"Y's" Sponsor Music Program Featuring Solos, Trio, Quartet

An "Hour of Religious Music," directed by Marjorie Christ and Bob Holtzapfe, will be sponsored by the combined "Y's" tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the College Chapel. Besides a short devotional period, the program will consist of solos by Marjorie Huntsberger and Glenn Bailey, and selections by a trio, made up of Esther and Gladys Savidge and Ruth Leickel and by a quartet consisting of Elaine Kyle, Elizabeth H. Pottier, Newell Wert, and Cecil Pottier.

Talk on Palestine

The Rev. Robert L. Lindsey, former missionary to the Kentucky hills and to Palestine, presented a program based on his experiences in the latter country as a special event sponsored by the Combined "Y's." As part of his talk, given in the Lower Social Hall, last Friday, March 9, Rev. Lindsey put on a native costume and concluded with folk songs and folk dances. He also taught the songs and dances to the group. Completing the evening were games and singing, led by Jeanne Miller.

Will Return

Rev. and Mrs. Lindsey, now studying at Princeton University, plan to leave with their family for Palestine in June of 1945.

"An Open Confession"

At the third Lenten service, held on Tuesday, March 6, the Rev. Carl Schneider, pastor of the Juniata Park Evangelical Church in Philadelphia, spoke on "An Open Confession."

Recharting Lives

Rev. Schneider pointed out that before we make an open confession real experience with God and allow of our faith, we must first have a Him to rechart our lives. Since we are to represent the gospel to the world, we must centralize our lives in God and uphold it's dignity. The truth must become incarnate in us, so that we are more than just showcases with nothing behind them. "The need today," said Rev. Schneider, "is for less man-made gods and more God-made men."

Marjorie Christ last led Bible Class Sunday, March 11. "The Law of Life" was the topic taught by Professor Lewis E. Smith.

Glee Club Will Sing At Park Church Sunday

As part of a special Day of Prayer for students of colleges and universities, the Women's Glee Club will present a concert at the Park Evangelical Church, 13th and Chestnut Streets, this Sunday evening, March 18, at 7:45 p.m.

Arranged by Ruth Ritzman, the evening service will consist of a musical program. At the morning service, at 11 a.m., the Rev. Mark J. Steierwald, pastor of Park Church, will preach the sermon. At both services pre-ministerial students from Albright will assist. Students of Albright have been invited to both services as special guests.

The program of the glee club will include: "How Lovely is Thy Dwelling Place," Brahms; "See What Love Hath the Father," Mendelssohn; "Built on the Rock," Lindermann; "Psalm of Praise," Lindermann; "Prayer," Guion; "Ye Watchers and Ye Holy Ones," "O Sacred Head," Hassler.

Cultural Series Presents Basso, Case, Cardin Hold Chapel Dates

As the fifth of the college Cultural Programs, Wellington Ezekiel basso, will give a recital in the College Chapel this Thursday morning, March 15, at 10:00 a.m. His accompanist will be Gordon Breary.

His program will include: "Pieta Signora," Stradella; selections from "The Messiah," Handel; "Dichterliebe," Schumann; "Die Lotusblume," Schumann; "Lust der Sturmnacht," Schumann.

Concluding his program with well known concert songs, he will sing: "Go Down Moses," arranged by Eurligh; "Were You There," arranged by Burleigh; "Love's Philosophy," Quilter; "I Love Thee," Grieg; and "Thanks for Thy Counsel and Warning to Me" by Grieg.

Mr. Ezekiel will give a recital in the First Evangelical Church, Williamsport, after his recital here. Some of his engagements this season will be with the New York Oratorio Society, and the Mendelssohn Society, Pittsburgh.

Red Cross Program

A special program for the Red Cross Drive, held during the month of March, was presented in chapel this morning at 10:10 a. m. A speaker from Red Cross headquarters, Reading, spoke, and a trio, Ruth Leickel, Gladys Savidge, and Esther Savidge, sang "Angels of Mercy," the Red Cross theme song. Marjorie Christ was at the piano.

"Managers of Tomorrow"

Dr. Harold C. Case, pastor of Elm Park Methodist Church, Scranton, spoke in the College Chapel, last Thursday, on the theme, "Managers of Tomorrow." Dr. Case in his talk described today's world as being composed of the pessimistic person, the tired person, and the adventurous person. He stated that college students have a wonderful opportunity to be in the small adventurous class and, as adventurers to become the managers of tomorrow's world. Dr. Case stated that we must be able to match our abilities against the present-day opportunities; with added stimuli and more power derived from having purpose, and being loyal to our ideals, we can move from our present difficulties to a glorious future.

Cardin Instruments

Fred Cardin, instrumental music teacher at Reading Senior High School and a native of the Indian Territory, Oklahoma, presented a program of vocal and instrumental Indian music in chapel last Tuesday, March 5. The program was the first in Student Council's "Little Natural Series."

A collector of Indian music, Mr. Cardin will give a recital in the College Chapel this Thursday morning, April 21.

Prize Package

A Senior Class committee, headed by Marilyn Jacobson, is working on a gift to the college from the class. Suggestions should be given to Miss Jacobson. The seniors also chose commencement announcements.

Skate Date

Because of the trolley strike, the sophomore class skating party has been postponed indefinitely. As soon as the transportation difficulties are ironed out, the sophomores will set a definite date.

Washed Out

Because only one junior had entered, the Junior Oratorical Contest will not be held this year. The contest, scheduled for Thursday, March 15, is sponsored annually by Charles S. Kelehner, former Albright professor.

Success Story

Fraternities Bid 22 New Pledges

The four Albright fraternities have extended invitations of membership to frosh and upperclassmen. The pledges will have a period of several weeks' pledgeship, followed by induction.

A.P.O.'s, Kappa

New pledges for the Alpha Pi Omega fraternity are: Lee Kachel, Edward Daniels, Fred Perfect, William Walb, William Hechler, Herbert Hyman, William Harting, and Jack Shaffer. The Kappa Upsilon Phi has pledged: Robert Kemp, Forrest Dunkleberger, and William Ebbert.

Pi Tau Sigma, Zeta

In the Pi Tau Beta list are: Charles Stump, Fassel Luck, Larry Haag, Stephen Winter, and Heber Yeager. The Zeta Omega Epsilon fraternity has pledged: Robert Holtzapfe, Stewart McCleary, Warren Pfost, Forrest Saylor, Robert Ziegler, and Ray Pottier.

Albright in the News

George W. Taylor, former Albright professor, has been named chairman of the War Labor Board by President Franklin Roosevelt, succeeding William H. Davis. Vice-chairman of the board since 1942, Mr. Taylor is the author of the "little steel" formula while at Albright from 1924 to 1929 he was head of the business administration department and manager of the athletic council. He is now on a leave of absence from the University of Pennsylvania.

Talking on the rehabilitation of returning servicemen, Dr. Milton G. Geil, professor of psychology, was the speaker at a meeting of the Kiwanis Club last Wednesday, March 7.

Dr. Gerrit Memming professor of German, gave a talk on Belgium to the Wives of the 243rd Engineers, at their monthly meeting on Wednesday, March 7.

With Rensselaer Poly Set for Garden Bid, Lions May Go NCAA

Student Telegram System Keeps Team on List Until Saturday

Eliminated from one post-season tournament, Albright's eagers still have a slim chance of being invited to the Eastern Tournament of the NCAA to be held in New York next week. Over the weekend the final berth to the invitation tournament to be held in Madison Square Garden was filled by Rensselaer Polytech of New York. As a result of the telegrams he received, Chairman John Coffey informed Coach Neal O. Harris that Albright was still in the running, until Saturday night when Rensselaer defeated their final opponent, Canisius, 70-56, to end the season unbeaten in 13 games played.

One of the most spontaneous and interesting events of the school year occurred last Wednesday, when Albright basketball fans, hot under the collar and tense from long waiting for a Madison Square Garden bid decided to take action themselves.

A little over half the student body showed up in the College Chapel and gave a short demonstration of Albright spirit. With "Chick" Crozier as master of ceremonies, the Albrightians, at least most of them, decided to bombard Mr. Coffey of the invitation committee with telegrams.

"Say anything you want to," Chick advised. "Ask 'em, if they're afraid of us, tell them about our record being the best in the east." Many other bright ideas for telegrams were offered.

Coach Harris spoke for a few minutes, approving the plan. He stated that it was about time that someone gave Albright publicity. It seems that, regardless of Albright's creditable record in basketball, we are never mentioned outside of the local papers, he remarked.

As a result of the meeting, Western Union was swamped with telegrams. It was so bad that after a few hours of the stuff, Albrightians didn't have to give them the name and address for the clerk knew it by heart.

As the paper went to press, there was one vacant position in the NCAA tournament as the University of Connecticut of District 1 declined their invitation. To fill the gap a team from District 2 may be chosen. Those in the running are Temple, Pittsburgh, CCNY, Geneva, Westminster, Lafayette and Albright. Teams set for the tournament are Kentucky, Ohio State, NYU, with the fourth position vacant.

Tea, Cookies, Cream, Sugar, Silver— All This and Lemon, Too on Friday

Sugar? One lump or two? That's right, it's Friday afternoon in Selwyn Hall Parlor and the dorm and daywomen are pouring tea. A tour around the living room and adjacent kitchen is an education in itself. At the piano we have a quick course in music appreciation (popular) as Christy makes with the jive and the kids give forth with vocal accompaniment. Glancing around the room we find various and sundry characters; both students and faculty are busy chatting, munching, and drinking.

Say in our excitement we forgot the most important thing—to have some tea. Will you have lemon or cream? More cookies? Even Emily Post would stop for a second look at the arrangements of the Albright College silver service on the ceru lace cloth. Pretty smart, isn't it?

And where do all those dishes go when we're through with them? Let's take a peak into the little blue kitchen. Why, these kids simply can't be having so much fun just washing dishes. But they are. Do we see Owen Henry and Bob Gale in there? To be sure. Fellows and gals alike pitch in to lighten the burden.

Looking at our watches we discover that it is five o'clock and time to leave, and to look forward to next week when tea will again be served in Selwyn Hall. Won't you join us every Friday at three?

Pi Gamma Mu Bids 9; Induction on March 14

Nine juniors and seniors majoring in the social sciences have been invited to join Pi Gamma Mu, national honorary social science fraternity. Pledges will be inducted at a meeting of the fraternity tomorrow night, March 14, at the home of Dr. Milton Geil, secretary, 1528 N. Eleventh Street.

Those pledged include: Ann deFarges, Jean Zwoyer, Fred Clewell, Warren Loesch, Jean Harer, Eleanor Wentzel, Peter Cianci, Bohdan Procko, and Marilyn Jacobson.

Do We Dew—Or Do We Don't?

We should like to take this opportunity to accentuate the positive as presented in last week's "Inquiring Reporter." All of the seniors who were questioned on their attitude toward commencement being held out of doors on our own campus agreed that it was a superlative idea. And we agree with the seniors. In addition to the beauties of the campus in the spring, there is the added incentive of graduating from Albright-literally. The idea is possible as it has been executed successfully in the past. The confines of a junior high school auditorium can hardly do justice to the magnificence of a college commencement ceremony. The Albright campus, on the other hand, will make quite an impressive background. The Class of '45 voted unanimously for outdoor exercises. Administrative affirmation would indeed be a most welcome gift.

Sing the Praise

Although there is little chance of a post-season tournament bid for Albright, last week hopes were raised as they have never been raised before. Climaxing the enthusiasm was the sending of telegrams to chairman Coffey last Wednesday. According to a call to Coach Harris from Coffey, received on Thursday, the chairman acknowledged Albright's cage importance and said that we were still in the running. He also commented on the fact that he had not known until receiving the telegrams that Albright had defeated the U. of Detroit in the Boston Garden.

Thus the week's events seem to prove several things. First, that Coffey is picking his teams fairly dispelling some rumors to the contrary. Second, that the telegrams were interpreted as Albright spirit on the part of Coffey, when he could have very easily been quite irritated. And third, that Albright—with or without a bid—is on its way to becoming a "name" school in basketball circles.

Do You Want to Bat?

Now that spring is sprung (we hope) and some guys and gals have brought their baseball bats and gloves out of the mothballs, we have noticed a petition going around campus, requesting baseball at Albright as a major sport. Remembering the difficulty in trying to maintain inter-fraternity softball competition last year, we wonder whether there will be enough material or interest in the sport for the college to put time and money into intercollegiate competition. However, we would not mind having our conclusion picked to pieces and having a successful baseball team say to us, "Guess you were wrong." But if it's a case of dubious outcome, we suggest spending the effort on enthusiastic intramural competition.

Blue Ribbons

It isn't too often that "The Albrightian" singles out any one campus committee for praise but, nevertheless, here goes. If we were to offer awards for the greatest show of improvement during the year, blue ribbons would most certainly be offered to the Chapel Committee. The programs are not only beneficial from both religious and secular standards but are also interesting and entertaining. We cite for example the program on Indian music presented by Fred Cardin, in the secular vein, and the talk by Dr. Harold Case, during the religious service. Both were exemplary. Both commanded and received voluntary attention. Both kept the students awake. More programs of this kind will make chapel attendance an experience of pleasure rather than an uncomfortable opportunity to catch up on sleep.

Home Ec Homelet

No, there hasn't been an accident. That crowd of men with sad and anxious faces following their noses down to the door of the foods lab are just plain hungry 'You'd drool too if you smelled the tantalizing odors of beef and pork and lamb all at once. Meatless Tuesdays—Hal! Those freshmen girls sure have talent in cooking, we mean.

Late Date

Embarrassing moments... Home Ec-ers walking calmly out of class before the ten-minute allowance is up, and—horrors—being caught!

"Fireman"

Smoke was everywhere, the juniors had just finished a disastrous cooking session. Suddenly, through the clouds, a flash of red was seen. Screams of "Fireman, save my up-side down cake" rent the air... Oh heck, it was only Mrs. Mosser's red coat—and just when we were in the mood to be rescued. She thought the foods lab was on fire, but it was only the juniors digging charred cake from the ovens.

On the Lookout

By the way of pre-flight training, the future home ec teachers are observing high school classes in their junior year.

Socially Speaking

Alumni Visitors: Ensign Bowker and Mrs. Ruth (nee Hand) both paid their alma mater a visit this week-end. Besides the sentimental incentive of wanting to see the old one again, they returned for the Pi Alpha Tau Luncheon which was held on Saturday. Mrs. Harris is now teaching biology—and waiting for her soldier husband to return from Your-guess-is-as-goods-as-Ruth's.

Happy-B-day-to-you Dep't: Congratulations and best wishes go to Dean Helen Cunliffe, born on March 11. Here's wishing her many more.

"The lovebug will bite you if you don't watch out."—Now they've even got the freshmen doing it. Best wishes to Kathleen Calaman, who became engaged recently to Earle Stetler. Her fiancée, studying at the Evangelical School of Theology, was graduated from Albright in 1943.

"Lookie, lookie, lookie"... Mary Nicol Rockwell was back for a visit. It's the same old Mary, complete with red hair, but with a wedding band and a picture of her soldier-husband in her pocket.

ready-made dresses with a plenum designed to look like bloomers, and at an evening gown that would make Cleo blush, Mararet Hohl decided she'd better get busy in costume class. Someone has to save the fate of the nation.

Edible?

Home economists will probably be interested to know that hot dogs are "not fit to be eaten". Doc Horn says they're made from sweepings off the butcher shop floor.

Campus Carrousel

MILESTONES: Hats off to the Reading Transit system for giving the shoe stores such excellent business for the second consecutive week. John Lyon should by now be out of the infirmary and we hope that Ruth Leickel will improve soon, too. (No comments).

ALBRIGHT AT WAR: Owen Henry has been writing a few lines from the navy. He is impressed by the rising time (4:45 A. M.) Jesse Ervin is planning to leave us soon and so is Cookie Wagner. It looks like Sinatra has to work overtime from now on... Bob Gale and Sergio Cuevas are counting the days, too.

LECTURES: Students, you can always become something even if you have nothing to start with. Look at Adam... He came into this world with nothing and now look at all the hat stores he has.

INVESTMENTS: Western Union reported an increase in business Reason: Enthusiastic team spirit by many Albrightians to get their team to Madison Square Garden.

ORIENTATION: Pretty tough on a few freshmen, so Bob Sokel and a few others say... And while they have their problems, so do some of the pledges of the frats and sororities... The pledges are back to the "no makeup" age.

The Inquiring Reporter

With the exciting games in the bag and the cheers cheered, your Inquiring Reporter sits down on the sidelines to RELAX and ask: What was the most outstanding moment during this year's successful basketball season?

Esther Savidge, pre-med, '48: When Albright beat Muhlenberg.

Pat Herrick, English, '47: When the score mounts up.

Lloyd Schwartz, psychology, '47: Muhlenberg's loss.

Mary Eschew, chem., '46: Landis' dribble to the basket.

Charles Russ, pre-min., '46: When Saylor shoots from the sidelines.

Edward S. Daniels, business ad., '47: When Deach used a cool head and stopped the Kutztown fight.

Shirley Sperans, lib. arts, '47: When I finished my first carton of ice cream during intermission.

Bob Deach, science, '45: It's pretty thrilling all the way through because I sit with the cheerleaders, especially the red head.

Hampton Pullis, pre-med, '48: The time I sat down on a splinter.

Humbert Manzollilo, pre-med, '46: When Muhlenberg's two men were taken out of the game.

It's a "gooey" proposition as Doc Horn's brood of eighteen luscious females begin their work Wednesday and Friday afternoons in the bacteriology lab. This one semester course is another "whip-snorter" being offered to five science majors and thirteen (quite lucky?) home ec students.

From the mixture of cooks and scientists it is quite practical as the former can handle the "pot and pan" angle while the latter calculates the pH of a solution. At the present time about three hundred test tubes plugged with cotton scattered throughout the refrigerator and autoclave (not a new type of "tin-lizzy" fellows, this is a sterilizing unit), are the result of several hours work done by the bacteria breeders.

To concoct the proper bacteria culture, meat broth consisting of agar, gelatin, peptones, etc. is boiled and poured into ten six inch tubes. Of course, a steady hand is required as any drippings immediately get into "gooey, glue-like" globules.

Next, the tubes are plugged with cotton which must be of the right length and diameter. The best method used by our Albright breeders is to insert the plug in the tube, hold the tube by the top of the cotton and shake gently—at the sound of a loud "bang" and the splatter of broken glass, one learns, as is quite evident, that the plug is not quite to size.

In due time these small dangerous vials will be filled with the specimens that are to be microscopically studied by our campus bacteriologists. For those who are looking forward to this course, it has been rumored that future classes will contain a few "well-paid" male students so that it will make the scientific specimens more interesting (the bacteria, of course)!

This week Dandy Lion gives another bouquet to a "teacher." Miss Lara Heverly is its recipient. This tall, attractive young lady with the big brown eyes is correcting grammar mistakes and explaining "Silas Marner" to pupils of Reading Senior High School. There can be no doubt that Lara, with her usual efficiency and conscientiousness, is getting the material across.

Beside teaching, Lara fills in her extra (?) moments with club meetings. As prexy of the French Club, she is the one to plan its monthly programs. She is also a member of Sigma Tau Delta, national honorary English fraternity, and International Relations Club.

Her facility with the English language is made use of since she has the job of corresponding secretary of the Pi Alpha Tau sorority. THE ALBRIGHTIAN, too, sports her name to its roster, and last year she helped on the "Cue."

Always ready to enter any conversation with a timely and interesting remark, Lara deserves and gets a loud and lusty roar from friend Lion, and a wish for her future success as a pedagogue. Any school lucky enough to have her for a "teacher" will notice an immediate increase in class attendance, we're sure.

Midday Devotions

Midday devotions for this week will be led by the following: Lois Wheeler, Tuesday, March 13; Margaret Hohl, Wednesday, March 14; Robert Schneider, Thursday, March 15; Marian Gerberich, Friday, March 16, and Agnes Snyder, Monday, March 19.

CLUB RELEASES

K. T. X. Inducts

Kappa Tau Chi, pre-ministerial fraternity, will induct eleven new members into their group this coming Monday, March 12. Dr. Zener, faculty advisor to the group, will be the speaker. The officers of the fraternity will induct the new members: William Ebbert, Robert Ziegler, John Spinder, Robert Schneider, Jack Shafer, Berwin Hainley, Harry Gruber, Ray Pottieger, Robert Buxton, Stewart McCleary, and Robert Holtzapfe.

G-burg Debates

A debate, held as part of the public speaking class, was given in the College Chapel on March 9, at 4:30 p.m. The visiting team from Gettysburg, under the management of Henrietta Zener, upheld the negative side of the question of compulsory military training, while the team from Albright, consisting of Cella Konczewski and Henrietta Morrison, had the affirmative side of this question.

Bio Films

At a business meeting of the Skull & Bones, biology society, on Wednesday, March 7, the second semester program schedule was planned. For the April meeting the club will procure, from Pennsylvania State College, films dealing with biology. Papers written by senior members the club will be read at the May meeting. Jeanne Miller prexies Skull & Bones.

Albright About Town

Last time today for "Hollywood Canteen" and its 64 stars, showing at the Strand, the only movie within easy walking distance of A. C. In case you didn't get to see it the first time, maybe you can take time off tonight. For Ginger Rogers, Joseph Cotten, and (you too!) Shirley Temple fans, they're starring in "I'll Be Seeing You," now playing at the Loew's.

For those of you who enjoy March of Times movies, "Uncle Sam, Mariner," is part of the feature at the Embassy. If your date likes Rita Hayworth, you're all set, for she's starred in "Tonight and Every Night," main feature at the Embassy.

LIONS IN THE RANKS

Ah, spring is surely coming to this part of the globe. It's about time!

We received word this week that RUSSELL GUENSCH has been commissioned as an ensign and has been designated a Naval Aviator. He was graduated from Pensacola, Florida. Then at the Gettysburg game, there was Russ. He looked good with that white cap cover.

Other service men at the game were: PVT. WARREN HEFFNER, O.C. FRANK GABLE, LT. RICHARD GABLE. There were several other service men present, but we couldn't recognize any of them.

PFC. KENNETH NESS, 13178386; Co. I 407th Inf.; APO 102; c/o PM, New York, writes: "I have been in the Ninth Army in Germany for a few months, and occasionally I am fortunate enough to return to Holland for a brief rest. Tonight I am sitting in an old Dutch university which is being used as a rest area." Kenny is a rifleman.

One of the freshmen that just went into the service at the end of last semester is PVT. WILLIAM RANKIN 33933889, Co. B, 15 ITB; Camp Wheeler, Ga. How about some of you older fellows down there looking around for Bill?

We received a delayed news release about LT. SAMUEL F. LARUE. Sam was a visitor at Albright at the beginning of the year, but here is what the release said. Sam was one of the leading Marine dive-bomber pilots in the area of the Marshall Islands. On last April 6, he was credited with a direct hit resulting in total destruction to a large warehouse on Jalutai atoll.

Last week I met WARD PRICE's wife and she told me that Ward is a tank driver in Europe. His group named the tank "The Spirit of '76" because it belongs to the 276 division and it has a 76 mm gun. News came to us that CORPORAL

GUY WILDERMUTH is in the Philippines. He is the aerologist for the first Marine aviation outfit to operate from Leyte. It is his job to keep the pilots posted on weather developments.

Guy landed on Peleliu Island on E-Day. At first he carried supplies to the front line and then acted as a stretcher bearer when the Japs were forced back to "Bloody Nose Ridge." Sounds like Guy really gets around.

CAPT. BURDSALL MILLER writes from England that he was in London about January 28 to make a broadcast. While he was in London, he met LT. OLIN SHIREY, LT. FRANCIS FLETCHER also met Olin. That's right, Burd, we no longer have an Army program here. We're back on our own again.

FRANK GABLE is attending officers' candidate school at Carlisle Barracks. Red is with the medical corps.

In a letter from Bessie Knerr Brandt, she told us that JOSEPH BRANDT is now a Lieutenant Junior Grade. Congratulations, Jose.

Harris Presents Victory Courtsters With Letters At Sports Dinner; Josh Cody Praises Team

"This is the greatest team I have ever coached," remarked Coach Neal O. Harris, in handing out varsity basketball certificates at the annual sports banquet, held in the College Dining Hall, last Monday, February 26. Over 175 students, parents, and sports notables attended.

In reviewing the records broken by the 1944-45 cage squad, Coach Harris pointed out that this team seemed to have "everything"—height, speed, offensive power, and defensive strategy. He especially made mention of the defense used this year, worked out by the players and himself, that baffled many a visiting team.

Food, Fun, Fems, And Harris Hold Repast Together

A table groaning with turkey, sausage, potatoes, vegetables, cakes, and candy, and countless other goodies, confronted us as we entered the basketball banquet held this past Thursday night. For the delicious meal the team is indebted to the parents of Forrest Saylor and Jimmy Braun.

Some of the fellows really ate as though they thought this would be their last meal on earth. Bob Deach helped himself to five servings of everything. And Chet Hagen, sports writer for the Reading "Times" didn't do so badly either. Even the girls forgot their waistlines and indulged to the fullest, appetites that had been ready for the occasion since noon.

After Tiny Landis had finally satisfied his immense capacity, Coach Harris was called upon to speak. After his entertaining little talk, the boys honored us, too. All of them held with the same sentiments... they had never worked with a team with so much spirit, or under such a great, all-round coach.

By this time we were reary to adjourn to the next room for jukebox dancing. It was here that the most hilarious event of the evening took place. Coach Harris gave imitations of the players' style—more than slightly exaggerated. To see him saunter down the floor as Landis, limp down as Braun, and leap gracefully down as Deach was really a panic. The impersonations left no doubt in our minds as to the identity of the victims. Whether this can be attributed to Harris' skill as an impersonator or to the peculiarities of the boys is open for debate. But is sure made for a wonderful evening.

Fourteen members of the team received letters. First to get his award was Bob Deach, honorary captain for the year and lone senior member of the squad. Next in line were Bill Landis, winner of the most valuable player award and high scorer of the season; "Cookie" Wagner, honorable mention on the all-state poll and whom Harris commended for his improvement since joining the squad last year.

Other members to be awarded letters were: Jimmy Braun, starting center; the speed twins, Jesse Ervin and Forrest Saylor; Franklin "Red" Seifert. Completing the squad were the "four mules" to whom Coach Harris gave much of the credit for the success of the team for their job as "practice men." Bohdan Procko, Bob Buxton, Bill Harting, and Hampton Pullis. The parents of three Lions cagers now in the service received the awards for their sons: Bill Miller, Stew Beyerle, and Ray Chelius.

Speaker for the evening, Josh Cody, basketball coach at Temple University, outlined the history of basketball. He lauded in particular the part that freshmen are playing in college basketball today. Complimenting Coach Harris on his fine season, he concluded by stressing that cagers who are leaving college for military service should plan on coming back to their alma mater at the end of the war.

Master of ceremonies for the banquet, the Rev. Lester L. Stabler, director of public relations, introduced President Harry V. Masters, and George C. Bollman, member of the Athletic Council for remarks. Among other sports notables introduced there were Sgt. Eugene Shirk, varsity manager of athletics, now on leave because of his service in the armed forces, Charles "Pop" Kelechner, former Albright cage coach, and "Petunia," squad mascot.

Student entertainment for the evening was supplied by a skit written by Walter Hayum, with Gaylord "Chick" Crozier as master of ceremonies. Taking part were Marjorie Christ, Gloria McKittrick, and the "Boston Garden Glamor Girls," Rita Duncavage, Bertina Blauch and Jeanne Miller.

Sports A la Gemme...

Traveling to Chestnut Hill, the women's varsity basketball team met the lassies of the Chestnut Hill Junior College last Thursday, Mar. 8, and came out on the losing end of a 44-19 score. The game was slow moving for the Red and White, with the score, 25-13, at the end of the half.

Coming back on the winning side, the Albright lassies took their fifth win of the season by defeating the Moravian sextet, 38-14. Played on the Reading Y. W. C. A. floor, the game was held last Saturday, March 10.

Serenade to the Team

First sung at the sports banquet
Written by Walter Hayum
To the tune of "There Goes that Song Again"

Thanks to the Red and Whites
All our games were victorious fights,
Spreading whose name? Of course, Albright's.
Over and over and over again.
That must have been a treat
Seeing the U. of Detroit in defeat,
Sending the Eagle and Times the beat,
Over and over and over and over again.
Up now came Julians' Mules.
He thought that tw would be easy tools.
But as it was we beat them quite well.
And told Julian to go to—(pause) Allentown.
They might have wondered how and why—
The reason's our team and that Harris guy.
So all we can do is cry: Thanks to our team.

We might have some screwballs on the team.
The coach himself is quite a screw.
But generally speaking they're on the beam,
Game after game after game after game.
None of the players went with a dame.
At the sight of one they'd bluish with shame
Till Harris told them that women are tame.
Game after game after game after game after game.
They really played well.
With what we cannot tell.
They hardly ever miss—
And always give their girl a good night—handshake.
In other words they like pleasure too.
We cant blame them, how about you?
So all we can do is cry thanks to our team

Side Lions

Occupying an enviable position at the banquet was "Petunia" . . . She was all decked out in her Sunday best and sat on her high chair at the honored position between the speakers' table and the squad's tables . . . Not only that, but she got her picture in the Reading Times . . . According to the clerk at the telegraph office, they were literally "snowed under" last Wednesday with Albright telegrams . . . Hats off this week to "Cookie" Wagner, Jimmy Braun, and Jesse Ervin, who will be playing in Uncle Sam's big game sometime soon . . . Wanted: a mechanic to fix that broken-down tricycle that McKittrick had at the banquet . . . Also a rake to gather the cobs from the sown by Chick Crozier.

CULTURAL SERIES

Cardin related a brief history of the American Indians and their territory in Oklahoma. Turning from history to music, he presented a program, consisting of recordings of Indian music which included "Iowa Love Song" and "Eagle Dance," one of the oldest songs in the continent. He continued by playing several numbers on the Indian flute and the violin, concluding with a "Song of Welcome" and an Indian poem, accompanying himself on the Indian drum.
