C. E. SOCIETY WILL SHOW SLIDES OF "OTHER WISE MAN"

Sixty Handsome Colored Steroptical Scenes From Van Dyke's Immortal Book By Same Title

MISS BENFER WILL ACCOMPANY WITH LECTURE

To Be The Outstanding Feature of Special Service Sunday Night

Sunday evening, December the twelfth at seven o'clock there will be a big time in the College Chapel. Sixty beautiful stereoptic slides por-traying "The Other Wise Man" by Dr. Henry Van Dyke will be presented. These will be accompanied by Christmas Carols and a lecture by Christmas Carois and a lecture by Miss Anna Benfer, explaining each view as it is presented. These slides show the other wise man as he sells all his possessions, buys three prec-ious stones and makes ready to set out to find the Christ-child. The three wise men of which we read to much about had set out before him and he had planned to overtake them. and he had planned to overtake them. There are so many obstacles which come in his way that he is unable to overtake the wise men who have gone before him. He spent many years in the search, and also gives his three jewels to help those along the way who were in distress. Finally he reaches Jewalem just as the Christ. reaches Jerusalem just as the Christ-child who has now grown into man-hood, is being crucified. The earth and the buildings are shaken by an earthquake. The old man tired and weary from the journey lies down at the foot of a large stone building and one of the stones falls upon his head and kills him; but he had found the Christ by helping others. This very interesting and instructive form of Christians service will be given under the auspices of the Albright College Christian Endeavor Society. We hope that every student of Al-bright will avail themselves of this opportunity and come bringing many reaches Jerusalem just as the Christ opportunity and come bringing many friends with them.

In order to have a sound mind and body it is necessary that they are co-ordinated with some improvement. SELECTION BASED SOLELY ON PLAY AGAINST ALBRIGHT

Following the annual custom of the Bulletin, the sport's department has picked the following all-opponents teams from the various colleges, which have been met on the griding this year. These teams were not picked on their season's performancbright team.

Grube, Boyle, Evans and Atkinson form our ends. Grube and Boyle are better offensively and defensively than Evans and Atkinson; also, both are deadly place kickers and Boyle is especially good at receiving passes. Both Evans and Atkinson played well, but the former pair were more outstanding.

There is little to choose between our tackles, but we feel that Cothran and Piersol were slightly more outstanding than were Hiberger and Lewis. Aside from their ordinary tackle play, both our tackles are kickers. Piersol kicks very well from placement, while Cothran could kick our points from touchdown.

The only really outstanding guard of the season was Elberti, who plays well offensively and defensively, and is a good interferer. As his running we think Ashbourne, of Tem (Continued On Page Three)

WHAT DO YOU THINK of an honor system for Albright? Does Albright need such a system? Would the school be bettered by it? Express yourself. Talk about it on the campus. It will rest largely upon whether the students desire to have such a system as to whether we shall have it or not. But before accepting such a new condition it should be talked pro and con in a thorough manner, so as to know before hand its helps and hindrances. It would make a good subject for society debates.

WE NEED IT!!

Once more the credit system has been brought to the fore in Albright School Activities. Do we or do we not need the restrictions brought on by this system? The question has several times been brought to light in literary society debates with variance in the decisions generally depending upon the acuteness of the situa-tion at the time. In the time of few scholastic require-generally depending upon the acuteness of the situation at the time. In the time of few scholastic requirements such a system would possibly not find a place, but in our present situation it is sorely needed.

If a school is top-heavy with staggering organizations as many of our present American Colleges are there is no use in saddling them on an able leader who can at his best help only a little in making them better or in carrying them through a crucial period. Albright itself has witnessed the fading away of several organizations which at one time were considered important activities. We find that the same persons were practically enrolled in all of them. What was the matter? There is only one logical conclusion and that is that one or a few persons had to do all the work and gradually became tired of doing it. There are several old student organizations at present in the same dilemma. What shall be done with them? Would it not be possible for some one who has few extra-curricular activities to do something for these organizations?

The point system as in force at several other schools would bring about several desired results at Albright.

The point system as in force at several other schools would bring about several desired results at Albright. First there would be a greater distribution of office and responsibility. Second there would be greater effort in individual work. Third there would be greater school spirit manifest in activities. Fourth there would be greater opportunity for student initiative. Fifth, there would be better opportunity for the expression of the qualities of leadership. Sixth, there should be an increase in grades of certain groups of students. Seventh, the quality of work done by the organizations would be better.

would be better. would be better.

It seems that the only serious objection to the point system would be that it would place inferior officers at the head of organizations. This is a very weak argument as we must all realize that by far the greater number of our student organizations exist FOR THE DEVELOPMENT of the MEMBERS and not for the sole existence of the organization. Placing a well trained man in office defeats the purpose of many organizations. We are sure that this objection can be overcome at Albright and that we are ready for a "point system" of credit in extra-curricular work.

THE JEWISH RARRI

Rabbi Phillip D. Bookstaber Ph.D., of Harrisburg, who spoke to us at "Y" meeting last Tuesday night was well received by all who had the pleasure of hearing him. A tall man, well dressed beauty as in was well received by all who had the pleasure of nearing him. A tall man, well dressed, having an imposing ap-pearance, he stood before his audience and delivered his address on "The Real of Ends." It was well thought out and philosophical to a high degree. With his deep thought he had a fine flow of language and seemed to be perfectly at ease before his Gentile audience.

to be perfectly at ease before his Gentile audience.
Rabbi Bookstaber is very sane in his treatment of various religious faiths, believing that they are all alike seeking for truth. He mentioned that a Jew can be a good Christian and a good American. There is much truth in this statement, yet we must fully recognize that the Jew cannot, at least does not, go as far in his conception of Christ as the Christian does. On the other hand many Jews to-day are living vastly superior lives than many professing Christians.

One thing is noticeable in this day and generation.

than many professing Christians.

One thing is noticeable in this day and generation, that representatives of different types of religion are mixing more than they have ever previously done. With enlightenment comes toleration of the better sort. We look for the likeness rather than the difference; for the good qualities rather than the bad. We are glad that in this day much of the religious bigotry among peoples is being done away with. To the Jews, of whom Christ was Himself one, we wish them well. Our only wish for them is that they might be able to go as far as in their thought respecting Christ as the Christian church has gone. We wish the Rabbi well and would be glad to have him return to us anytime, and deliver another of his splendid messages. another of his splendid messages.

SPIRIT-GAME-HOME

SPIRIT—GAME—HOME

The Turkey game is over. The pig skin is put away for the year. Yes, yes, we know—but oh boy—it makes our blood boll when we think how loyal some students were NOT. This last, the game of games for our school year, one upon which the success of the season depended in a large measure. It was one which the student body should have attended 100%, but yet many instead of backing the team and giving the school better representation displayed a lack of loyalty and spirit by going home, even after the request was made when announcement came that classes would be suspended the following day that every student attend the game. It is just the same old story of "give the little finger, they take the whole hand." After the faculty grants a day off, it does show very little appreciation, not to heed such a simple request. Maybe you laugh at this—but don't laugh too loud, as your neighbor who is loyal may not like it.

As coach Weller said, a number probably preferred Turkey to the game. This selfish attitude is to be deplored. We can eat every day—and witness a Lebanon plored. We can eat every day—and witness a Lebanon Valley game but once a year; yet many preferred the former. As long as so many of our students assume this attitude—so long will Lebanon Valley go unbeaten.

By The Parrot

At last old King Winter is here, and to stay, Parrot hopes! What with glee we all awoke last Sunday morn to see the tiny white snowflakes misting down here and sweeping by there. Cold and crisp the air, and dull the skies! Why, it snowed all day just like everything, and

Dark and sombre Heavy, gray, Night has fallen-Night has fallen—
Gone the day—
Bleak and colder,
Winds arise;
Clouds of black
Have lined the skies.
Winds loud-shricking Lash the trees, Lash the trees,
Awful forms
The branches seize.
Colder, colder,
Comes the storm
Spreading terror
By its form;
Dark and sombre,
Gone the day—
Night and storms. Night and storms In old Kal-Kay!

Parrot thot sure Santa Clause would come around on Sunday and get our Xmas lists, but seems the snow wasn't the kind for sleighing and something was wrong with the airplane. Guess Santa better hurry and get is fixed or he won't get around til Christmas, eh, folks? Ah, Christmas trees, 'n presents, 'n everything, oh, boy! Don't you wish Christmas were here?

Don't you wish Christmas were here?

Now that Parrot is talking about Sunday, weren't there lots of folks at the evening service, especially couples? Guess that was because the weather wasn't so comfortable for walking. Leastways, that was Parrot's conclusion. Anyway, we hope there'll be just as many at the recital tonite, cause Parrot hears it's going to be something grand. speaking of religion he said, "All religion may be divided into "All religion may be divided into two parts—Theory and Practice. Under these heads come ideas, ideals, and rights of ceremony. The things that do not change are the theories. There are three things upon which all religion has something to say: God, man, and future life. Ever since the days of Abraham the clarion call to man has been the improvement of society. No religion is a dynamic universal religion if it does not touch the vital truths."

Dr. Bookstaher's next point was

Dr. Bookstaber's next point was Immortality and how to prepare for it. First—You must believe in it. Second—Work with it. Third—Pray Second—Work with it. Third—Pray for it. This prayer must be univer-sal. Then one must make his will. Not a will of earthly possessions, but of thoughts, wishes and ideals. By so doing you will live a life that pul-sates with belief and religious faith. And you will live in contact with friends in accordance with what you have written down.

Society must first call for patriot-m. It must embody individuals with ism. It must embody individuals with distinct religious life. This patriot-ism and religious life, although in demand according to American prin-ciples should be soparated. The weakness of past civilization has been to combine religion and state. It is first necessary to develop a relievous life which must be separate from politics. politics

"Sam" needs no intro ll, there can't possibly be anyone ere at Albright who doesn't know im—if not personally at least on the all, there gridiron. This young fellow was cap-tain of the greatest football team that ever represented old Albright. It is hardly necessary to point to his work as a part of that team; he played with all that was in him and quite a large majority of the points scored either directly or indirectly aceable to him.

This is not the only sport "Sa engages in. He is a good basketball and baseball player also. However, in regards to basketball, altho he can play well he doesn't like it much, and will probably not play this year.
When it comes to baseball "Sam" is a very valuable player to have is a very around. He is usually seen receiving behind the bat, but he can als play anywhere else in the infielplay anywhere else in the infield without hurting his reputation in the

Another distinction which "Sam enjoys is that he belongs to a verselect group—there are only a few who have the qualifications for mem-bership in that group. Perhaps you have guessed what is meant by this time. We were all somewhat sur-prised to return this fall and find that "Sammie" was no longer a single was no longer a single man.

Among the fellows you will scarcely find one more cheerful and good-natured than "Sam". He is always ready with some wise-crack or joke. And since he is capable of being serious and determined in the oeing serious and determined in the crucial times we see him as a well-balanced individual—cheery and hu-morous when the occasion demands and also capable of being earnest and serious when the time for that

The girls of Mohn Hall are preparing for an elaborate celebration of Christmas before they go home. It was recently reported that there will be several trees in the dormitory. The men's glee club is rapidly rounding into shape. The program is full of new music of the best type and practices are being held twice a week in order that the club may hook engagements as soon after the book engagements as soon after the Christmas vacation as possible. It is expected that the club will travel largely by motor bus this year. Any persons desiring to book them should correspond with Glyh Morris.

Last night in the local High School Auditorium, the Auxiliary of the Good Samaritan Hospital celebrated its fifth anniversary in the form of a birthday party. A fine program was rendered after which the birth-day bags were collected. These bags had been distributed through the town and each person receiving one was supposed to place a penny in the bag for every year of their age and return the bag at the party.
The idea was novel and was well received by the people.

After the entertainment in the auditorium, a bazaar was held in the gymnasium. Many beautiful Christmas articles were on sale and Christmas articles were on saie and dainty refreshments were on sale at the various booths. A neat sum of money was realized from the birthday celebration, and the ladies of the Auxiliary hope for a continuation of the support given by the local resistant.
