DR. OBERLAENDER PRESENTS HITLER LECTURE IN CHAPEL

Archeologist Presents Interesting Sidelight on Popular Subject

"Germany will not always be ruled by a dictator," said Dr. Gustav Oberlaender, lecturing on Hitler before Albright students in the college chapel, Tuesday morning.

Dr. Oberlaender, lecturer, archeologist, and world traveler, had the honor of visiting Chancellor Hitler in his home during the summer of 1933. Because of this contact with the springs of action in Germany and his intimate relationships with the German people while abroad, Mr. Oberlaender was able to give a clear and distinct picture of conditions in Germany out of his own personal experience.

"Hitler's rise to power was largely due to nothing but luck. The party in power prior to the present regime seemed to fall short of the desires of the German populace, giving an opportunity for someone to propose a new form of government. This man was Hitler. The brown uniform was adopted by his followers, and the movement grew. When, finally, he came into a position of power, conditions began to improve. The people attributed this good fortune to him and gave him their support."

"Hitler," said Dr. Oberlaender, "is carrying out a strict program as a dictator, aiming at a goal which he will attain in one way or another. He is set in his stand against the Jews and remains firm in his belief that sterilization must be practiced to obtain a purity of race."

Albright Representatives Report on Annual Conference at Buck Hill Falls

Two representatives from Albright College, namely, Otho Hoofnagle and Paul Fye, attended the Annual Student Conference at Buck Hill Falls, March 2nd-4th. This conference brings together students, graduates and faculty members from the various colleges, universities and graduate schools of the middle Atlantic States for informal discussion of the relation of religion to the problem confronted by students.

The central theme of the Conference this year was "The Christian's Answer to World Chaos." The thought and discussion were ably handled by such competent leaders as Lyn Harold Houghs, Luther Tucker, Brewster Bingham, Coleman Jennings and Francis Miller.

The Method of Panel discussion, in which the leaders conduct a discussion group among themselves before the entire assembly, was used extensively during the conference. Such a method tends to provoke a stimulating and constant interchange of thought by the leaders.

The Consultative Committee of the Conference resolved to forward the Christian Student Movement in an entity, with the Y. W. C. A. and R. M. C. A. as constituent parts. Students who had anticipated winter sports at Buck Hill Falls were sadly disappointed by the sudden change in climatic conditions.

The early summer conference will be held at Eagle's Mere and will be a co-educational venture.

J. M. Kelchner, New Grid Mentor, Outlines New Policy for College Athletic Program

Head Football Coach Jay Martin Kelchner, in a personal interview with an Albrightian sports writer, outlined the policy which he would adopt in connection with our athletic program. His ultimate desire is to "interest every student to enter some form of athletic activity." In his appeal to students to take advantage of the spring football training conducted on our campus this year, he urged every male student to consider participation in the gridiron sport. He announced that football equipment would be issued this Saturday to all those turning out for the spring practice.

The new grid mentor voiced his slogan for Albright in the following manner. "Recreation and exercise for every student in the form of competitive games." He emphasized the importance of this slogan in that it would tend to develop interest and spirit which would be carried over to our alumni days.

The rudiments of football will be taught at the spring practice so that those students who do not understand the game thoroughly will be given a chance to learn it. Kelchner hopes that he will be able to find among the student body some material to take the place of those who are graduating. He desires that the student body, alumni, faculty, will endeavor to create the proper spirit within our college that will be the foundation of a winning team. He plans to revive the ancient feud of the Freshman and Sophomores in their annual football game which has been absent the past two years. He is planning to have a Junior Varsity and a lightweight team. He stated that Albright would have a Freshman team next year and that he would use this in the future to develop his material.

The new football coach announced that a trophy would be awarded to the student who shows the greatest ability during the spring training. This trophy will be perpetuated and the student's name will be engraved upon it and it will be placed in the trophy case. The awarding of the trophy will be based on the following events: punting, for distance and accuracy; forward passing, accuracy; sprinting, 60 yards for linemen and 100 yards for backs; blocking and tackling. The point system will be used in awarding the trophy.

Fellowship Banquet

On Monday evening, March 19, at 5:30 o'clock, a Fellowship Dinner will be held in the college dining hall. Dr. Clyde A. Lynch, the president of Lebanon Valley College, will be the speaker. An interesting program is being arranged for the evening. The price of the meal for non-boarding students and faculty will be 50 cents.

STUDENT COUNCIL GRANTS CHARTER TOWAITER'S CLUB

A new organization, whose aim and purpose is to provide better co-operation between the boarding students, waiters, and the chef, has been approved by the Student Council and the administration. The newly formed organization is to be known as the Waiters' Club of Albright College. It was organized also to provide a means for the members of the dining hall force to become intimately acquainted with one another.

C. D. Becker, of Lebanon, Named New Chairman of College Athletic Council

PROF. REXFORD HERSHEY IS WED. CHAPEL SPEAKER

Professor Rexford B. Hershey, of the Department of Industry at the University of Pennsylvania, was the speaker in chapel on Wednesday morning, March 7. Professor Evans presented the speaker who discussed the outlook for the youth in Germany. Professor Hershey has but recently returned from Germany where he made a psychological study of the German working people.

He told of the conditions which led to the revolution. Before the war, university graduates were certain of a position with the German government or industry. Since the war all this has been changed. Germany has no more colonies and her resources are greatly restricted. Her wealth amounted to 75 billions before the war, and she was required to pay 34.4 billions of that amount for reparations. Germany was a nation of 50 million hopeless people before the revolution; now there are at least 45 million hopeful people. This is certain evidence that there is something to be said in favor of the Hitler movement. It cannot be entirely bad.

This movement was sponsored chiefly by the university youth. It has given them something vital and a real hope for the future.

DEBATERS LOSE TRADITIONAL TILT WITH JUNIATA

Judges Give Albright, Affirmative Team, Two Out of Five Votes

Albright lost their first leg on the University Club debate trophy last night by losing to the Juniata negative team. The debate, resided over by Dr. Albert L. Rowland, was broadcast over the local network. For Juniata, Joseph G. Daher and Stanton Funk upheld the negative, while Elliot Goldstan and LeRoy Brininger ably represented the home team.

The judges, two of whom cast their ballots for Albright, were: Dr. William Curtis, president of Cedar Crest College; Dr. William Johnson, president of Lincoln University; Dr. Clyde Lynch, president of Lebanon Valley College; Dr. A. C. Rothermel, president of Kutztown State Teachers' College, and Dr. R. M. Schlosser, president of Elizabethtown College. Charles A. Hoffman, president of the University Club, presented the trophy to the winner.

2 MEMBERS RECEIVE SKULL AND BONE CERTIFICATE

The regular monthly meeting of the Skull and Bones Society will be held on Monday evening, March 12th, at 8:00 P. M., in the science lecture hall. At this meeting two papers will be read for which the permanent Skull and Bones certificate will be awarded. Samuel Halperin will read a paper, "Surgery Now and Then," to be followed by E. Douglas Sechler's paper, "Classification and Morphology of the Protozoans." Students should attend.

INT. RELATIONS CLUB HEARS INTERNATIONAL SPEAKER

Mr. William Vale, employed in the international department of the Westinghouse Company in Philadelphia, was guest speaker at the regular meeting of the International Relations Club, Friday, March 2, in Selwyn Hall. This past year he studied at the Konsular Academy in Vienna, having spent three years prior to that time in a French military school.

Mr. Vale, who has been interested in the activities of the International Relations Club of Albright, principally through Professor Hamilton, presented an animated study of the Austrian situation. First explaining how the economic unity of Austria itself had been destroyed before the war, and then analyzing its situation in direct relation to each of the European powers, he brought out clearly the development of Socialism. He characterized the Viennese as being sympathetic, not at all subtle, and with Socialistic tendencies; these are the people to whom Herr Dolfuss said, "We must create a spirit of nationalism." The speaker pointed out, in his summary of the recent upheaval in Vienna, the extent to which reports have been exaggerated.

Before the close of the meeting, Mr. Vale, in Tyrolean costume, answered many questions concerning the political and economic situation in Europe today.

C. D. Becker, Esq., of Lebanon, an Alumni trustee of Albright College, who is the new chairman of the Athletic Council, entertained the members of the Council and guests at the Wyoming Club on Friday, March 2, at six o'clock in the evening.

The president of the college, Dr. J. W. Klein, addressed the gathering before introducing the new chairman of the council. Dr. Klein stressed the importance of athletics at the college and his idea is to secure the interest of the entire student body in the athletic program at Albright. Dr. Klein is anxious for a strong football team that can successfully compete with other colleges in our class, such as we are to play next year: F. & M., Dickinson, Western Maryland, Muhlenberg, Lafayette, Moravian, LaSalle, Lebanon Valley and Ursinus.

Mr. Becker addressed the group in which he complimented the president for the manner in which he had successfully met the difficult athletic situation during the past year, caused by the ruling of the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools; and that his job will now be easy compared to what had been accomplished by Dr. Klein. He pledged his utmost endeavor to building up athletics at Albright College so that the College would be proud of the teams which would be competing with other colleges.

OUR CHAPEL SERVICE

A subject which has provided a constant source of discussion on our campus is that of the chapel service. Various proposals have been offered with the intent of improving our mid-morning service, but little or no action seems forthcoming. The Y. M. C. A. is at present including this subject under a list of many which they will survey in regards to student opinion concerning such.

We are being constantly reminded of the attitude that students should adopt during this half-hour period and we are fully aware that the success of a worship service depends largely upon the interest and attention of those in the audience. It must be realized, however, that the part taken by the audience, no matter how vital they are to the service, is after all the more negative half of the matter. Students are discriminating in religious matters—and by every right ought to be. It is our honest opinion that attention and interest will be shown on the part of the student body provided the program deviates from an established routine of procedure. Preparation on the part of its leaders, resulting in a presentation of subject matter directly interesting and beneficial to the student should be a criterion.

Some of our faculty members have undoubted ability in presenting matter valuable to student thought—others do not. We are not making a criticism of the latter, but we do feel the present system of assigning the chapel service by rotation to each faculty member, regardless of talent or ability, is fallible. We feel that occasional student participation in chapel presentation might foster the interest which seems to be lacking in our morning service. There are among the students of Albright those who are capable of conducting the chapel exercises. Why not present them with an opportunity? The mid-morning worship service is of essential importance to the curriculum of our college. We feel that every step should be taken to advance its improvement and place it on the high standard that a college chapel should maintain.

Literary Column

By Lewis Jones

Whenever anyone talks of "art" and "aesthetic theories" the general populace is inclined to find him vaguely ridiculous, and seems to detect in every word he utters a flavor of affectation. And so insidious is the influence of popular opinion, even when manifested as plain unreason, that critics and reviewers, in their writings for the daily press, shy away from the use of these words as anathema.

And yet, in order properly to judge and ascertain the value of the countless offerings placed before them, they must perforce consider the artistic and aesthetic canons that go into making great literature, and, with an eye to such, pass their opinions.

Now, it seems to me, that many, nay, most, so-called book reviewers whose spoutings occur each week in the three or four most popular literary magazines are undeniably lacking in the groundwork without which criticism is futile and sterile. To understand the present one must know the past. I do not mean that these critics have not an historical knowledge of literature or that they have not read the classics from the Greeks to the last century; but that superficiality is not enough. I mean that they have read without knowing, looked but have not seen clearly. They do not know, considering the aesthetic point of view only, why The Iliad, which deals with a little war in Asia-Minor, has lived and will live, and why A FAREWELL TO ARMS, which deals with quite a big war in Europe, probably will not live.

Thus, we come to the main topic for today, to wit: the criticism, by aesthetic canons, of the post-war novels represented in America by Hemingway, in England by Richard Aidington, in Germany by Reharque.

First, a word or two about the development of the peculiar novels that these three, and countless followers, have evolved. I believe it can be said that not in the history of literature has there been seen so continued an intensity of feeling that the style of these novelists produce. Clipped, vehement, bitter, disillusioned, it reflects the horror of war and battles, death and destruction. It is the speech of men under strong emotion. The novels are romantic to an extreme: there is no detachment, no objectified telling of the tale; rather it carries the reader, body and soul, to share the nightmare of emotions under fire.

Now there is an obvious question. Why is it that, in this age, after at least twenty centuries of writers have come and gone, a style such as Hemingway's should only now be disclosed? Men have fought wars before and have come home and written about them, but never as he did. What was the reason for the almost unbelievable delay? Several answers present themselves, each one of which would require a book to explain. With those answers we are not now concerned. Without further postponement, let us consider aesthetically this Hemingway school of fiction, with an eye to its longevity and endurance as great.

Theatre Column

LOEWS—"Nana" brings to Reading a new star, more glamorous than Garbo, more fascinating than Crawford, Anna Sten, the new Russian sensation. Co-starred are Lionel Atwell and Mae Clarke.

EMBASSY—"No More Women," a story of champs on the bottom of the sea, and champs anywhere with the dames sez who? Guess—Edmund Lowe and Victor McLaglan. On the stage, Betty Boop appears in person.

ASTOR—Starting Saturday, Kay Francis the one woman who lived three lives. Where the best is like the worst, see "Mandalay."

RAJAH—Wednesday, March 14, matinee and evening, Ed Wynn, in person, in "An Evening's Entertainment," with cast of 65 people. Tickets now on sale, Friday and Saturday—Sally Eilers and Ben Lyon in "The Morning after;" also five all-star acts in vaudeville.

Seniors Express High Ambitions for Future Work

On June 11, seventy-two seniors expect to say farewell to Albright College. Where they will be next year is another story. The majority of the class have high ambitions; whether their goals will be reached remains to be seen.

Of the members of the class of '34, forty-five are planning to teach, seven have decided definitely to enter the ministry, two will enter law school, four will enter medical schools, five may become business men, two may pursue art, two will become social workers, two will be chemists, one may enter civil service, one Y. M. C. A. work, and one newspaper work. Regardless of the prevailing optimism of the class, many second choices have been mentioned.

Mary Yohn has secured a position doing case work for the Mother's Assistance Fund, a State Welfare organization located at the Berks County Court House in Reading. Carl Sweitzer has been accepted at the Temple School of Medicine and will enter there in the fall.

Alfred Cooper has registered at the Princeton Seminary where he will study for the Presbyterian ministry. Otho Hooftagle will enter the Seminary of General Theology in New York in preparation for the Episcopalian ministry. Other students planning to enter seminaries are: Lisle Bartholomew, Leroy Bringer, Wilson Carvel, Glen Flinchbach, and Edwin Minnich.

Samuel Halperin and Melvin Lustig are entering medical schools in Philadelphia. There they will forget the cats of Reading and center their thoughts on cadavers. Charles Dice will enroll at the Philadelphia School of Osteopathy.

The class orators, John Fay and Howard Mayer, will enter law schools in September. Fay will go either to Yale or Georgetown. Paul Vanness expects to be affiliated with the Armstrong Linoleum Company, or he may become the business manager of his father's general store at Rummerfield. Even though Clyde Mullen is well qualified to teach Social Science, he expects to go on the "bum" and see the world, if the teaching field holds no promises.

Mildred Reichley is considering attending a school of design where she will further develop her artistic abilities. The other Senior artist, Asher Gottschalk, may work in his studio at home.

Of those entering the teaching field, the greatest number are qualified to teach Social Science. Languages and Mathematics are next in line, with English as a close runner-up.

Roy McNaughton is interested in doing civil service work. The Philippine Islands are attracting Harold Zieders; it is his ambition to teach in a government school there.

Lewis Jones expects to become associated with a New York newspaper. He may some day be a second F. P. Adams. Who knows? Of course, Tyndal Ice has the advantage over his classmates. If no teaching position awaits him, he can always toot his trumpet for a living.

Two of the class chemists expect to do further work in that field—Kennedy will be a chemical engineer in Portland, Maine, and Hollinger, a chemist in the Lucas paint factory. For gifting convenience, Bob may have the company add cosmetics to their line of paints.

To be complete, a class must have a politician. If the Mathematics teachers are too numerous, Ray Morris will enter politics. In a few years he may cost his hat into the presidential ring.

Of the twenty girls in the class, seventeen are planning to be "old-maid" school teachers. That all will reach that state of single blessedness is very doubtful.

Peg Wittman and Betty Rimelspacher will teach German (if they get a chance). Harriet Venus, Martha Felmlee, Lillian Slater, and Dorothy Robinhold would like to teach Home Economics. Helen Yohn will either be a chemistry teacher or an interne's technician. Catherine Winter will do social work according to custom.

PROMINENT PEOPLE . . .

CLYDE C. MULLEN
(Alpha Pi Omega)

Pictured above we see the pleasing countenance of one needing no introduction to the students of Albright. "Moon," the chubby Senior possessing that famous tooth-paste ad smile and a personality that is the envy of the men and the admiration of the opposite sex. Popular because of his affable nature, Charles is also an honor student of distinction, being one of the three Seniors this year to garner a straight "A" average.

Throughout his college career he has been most active, this year being president of Pi Gamma Mu, National Honorary Science fraternity. "Moon" has been associated with Albrightian and 1934 Cue staffs and also the International Relations Club. In athletics, his prowess has gained him a reputation. Manager of last year's swimming team, and this year captain of the A. P. O. basket ball team, he has been outstanding in college intramural athletics.

"Moon" is "just another would-be teacher," and this time it's history with which he intends to enlighten the future generation. Good luck, Charles—do you have a middle name? *

C. D. BECKER NAMED NEW COUNCIL CHAIRMAN

Mr. Becker has always been enthusiastic for athletics and especially in seeking the co-operation of everyone in the college to a program that will meet with the approval of every student of the college. After this address the group assembled in an informal way in another part of the building and for several hours discussed a forward-looking program. There was great enthusiasm on the part of everyone present.

This is the first time that the press has been invited to such a conference. The heads of the sports departments of the Reading Times and Reading Eagle expressed great enthusiasm over the program as outlined for athletics at Albright.

Mr. Mohn, president of the Albright College Alumni Association, also presented a plan which showed that there is an extensive study and which will be referred to the Council for further action. The plan had reference to self-help for athletics.

The meeting was especially interesting because every person present was called on and in turn each gave words of encouragement for the athletic policy at Albright.

Those present were: President J. W. Klein, Mr. C. S. Kelchner, Dean George W. Walton, Mr. Fred Howard, Elmer L. Mohn, Mr. John S. Smith, Mr. J. M. Kelchner, Professor L. E. Smith, Professor E. R. Page, Rev. O. A. Hyden, Mr. William Reedy, Mr. Gordon Williams, Mr. Stanley Hino, Mr. Ralph DeFranco, Mr. Charles Karlovich, and Mr. James Osislislo.

Take It From Me . . .

Wednesday the Lions suffered the worst defeat that has been administered to them on their home court in a good many years. Gettysburg, with a superior team, met an Albright five that played a brand of basketball which, to say the least, was sloppy. Whether the Bullets were as superior to Albright as their playing showed or that Albright decided they were badly outclassed and took it for granted that they were beaten, is hard for any individual to say, but it must be granted that something was wrong. Gettysburg had one of the best passing teams to grace the local "Y" floor this year. Cico was the mainstay of the team and is probably one of the best pivot men seen in this vicinity since Heller graduated from our arch rival college. Although Heller had better qualities than Cico and lacked the conceit of the Gettysburg man.

During the game on Wednesday night Coach Smith seemed to have difficulty when he ordered Iatesta and Conway into the game and they both refused to enter the game for reasons that can not be substantiated by the writer before the paper goes to press. In an interview with Smith on Thursday afternoon, the coach stated: "Iatesta and Conway refused to enter the game when I ordered them to do so and as a result they are benched for the remainder of the season and will not be allowed to take part in the Lebanon Valley game on Saturday night; furthermore, they must suffer the consequences." Iatesta and Conway could not be reached by this writer yesterday afternoon to find out whether they had any statement to make regarding the situation. If they desire to do so, this column is ready to print anything they desire to say. It is possible that they had exceptionally good reasons for refusing to obey Coach Smith, but so long as he has charge of the team it must be understood that his word and judgement is final. Under the present circumstances, they had no jurisdiction for their actions.

Saturday night we travel to Lebanon to fight out the fourth place position in the Basketball Conference with our old playmates, Lebanon Valley. This game should be a climax to the season and should end up in a bang. Earlier in the season we defeated the Blue and White in Reading, and, according to the advance dope from Annville, they are all set for revenge and are point for this game. This will be the last time that Albright will face a basketball team coached by Hooks Mylin, as the congenial Lebanon Valley coach goes to Bucknell at the end of the year.

Jay Kelehner has announced in another section of this paper that spring football will start on Monday and that he will immediately get down to serious business. He has high hopes for football next year and expects to have a team that will win a majority of their games. His assistants have not been named as yet, but this announcement can be expected within a short time.

The Lions club was crowned the champions of the Inter-Fraternity Basketball League when they took the A. P. O. over in a one-sided game. Hepler was outstanding on the Lions club, while C. Charles Mullens was the spearhead of the A. P. O. Some of the high lights of the game was Fittabaldi's shot with his eyes closed accounting for two points, Doyle doing a split in the center of the floor, and Mullens sporting a discolored optic. It's all in the game.

BULLETS SWAMP SMITHMEN 43-27; DEFEAT DREXEL

The smooth-working Gettysburg College basketball team, by virtue of their win from Albright Wednesday night, clinched their third straight Eastern Pennsylvania Collegiate League Championship.

The Lion quintet were totally outclassed in the Wednesday evening fray, the Bullets leading the Smithmen throughout the entire game. The games held few thrills for the record crowd who jammed the "Y," and was featured by the excellent floor work and passing of the league champions. The outstanding performance of the game was made by Cico, Bullet forward, who netted 14 points, many of which were spectacular shots. Dracha, of local fame, also performed creditable and was the spearhead of the pass-work.

Led by Bob Shipe, shifted from center to forward, the Albright College quintet easily defeated the Drexel Institute eagles at Philadelphia, 42 to 22.

Smith shook up his combination before the game, and besides placing Shipe at forward, had Jim Ross jumping center, and Stan Hino at the other forward post. Shipe was the spearhead in the Albright offense, netting 18 points. Goose Osliso came back into form and dropped in five field goals. The Lions led the Dragons throughout the game, and had a 21 to 14 margin at the conclusion of the first half. The score:

GIRLS BASKETBALL TEAMS TO PLAY OLD RIVALS

The Albrightian girls' basketball team has moved up another notch in the City League, of which they are a member, by winning another game last Friday night. The game was quite easily won, 38-13. Jeanette Henry found the hoop often to tally 22 points. Peg Wittmann and Marjorie Beglinger continued her good work. Ehel Sprinkle was acting captain.

This week-end the team will go to Annville to play the Lebanon Valley girls. They will remain to see the fray between the Albright boys' varsity and the Lebanon Valley team.

The lineup for the game last week follows:

Wittman, Beglinger, Henry, forwards. Goforth, Turner, Hicks, centers. Sprinkle, side center. Dohn, Slater, Ketner, guards.

Lions Club Crushes A. P. O. to Annex Inter-Mural Crown

In the play-off for the intramural basketball championship, the Lions club trounced the Alpha Pi Omega fraternity 39-23 on Wednesday evening to capture the much prized trophy. Their championship play-off was necessitated by the A. P. O.'s winning the second half of the Inter-fraternity League: the Lions were the first-half winners.

At no time was the outcome of the contest in doubt. The Lions piled up an early lead and retained it throughout the fray. The smooth-passing attack and almost impenetrable defense displayed by the Lion five proved too much for the Blue and Gold team, which showed their mettle on very few occasions.

"Tom" Hepler and "Bill" Moffet formed a sharp-shooting and co-operative passing nucleus for the Lions, although the entire team played its best game of the season. "Tom" Messersmith supplied the scoring power for the losing quintet with nine points.

The Lebanon County Alumni Association of the school will hold a meeting at Mayer's Cafe in Lebanon on Saturday night before the basketball game. About fifty members are expected to be present.

At the urgent request of several of the hard working waiters, I take my men in hand to scathe several of the more thoughtless Frosh girls who insist on chatting and not eating at meals. 'Nuff said!

Doctor Eugene R. Page has been taken in as Faculty Advisor to the Zeta Omega Epsilon fraternity.

What a chuckle this handed me! The thing with the nickname synonymous with glass container was reading an old Frosh handbook the other day. He suddenly came to a page covered with old English type and—here's the laugh—began looking for a Greek dictionary so he could translate it.

On last Saturday afternoon Dorcas Haines, president of the Pi Alpha Tau sorority, represented the group at the annual luncheon of the alumni of that organization. The affair was held at the Jefferson Tea Room in Reading.

The squat lad who rooms on the third floor of the Angel Factory is making a pass at the girl whose name, if incorrectly spelled, means a pair of cubes.

The Kappa Upsilon Phi fraternity has pledged the following men: John Henry, David Hintz, Leo Oberzut, Albert Kuder, Adam Levengood, James Garnet, and Karl Kehler.

The tall blonde Frosh who now has the name of "Buck" has been well named. Rumor has it that he visits a friend's room and dons a sombrero and pistol and then prances around the room like his namesake.

Deepest sympathy is extended to Florence Howell, a member of the sophomore class, in her recent bereavement on the loss of her grandmother. Consolation is also extended to Professor Cook and family who have lost a near relative.

Forgive any mention I have ever made about the signs of approaching spring. I must have been hitting the pipe.

Basom, Hummel, Fiester and Stabler are spending several days in York at the Conference. All are members of the Pi Tau Beta fraternity.

The Frosh with an unusual name was incorrectly christened. From what they tell me he would be more correctly named if he dropped the "u" and the "i" from his name and added another "f." Get it?

Katherine Winter and Sarah Hoffman will be the guests of Harriet Venus at her home in York over the week-end.

Note—I am not responsible for any cracks printed about me in this column. They are the work of a group of insidious conspirators.

Willard Burger and Wesley Stevens were the week-end guests of Mark Matz at the Phi Beta Pi house of the University of Pennsylvania.

Yielding to popular demand and necessity, I hereby publish a key for this week's dirt:

Glass containers—Bottles.
Buck—Short for Buck Jones.
Pair of cubes—Dice. (I thought everyone knew that.)
You can figure the next out yourselves!

Paul Schoffer and Eugene Barth have been pledged to the A. P. O.'s.

STUDENT COUNCIL GIVES NEW CLUB CHARTER

Any complaints or remarks made by the boarding students will receive due consideration. These should be reported to the head waiter who in turn will bring them up before the Enforcement and Complaints Committee.

At a recent meeting the following officers were elected:

- President Joseph Ehrhart
- Vice-President Leroy Bringer
- Secretary Alfred Cooper
- Treasurer Asher Gottschalk
- Publicity Chairman Charles Moravec
- Social Committee

Gordon Reinhard, Kenneth Compton, and Howard Barnhart

This is one of the finest moves made by the dining hall management, and it is sincerely and earnestly hoped that the boarding students will be willing to help themselves by reporting any complaint to the head waiter. The waiters will do their part if the students cooperate for a square deal.

Eugene Hatton, a freshman, has been pledged to the Zetas.

Professor Marcus Green spent the week-end at Morgantown, Va., where he is engaged in making a geological survey.

Miss Lillian Slater, a member of the senior class, addressed the Woman's Auxiliary on Wednesday afternoon. Her topic was, "Sugar."

Professor and Mrs. Page entertained the members of the debating teams at their home after the debate on Thursday evening.

Dolores Marconi, Flora Lobb, Russ Bonney and Maurice Male, all of Pen Argyll, and all alumni of the college, recently visited friends on campus.

Professor Buckwalter is confined to the infirmary.

THERE'S ONE BEST TIME To Telephone Home!

You'll agree, once you've tried it, that half past eight is the time to telephone home.

At half past eight the day's rush is over: Your time is free for a leisurely telephone chat.

At half past eight the same is true at home. It's the best time to catch the family all together.

At half past eight (and this is most important) low Night Rates go into effect on Station to Station calls. You can then save as much as 40% on your call. For example: If your home is 100 miles away, a three-minute connection will cost only 35 cents!

TO TAKE ADVANTAGE of the LOW NIGHT RATES ...

Call after 8:30 P.M., and be sure to make a Station to Station call.

That means, ask the Operator for your home telephone, but not for any specific person.

If you've fixed a date in advance, the family will be sure to be there.

Charges may be reversed.
