Dr. Albright Reviews History Of College

By reviewing Albright College's history from way back when, up to the present Dr. Raymond W. Albright, professor of church history and religious education in the School of Theology, brought to light several interesting facts during his talk in chapel Wednesday and Thursday—Charter Day celebration. Dr. Albright, a direct descendant of Jacob Albright, founder of the Evangelical Church and the man after whom Albright College was named, told students that the very chapel in which they were sitting once was a drill floor for Selwyn Hall Military Academy. And, that the library walls were once the walls of the stable housing the horses used at the acadamy.

He also read portions of old documents and programs remaining from functions connected with the college. One of them was a program of the commencement of the class of 1882, Schuylkill Seminary. The exercises were held in Emanuel Church, Reading, and included talks on "Bravery," by Dr. E. E. Stauffer, at present a trustee of the college, and on "Procrastination." by J. B. Esenwein. The program concluded with a quartet singing. "Take Me Back to Home and Mother."

Dr. Albright was introduced to the students by President Dr. Mastors who also introduced the four

Artist, Economist Opens Art Week

Frederick Roscher, artist extraordinary and economist avocationally, presented a lecture on campus Wednesday night, inaugurating the college's observance of National Art Week.

Roscher had on display five of his paintings. They were: portraits of the late Dr. Warren F. Teel, former president of the college; his son;
an unidentified man; and two nudes.
During his talk, the portrait painter of Landis Store said he likes nothing better than to talk above economics. He also said he has several pet theories along that hie which he'll expound to anyone willing to listen.

It's Dad's Day in name, but mothers won't be excluded from the father's day celebration on campus tomorrow.

And to keep the visiting paters from getting lost, they will be given white flowers to wear in the lapels of their coats. They will be entertained at an informal luncheon at noon. West Chester State Teachers College will bring a football team to the stadium to entertain the "pops." And a dinner in the dining hall at 6 p. m. will just about top the day's show.

The Y. M. C. A. will assist in distributing the flowers in the college Memorial Library up to noon. The library will also be the registration room for the visiting fathers. After noon, they will get the white decorations at the student gate of the stadium.

A special section of the stands will be reserved for fathers, mothers, sons, daughters, and other friends who want to sit together during the grid clash. Tickets can be bought by the students for fathers at the treasurer's office until 1 p. m. at $1 each. After that, the tickets will be on sale only at the stadium at regular prices.

Heos Celebrate Hallowe'en

The Heo Club held its bi-monthly meeting and Hallowe'en Party at Sherman Cottage on Thursday evening. After a business meeting conducted by Audrey Goodling, Mary Capallo displayed and demonstrated playground handicraft and offered some suggestions for Christmas gifts which can be made quite easily and inexpensively.

Notable among the things displayed were wooden bead purses, cork mats and coasters, rope chair seats and various kinds of belts. After the program refreshments were served. The menu and decorations were in keeping with the Hallowe'en season.

All Bright Observations

By ALFRED COMSTOCK

Dame summer has put up a stubborn fight this time! Nearly two weeks of October's bright blue weather masquerading as June Week, a temperature of over seventy degrees recorded just last Saturday, and until the past week remnants of the last rose of summer still disceivable in the little triangle. just outside the colonnade. Did I the last rose? You must been with my absent-mindedness! Four with my absent-mindedness! Four roses were found blooming 'neath the window of one of the fraternities, after Homecoming. However, chill autumn winds and rains have well nigh stripped the campus trees of foliage, and there is a tang to the air which is a forceful reminder that the long-lingering "Coach Dietz" summer is now definitely a thing of the past.

A near riot occurred outside the switchboard office, last Friday when the "Albrightian" put in its appearance. Many of the studen's mistook the publication for "The Reading Graphic."

J. Bennett Nolan tells us in his book, "The Foundation of the Town of Reading in Pennsylvania." that the manufacture of felt hats was the city's chief industry, for nearly one hundred years. The manufacture now, as any little boy or girl knows is hasiery. While the Chambers of Commerce would have us believe that Reading industry is "one the up and "ap," this downward trank in manufactured article would seem to indicate that Reading inclustry is "going to the dogs!"

Many students are still going around with wings on their hearts. And the Y. W. C. A. is wondering whether or not one of those persons has an extra $.65.

For that's the amount the "Y" needs to bring the total collection from last week's campaign up to an even $41.

But even without the $.65, the donations this year total about $10 more than in 1938.

According to "Y. W." officials, the special reward for donors is that they won't be hounded to buy a tag until next fall.

Seniors Rule Sherman Cottage

During the past week Sherman Cottage has come under management of a group of senior girls. Due to the large number of girls taking Home Economics, the house will be managed for two months by two different groups.

The first group started its work on Monday with Audrey Goodling as hostess, Mary Dunlap as house-keeper, Virginia Fessler as cook, and Evelyn Heller as nurse to Peter Samuel, the practice house baby for this year.

this year.

The second group consisting of Mary Capallo, Margaret Keller, Elva Weaver and June Yocum will take over the management of the house December 1, and will continue until final examinations. This final experiment culminates a period of three years of study in foods, home management, and child care, and is a forerunner for practice teaching.

LIONS, CUBS vs. WEST CHES

The Lions Den

It appears that the Albright Lions have at last hit their stride. Against team that was given an even chance of defeating them, the felran wild to register four chance of deteating them, the follows ran wild to register four touchdowns and two extra points and also looked on the defense, as they did two years ago. Tomorrow, when they face West Chester State Teachers, they'll be trying to ring up a .660 percentage.

The West Chester-Albright scrap is usually good for a few laughs. The Albright fans and Glenn Killinger, West Chester's coach, never seem to get along and Glenn usually makes the mistake of shouting back at the fans when they razz him. This always leads to an avalanche of boos and jeers which the spectators give in a spirit of fun, but which Coach Killinger always seems to resent. Perhaps it won't happen this year; but if it doesn't, it will not seem like a typical Albright-West Chester tussle. Don't forget, though, Killinger is really a nice fellow when you get to know him.

nice fellow when you get to know him.

Well, the frosh footballers took it on the chin last Friday at Muhlenberg; but from all reports, after the first quarter, the game was all Albright. The Cubs will be fighting for their first victory tomorrow at West Chester so perhaps it will be a double win for the Red and White. Incidentally, the frosh will be getting a taste of night football early in their careers as college football players since this contest will be a night game played on the brilliantly lighted West Chester field. Those of you who are able, why not make Saturday a full day by watching the varsity play in the afternon and the frosh cavort at night.

Varsity Out For Third Straight Win Of Season; Frosh Tangle Under Arcs

Dietz to Start Same Squad As Last Week

The Albright Lions will attempt win their third successive game of the current season when they meet West Chester State Teachers College, Saturday, at home, in the fifth game of a seven-year-old rivalry.

The Purple and Gold, coached by Glen Killinger, return to Albright's schedule this year for the first time since 1936. The Teacher elevens ave always provided plenty of color and tough oppositon for the Reading Collegians, the last two fames having been decided by the soint after touchdown. Not only is the Deitzmen's winning streak at stake but also the series leadership. Each team won two out of the four previous contests.

The series record: 1932 Albright 38 West Chester 2 1933 Albright 6 West Chester 6 1935 Albright 6 West Chester 7 1936 Albright 7 West Chester 6

Another fine running back is Harry Umstead, who showed plenty of possibility in last Friday's game. The last mentioned end, Ray Farley, extends six-foot, seven inches from the ground.
