NEW DEBATE PROCEDURE USED FOR FIRST TIME DEFEATS U. OF P. LAW SCHOOL BY AUDIENCE VOTE

Members of Woman's Professional and Business Club Are Guests of Albright College

CHIASMIC SYSTEM ADOPTED

Last Monday evening our Affirmative team working on the question, Resolved, "That the capitalistic system is in the best interests of society engaged the Negative team of the Law School of the University of Pennsylvania, in the new Science Hall Lecture room.

Almost one hundred people filled the room including a large number of the Woman's Professional and Business Club of Reading, to listen to a well presented, well developed debate.

For the first time in this college the new Chiasmic system of debate was used. The system functions as follows: First speaker of the Affirmative presents his side of the question. The first Negative speaker then cross-examines the first Affirmative speaker. The second Negative speaker then proceeds to present his side of the query after which the second Affirmative speaker cross-examines him. The Negative then concludes followed by Affirmative. Albright will use this system in several debates this year. Judging from the amount of enthusiasm it produced last Monday night, there is little doubt that it will some time replace the old cut and dried debate procedure.

Rev. Daniel Wetzel, of the First Reformed Church of this city was the chairman of the evening. Hazel Hill, Marian Costello and Douglas House represented Albright. Messrs. Heckert, Saffrin and Woolston upheld the Negative for Pennsylvania. By an audience decision Albright emerged victorious 40 to 26.

EXPLAIN CHIASMIC SYSTEM

The Forensic Council, of which Dr. Weber is the head, takes pleasure in announcing that Albright College Debating teams will use a real up-to-date method of debating, during the coming school year.

We refer to the Chiasmic System of Debate. In this system, the first Affirmative speaker defines the question and proceeds to give a general interpretation of it from his side. The first Negative speaker then cross-examines the first Affirmative speaker. The debate continues with the Second Negative presentation, which outlines that side of the query for the Negative. The Second Affirmative team member then cross-examines the Negative presentation, which just preceded him. The Negative speaker, that is the Third Negative, then summarizes or concludes for the Negative side. After him, the Third Affirmative concludes for his side.

Albright used this new plan for the first time last Monday evening against the debate team of the Law School of the University of Pennsylvania. It proved to be very popular, interesting and much more lively than the old type of straight debating procedure. The Chiasmic System will be used several times this year for debates.

Coach Dr. Weber has been advocating it for a long time. Time and again he has brought the matter before the Annual Debate meeting of Pennsylvania Colleges, urging them to make this system the standard form of debate procedure in Pennsylvania. Although some colleges do use it, the majority still cling to the old method. In time however, all may adopt the Chiasmic system and we are proud that in this new forensic movement, Albright College is taking the lead among the colleges in this state.

Girls' Varsity Defeats Y. W.C.A. By Score, 33-21

Third Straight for Lionesses Give Promise of Good Season

On Saturday evening the Girls' Varsity defeated the Reading Y. W. six in a fast and exciting game on the "Y" floor. The final score was 33 to 21. This raised the local stride to three straight and is the last game until February 5. The center combination, Edie Benninger and Adrienne Eisenbise, went especially well together, having control of the ball during most of the play. Adrienne played a fine defensive and offensive game and was there with the goods. "Eva" Mosser and "Denny" at forwards, scored 13 times from the field and tallied 6 fouls out of 8 tries. The Reading forwards rolled in 6 two pointers and caged 8 fouls out of 13 throws.

On the Lioness' six each of the players was out for a victory and the girls who saw action in the game exerted all their energy to win from the strong Y. W. aggregation. The A. C. players were Irene Porter, Ann Heers, Flo Wilkes, Kathryn Kutz and Louise Bennett. The score at half time was 24-3 in favor of the Red and White, but the "Y" six came back strong and the final score was 33-21. The second half was marked by unnecessary fouling on the part of both teams, but the referee kept the game well in hand.

The score—Field goals, Albright: Dettlerline 5, Mosser 8. Y. W.: Reifsnider 3, Strausser 3. Fouls, Albright: Dettlerline 4, Mosser 3; Y. W.: Reifsnider 6, Strausser 2. Referee, Joyce Zerby.

Man Trapped in Closet Rescued

Valiant Efforts of Rescuers Save Abel from Death

A band of rescuers working against time successfully terminated their labors late Friday night by opening the broken catch of a closet door behind which Glenn 'Shorty' Abel was entombed.

Abel was in the closet when the door was pushed shut accidentally and the catch, which was broken, stuck making it impossible to open the door from either side. Fraternity brothers set to work with pocket knives and hammers to reach their comrade and save him from almost certain death. Signs of activity from the entrapped man grew fewer and fewer and the rescuers had almost almost sent the door flying in their faces. Activity was renewed with additional vigor and the door was removed from its hinges and the catch sprung with a pocket knife. The unfortunate man was dragged to safety amid cheers.

Abel was quickly revived and at present shows few effects of his harrowing experience. When interviewed by a reporter of the 'Albrightian' he said: "I count myself extremely lucky to be here alive and well. I owe it all to the valiant efforts of the men who so nobly rescued me."

Dean Writes His Impressions of College Meeting

Over 225 Colleges Represented at Annual Convention Held at Washington

WORDS OF SPEAKERS NOTED

Rare, indeed, was the privilege and invaluable was the opportunity which was mine of representing Albright College at the sixteenth annual meeting of the Association of American Colleges, held in the New Willard Hotel, in Washington, D. C., from January 14 to 16, with President Guy E. Snavely, president of Birmingham Southern College, presiding and with Dr. Robert L. Kelly, permanent secretary of the association at the desk. Presidents and deans of more than 225 colleges and universities from 44 states were present to consider the general theme: "The Effective College," and to discuss the development and maintenance of such a college through the intelligent organization of staffs of qualified teachers, and through the reorganization of curricula adequate for the vital motive of the efficient college.

The members of the association will long carry the memory of the honor bestowed upon our organization by President Hoover as he met with us on the east steps of the State Building for our group picture; and will long cherish the joy of the thrill that was ours as we stood in silence before the tomb of Woodrow Wilson amid the grandeur of the Washington Cathedral, or as we waited in solemn awe and respect in the shadow of the Lincoln Memorial—a worthy tribute of a grateful people to a martyred president; or as we trod with trembling and the sacred sod of Mr. Vernon's slopes far above the silent waters of the winding Potomac, and paid due homage as we approached and uncovered head the tomb of Washington—a nation's shrine; or as we bowed in reverence at the pew in Christ Church in Alexandria where the Father of his Country worshipped his God.

At the annual dinner of the association held in the ballroom of the New Willard, with the retiring British Ambassador and Lady Isabella Howard as guests of honor, Ambassador Howard and President Snavely advocated the cause of international peace; and Dr. Charles Moore, chairman of the Commission of Fine Arts of the City of Washington, in an address replete with a wealth of inimitable wit and wisdom pleaded for a greater appreciation of the fine arts in our colleges.

During the sessions of the association, Bishop William F. McDowell of Washington, President A. C. Shaw of Denison University, and the Rev. Samuel N. Shoemaker of the Calvary Protestant Episcopal Church of New York City discussed well the "Place of Religion in American Higher Education"; President James A. Blaisdell of the Claremont Colleges, Dean

Shaffer to Head Glee Club Thru Coming Season

Survey Elected Manager With Wolfe as Assistant

On Thursday evening, January 16, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year for the Men's Glee Club: Glenn W. Shaffer will serve in the capacity of honorary president; Harold Survey, a well worth while manager, and Charles Wolfe acting as assistant manager. Mr. Survey assures the club that he has several interesting "affairs" in view, and when the club proves itself worthy of any of them there will be no doubt but what the manager will put down his O. K. And to prove the men themselves are working rehearsals are being held twice a week—so that they really are getting into shape—and it won't be long now!!!

Science Books Now Accessable to Student Body

Physics, Chemistry and Biology Volumes Are in Libraries

With the beginning of the second semester, the new Science building will be entirely complete. Although a weak start was made in September, everything will be ready for all the laboratories, physics, chemistry, and biology, are ready for use and will afford necessary means for rapid progress in the sciences.

Among the things which will be of great advantage in the new building is the establishment of two library departments; one department for chemistry and physics, the other for biology and botany. In the former, which is located in the second floor, will be found all types of books in physics, electricity, qualitative, quantitative, organic, physical, and general chemistry, as well as scientific periodicals and other reading matter.

In the latter, which is located on the first floor, may be found many varieties of interesting and useful books, such as treat with embryology, histology, botany, anatomy, physiology, bacteriology, geology, as well as biographies, histories, and dictionaries of biological sciences.

The student body is now given ample opportunity for much reference and specialized study of the sciences. The libraries are open and can be used throughout the entire day. Everyone is welcome to come up and peruse the multitude of books.

Another attractive feature of the new building may be found in the pictures which adorn the halls and rooms; pictures fully significant of and appropriate for the themes represented.

Among these we find the beautiful painting, "The Anatomical Lecture," by Rembrandt. Come up and look at it; see the set faces, blazing, eager eyes, the attentiveness, tenseness, and profound interest of the students, who are keenly absorbing all the knowledge being handed down by the teacher.

Then let us turn to another, "Andrew Vesalius, the anatomist," by E. Hammal Pinks. Here we see Vesalius

TOP QUOTA BY OVER $5,600

The banquet at Rajah Temple Tuesday evening, January 21, marked the close of a drive, the success of which represents the "most significant and far-reaching victory in the history of Reading." Tense in their eagerness to hear the final returns of the campaigners, the men of this city and of the college who had given their splendid support during the last ten days in soliciting funds for the movement, waited through endless moments for reports to be given, and statistics tabulated. When Reinhart finally announced that not only the $350,000 but an additional sum of $5,688 had been obtained, they went wild with cheers and beat a merry tattoo upon the perishable glassware and tables with their silver and fists. Dr. Teel was overwhelmed with joy.

J. Norman Klein and his team who came forth first from the entire drive, collected $8,912. Our own "Doggie" Julian, who assumed the captaincy of a team at the last moment, came forth second with $7,324. Dr. Teel and Mr. Warren Klein, of the Special Gifts Committee, collected approximately $262,000.

Judge Marx, campaign chairman, told the workers that they had "put over one of the greatest works of beneficence in the city's history," and added that organizing of the drive personnel would be of as great benefit to the college in the future as the gifts of money.

"Albright tonight takes a leading intellectual position in Reading and will lead the community in that vast forward step being taken to a greater and better city."

President Hendricks of the school board said, "The college puts the finishing touch to Reading's educational system."

Bishop Breyfogel fittingly closed the successful work with a prayer of thanks to the beneficent Father of all.

Many of the students from Albright were at the meeting, and they joined in the applauding as motions of thanks to Judge Marx, C. H. Dreshman, campaign manager, the newspaper luncheon clubs and all those who helped in the drive were passed.

THE UNFAILING SPIRIT

There was a certain man in the history of the United States who said, "I am sorry that I have but one life to give to my country." A decade ago one of our most able statesmen and presidents, Woodrow Wilson, spent his life-energy that a state of universal harmony might be attained. But as great as the efforts of these and of other noble minds were in the upbuilding of this present cosmic state, no more benevolent or unselfish worker can be heralded than the President of our own college.

Twenty-one years ago, Dr. Teel began his career in affiliation with the then Selwyn Hall, which could boast of but several dozen students. Gradually the consciousness of being instilled the desire in the heart of this red-blooded man to stir his renown to the realization of the need of a college in their midst. He strove, night and day, to make this desire a reality, to win in the cause of education a proper shrine for those seeking knowledge.

Little did we guess what this man was doing for us; nor do we or can we ever fully appreciate the opportunity that is ours in happy association with him. Often have we seen him "walk among the tombs," as it were in anxious inner consultation over some vital question concerning our well-being.

The Albright drive might be considered as the peak of his endeavors. He climbed the mountain, conquered the ridge, and now he calmly gazes beyond into the blissful land of consummation. He achieved the goal for which he strove; he may be well pleased.

Let us, as Albrightians always remember this fact when we think of our President. He should ever exist in our minds as the grand memorial for all that is benevolent, considerate, and spiritual-sympathetic.

AS YOU LIKE IT

Having been consulted by the editor to write an editorial on a subject everybody could easily comprehend, I immediately conceived the idea of writing on a subject which in my mind should disillusion many of us of our propensities. If it is a fiasco you must postulate that the author has no integrity whatsoever. We find the examinations are upon us and to make an A grade is an arduous task. Many of us may make ostentations of our studies, but the professors will find the unscrupulous student in the end. During examinations it is difficult to keep looking just on our own paper and not see what our neighbor conjectures. We are really harming ourselves if we practice this kind of plagiarism. We are deceiving ourselves, thinking it an adroit way to gain a better grade. If we do not possess the knowledge of a question, it is casting a reflection either upon our mental capacity or our indifference to have acquired the knowledge in the first place.

To ameliorate our condition we must delve or psycho-analyze ourselves, and then try to become competent scholars which is an accolade to any institution of learning.

"Marry in Haste—?"

Without a doubt he had never felt this way before. It was all so different and as unusual—the beads of perspiration rolled off his coal black eyebrows. All night long he had walked the floor intermittently, occasionally stopping to puff and cast away a newly-lighted cigarette. Outside his window on the terrace the birds were chirping the dawn of another sweltering July day, and in order to take every precaution against prostration they were spluttering around in the marble bath placed at their disposal.

Gradually it dawned upon Bert that it was sun-up. He slid into a clean shirt, hardly taking time to button it, and still wearing the creaseless trousers of the wakeful night, hurried downstairs to the garage. The car was where he had left it the night before, just inside the door. He opened the noisy door and in a trice had passed down the winding drive in his roadster. As the cool morning air rushed through his curly hair it cleared his thoughts. He began to think about what he was doing, or rather, was going to do. If Louise had meant what she said concerning their elopement he knew that she had not slept a wink either. It was going to be a test of her worth and sincerity. Meanwhile, the car sped on toward the beach where the Van Anglen cottage was located.

A rosy mist hung close to the low rambling hills behind him, but Bert did not notice such things now, even though he enjoyed anything akin to the beautiful. He had his car pointed toward the bay and as soon as the water's edge was before him he swerved to the right following the sandy shore in the direction of his sweetheart's home. A robe lying on the sand directly in the path of his car arrested his attention momentarily and in that instant he perceived a beautifully carved head bobbing around amidst the gentle billows. It was Louise, taking her morning dip and sure enough she was waving to him. Lithe as a mermaid she swam to shore where he, having alighted from the car, met her. She was carefree and joyful. Bert did not understand.

"Gee, the sea is exhilarating at 4.00 a. m., and especially after a long walk on the beach."

Bert still looked at her. "You'll just have to snap out of it, Bert," she said simply. "You look like I felt all last night but after a long meditative walk on this strand I can say that I have come to a decision. You undoubtedly have been attracted by me and my wiles, or, at least, I believe that is the case. Be that as it may, this is not go no farther."

"What are you saying? Don't we pledge ourselves to each other last night before I broke away? Didn't we say that we should resort to elopement if necessary to bring about our heart's love? Have you forgotten so soon?"

Louise looked at him pitifully. "I am convinced that this is mere puppy love, otherwise I should not be so vacillating in my feelings. I can't seem to find myself. Ever since the frat dance where we met this spring I have been feeling uncertain about the whole matter of love and its complexities. It is all so new and unexpected and that is why we must test this out. You think you're in love and you are most certain of it. Well, so was I until I started to reflect. And here is my plan: If we can go on together as we have done since April and be the best of pals, what more can we wish for than success in our choice of each other. On the other hand, if in that time either one of us should meet an individual who should arouse a real love in us then the test would be proved. No, don't protest—Those terms must stand or else it's parting for keeps lest both our lives are wrecked like nutshells at sea."

Bert, to whom the terms were far from satisfying, could not truly acquiesce, but he knew Louise was sincere in every respect. He admired her for it. At length he spoke:

"Not much to do but agree to those terms, I suppose. I, too, was coming to an indistinct decision on the way over here, and I feel obli-

ROPER'S ROW

By WARWICK DEEPIING

Warwick Deeping can always be depended upon to produce a best seller packed with that elusive something which newspaper men know as human interest. In Roper's Row, his latest book, he sets forth the struggles of a young man, intelligent above the majority, to become a doctor. As is the case with all men who would rather work than play he is misunderstood and persecuted by the other students at the hospital. His life is a continual struggle against poverty and persecution. He is aided in his fight by two women who love him: by his mother who sacrifices her life for him when he is ill, and by a stenographer who lives across the hall from him and who takes his mother's place to wait upon him patiently while he works towards success. It is Ruth who finally is responsible for that success. She has the hard business head which the doctor seems to lack and they together with the aid of a very rich man who sees the true worth of Christopher Hazzard attain prominence and a very much deserved success.

The book is a good one for students to read. For those somewhat discouraged it offers a new incentive and perhaps an inspiration. All of Warwick Deeping's books are like that. Perhaps that is the reason for their immense popularity.

York Co. Branch of Alumni Elect Officers for 1930

Rev. Gramley Chosen President at Meeting Held in York

The tenth annual meeting of the York County branch of Albright Alumni Association, was held last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Bailey and daughter Anna, 729 West Poplar Street. Miss Bailey is a member of the class of 1916.

The speaker of the evening was Elmer L. Mohn, Elizabeth, N. J., who is president of the Albright General Alumni Association. He explained the policies of the general association and showed what results have been achieved since the merging of Albright College and Schuylkill College, at Reading.

Officers for the year of 1930 were elected as follows: President, Rev. A. D. Gramley, pastor of Trinity Evangelical Church, a member of the class of '94; vice president, Miss Anna Bailey, '16; secretary, William H. Kelly, Red Lion, '20; treasurer, Miss Janet Kaitreider, '25.

The program consisted of a series of short talks by a vocal solo; he was accompanied by Miss Martha Yagle, a senior at Albright College.

Those present were: Rev. Frank H. Sanders, Rev. L. P. Markley, Rev. Kenneth Benfer, J. Kenneth Snyder, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Burb, C. Earl Baumeister, Florine Wilkes, Gladys Snyder, Mary Ellen Venus, Mabel Crowell, Mrs. L. P. Markley, Reba D. Topper, Gladys Baker, Martha Yagle, Elwood McGuigan, Mr. and Mrs. Livingood, Rev. J. H. Welsh, Rev. A. D. Gramley, Dr. C. H. Venus, Elmer L. Mohn, W. H. Kelly, Anna Bailey, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Bailey, Mrs. C. H. Venus, Mrs. C. A. Razer, James McGuigan, Mr. and Mrs. Jason B. Snyder.

The committee on resolutions was composed of J. Kenneth Snyder, '24; Mabel Crowell, '09, and C. Earl Baumeister, '18.

Over the top! Amid the storm of a million flying fragments of winter's most potent ammunition . . . surrounded on every hand by grim evidences of the enemy's presence . . . Every breath a frozen gasp . . . Onward and over unsurmountable obstacles in the way of the varying din of northwind's thunderbombs and the double line of hardened trenches that were the rutted roads . . . Rode the five hundred to victory for Albright . . . In other words the butter and egg Mr. Gold dug in the slush and brought home the bacon so that now VFMNX.

Seating arrangements! No longer will the unfortunates who's best friends won't tell them have to hunt around for a place.

Sometimes we wonder why some people do worry tho? When a senior in citrative class recommends the motion picture "Dr. Fu Manchu" as the most representative of the Chinese drama, one thinks there should be a "Turn on the Heat" movement in those "Hot Houses or ultra-violet culture," the colleges.

Are you a good egg? If you want to prove it don't let everything turn you up or turn you topsy-turvy. Life's a scramble, we'll admit and an om (nipotent) lets things go pretty far before interfering. But keep your sunny-side up, especially during this week of Hardboiled Eggshams!

The Freshmen girls listened to orders Monday night, even after the Woman's Club left. They stayed in the dining room till 7.30, so they'd be SURE not to miss the debaters. Your in the army now, and a buck private obeys commands whatever they are. Hip! Hip!

The Lions' Club, the artists, and Prof. Stutzman make up the personnel of sixteen members of the men's cooking class for second semester. Is it protection, self defense or as it must be in the case of Jimmy Snyder, malnutrition? Welcome boys! We bet you'll make good cooks.

Fraternity Notes

ALPHA PI OMEGA

Last Monday evening, the members of the Law School of Pennsylvania University Debate team were entertained by the brothers of the Alpha Pi Omega Fraternity.

The visitors were made to feel at home and found it quite easy to rest up after their strenuous debate with our team.

ZETA OMEGA EPSILON

The election of officers for the coming term will be held on Monday, January 29. The present officers of this fraternity are as follows: Presidents, Joe Kunsman and Charles Call; vice president, Paul Hangen; secretary, Paul Teel, and treasurer, Elvin Martin.

The fraternity members who are helping on the Albright College campaign are: Fraters Kunsman, Call, Emmett, Tucker, Humbert, Schober, Hangen, Schaefer, Teel, Segur, Schappel, and Pledge Pell.

The fraternity has also pledged themselves to give to the campaign a certain amount of money to be announced later. We, as a group, wish the authorities the greatest of success in putting this wonderful effort over the top. We also wish to express our sympathy to Miss Klepinger, the college secretary, at the loss of her mother.

PERSIFLAGE

By SCHULTZ

Well, well, well! We now have money, it seems. 355,000 of the shekels of the realm is nothing to sneeze at. In fact, sneezing is the last thing we would think of in connection with the drive. But in connection with the weather, most of us ARE sneezing. This sneezing is a bad thing. We are reminded of an unfortunate young man who was visiting a young lady (whom he cared nothing about). He was eulogizing the portrait of a woman.

"What beautiful eyes," said he, "and such wonderful hair. Absolutely perfect."

"At whom are you directing all this praise?" she inquired.

"A choo," sneezed the young man. That unfortunate sneeze was his downfall, for she was a fast worker. He now has a Ford car and three children, to say nothing of bills for hats.

Let this be a lesson to the young men of today. Beware of sneezing at the wrong time.

The moral—

gated to you for the solution. Here's to our new venture."

"That's a good egg. Now go home and get some sleep. That's what I must do."

"Jump in and I'll drive you down to your door."

When they arrived at her home, Louise bounded out of the car after a hearty and friendly handclasp and disappeared through the arched doorway.

It was with a clearer brain that Bert lighted anduffed away on a new cigarette as the car glided along. They were fortunate in the postponement of so serious a matter as the one into which most people jump blindly.

Theology Notes

On Friday morning, January 17, Dr. H. Franklin Schlegel, executive secretary-treasurer of the Board of Church Extension of the Evangelical Church, gave the third of a series of special lectures, which are held throughout the year during the chapel services. He spoke on the "Strategy of Church Extension." The lecture showed the aim and purpose and the great work that the Board of Church Extension is accomplishing.

DEEP NIGHT

Deep night.
Purple sky
Crowded with the golden flowers
That blossom after sunset.
Pale moon gleaming—
Set in the easterly sky,
A slender horn of madness.
Pine trees whispering
Secrets olden—
Singing,
In deep night.
A fragrant breeze—a scent of
A Spring—
Lacy shadows—waving.
A winding path—crystal light.
A rendezvous for lovers
Rejoicing in Deep night. A. W., '33.

THIS IDEA originated with College Men

WE TAKE no credit for the popularity of the new College Habit.

The Habit that sends College Men to the telephone (pretty regularly, too), there to commune . . . actually, not just in spirit . . . with the folks at home.

It's a grand custom and we'd like very much to claim it as our own idea; but we can't.

All we did was to install telephones on the Campus, and Nature just seemed to take its course!

And no wonder . . . when College Men found out how fast telephone connections with home are made; how clearly they hear and are heard; how low are the rates!

Just for fun . . . call Home tonight!

ALLARD PAUL

Allard hails from the New England States, but in some way took a liking to this section of the country. After having a somewhat versatile college career he finally decided to graduate from Albright. His first college year was spent at Worcester Poly-Tech taking an engineering course. Finding himself in the wrong field, he changed his course and spent his sophomore year at Franklin and Marshall. His Junior year at Susquehanna and now the last at Albright. Paul is taking a pre-medical course and he is to be complimented on his high scholastic attainment. After graduation he expects to enter Jefferson Medical College, where he will finish his course. We find Allard to be a very congenial fellow, which accounts for his popularity among the opposite sex. He is a member of the Kappa Upsilon Phi fraternity. Best of luck to you Paul.

ANITA MILLER

Anita is one of the faithful members of the Senior class. Having spent almost three years of her college career here and one year at Moravian College, Bethlehem.

We find Anita taking interest in extra curricula activities. She is a member of the Y. W. C. A. cabinet, also participates in sports, such as tennis and basketball. A member of the Thesians and Pa Alpha Tau sorority.

Anita also has a pleasing personality and quite popular about the campus. Her quiet and poised atmosphere distinguishes her from the rest. Her major subject is mathematics, which one day she expects to teach. We wish her the best of success.

DEAN WRITES

Luther P. Eisenhart of Princeton University, and Dr. Henry Suzzallo of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching stressed the importance of our jealously guarding the "Intellectual Life in the Colleges"; and President A. H. Uihman of Miami University, Dean William L. Cross of Yale University Graduate School, and Dean G. J. Laing of the University of Chicago Graduate School of Arts and Literature presented the vital necessity of continuous "Improvement in College Teaching."

The challenge which comes to the college faculty and student body in behalf of the motive and method of education is revealed by the following quotations gleaned from the meetings:

"It should be easier to live a real religious life in a Christian college than in a secular college or even out in public life"—President Shaw.

"Why put a chaplain in a college already gone pagan?"—Rev. Shoemaker.

"One who studies biology should learn to respect God as well as believe in Him."—President Shaw.

"To win a war is much more expensive than to lose an arbitration."

"Do not talk TO students, talk WITH them."—Rev. Shoemaker.

"A new interest is evident in the college; a new test is being applied to the college—that interest and test is character."—Bishop McDowell.

"Evolution and Religion are working hand in hand to deflate the human ego."—Dr. Kelly.

"There are 800,000 teaching positions in the United States today and 400,000 teachers in training in the colleges. This means that the teacher to get the position must make good as a student."—Prof. Joseph Mayer, of Tufts College, representing the Placement Bureau of the American Association of University Professors.

"Organize your college machinery to release the energy of the good student; not to police, or attempt to curtail the tendencies of the unscrupulous student who is trying to beat the game for the credits."—Dr. Suzzallo.

"Why measure the credit of the student by the time the faculty spends in the lecture periods?"—Dr. Suzzallo.

"Beware the danger of making your college simply a continuation high school."—Dean Laing.

"Breadth of culture should go hand in hand with depth of knowledge."—Dr. Moore.

"How are you expressing your growth?"—Dr. Kelly.

The present officers of the association are: President, Guy E. Snavely, president of Birmingham Southern College; vice president, William M. Lewis, president of Lafayette College; treasurer, Bernard I. Bell, warden of St. Stephen's College of Columbia University; permanent secretary, Dr. Robert L. Kelly.

lius, bold, daring, in the darkness of his dingy cell, faithfully studying human anatomy, yes, dissecting a human being, a thing punishable by death, in his time. Notice the expression of half fear, half listening, and the tense bearing of this noble man, as reaching for a tool, he presumes hearing a sound and silently remains poised, fearful of discovery. A noble picture indeed.

Further on we see another picture "Harvey Demonstrating to Charles his theory of the circulation of blood." Here is a picture well worth our study. Notice the eagerness with which Harvey is expressing his theory, a theory which later revolutionized the knowledge of medical science. Watch Charles, who interested listens, half doubting, still inwardly believing the truth of it all.

Come up to the new building, spend an idle moment or more in looking at some of the interesting features of the new building. Let us see all you students interested in science, as well as theological, and art students take advantage of the wonderfully adequate facilities offered you.

Books for the ensuing year were: For president, Dean Luther P. Eisenhart of Princeton University; for vice president, Dean H. E. Hawkes of Columbia University; for treasurer, President William M. Lewis of Lafayette College.
