Fortune Editor To Address Grads On "The American Future"

Margaret Savidge, Student Speaker On Final Day

Commencement week exercises will be supplemented by a week-end of activities which will be high-lighted by Alumni Day and Baccalaureate Sunday. The final festivities, however, will take place on Monday—Commencement Day.

The day's activities will feature an address by Russel W. Davenport of New York City, the editor of the Fortune magazine. Mr. Davenport's subject will be, "The American Future."

Mr. Davenport, who was the coordinator of the pre-convention campaign for Wendell L. Willkie, is a native of South Bethlehem and joined the Fortune staff in 1930.

The student speaker selected to represent the outgoing class on the oratorical platform at the Commencement Day exercises is Miss Margaret Savidge.

Miss Savidge, who has a large list of offices and activities to her credit and a genial personality, is a biology major from Hazleton, Penna. She will speak on the topic, "Modern Frontiers."

Grads Frolic, Dance At Senior Party

Swimming, Baseball On Program

A huge success seems to be the only way to describe the senior party that began the five days of feting the seniors. Wednesday afternoon all the seniors and their guests gathered at Stegman's country home and spent an afternoon and evening in a full program of sheer fun. During the afternoon there was swimming, badminton, baseball, and just plain loafing and then—supper!

A huge Albright seal made of red radishes and cottage cheese formed the centerpiece, and carrots arranged to form lions were on each side of the seal. The rest of the table was decorated in red and white. After the supper, a treasure hunt took the participants all over the grounds of the Stegman farm and was followed by dancing from 8 to 12. Dancing was to the music of a "juke" box and, even though held in the barn, it was not a barn dance. Just to make sure that the seniors did not forget their last party as Albright students, each senior received as a special surprise a bright red bakelite mug with his name and "senior class 1941" hand painted on it in white enamel.

The chaperones, who could not be distinguished from the seniors, were Miss Ernestine Elder, Miss Esther Fenili, Dr. Milton Geil, Mr. Robert Work, Professor and Mrs. Newton Danford, Dr. and Mrs. Graham Cook, and Dr. and Mrs. Harry Masters.

Student Council Elects Witmer; APO Head To Assist Hain

Gaul, Secretary Buxton, Treasurer In New Cabinet

Although a dull spirit prevailed and the usual fiery action was missing at the first meeting of the new student council, the balloting for President Hain's new cabinet was a potential "blitzkrieg."

No Quorum

Before the election could be held the council had to overthrow the law of quorums. The body voted to proceed without the required number of faculty members present. With the green flag up the new prexy proceeded at once to carry out the "office-affle" in a very disciplined and clear-cut manner.

After the first balloting the tabulators reported a tie vote for the offices of vice-president and treasurer. Being in a tight spot the new council-head decided in favor of another ballot instead of exercising his own voting power. When the second ballot turned out to be an exact replica of the first one, it was decided to drop the third aspirant for the money-holder's post from the ballot. This turned out to be Dennis Strawbridge.

Agree on Third Ballot

From the triumphant smiles of the tabulation committee after the third ballot, the council knew at once that a new cabinet had at last been chosen. Woodrow Witmer became vice-president by eking out a slight advantage over his opponent, Ray Swett. Dorothy Gaul was again chosen to take care of the note-scribbling duties and Donald Buxton received the strings to the money-box.

Annual Musicale Features Mantle Shift

Orchestra, Glee Clubs Provide Entertainment

The annual commencement week musicale held in the dining hall was marked by the Mantle Ceremony and by the presentation of awards to members of the band and orchestra, men's and women's glee clubs, tennis and track teams, and the Women's Athletic Association.

Ray Hain, president of student council for 1941-42, was in charge of the ceremony at which George Henry, president of the class of '41, gave the mantle of responsibility to Burdsall Miller, president of the class of '42. Nick Schneider and James Snelbaker, presidents of the classes of '43 and '44 respectively, gave pledges of support. The vice-presidents who also took part in the ceremony were George Eppelheimer, '41; Harold Werner, '42; Sally Weaver, '43, and George Morfogen, '44.

The program for the musicale consisted of numbers by the orchestra and by the combined glee clubs. Jane Redcay, who was the only soloist, played the first move-

Welcome Home Alumni, Have A Good Time

The Albrightian staff takes this opportunity on behalf of the student body to welcome the alumni to the campus for the annual Alumni Day. We hope that they will make themselves at home just as they did in their own college days.

Sarg, Puppet King, Guest Performer At Alumni Banquet

Seniors Invited To Review Artist's Antics

Tony Sarg, internationally famous illustrator, painter and marionette king, will climax Alumni festivities tomorrow by performing with his famous creations. The puppeteer is to entertain for a full hour after the alumni banquet, which is to be held in the College Dining Hall at 6 p. m.

Sarg, creator of the Marionette Theatre in America, is widely known for his illustrations. He will bring with him many of his famous "little people" and will demonstrate their agility and antics to his audience.

Among his marionettes is "Cuckoo, the clown," equipped with no less than 28 strings. Others are "Greedy George," "Tippy Toes," and the "Oriental Juggler."

The accomplishments of the artist are varied. He is noted for his many books, illustrated by himself; his famous 150 foot animated murals for the New York World's Fair and the monster balloons in the Metropolitan Thanksgiving and Christmas parades.

To this colorful program, an innovation on Albright's campus, have been invited the graduating senior class, who are to be guests of the Alumni Association. Reservations should be made at the treasurer's office before noon tomorrow. The committee in charge of Alumni Day is H. LeRoy Bringer, Anna Benninger, Robert Work and Lydia Boland.

Greek Players To Present Antigone

Sophocle's Work Stars Hollenbach

Sophocle's ANTIGONE to be given tonight at 7 p. m. on the science hall steps, will mark the eighth anniversary of the performance of the play on Albright's campus in 1934.

The title role, Antigone, will be played by Margaret Hollenbach, with George Henry as Creon, Verna Fye as Ismene, Marjorie Frundt as Eurydice, Albert Falcone as Hae-

Day is done, gone the sun
From the hills, from the lakes,
From the sky.
All is well, safely rest,
God is nigh.

Just as this lovely little poem signifies the end of a perfect day, so does the commencement manifest to the graduating senior the end of four glorious years spent in preparing himself for the cold, cruel world. These years are perhaps the most memorable years of one's life and even the most hardy and blue-nosed graduate surely must feel some slight bit of emotional sorrow as he steps upon the threshold of life to take his place beside the rest of the workers of the world.

Many bonds which have increased in strength more and more as each year passed by will now be broken. Some of these breaks will be only temporary while others will be lost in the memoirs of time. Ties between friends, sweethearts, students and professors, and all kinds of pals will fade into the past. Of course some of these will again be reunited, but it is always so hard to say goodbye.

But not all of our thoughts at commencement are thoughts of sadness. There are two sides to everything—the dark side and the light side. Turning to the light side we see our seniors finding their places in the sun, we see them behind the wheel of progress striving to benefit mankind with the knowledge which they have acquired during their college years.

Doctors, lawyers, merchants—leaders all—come out of the doors of Albright and do their bit to make our world a better one in which to live. One more of their days is done; another day has now begun—a day in which the efforts of their preparatory days will take route and spring forth into a very bountiful and fruitful tree of satisfaction and reward.

We, the undergraduates of Albright, sincerely and in good faith hope for the best of success to be reaped by the graduating class of 1941. We know that you will not fail and will uphold the name and traditions of our alma mater in whatever capacity you choose to serve humanity. We are with you and pledge ourselves to follow in your footsteps when our time comes to give our all.

With this we say, pax vobiscum, bon foi, bon voyage, adieu—goodbye!

Roosevelt—Dictator?

By ART MCKAY

The declaration by our president last week of an unlimited emergency has set the stage for what is literally an unlimited expansion of defense production. The expansion, our administration contends, is the only way in which we can assure ourselves that the combined industrial resources of the United States and Great Britain will equal and surpass those of the axis powers.

What has happened since last Thursday serves well to illustrate the purpose of the administration. The House ways and means committee has begun its final draft of the defense tax bill. It isn't growing any smaller. It still looks like $3,600,000,000 and the burden is going to fall on everybody.

At Hyde Park, N. Y., Mr. Roosevelt signed the mandatory priorities bill. This puts not only defense plants but all industry under the potential control of the government and gives the president the power to subordinate civilian needs to entirely military needs. This means, for example, that the government can reduce at will the number of private automobiles which are being produced and put that productive capacity into armaments.

On top of this, a request was submitted to congress last Monday for legislation authorizing the president during the national emergency to requisition property of any kind "necessary to the national defense." This is a bill which gives the president the right to set a figure which he deems just compensation for any item when he considers it in the interest of national defense to do so. As one columnist has put it, all private (Continued on page 4, column 2)

STRICTLY PARTIAL

Hello, Folks.

Since this is the last issue of the Albrightian this term, let's start off with something cheerful. In Washington, the draft board officials are going Shakespeare—"To be or not to be," whether 'tis better to lower the draft limit and kill off this younger generation or to let things as they are and thus provide for the existence of future taxpayers.

Washington officials are also worried about the new super bomber that will be tested in a short time. The thing's so big that if they ever did decide to send Britain a few of them, they'd have a hard time finding a field in England large enough to hold one. Two senators crawled into the wing cat-walk for an inspection trip and nearly starved to death before they found their way out again. This goliath of the air carries everything but a golf course and a hostess for the parachute troops. Its range is so great that it could take off from New York at 3 p. m., blow Berlin off the map, and return home in time to hear Lowell Thomas tell about the Germans denying it. Even the Nazis admit that machine gun bullets would have little effect on this ship. They figure the best thing to do is to torpedo it. What's good enough for the British navy is good enough for this ship.

The last few weeks have been open house for the sharks of the north Atlantic. With both the Hood and the Bismarck ending their careers simultaneously, those scavengers of the seas must be putting on weight.

I don't know the name of the gent who designed the H. M. S. Hood, but as Doc Cook would say, "Boy, you'd better check your logarithms. There's a mistake somewhere!"

Well, the Germans have got about sewed up the campaign in Crete, thus ending one of the strangest battles of the war. It must have been a wonderful feeling for those young German parachutists, dressed in Australian uniforms, to bail out of a glider, barely escape having their throats cut by Cretan mountaineers, survive attacks by British, Greeks, Indians, and Arabs, and then be told by the high command that they'll have to go the same thing all over again at Alexandria.

The Italians have been strangely silent during the last few weeks. Just when they thought that they had secured their much coveted position in the new order, along came France and pushed them out of their No. 1 boot-licking position. The final blow will come when the "Mare Nostrium" becomes a "Mare Nazitrum." (The "I" is silent—and so is the Duce.)

So long, see you next year in a new "New Order."

Lion Teams Finish Average Season

Basketball Squad Makes Best Showing

Albright's athletic teams finished the sports year with a record of 23 wins against 22 defeats and one tie. The best record was compiled by the basketball team which rang up 14 decisions while losing nine.

Football, under Head Coach Lone Star Dietz and Line Coach Jim Horn and Neal O. Harris, came through a tough season with a .500 record, winning five and losing five. Highlight of the campaign was the 14-3 win over our ancient rivals, Muhlenberg, and the 19-0 conquest of Upsala. The scores:

Albright	24	Kutztown	7
Albright	0	Moravian	9

Basketball enjoyed its best season since 1932 when the Lion cagers under Neal Harris went through a long, hard 23 game schedule. The Red and White performers finished in a tie for second place in the Eastern Penn Collegiate League with Muhlenberg, the highest any Albright club ever placed. Prospects for next season appear good with Bill McKinney and Paul Petrucka, the lone starters to graduate. The scores:

Z O E Downs Kappas In Playoff Contest With 9-8 Win

Manderbach, Klein, Show Excellent Form On Pitching Mound

The Zetas copped the Intramural softball crown by edging the Kappas, 9-8, in a hotly contested playoff game. The Z. O. E. replace the Day Students, who claimed the trophy last year.

George Manderbach went the route for the Black and White while Baldy Klein toiled for the K. U. P. The Kappas scored six runs in the first inning on six hits and two errors and it looked like curtains for the new champs. The Zeta defense tightened with aid of several brilliant plays on the part of Lyn Brown and Paffy Carls, a speedy keystone combination, and the losers were held to five scattered bingles the rest of the way by Manderbach.

Coach Neal Harris Reports Prospects

Outstanding Stars Slated For '42

It may seem like a long time until the beginning of the basketball season to you but not to Coach Neal Harris. The cage mentor has already taken steps to insure Albright of having another good Frosh cage team.

Slated to enroll next September are five outstanding high school basketball performers.

Best of the lot appears to be six feet four inch Walter Houser from Emmaus High School. Walt was the center on the Emmaus team which copped the league championship. Another giant is Bill Dearden, center and end from Hershey Industrial High. Bill stands six three and weighs 210.

Richard Stark, another six foot, er, hails from Lititz High. Stark performed at forward on the club that advanced to the district playoffs of the Pennsylvania Scholastic League.

Two cagers from Berks County are Tom McDonough of Mt. Penn and Johnny Patricia of Hamburg High.

PAT's Win Softy Cap With 8-7 Victory

Whitehead Whiffs 20 Mu Batters

In the muddiest game of the year, the Pats nosed the Mu's out of a softball victory by a score of 8-7. At the end of the seventh inning, the score was 5-5. Then in the first half of the eighth inning, Weidner, Weaver, and Whitehead crossed the plate to bring the Pat score up to 8. The Mu's could muster only two more runs, although Elaine O'Shady did some very able sliding (in the mud), to say nothing about Kitty Geib. The star of the game was the pitcher, Esther Whitehead, who won the game almost single-handed by striking out 20 batters. In addition to this, "Whitey" produced four of her team's runs and batted in most of the others.

Juniors Win Class Crown

The Junior softball team walked off with honors in the class softball league by defeating the combined senior-soph team by a score of 12-5. Esther Whitehead's pitching arm did the trick.

Spirit of Science

Names make news, and so this year here at Albright, news has been made by some of the scientific greats of the day. This column wishes to pay tribute at this time to the organizations and individuals who were responsible for bringing many prominent men in the field of American science to our campus during the past year.

As we scan the roster of scientists who visited our campus during the past year, we revisualize Professor C. C. Furnas of Yale and his lecture on "Future Sources of Power" and Professor Haensch of Villanova and his lecture on "Spectrographic Analysis." Who can forget the startling pictures of a Caesarian operation presented by Dr. Deibert, one of our own alumni, and Dr. Leroy Gehris' lecture on "Appendicitis." This has been a successful year for the science department—a year of hard work and new achievements interspersed with frequent meetings with America's scientific greats who acted as a stimulus for further work. Your columnist sincerely hopes that this spirit of science will carry over into our new school year.

More About Success

The success of a science department is usually measured by the number of its seniors who are placed in responsible positions after graduation. All of our science departments have been very successful along this line as the following data reveals:

Chemistry Department

Red Sheffer—Wilson Products, Reading.

Dick Walton—Lehigh University.

Dick Ziegenfuss—Graselli Chemicals, Philadelphia.

Carl Yoder—Rustless Iron and Steel, Baltimore.

Harold Winterhalter—Rustless Iron and Steel, Baltimore.

Tom Frystock—American Cyanamide Co.

Marshall Popelka—Atlas Powder Co., Tamaqua.

property—from housewives' pots and pans to public utilities systems and railroads—falls under the scope of this legislation.

Bills of similar purport were many at the time of the last world war but this is the broadest power ever asked for by an administration in peace time.

One would expect loud cries of protest to rise as we take this new step on the road to our own dictatorship. Yet, instead, the mass of the American people is strangely lethargic. This observer for one DISAPPROVES of the legislation. It seems to be the adoption of just the thing we dread in Nazism and Fascism. Does the emergency justify this action? Is it not largely through the efforts of the administration that the fear of Nazism has been built up and an artificial emergency created? Are we not, under the legislation proposed, in real danger of all the evils that one-man rule can prompt? Can we trust Mr. Roosevelt to fulfill the will of the American people which is still overwhelmingly in favor of staying out of war?

The answer which these questions give will pave the road of our nation's future. No responsible student and citizen can think casually about such vital issues as these!

HOW TO GET AHEAD

Looking over the careers of our Bell executives, we have found one secret of their success.

They started at the bottom in humble jobs and worked their way up, step by step.

Every executive in this company has earned his job and learned his job by serving in the ranks.

Maybe that's one reason why Bell Service is good service. It's managed by men who know how to make your calls go through swiftly and surely at low cost.
