

Bruisers Break Ice

Both sides went down in the first although the honor of getting the game's first safety went to jarring John Patrician. However his mates left him stranded as they couldn't seem to handle the righthand slants of Jeanie Schwartz. Bill Hutchinson, toting the slab for the all stars, was equally merciless in the opener as he forced Marge Lyman to hit into a double play after allowing a single by Miss Johnson.

However the fellows came through in the mighty second when they tallied their initial chalk. Lynn Brown parked a single through the infield and scored from second on Elmo Davis' base on error blow.

Large Crowd Observes

From here on it was a pitchers' battle for two and a half frames. The gallery which was jammed with various onlookers—peasants, forlorn looking big majors, Pi Taus, and stray pledges of the various frats and sororities, were vociferous in their cheers. Poor Prof Khouri was the target of many a verbal outburst as he endeavored to call the balls and strikes with some degree of honesty. Coach Harris, reeling the bases, got in for his share of the abuse and halted the game a few seconds to clear away the storm of pop bottles, furnished by Gene Pierce's book store for artillery.

All Stars Get Break

But the big break came in the fifth when the fellas sent two counters over the plate. Shorty Potts dumped a single and scored on Bruce Reber's roller which the femme infield muffed up. George Urosevich, in some manner, got on base and George Morfogen, proving his intelligence was not lacking, dispatched Robert Moser to run for George. Although the strategy was not needed, it was there and the fellows picked up their two tallies. The gals roared back on Jean Borgstrom's double and Faye Sheetz's sacrifice. But this was all the guys would allow as they proved the superiority of brains and brawn over charm.

Co-captains Morfogen and Kachline, commenting to the press after the game, were happy. "It was a great team," bellowed George Morfogen. "However it was necessary to fine Elmo Davis and John Patrician for missing signals. Also Hutchinson failed to walk Phil Bach at a crucial point—he gets a fine."

As for Pinocchio Commissioner Paul Ruth, he could only add, "Who were those crooked refs out there on that field?"

One of our younger pros in an informal "before the bell" chat suggested that a faculty softball team be formed to tussle with one of our frat outfits. It's really not a bad idea—sounds like it could really be a hit!

There was a young woman, a Sioux, As tempting as floss, noneydey. She displayed her cute knees. As she stroled past tepees, And the braves all hollered, "Wiuou-wiuou."

Then there was the moron who had a strike on his nose and had to picket.

Lions To Vote For Best Sportsman, Enthusiasm, Team Spirit Stressed

The selection of Albright's Most Valuable Athlete for the Adam Hat Trophy will be conducted at an all college election in the administration building this Thursday. This will be the first time the students are to have the chance of voting their own favorite athlete. Since this is the first time, the election, with its results, will doubtless have a direct influence on like elections in the future. Let us start out on the right foot and make it a really sincere poll, putting our friends and buddies out of our minds

Lion Ballhawks Split Twin Bill With E-Town

Albright's horseshide wranglers, hounded by rain and cold weather all week, managed to work in a twin bill at Elizabethtown last Saturday. Playing under clear blue skies for a change, our big cats roared to a 5-1 win in the opener behind the three-hit flipping of Slug Oxenreider who chalked his third triumph against one setback. In the nightcap hard luck George Baumgaertel's jinx caught up with him as the boys took a nose dive to bow, 2-0. The clean split puts our season clubbing record to 5 wins and 4 defeats.

Mook Blasts Three for Four

Mook Guss, stalwart receiver, was the big boy for the Lions as he lashed out three hits in four trips to aid "Ox." Mook's fourth-inning two-bagger scored Del p, and the big backstop's single in the eighth started a two-run uprising which clinched the fracas for the Red and White. Oxenreider also chipped in with a blow, a booming ninth-inning double, which scored Em Glass. Ox rode home on Stev Beyerle's two-base knock. The helpless Lizzies tallied their lone counter in the last of the ninth when they forced in a run.

Baumgaertel Pitches One-Hitter

In the nightcap our Lions failed to make use of seven hits which the E-town flipper kept well spaced. George Baumgaertel pitched one-hit ball in bowing for the third time. Four walks and an error proved to be George's downfall.

for the moment, and try to be fair to all. We would not like to have an athlete voted in because he is a swell dresser, or a giant dancer and other like reasons. Make the man who receives the Adam Trophy at the banquet next year display the standards of sportsmanship, team spirit, and enthusiasm which are laid down on the ballot.

Lions in Good Company

Coach Harris, in securing this trophy for Albright's top player, is adding another notch in his bid to put Albright on the sports map. We are one of 400 top-flight colleges and universities who will be conducting similar polls to determine their best sportsman. They, like us, will be endeavoring to pull for a really sincere election. Let us make sure that "alma mammy" Albright doesn't stand shy on this score!

Take every sport into consideration and try and find who was the sparkplug in the majority of cases. That will be the man we want to get the golden boy from Jack Dempsey. And remember the "sparkplug" doesn't always can the most deuces or thrill the crowd with long runs and the like. And don't turn thumbs down on any sport merely because it turned out to be a poor season.

May the Best Man Win

The old sports phrase "May the best man win" may be quite hackneyed in its use, but this is one time we couldn't do without it. And remember the old phrase—"It matters not whether he won or lost, but how he played the game."

Golfers Score Three Straight Triumphs

Taking their cue (not a Cue) from Albright's rampaging tennis crew, Coach Paul Matten's golfers continued their winning streak by tabbing a close victory over Ursinus College, 14½ to 12½, at the Reading Country Club. The Red and White linksmen had previously dropped their opener with Bucknell, preceding their initial triumph over West Chester State Teachers College.

In registering win number two, the Lion's stalwarts, Johnny Yocum, Howie Dunitz, and Allen Funk, also continued along the victory bride path. Dunitz was especially successful in downing Good, the visiting star, 2-1.

And last Tuesday at the Reading Country Club, the Lion putters made it three straight by bumping Scranton by a close score. The victory gives our cat clubbers a 3 win and 1 loss record.

Council Says:

Dave Voigt, chairman of committee on awards for men's intramural sports, reported that through Coach Harris' taking up the matter with Dr. Masters, funds for awards have been approved by the Administration. Beginning next year winning teams have an option on either a loving cup for the team or bronze medals for individual members of the team.

In the absence of a representative from the "Celebrities," who was scheduled to present the case of the band to Council, Mrs. Smith explained that an advisor, Prof Khouri, had been secured for the band. Mrs. Smith further elucidated that the band, as matters stand at present, will receive no academic credit.

The petition introduced into Council last week for the seniors' exemption from exams was received along with the approval of Council by the faculty. A letter from the Administration to Council revealed that the acceptance of this action is inadvisable for this present semester. However, the matter has been referred to a committee in standing for consideration for next year.

Frank Bird recommended for the freshman class that the matter of the Administration securing waste containers be further investigated. President Wall appointed Kenneth Good to take up the matter with Dr. Masters.

Absent from the meeting were Hops Guldin, Sophomore president; Paul Ruth and Robert Moser, Daymen; Heber Yeagley, Pi Tau's; Ruth Homan, Mu's; Warren Engle, Vet's; Dean Smith, Prof. Barth, and Prof. Khouri of the faculty.

Students to Display Talents in Chapel

Professor Harding Talks On Nonsense Verse

Nomination of officers for the 1947-1948 school year was the main item of business at the meeting of the Sigma Tau Delta, national honorary English fraternity, held last Monday in the Lower Social Room. Marion Fiedler, president, announced that ballots for the election will be distributed to the members within the next week.

Professor Clyde Harding gave a talk on the different ways in which poets have treated various types of metrical plays, nonsense verse, parody, light verse, satire, and ironic poetry.

Pierce to Show Juniors Class Ring Samples

James Brush, president of the Junior Class, has announced that a class meeting will be held Thursday, May 22. At that time Mr. Pierce will show the class samples of the new college ring which is being considered, and a consensus of opinion will be taken. During this meeting the final plans for the Junior-Senior Prom will be made.

Spanish Club Inducts 39 Charter Members

Thirty-nine Spanish students were inducted into La Sociedad Cultural Espanola yesterday afternoon at a candlelight ceremony in the College Chapel. Professor Consuelo Rodriguez presided at the service and installed the newly elected officers of the group. Using the Spanish language during the entire ceremony, the students were questioned and then responded in Spanish.

Masters to Present Awards to Seniors

On Wednesday, May 21, at the junior and senior chapel, the annual presentation of senior awards for those graduates who have made contributions in the various departments and to the life of the college in general will take place. President Masters will preside, assisted by Kenneth Good.

Professor Danford, Registrar of the College, will be in charge of the chapel program, May 19. His topic will be announced at that time. A Hymn Sing will be conducted by Marjorie Christ during the chapel periods on May 20 and 22.

"Buck" Bachman, our radio impresario from the class of '48, is returning to his niche in the Berks County Hall of Fame, i. e., Himmelreich's Grove. Despite the inconvenience of the detour now being enforced in that section, the usual hordes will flock to gape and applaud the efforts of Mr. Bachman and his colleagues, Uncle Jack, Mary Lou, and the Minex Gang. Buck, who got his start with Uncle Jack several years ago, has gradually risen to fame as a "crying tenor" soloist and now receives an overabundance of fan mail from his female admirers. For an afternoon of rare musical entertainment, follow the crowds to Himmelreich's Grove, one mile west of Robesonia, and add your support to our own "Buck" Bachman.

Women's Glee Club Honors Mothers' Day

"To My Mother," a special selection in commemoration of Mothers' Day, was presented as part of a sacred concert by the Women's Glee Club last Sunday evening at Park Evangelical United Brethren Church. Marjorie Christ, student director, was in charge of the program.

Included in the concert were "Now Let All the Heavens Adore Thee," by Bach, "Lamb of God" by Bizet-Bliss, "Jesus, Jesus, Thou Art Mine," by Bach, "Ye Watchers and Ye Holy Ones," a Seventeenth Century German Melody, "See What Love Hath the Father," by Mendelssohn, "Beautiful Saviour," a Silesian Folk Song, and "Thanks Be to Thee," by Handel. Solos by Ethel Harris, Jeanne Schlegel, and Carolyn Powers were also included on the program. Jane Reynolds acted as pianist for the group.
