Domino Club Starts Rehearsal Of 'The White Steed'

To Present Irish Play
By John V. Carroll
On January 15 and 16

With the curtain barely rung down on THE RIVALS the Domino Club has started rehearsals for its next production, John Vincent Carroll's THE WHITE STEED. The play will be presented on January 15 and 16.

The play's interest depends mainly upon characterization and mood. The story is an Irish one centered around a bigoted minister, Father Shaughnessy, who has taken the place of the Canon, a good-humored, broad-minded clergyman who has become paralyzed. The struggles of Nora Fintry and Denis Dillon to break the narrow, fanatical bonds of Father Shaughnessy and his followers lead to a series of incidents that end when the Canon regains the use of his legs and Father Shaughnessy is forced to leave.

The cast of characters is: Canon, George Henry; Father Shaughnessy, O. Henry Hellstrom; Nora Fintry, Margaret Hollenbach; Denis Dillon, Jerome Denner; Phelim Fintry, Donald Blackmore; Roseanne, Margaret Thompson; Meg, Ruth Ennis; and Shivers, Warren Engle.

IRC Members To Attend Conference

Eastern Groups Meet
In Washington, Dec. 20, 21

The Middle Atlantic conference of International Relations Clubs will be held at Georgetown University, Washington, D. C., on December 20 and 21.

Albright will be represented by Patricia Smith, Paul Ackert, Seymour Mendelsohn, Christos Bratiotis, and Dr. Hamilton, faculty adviser for the club.

There will be four round tables with the following general themes:

1. The European Theatre of War.
2. Our Neighbors to the South.
3. Power and Policies in the Far East.
4. Democracy.

In addition, there will be special speakers and a general conference meeting presided over by Miss Amy Heminway Jones, Secretary of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

PAT's Hold Winter Formal

The P.A.T.'s held their winter formal in the ballroom of the Wyoming Club, Friday evening. Music for the couples was furnished by the Royal Manhattans. Chaperones were Miss Ruth Shafer, Mrs. John Smith, and Professor and Mrs. Danford.

German Students To Present Annual Christmas Play Sunday

Traditional Drama Is Succeeded By Modern Play

The German Club will present its annual Christmas play in the college chapel on Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock. Departing from the traditional "Weihnachtspiel" based on the Biblical story, the club will present a modern play, "Froehliche Weihnachte."

The plot centers around a family named Silva. Martin Silva, sick and in straitened circumstances, finds it necessary to send his son, Andre, to his brother, Johann, a prosperous merchant, for help. Johann, who is kind to his own daughter, Margaret, will do nothing for his brother or his brother's child. He tries to persuade Andre to sell his pet lamb to obtain money. Satan, or the Tempter, also tries to influence Andre. Finally Christ appears and effects a conversion upon Johann, who repents and helps his brother. The play is then drawn to a happy conclusion.

The characters are as follows: Harold Werner, Andre; Charles Miesse, Johann Silva; Geraldine Ross, Margaret; Roy Sharnan, Martin Silva; Richard Major, the doctor; Byron Eberly, the druggist; Carl Fredericks, the Tempter; John Hertz, Christ; and Ethel Mae Yeakel, Angel. A chorus of girls will sing between the acts of the play and there will be carols by the audience. Dr. Gerritt Memming is director of the play.

4 Debaters To Join TKA Honor Society

Initiation Planned For Monday Night

Albright Chapter of Tau Kappa Alpha, national honorary debating society, will hold its annual initiation in the alumni room Monday night.

Four new members to be inducted are: Olga Bitler, Seymour Mendelsohn, Donald Blackmore, and Dennis Strawbridge.

Dr. John B. Douds, secretary of the local chapter, will officiate at the ceremony. Present membership includes William Bottonari, David Levan, and Charles Miesse.

Philosophers Discuss Hitler, Nietzsche

The Philosophy Club invited students and faculty to their first open meeting last night at 8 o'clock in the lower social hall. Rollin Reiner, president of the club, presented a paper on "Hitler and Nietzsche." After the paper was read, the group discussed the relationship between the philosophy of Nietzsche and Hitler's policies.

Vacation Starts Thursday, Ends Monday, January 6

This year's Christmas vacation will get under way after the last class next Thursday, according to the college catalogue. It will continue for two and a half weeks, ending on Monday, January 6, at 8 o'clock in the morning.

Debate Squad Begins Home Stand Monday

To Argue With Ursinus On Britain—U. S. Union

Debating activities on campus will begin Monday night when forensic squads from Albright and Ursinus Colleges will meet in chapel at 8 o'clock.

Seymour Mendelsohn and William Bottonari will argue for the immediate formation of a Union between the United States and the British Commonwealth of Nations.

The debate will be the orthodox style, with each speaker presenting a constructive speech and a rebuttal.

Pi Gamma Mu Adds 6 Members To Rolls

Six new members were admitted to Pi Gamma Mu at the monthly meeting Wednesday at 4:30 p. m. in the lower social hall. Juniors who met requirements for membership in the national honorary social science fraternity were: Marie Bertolet, William Bottonari, Jean Bongardner, Mary Levan, Seymour Mendelsohn, and Woodrow Witmer. Marjorie Lebo presided.

James Snelbaker Elected President Of Freshman Class

96 Votes Cast In Election Conducted By Student Council

James Snelbaker of Mechanicsburg, is president of the freshman class. Collecting 51 of the 96 votes cast during the election on Tuesday, Snelbaker won the honor of leading the yearlings for the next term.

Saul Pokrass of Towanda, was elected vice president with 47 votes; Rillie Lee Wright of Johnstown, was named secretary with the same number of votes; and Vester Peters of Philadelphia, was elected treasurer with 42 votes.

The election had no real fights for any of the offices. It was conducted by Student Council under the direction of Woodrow Witmer. The balloting follows:

President	Votes
James Snelbaker	51
Jacob Wagner	24
John Woynarowski	18
Polly Walls	2
Richard Major	1
Vice President	Votes
Saul Pokrass	47
Lewis Smith	33
Paul Kimmel	16
Secretary	Votes
Rillie Lee Wright	47
Robert Hertzog	24
Betty Muller	24
Treasurer	Votes
Vester Peters	42
Richard Major	30
Ralph Frymoyer	24

Dear Ma: I'm Loansom and Am Wroughting for Doughnations...

Albright student teachers have their own collection of classroom boners. Teaching isn't as dull as it's cracked up to be. Here's some of the latest wisdom "out of the mouths of babes."

The youngsters are getting their own styles in spelling these days. "Writting" still gets its shares of votes, but someone tried a new one — "wroughting." "Doughnations" shows startling originality, and "Loansom" has interesting implications.

A junior high school English class wrote these descriptions: "She had a nose like rubber that moved when the wind blew." "He meant to get a head when he met the right girl." Apparently he met the girl or got the head, for—"After he got married he became allergic, gay, and happy."

Book reports yielded a rich harvest: We always wondered about that Ross woman. Now we know—"Betsy Ross was called a rebel because she did so much for America." Even Barrie doesn't escape unscathed — "Margaret Ogilvy was written by her son as a memorandum to his mother." "The tree-toed sloth is something crossed between a bear and a monkey." (Thanks. We thought it was something from a crossed-word puzzle.) France got its share of mistakes: "France was Madame Curie's adoped country." Maybe that's the word for France right now. "Lafayette was Washington's right-handed man." No leftists there!

The authors came in for some bungling, too. "His words are very skillful and choice in appearance." "The author wrote the book on the typewriter and since she could not read it, did a wonderful job." That's an idea for those who can't write themes.

Now we'd like to hear the college boners. How about it, students? Are you willing to let us ask the profs what you say? We'll bet Dr. Gingrich could tell us!

Potpourri

By ROBERT L. WORK

This is the season for magazine subscription renewals. Every day brings sheaves of letters which tell one how much he must have enjoyed THE magazine during the past year, how much he will miss it if he doesn't "detach and mark and mail at once," as well as how much of an almost unbelievable store of goodies can be found in the January issue. Some letters cloy, some topple over backwards trying to be unusual, some annoy, some display that haughty note about "already expired;" and then some—good job—are well enough written to brighten a morning's openings.

Here is one selected from last week's mail:

Dear Subscriber,

Have you heard about the Hippocratic pledge for Saturday Review Subscription people, devised many years ago by Christopher Morley—a pledge taken every year at Christmas time by those whose dutiful pleasure in life is to tell you "it is later than you thought."

"I faithfully promise," it reads, "not to buttonhole, back-slap or tutory the subscribers in the jovial manner of most Subscription Engineers. Not to cajole, intimidate, seduct or emulsify them with statements of How They Can Save by Renewing Now; and How Marvelous The Saturday Review will be for the next Twelve Months."

Upon you, dear Reader—your acumen, your good taste, your promptitude—depends the fate of at least one honest man. You can make possible an unbroken Pledge by proving our point—that you are one of the wise to whom a word is sufficient. The word: your subscription needs renewing.

Yours, and a Merry Christmas!
(Signed) GEORGE DILKES,
Subscription Manager.

That's not all. Attached to the red and green return envelope which arrived under separate cover is a bit more of the SRofL flavor. It is entitled "An Inside Tip" and it goes as follows:

Whatever else you do on your lifelong tour,

Use THE SATURDAY REVIEW OF LITERATURE!

It will easily cure intellectual strabismus—

So we hand you this sonnet, with a "Merry Christmas!"

The Snooper

By Anne Gnymous

The campus romances welcome the advent of the indoor season tonight. Boyer's grille reopens. (P. S.—plug).

We admired the horticultural display in one of our cheerleader's coiffure last week. We envy you, Whitey.

What happened to the marines on Saturday night?

Something old—the Snooper's jokes.

Something new—the shadow! Did he?

Something borrowed—Horn's car.

Something blue—the wind. (Apple-ogies to Henry)

Jack Boardman's nights are "sunny," believe it or not!

Joe Gillis running the post office department ragged with three letters at once. Hmmm.

Skip Gasser cycling our feminine pul-pulch—our gals.

Quotes of the "weak"—Unidentified frosh—"Who the (ensored) is Jerry Ross?"

Identified frosh—"Really!"

Mr. Harris (after the West Chester game)—"Whew!"

Dr. Milton Geil (confessing)—"Thirteen dollars and seventy-five cents. Don't gamble."

Verna Fye and Olin Shirey—" (sigh) ah-h."

Don Blackmore and Emma Cora Hafer—" (ditto)."

Jerome Denner—"Hm."

Somebody must be slipping. Titus didn't make the Albrightian at all, last week.

When Donald Floyd told Dr. Memming that the men bid for the women, Dr. Memming wondered why men would want to bite women. We do too!

Brice and Bachman go to Millers' for ice cream every day. Yes . . . We said Millers'????

SONNET

Sonnets Will Wordsworth praised (as did not Browning!)

And now another bard their use extends

To urge a Merry Christmas for your friends

Under an aegis that forbids their frowning.

Really, old dear, I'm not the least bit clowning!

Does ever the wrong present find amends?

All realize—for the little coin one spends—

Your gift prevents an intellectual drowning!

Rapids of books roll by on either hand,

Each one enigma to the general reader,

Vain guesswork as to worth and species too!

Christmas comes but . . .

Here I sit in a restaurant of a large department store in Philadelphia . . . completely holidayeyes . . .

Over you is a decorated tree—it seems to pine so for everyone (fir goodness sake) . . . now that I'm all spruced up, I think I'll balsam . . . Oak-a, but I had to pun on the tree of them.

Here are some suggestions for Christmas shoplifting (how'd that get in there?) . . . First you say, "Where shall we go, Wanamaker?" . . . Then after four innocent-looking ladies have turned around and given you the glare eye for being fresh, you enter The Philadelphia Store . . .

In profound littleness, you gaze up at huge decorations and think you're one for whom the bells tolled. Wishshsh . . . and you find yourself looking at everything from a second edition of Ben Hur to a bottle of perfume priced at a thousand berries . . . (Many a small twist cup and gel) . . .

One now uses the new escalators . . . feeling quite silly, just standing there while the second floor comes down to you . . . Much nicer, tho,—one elevator was so crowded, the woman in front of me stepped on her foot and I slapped my face . . . Hope, that went over . . .

Finally got out of the store for a spot of fresh air and was interviewed as a survivor . . . then walked down Market Street . . . looked like a visiting Santa Claus' Convention . . . one on every corner—the pot of cold program . . .

But then my mother wanted to (ah hah—you're catching on now?) well anyhow, she wanted (I'm not kidding you now, it was my mother), well she wanted (it was!) to look at Gimbel's where the crowd was amusing some clowns in the window (it was!) . . .

Vendors were selling every and anything on one busy corner. A cop got pushed on a platform and was sold for $1.98 before he could get down . . .

By this time the shades of night had fallen . . . but I'd seen enough . . .

This week your columnist has some facts of interest to point out which were found purely by accident while aimlessly paging about in the public library. You may have had the idea that Albright College is a small insignificant school. It may please you to know that three of its professors are listed in the book, American Men of Science—1938. The professors are Professors Walton, Horn and Cook.

This week we shall publish the writeup of just one of these men and each of the others in successive editions. The summary follows: Walton, Professor George Willever, 1602 N. 14th St., Reading, Pa. Geology. Born—Irvington, N. J., Oct. 9, 1892. Ph.B., Lafayette College, 1915; M.S., Cornell, 1924. Dept. nat. science, high school, Pa., 1915-17; prof. of biology and geology, Albright College, 1917-28, professor of botany and geology, and dean, 1928—A. A.; Penna. Academy. Biology.

This is a summary of the highlights of science of our dean of men. Next week—Professor Clarence A. Horn.

On Monday evening, December 9, the Skull and Bones Society was entertained by a speaker from the Philadelphia College of Osteopathy, who presented slides and topics on the Mechanical Causes of Disease. The points discussed were tumors of the esophagus, cancer, gallstones, appendicitis, and stomach ulcers. The meeting had quite a large attendance.

If a friend takes our coat, what will an enemy do, eh, E. W.?

The Hiking Club took a hike over the Deer Path Trail on Saturday morning, December 7.

We have heard that a certain senior football man (?) took his first knitting lesson at the Skull and Bones meeting. What is this world coming to?

Doctor Cook has the formula for a perfect wife! From all appearances this would make a quite long research problem for some science major. That woman has and does everything. Where can we find one, Doctor?

Here's hoping dep't: Not too many exams before vacation.

Dr. Hamilton Fetes History Students

Advanced students in history were guests for dinner at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Milton W. Hamilton last Sunday evening. Guests included Dr. Gurney Clemens, curator of the Historical Society of Berks County; Mrs. Clemens, Jean Weissinger, Mary Klein, Charles Mallin, Charles Weslager, Seymour Mendelsohn, Paul Petrucca, John Boardman and William Bottonari.

In addition to an informal discussion with Dr. Clemens, the group was entertained by several piano selections by Dr. Hamilton's daughter, Gwendolyn.

Cats To Snarl At Northwest

Albright's unimpressive 31-28 win over West Chester last Saturday has caused plenty of varied comment both on and off campus. Many of the fans, after reading about the lopsided 71-47 victory over the Wilson Teachers, expected the Lions to run roughshod over the smartly-coached Rams. When the young, relatively inexperienced (as far as real collegiate competition is concerned) Red and White quintet failed to live up to Regar Sweet Shop style, the fans naturally began asking questions and wondering why the boys scored so few points. Their line of thought ran this way: If this is practically the same team that won 15 out of 16 contests last season, winning most by topheavy scores, what has happened to their scoring punch? Perhaps the answer was that someone had been tampering with their style of play that of breaking fast and generally playing a wide open offensive game.

But, any real basketball observer could see that this was not the case at all. First, the West Chester team knew the type of game played by our boys and therefore had two men in the back court practically the whole game. Those two men naturally kept the Lions from using their fast break plays until the very end of the game when the Rams were so tired they couldn't get back to their defensive positions fast enough to stop the perpetual motion of our speedsters. In the second place, the

Sophomore Lions Out To Shatter Villanova Jinx Tomorrow Night

Seton Hall Snaps Win Streak, 49-44

Albright's breezy court quintet entered the big league on Wednesday night. And, as the saying goes, "they made good." The score book gave them the short end of a 49-44 score, with Seton Hall clutching the 49. But a five-point margin is nothing to sneeze at in any man's league.

Going on the road after a breath-taking 31-28 win over West Chester Teachers in the Northwest Palestra last Saturday, the Lions came home on Thursday morning with an average of .666 for the season thus far. They'll try to boost it to .750 tomorrow night when the Wildcats from Villanova make their 1940-1941 debut in Reading.

To date the Main Liners have registered impressive victories over St. Francis, 38-30, and Rider, 38-27. They will tangle with Ursinus tonight.

Big gun of the Albright attack in South Orange on Wednesday was lanky Dick Shollenberger, who connected for 15 corners. Helping the cause was Kenny Hopkins, shifty back-court performer, who garnered an even dozen points.

Russelmen Cop 24th Straight
Pace setters of the Honey Russel-coached Bucs were Bob Davies and Bob Fisher who tucked away 22 tallies between them. It was the second straight conquest of the season for Seton Hall's hardwood performers, and the twenty-fourth in a row since late in the 1938-1939 season.

Getting off to a good start in the early minutes of play, the Lions began to slip midway in the chapter. At half-time the scoreboard read: Seton Hall, 22; Albright, 15.

After eight minutes of play in the second half, things started to happen to the "sweet shop" boys. Hopkins bulged the rim three times and followed up with a free heave; Shollenberger cased a pair of one-handers through the bucket and made good a charity flip; Jim Kane added another gratis toss, and Paul Petrucka donated a set shot. With the score at 33-29, Chin Rhoads made his contribution, a one-armed stab at the net for two points. But that's where the threat ended.

Capitalizing on the breaks, Davies, Fisher & Company did some fancy ball-handling to remain out of the Lions' reach until the final whistle.

The loss was a letdown after a brace of wins in the last two weeks. The West Chester triumph was an uphill climb that had more than 1,500 fans working Wrigley's elastic creation to the limit. Only in the final minutes of play did the Lions come from behind to dominate the final score.

The frosh game with West Chester was a killer-diller, also. A last-minute rally by the Cubs didn't reach quite far enough, as West Chester copped, 27-25.

A P O's Spank Day Students, 45-9; Pi Tau's Prevail Over Freshmen, 23-15

The Kappas threw a bombshell into the inter-fraternity league Wednesday night when they buried the defending champion Zetas under a 48-17 landslide. Waldo Eshelman paced the victors with 13 points, closely followed by Stanley Rozanski with 11.

Steve Plaskonos and Stan Kuklis led the APO's to a decisive 45-9 victory over the helpless Day Students with 16 and 12 counters, respectively. In the only other game, the Pi Taus punished the Frosh Dorm, 23-15. Bill Bollinger spearheaded the victors with seven tallies.

Girls Start Basketball Practice

To Arrange Schedule For Campus Teams

Girls sports at Albright have entered a new sphere. The basketball season opened last Friday when the initial practice was held.

The program this winter will be similar to last year's, with the intra-mural loop predominating. An extensive schedule will be prepared on the basis of classes, sororities, and day students. A series of games will also be arranged for a girls' varsity squad.

Archery is progressing, too. Under the direction of Miss Norton and Phyllis Kaltreider, the bow wielders have been working out in a downtown range.

With tournament competition in the not too distant future, the girls are looking for matches with local archery clubs, nurses from the Reading Hospital, and teams from other colleges. In addition, teams will be organized on campus for intra-mural shooting.

From All Angles (Continued from page 3)

West Chester team was underestimated while the Lions were overrated by the local fans. If you examine the past records, the Teacher Frosh was the only freshman team besides Villanova to give the present varsity any kind of a battle. The scores of the two games played last season were 39-36 and 44-25; the first game was mighty close as you can see. And don't forget, Albright dropped two varsity games to Glen Killinger's team last season.

So, instead of trying to find where the fault lies, let's pick out the fine points of Saturday's contest. The youngsters came from behind fighting an up-hill battle for most of the game and coming out on top. That in itself showed that the squad this year can come from behind to win. Maybe the large crowd, expecting an easy win, gave the boys the jitters. But give them credit for overcoming the shakes and winning. The only criticism that is probably justified is poor foul shooting. We can't see the fans' criticism that the coach is tampering with the players' style. Coach Ned O. Harris is in the coaching game long enough to know how dangerous it is to change a good player's style. He didn't tamper with them when they were freshmen, so why would he tamper with them now?? No, instead of being a little disappointed let's be a little proud of our team. Tomorrow night's game with Villanova is going to be plenty tough and the team needs our whole-hearted support.

Our prediction that the opening game's attendance would be larger than last season's largest crowd, came true. The West Chester game attracted 1500 fans, almost twice as many as last season's record and almost three times as many as the opening game last year.
