

Students to Perform Tonight For D.P. Benefit Program

Jay Shenk, chairman of the D.P. Committee, has announced the program for the Student Variety Show to be held tonight in Union Hall at 8 p.m.

Dorothy Rath will present a skit; followed by a vocal solo by Richard Cattermole, Ralph Stutzman and Richard Stinson will do a specialty act; next will be "Handsome Harry" Nelson and the Masked Killer in a wrestling act. Seconds will be Grenville Lewis and Jerry Pedota, with Donald Repsher as the referee.

Hypnosis to Boogie

After classical selections on the piano by Robert White, John Faussnacht will give a demonstration of hypnotism, followed by Jules Minker's boogie woogie on the 88's. Sigrid Richter and her pals will give a skit—the melodramatic vein.

Ethel Harris will render a vocal solo and June Christman and Kazuye Kiyono will follow with an original skit. Barbara Mogel is next on the program, followed by the "girls of the chorus"—William Krohto, Michael Plasskonos, Bernard Koskolitz, Robert Bernhard, Chauncy Kraut and Walt Drzak.

Celebrities Will Serenade

"Your Bedtime Skit with Phyllis and Kit" will be enacted by Kathleen Guenther and Phyllis Guldin. Music will be played by the Celebrities; the M.C.'s will be Jack Snook and Shenk. William Marlow is in charge of publicity.

The Variety Show is a follow-up of the Faculty Stunt Night held last week, which raised one hundred dollars for the fund to bring two D.P. students to the Albright campus next fall. In all, twelve hundred dollars is needed to finance two students for a year, since the Administration will pay their tuition.

Senate Nominates Coombs, Moerder For President Job

Women's Student Senate announced the nomination of Janet Coombs and Hazel Moerder for next year's presidency at its meeting Wednesday night. Both women are juniors and are at present serving on the Senate, Miss Coombs representing the Daywomen and Miss Moerder the Dorm Women.

Senate also voted to purchase a radio-phonograph for the Selwyn Parlor and to participate in Mardi Gras in order to raise money for the support of its war orphan for the coming year. The Dorm Women informed the Senate that they are going to sell note paper in order to raise money for the orphan.

Shirley Miller reported that negotiations have been made to order a motion picture to be presented in Chapel by the Senate.

I.R.C. to Send Delegates to Model U. N. Assembly

Dr. Milton Hamilton announced at Wednesday night's meeting of the International Relations Club that the Albright delegates to the Model General Assembly to be held March 30 and 31 and April 1 at Rutgers University will be Robert Harper, Beverly Bresler, Christian Zander and Violette Seibert.

Albright has been assigned to represent Brazil at the assembly, in which 52 colleges and universities will participate. The delegations are divided into four committees: political, Harper, economic, Miss Bresler; social and humanitarian, Zander; and regional problems, Miss Seibert. In preparation for the event, the club last night heard reviews, prepared by its members, on the Brazilian attitudes toward the problems on the agenda.

Stassen to Speak

Before the assembly begins, the delegates will hear an address by Harold E. Stassen, President of the University of Pennsylvania, and an American Representative to the San Francisco Conference which produced the U.N. Charter. Top assignments have gone to Columbia University, representing the U.S., and the University of Pennsylvania, representing the Soviet Union.

In preparation for this conference, some of the delegates and their advisor, Dr. Hamilton, visited the U.N. last Tuesday and interviewed the Brazilian delegates.

Last year Albright represented the U.S. at the assembly, which was held at Cornell.

Australian Ambassador to US Stresses Value of Trust in God

The rich and wonderful gifts of prosperity in which Americans share should be consecrated by the lives of good men and women, the Hon. Norman J. Makin, Australian Ambassador to the United States and outstanding Christian leader, told a large chapel audience last Tuesday. "Everyone should contribute to the betterment of life," he said. "There is a great need for courage and trust in God.

Although he called the present subject to uncertainties, the speaker said that these are wonderful days to have the privilege of living in. "This is the period of all times," he said, referring to the fact that if he could choose any period in history in which to live, he would choose the present. "The present is challenging to men and women of purpose and character, who have no need to fear," he stated.

Progress to Destruction

The Hon. Mr. Makin lamented the fact that the things which progress has brought about in this century have been sources of annihilation and destruction instead of instruments for the enrichment of life. He attributed this wrong application to man's own incapability of determining God's all-wise purpose. He called a good character the basic requirement for success. Trustworthiness and reliability are fundamental attributes of all men in positions of leadership.

A tremendous task is involved in reforming life, the ambassador declared. He cited the problem of the Displaced Persons, who have no home or purpose to guide them. Patience and honest effort were declared the things necessary to help them.

The speaker cited several incidents in his life which attest to the value of prayer.

The Hon. Mr. Makin was brought to the Albright campus through the efforts of the local Optimists Club.

Walt Hayum '50 'Cue' Head; Werley Business Manager

Student Council yesterday elected Walter Hayum editor of next year's Cue and John Werley business manager after Frank Bird announced that these two were the choice of the Junior Class as expressed in its election Tuesday after chapel.

Hayum, who was editor of his high school paper, did public relations work while in the army and has been a member of the feature staff of The Albrightian for three years. He has been the director of the Radio Workshop for two years and is vice president of Delta Phi Alpha, Honorary German Fraternity. He is a member of Pi Tau Beta, Domino Club and the International Relations Club.

Werley Class Treasurer

Currently business manager of The Albrightian, Werley was on the business staff of the paper two years prior to being appointed to the post. He is also treasurer of the Junior Class.

Due to general confusion over interpretation of the Student Council Constitution on the subject of election of Cue officers, Council last week requested that the Junior Class hold an election to determine its choice for the positions. However, the Constitution gives the final choice to Council; therefore, a vote was taken in which Hayum and Werley were confirmed.

When interviewed by The Albrightian, Hayum said, "I'm grateful and appreciative of the confidence bestowed upon me. Through the cooperation of a creative staff we can construct a worthwhile and representative Cue. However, it is not merely the job of the editor, but of the staff; every senior who is interested in Cue work will be needed."

Campus Groups Get in the Swim For Sports Night

Today is the deadline for the leaders of all groups participating in the Sports Carnival to submit the names of their representatives in the various contests to Ralph Stutzman and Jean Long, co-chairmen of the "Y"-sponsored event to be held in Union Hall on Saturday evening, March 26, at 8 o'clock. Students not actively associated with fraternity and sorority groups may participate under the colors of the Daymen, Daywomen, Dorm women or boarding men.

Competition Stiff

Reports indicate that the contestants have been training all week. Although each of the groups has predicted victory, the final results still seem very much in doubt. Competition is particularly keen between the Phi Beta Mu and Pi Alpha Tau Sororities in the women's contests, and between the Daymen and Pi Tau Beta Fraternity in the men's division.

Proceeds from the Carnival, to which the entire student body is invited, will help to defray the expenses of bringing two Displaced Persons to Albright next year. The co-chairmen have urged that the participating groups keep in mind today's deadline for the submission of names of their representatives.

Students Compete In Speech Contest Daymen Nominate Two for President

"A College Graduate's Debt to Society" will be the topic discussed in the College Chapel on Wednesday, March 23 at 8:00 p.m. by eight students competing for the Charles S. Kelchner Oratorical Prize of fifteen dollars. In previous years this contest was open only to Juniors.

Judges Named

Dr. John B. Douds, Prof. Clyde A. Harding, and Mr. Willard A. Haas will judge the contest. The students, chosen for the speech classes are: Owen J. Davis, Gordon Glockly, William Shine, Joan Laveson, Elmer Good, Mary Ellen Schuman, John Minnick and one other student whose name has not yet been announced.

Pan American Day

Members of La Sociedad Cultural Espanola planned for their Pan American Day presentation scheduled for March 28, when they met on Monday, March 14. Joyce Thompson, general chairman, announced that all Spanish students will participate in this annual affair.

Staff to Bring Dilzer To Albright Tuesday

Veteran sports writer, Harry "Doc" Dilzer, will be the speaker in the third of a series of talks for The Albrightian Staff, next Tuesday, March 22, at 4 p.m. in Room 106 of the Ad Building. With the Pottstown News Mercury Herald, from 1930-1943, Dilzer is now featured sports writer for the Reading Times. Everyone is cordially invited to attend this meeting, which was formerly scheduled for March 15.

Reformed Minister To Be Vesper Guest

The Rev. Sheldon Mackey, pastor of Second Reformed Church, will speak at Student-Faculty Vespers on Sunday afternoon, March 27, at 5 o'clock in the College Chapel. Following this service a buffet supper will be held in the College Dining Hall.

Day students may secure their tickets for the supper in the Treasurer's Office during the week prior to the service. This will be the fourth Vesper service on the 1948-49 calendar.

Now or Never

In a recent survey on academic dishonesty taken on our campus, 50% of the 58 people questioned thought that stricter proctoring and better professors would eliminate or ameliorate cheating in exams, daily lessons, term papers, etc. Yet only two people observed that the problem lay in individual moral standards. There is no need, we feel sure, in our lecturing. You can easily see what conclusions we are going to draw. In a democracy, we must rely on the individual's development of his own personality. Should we not expect the highest level of development in college students, who have had so much more time, so many more opportunities, to develop? Many students pointed out that competition is too stiff. Our observation is that competition is not stiff enough if students are in college who cannot get through without cheating. The observation was also often made that too much stress is placed on grades. Here is one area in which we thoroughly agree, and yet, we must add that if students are not willing to accept responsibility for their own personality development in general, and specifically, their own academic honesty, we cannot expect any new system which places even more responsibility on the individual student, such as a passing or failing grading system, to be a success. When do we begin?

Write Your Congressman

The administration is learning that campaign promises are more easily made than kept. The "do-nothing" 80th Congress has been succeeded by one which thus far has done less than nothing. The biggest obstacle blocking our path to the higher minimum wage, national health insurance, repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act, and civil rights legislation, is the current Senate filibuster. The Administration, anticipating a filibuster on the motion to introduce Civil Rights legislation, attempted to make it possible to limit debate on motions to introduce bills, and was confronted by the filibuster in defense of filibuster. The filibuster, like John L. Lewis, rears its head periodically, gives the columnists a little something to write about, causes voices to be lifted in righteous anger, and creates material for radio comedians. But this particular talkathon, unlike the mining czar, has caused only the mildest sort of visible perturbation among the administration leaders. To all outward appearances, a handful of senators are successfully thwarting the will of the people, as expressed last November. But on closer examination, one finds little evidence of any real sense of frustration among the Democratic Party leaders. They do not appear alarmed. This apparent complacency may mean that Truman and his deputies are supremely confident that their program will go through in spite of all obstacles. It may mean something else; that most of the Democratic leaders had no intention of seriously attempting to pass Truman's campaign program. Those who hold the latter view, point out that Truman had little hope of winning the election; that he therefore felt he could make promises freely; that he made them too freely and is now reluctant to swing as far to the left as he did in his campaign. We do not know which view is nearer the truth. Events will tell. In the meantime we can console ourselves with the thought that the Administration has inspired the creation of one thing: Servants of Brotherhood. J. M.

Love?

Spring was in the air, and John Needu was in love. There could be no doubt in anyone's mind about that, because love was shining on John's face. In fact, love kept his heart and soul so warm that he no longer took his nightly walk to "Slappy Harry's". John was well equipped to fall in love. For one thing, he was getting old, twenty-two in fact, and everyone told him, he had no time to lose. So John searched and searched, for he was afraid that he would not find his one great love before reaching his twenty-third birthday. Not only was he worried by his rapidly passing youth, but his friend Bill, age twenty-four and father of four happy youngsters, had always told him that the best girls are engaged by the time they reached twenty. (Imagine how happy John was when he met his one and only. He was happy because he met her in a truly romantic fashion: she fell off a bus, and he pulled her back from an oncoming five ton truck. Not only was she very pretty, but she was just nineteen and not engaged. Her name was Susan, and she used MaxFactor make-up, attended college, was the daughter of a bank executive and believed in the superiority of men. How could a combination like this fail? John was stunned, and quickly, before the mirage would have a chance to vanish before his eyes, he proposed, was accepted, and became officially engaged. All that merely as an introduction to the causes of John's love.

She Liked Steak Too

Now with spring in the air, John felt especially happy. He waited outside one of the classrooms anxious for Susan to come out, hand him her books and ask perky: "John dear, let's go see 'Beat Me Baby, I'm Solid.' Or perhaps she would suggest going to church, since after all it was Lent and the minister had such a soothing voice. John sighed in a relaxed spirit of contentment. He looked at his watch and realized with annoyance that he had to wait a full fifteen minutes until Susan would come out of her class. He thought impatiently of Susan and all they had in common. He liked steak; Susan liked steak. She loved to receive orchids; he loved to give orchids. The bell indicated the end of class, and interrupted John's thoughts. Susan stood in the doorway, looking around for John, and upon seeing him rushed up to him and purred: "John dear, it's been a whole fifty minutes since I last saw you!" Touched, John reached for her books, and arm in arm they walked off for their afternoon coffee at the cafeteria.

Time Passes

Ten years later, at thirty-three, John is married and father of three children. He has developed somewhat of a sagging midriff and a certain amount of financial security, despite the handicap of having some charge-accounts a town. He is respectable in every way, and also bored. Susan has lost her glowingly youthful look, gained several noticeable pounds, and thinks that John would, by now at least, be Vice President of

DANDY LIONS

She was in the library studying for a test when we finally found her, but she graciously said she could spare a few minutes. Who? Mary Bechtel.

Dandy comes in the small-size package, but you know that saying about small packages. The possessor of nice friendly brown eyes and sweet smile, she makes people feel very much at ease with her easy-spoken manner, a gift which many might envy.

Mary, majoring in English and German and minoring in History, fills in a number of extra hours by participation in the many organizations to which she belongs. Sigma Tau Delta claims her as secretary, and for the Pi Alpha Tau Sorority, Mary reigns as vice-president, also representing the sorority on Student Council. In addition, she belongs to the Day Women's Organization and German Club. We inferred that nice things come in small packages and others must agree, for our Dandy was one of the six senior girls to be chosen as members of the Court of Honor for this year's May Day festivities.

In her spare time (she says, as she tips her head in the typical Mary Bechtel fashion, "What's spare time?") Mary is interested in knitting, reading, and dancing. She likes to play cards, particularly pinochle, and, please note, would be especially happy if someone would teach her how to play bridge. She has a passion for most sports, as a spectator, that is, but "hates" wrestling.

After graduation Mary plans for a career of either teaching or library work. In either field she's bound to be a successful Dandy Lion. Someone once wrote that "Mary's a grand old name." The name really fits the personality, for Mary's a grand girl, and we wish her the best of everything.

Bethlehem Steel. She has just gotten through an article from HARPER'S magazine, dated 1949, in which a public opinion survey declares that out of ten-thousand married couples interviewed, only 43% would remarry their present partners if they could do it all over again. She agrees mentally, and thinks: "Perhaps we just didn't have enough in common!" He thinks: "Too late for me but . . ." "John Jr., come here!" he shouts. "John my boy," he paused, "for your own benefit my boy, learn to beware of spring!" W. W. H.

Dear Mora

March 18, 1948

My Dear Mora, I am so glad to hear that you are coming to Albright College next fall. Our Director of Public Relations gave each of us the name of an incoming Freshman to write to in order to acquaint you with goings and comings at Albright and the city of Reading. (That director is really on his toes. He lost his heels last year while scurrying down the outside steps to put an Albright poster on the side of a passing bus. I wouldn't want to be in his shoes.) I hope our correspondence will really help you to adjust to college life.

Our Buildings

Having spent a whole year and my family's fortune here, I feel that I am qualified to explain it all to you. Regrettably there are two mysterious buildings on the east side of campus which I haven't yet dared to penetrate. They are high above the rest of the college and one rarely sees again those who enter.

Otherwise our expansion program is succeeding. Right now we watch with interest, the new addition to the Library which will hold an additional 25,000 books. Already some students have altruistically made their contributions. Before the cement was dry, John Slowflect leaned over too far while looking at it and the pile of books in his arms unbalanced him.

Our Professors

And now, for some professors here. My favorite one, recalled from retirement, teaches all the left-over courses, which would have been deleted. I gaze wistfully at the small bald-headed man when he trots blissfully from the African Philosophy 32 1/2-A, to his ambo in the morning. I'm very impressionable he assumes the characteristics of his subjects. This afternoon I saw him trotting from his equestrian anatomy class prancing highly-spiritedly and sneezing. Of course, each of us has his Achilles heel and Dr. Polytheme is no exception. He mumbles terribly, although heaven knows, he can't help it. He has an impediment, usually a cigar, but in then on-prolific seasons, a pipe. We all love him so.

We Can't Have Everything

Of course not all professors are so ideal. We have just drawn up a petition asking that Professor Excuse (one of the few legitimate Excuses) be dropped from the Faculty. He is a mess—a twenty-five year old bachelor, who has all the manliness of Laurence Olivier, the serene handsomeness of Montgomery Cliff, the friendliness of Charles Boyer—get the idea? He makes large assignments, but is so inspiring that we simply devour anything we can find related to his subject. You can see we are in a quandary about what to do with him. We hate him vehemently.

I hate to close now, but we must tar and feather some one who was academically dishonest in a test. Please let me know more about yourself.

Love, Sophia Derivative

Chalk One Up for Democracy at Lake Success

Mr. President . . . Monsieur President . . . Senior Presidente . . . That's what we heard as we switched the little dial from 1 to 2,3,4,5, and 6. Along the side of the room we could see the translators in their glass booths, listening to the speeches being given on the floor and translating them simultaneously. Where? Right—We visited the U.N. at Lake Success. Dr. Hamilton took part of the I.R.C. Club, Bob Harper, Chris Zander, Joyce Thompson, Lillian Boyer, and Beverly Bresler to see how the U.N. really works. The trip was in preparation for their participation in the Model General Assembly, held annually by the I.R.C. clubs of this region. Solo Investigation

The delegate from Brazil—whom the girls had already met in a visit to his office in New York—eagerly showed them around; however, when the Russians pleaded illness and did not appear at the meeting of the Atomic Energy Committee, he was called away to a special meeting, so, we investigated on our own. In the morning, we attended the Economic and Social Council, in which the Polish delegate, Mr. Katz-Sushy, spoke for hours on the World Federation of Trade Unions, from which the U.S., Britain, and the Netherlands recently withdrew. Being communist-dominated, the Federation's report went into detail pointing out labor's troubles in the U.S. and countries friendly to it, which ignored labor conditions in the countries in the red block. When he finally finished, the U.S. delegate rose. After a very sarcastic retort on the Polish delegate's long-winded and subjective interpretation, he urged that the council not debate the problem, but refer it to the International Labor Organization, which was prepared to take action on it.

By then, it was time for lunch. We ate in the cafeteria, with the delegates. We had a very tasty lunch, (the cheapest we have ever eaten in New York) and then went to a meeting of the Trusteeship Council.

This meeting was quite different from the one we had attended in the morning. The speeches were impromptu and almost immediately after the meeting opened, the debate digressed to the problem of whether statistics in nations, such as Iraq, could be compared with statistics in the trustee countries, such as Ruando-Orundi. Iraq resented a reference by Belgium to the poor educational standards in Iraq, but U.S. said the charter defended the principal. After much discussion by the nations, Russia tried to bring the debate to a conclusion so that the council could get on with the business (a deviation from its usual tactics.) Eventually they got to a report from Britain on conditions in Tanganika. We noted, incidentally, that there apparently was just as much difficulty, or more, getting things done in the U.N. as in our own Student Council.

A Worthy Experience

It was truly a wonderful experience (Joyce and Beverly are trying to get jobs there). One realizes that, although democratic processes are slow, and committee meetings often become stymied in debate, still, great things are being done in the U.N. by its various organizations. Of course, it is no panacea—it may not even prevent a Third World War. Yet, the things it is doing to improve world cooperation and raise the world standards of living completely justify its existence, and our active support of it.

LIONS GAIN DIVISION CROWN AT SCRANTON

Prospects Good for 1949-50 Wrestling Team at Albright

Albright College took one large step this winter toward an intercollegiate wrestling program. The brief two hours a week allotted to wrestling in the S.E.B. proved to be enough to bring interested wrestling candidates to such a level where a representative intercollegiate wrestling team could now inaugurate a full season of competition for the winter, 1949-50.

More Time Needed

However, a minimum of one hour per day will be needed to condition the candidates for an extensive wrestling season. Because of the number of day students, the best time and place for training would be from 4-5 p.m. in Union Hall.

Although limits on the use of Union Hall imposed some headaches, rapid progress was made by the participants on a newly purchased regulation mat under capable instruction. But it was unfortunate that an intercollegiate match could not be arranged this year for our college at a late date.

25 Participate

The 25 men participating in the heretofore secret birth of Albright's future intercollegiate wrestling are:

Instrumental in building the prospective addition to Albright's list of intercollegiate sports is our amiable ex-Penn State wrestler.

Every team seems to have its comedian to bolster sagging spirits after a loss or to ease the tension during a tough one, and Lee Cappel, comes up to the task with the ease of a Red Skelton. But besides providing the laughs, Cap also helps the situation along with a few timely field goals via the pivot shot route. Big Lee has a smooth turn-around shot which he fires after using his opponent off to the right side with a tricky no-ball-in-the-hand fake. Scoring not being his only asset on the hardwood by any means, Lee uses his sturdy 6'4", 182 pound frame under the boards to very good advantage, grabbing the rebounds while shaking the opponents off his back. Off the court or on Mr. Cappel gives our Lions a big boost.

Begins at Butler High

Lee began his stellar basketball career back at good old Butler Township High, in Lanette, Pa., playing varsity center for three years and garnering over 300 points in his senior year to take the league scoring crown. Graduating in 1945, he entered Albright in the fall of that year and starred on the Lion hoop combine of that 45-46 season, although being only a freshman. His capable performances of that season caught the eye of the trophy committee and eyes of the season Lee was rewarded with the Ron Regar Most Valuable Player Award. Then Mr. Cappel decided he'd let Uncle Sam have his services for a few years and he upped and enlisted in the bilmy Navy. Well we're glad the Navy let him out last time to return to Albright last fall and get back to his old job of bucketball with the Lion dribblers. Lee is just a 21 year old sophomore so we can look forward to two more seasons of his brand of oom after he helps our present squad to a few more championships.

Zeoek Scores 18 In Lassies' Final 39-36, G-burg Win

Albright's lassies lowered the curtain on the 1948-49 season by winning the year's closest game from Gettysburg, 39-36, last Saturday for their eighth win in eleven starts. The JV's joined their big sisters in the clean sweep with a 31-25 win over the Bullets reserves.

The Gettysburg sextet, on equal footing with the Red and White girls by virtue of wins over the same opponents, lost no time in showing off their hoop prowess. The Albrightians were held for a time after the initial goal by Marge Zeoek who was pocketed a second after the game began, and the Bullets proceeded in working up a slight lead.

In a fast and furious second quarter, the visiting hoopsters outplayed the hosts to gain a precious one-point lead at half-time. Albright didn't lose that edge for the rest of the game.

The fourth quarter proved the deciding factor as the G-burg bullets put on a "do-or-die" spurt that threatened to steal the game. With the gap dangerously closing, the Albrightians wisely pulled a masterful freeze that squelched the G-Burg advance in the last 90 seconds of play, to emerge the victors.

Marge Zeoek with 18, and Nancy Stump with 11 led the Albright attack. Four seniors, Jean Schwartz and Jean Long, forwards; and Sylvia Hoppaugh and Anna Lauver played their last game for Albright against Gettysburg. Coach Mosser is counting on her javayce luminaries to fill the vacancies they left.

Kappas Conquer Pigskins, 51-28, to Take I-M Diadem

It's all over but the shouting in the intra-mural basketball league. A most successful season was terminated last Wednesday night at the conclusion of the championship basketball playoff between the Kappas and the Pigskins in which the Kappas took the diadem by virtue of their terrific 51-28 win.

Before the game the Kappas had gone through ten straight games without a loss, which enabled them to cop the American League crown. The rough and ready Pigskins had an identical record in the National League.

The first half of the title fray was a nip and tuck battle, with the Pigskins drawing first blood. But the powerful Kappas aggression then pulled ahead to stay in the third period. A hard-fought game all the way, Joe Czuzno and Pete Sperryak tried in vain to match the Kappa scoring. The frat squad's height and experience, coupled with the lack of reserve strength for the 'Skins, sealed the footballers' doom. K.U.P. was led by their scoring ace Gene Shollenberger and Bill Krotho. Bernie Koskultiz aided with a nice display of ball-handling.

Credit should be given to the referees who worked the intra-mural games this season. They were in all cases students here at Albright. Arguments were cut to a minimum. Much of the success of the program can be accounted for by this efficiency.

During this year's program only three games were forfeited and the League's popularity can be shown by the number of teams and players participating.

Congratulations should also be given to the Athletic Department, the sponsors of the League, to the Going up for an easy shot is senior Captain Jean Schwartz. The action came in the rout handed Drexel, 39-8. Ready to assist Jean is Nancy Stump.

Guldin, Kriebel at Head of Scoring Parade

Gaining sweet revenge for a one-point 51-50 defeat last week, Albright College's basketball forces topped the Scranton Royals, 79-57, in a playoff Monday, to win the Middle Atlantic League, Western Division pennant for the second time in three years.

Four Albrightians hit the double figures as Hops Guldin paced his pals with 18 points, closely followed by lanky Ozzie Kriebel with 16 markers. Elmer Davis, with 12, and Lee Cappel, with 10, also aided the cause. Top scoring laurels for the night, however, went to Scranton's ace forward, Jack Leighton, who bombarded the baskets for 19 markers.

Although the Lions' hopes for a clean sweep of league warfare were ruined by an earlier upset by Lebanon Valley and later by the Royals, Coach Neal Harris' charges were in top form prior to the playoff when they found themselves, with broom in hand, sweeping the rarely-used South

Royals Baffled

Baffled early in the game, the bewildered Royals switched their defense to zone in a vain effort to reduce the Lions' scoring. Talking to the zone as a duck takes to water, the Red and White passers held the Royals scoreless and went on to garner nine points. The hosts broke the hold, however, and soon began to threaten Albright as halftime intermission neared.

The second half was virtually no contest as the visitors' reserves freely entered and left the game, scoring at will. Pat and Dan Bieber, Ray Chelius, Bob Ruff, Kriebel, Guldin and Cappel couldn't miss as the late drive rolled on. Cappel, on the pivot, and Kriebel and Ruff on the outside charging in, sparked the

Too much credit can't be given varsity manager Nick Sheetz and Gene Friedman, J.V. manager Dick Sweet, and Joe Rouse for the dependable way in which they carried out their responsible, but mostly thankless jobs of keeping the records, uniforms, and basketballs in order, plus numerous other unnoticed details that took many precious hours.

Illinois University Chosen NSA Site For Second Confab

University of Illinois has been selected by the staff of the U.S. National Student Association (NSA) as the site of the second annual Student Congress. Dates of the Congress are August 24 to September 2.

Final negotiations are now underway between NSA's staff and the University of Illinois administration at Urbana. It is expected that more than 450 student leaders from colleges and universities throughout the country will attend the Congress to evaluate the progress and policies of NSA for the preceding year and establish its program and policies for the following year.

"Illinois was selected because its facilities are the most adequate," said Ted Harris, NSA President. It was not possible to obtain the Union Building at Michigan, dorm space was limited at Minnesota, and N.Y.U. was not centrally located.

The period of the Congress has been increased from five to nine days in order to eliminate sessions which have run into the wee hours of the morning, and to insure adequate discussion and full orientation.

The staff is now engaged in planning the details of the Congress, and more specific information will be announced soon.

T.W.A. Film Viewed By Vets' Wives' Club

A T.W.A. film was shown at the Vets' Wives' Club last Wednesday evening in the Dean's Parlor through the courtesy of the local airport. A social hour followed the showing of the film.

John Doe, or, How Did He Get That Way . . .

Mr. N. G. Doe graduates in June, having been registered as a chemist last year. You will note from his transcripts that his marks are average, i.e. he got by.

Other than this, his record shows that he was but little interested in the pursuit of learning, much more concerned about marks, to the extent of copying class work from other students and handing it in as his own, submitting laboratory notes without doing the laboratory experimental work, cheating on examinations, and complaining bitterly because his professors' opinion of his work is far below the mark he is certain he has fagged.

In spending four years in college, working for himself, he has shown little enthusiasm for his work, cut classes and chapel to the limit, wasted more time in noisy clamoring at the hangout than spent on his major assignment, has taken no part in the activities of the Alchemist Society, having seldom, if ever, attended its meetings, save to have his picture appear with this group for the college Annual. In class he has been lethargic, in laboratory noisy and drowsy, wasting chemicals, breaking apparatus, evaporating acids in the laboratory instead of the hood. In short, he has demonstrated a rather pronounced case of educational resistance.

Since we have no more acceptable criterion for judging the future except our observations of the past, we have no reason to believe that Mr. Doe will do better work for any employer than he has done here while working for himself. The strength of our recommendation is, therefore, tempered by our observations during his college career.

Albright Debates Hershey Jr. College

The Albright Debate Team took on Hershey Junior College Wednesday night with Russ Weigley and Richard Morey on the affirmative and Lillian Boyer and Howard Platzker on the negative of the question: "Should the federal government extend aid to public education?"

Next Thursday Albright will debate LaSalle in Room 210 at 4:10 pm. Willard H. Haas, advisor to the group, announced that John Rhoades, Weigley and Platzker will represent Albright at the Penn State Debaters' Conference.

Get Your V. D. Test Before March 31st

Yesterday a motion was made in Student Council that all the members have a blood test now being given at the Community General Hospital on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings between seven and nine. This is an indication that the students at Albright are accepting their social responsibility in making the test for syphilis acceptable. We hope that others on campus will follow this example.

The clinic stated, when we talk to them, that they were glad that so many are willing to take the painless test. Reverend Thompson of the Episcopal Church was the first in the city to take it. According to all statistics, 3% or 500,000 of the people of the population in the United States has the dreaded disease, although many never discover it in time to be cured.

drive. Hot-handed Eddie Amlian, who garnered only five points, was the night's playmaker, setting up one score plan after another.

The frantic Royals tried desperately to catch the Lions, but the pressure brought on the visiting boosters served only to relax them and sharpen their scoring eye.
